Do Your Eyes Trouble You?

I will tell you after an examination whether your eyes are serving you as they ought or not. I will tell you whether you need assistance or not — and if they "do", my record during the past four years in this city is proof of my ability to benefit you. Why hesitate when so much is at stake—when the results can only be benefit, if such is possible.

Hundreds of people in this city can speak from practical experience of benefits received at my hands. I give "every" client my best services because I know that my good name depends upon so doing. All work guaranteed.

Otonabee Athletic Club's Meet Marked by Some Grand Races

Attendance Was Small But in Other Particulars the Event Was a Grand Success—Five Mile Race Was the Feature.

"Y" SCORED MOST POINTS

The Results

50 yards junior—R. Howden, Y. M.C.A. Chieftains.

50 yards senior—V. Corkery, T. A.S. Atalctic Club.

220 yards junior—R. Howden, Y. M.C.A. Chieftains.

220 yards senior—V Corkery, T. A.S. Athletic Club.

One mile jr.—J. Hughes, Y.M. C.A. Chieftains.

One mile senior—C. Thorpe, Y. M.C.A. Harriers.

One mile relay race—Y.M.C.A. Harriers, Chas. Thorpe, E. Wilson, J H Adams, and Peter Wallace.

Five mile race—E. Wilson, Y. M.C.A. Harriers.

Pole vault—J E Crough, T.A.S. Athletic Club.

Broad jump — J. E. Crough, T. A.S. Athletic Club.

In every particular, save that of attendance, the athletic meet in the Brock street rink last night under the auspices of the Otonabee Athletic Club was a grand success. The attendance was only fair, not nearly as large as the excellence of the programme merited, for one of the best bills in its line that has ever been presented here was dished out. Every event was warmly contested, there were many exciting finishes, the races were all of a high class, and it was a well pleased crowd that left the rink at the end of the programme. The Otonabee Athletic Club is to be congratulated upon the great success that attended their efforts.

The honours of the evening were pretty evenly divided between the Y. M.C.A. and the T.A.S., the former cleaning up six events, while the latter annexed four, the score by points being: Y.M.C.A. 49, T.A.S. 31. The "Y." carried off the junior 50 yards, 220 yards, and one mile with their Chieftains, while the Y.M.C.A. Harriers looked after the senior mile, five mile, and relay race. The T. A. S. made a clean sweep of the senior 50 yards, got first and third in the senior 220, and first in the pole vault and broad jump.

Bolly Howden of the Chieftains showed remarkable speed in the junior sprints and there is apparently a bright future before this youngster. He cleaned up his preliminary heat in the 50 handily, and in the final ran a dead heat with Frank Halpany of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers, closing in on the latter with a great burst of speed at the finish. In the run off Howden won by a yard. Halpany won the first heat from Perks of the Chieftains, and Montgomery, unattached. Howden won from V Clancy of the T.A.S. and Morrow of the Business College, and Geo. Hogan of the Chieftains beat F. Hefferman of the T.A.S. and Roy Hutchinson of the Chieftains.

In the 220 Howden won without much difficulty both his preliminary and finals and his club mate, Charlie Walsh, who also won a preliminary heat, got second.

The senior sprints were easy for the T.A.S., all those who qualified for the finals in the 50 belonging to that club. Fred McGrath made his first appearance on the track for some time, and without any training, and was beaten in the first heat by Fred Terrell also of the T.A.S. Geo. Gauthier, the veteran sprinter, showed up in front in the second heat, and Vincent Corkery, still another T. A.S. man, annexed the third heat. McGrath ran in the final heat with the consent of the other competitors and won it in 5 2-5 seconds in clever fashion, but first place went to Corkery, who finished second.

McGrath won his preliminary heat in the 220 with ease in the very creditable time of 28 2-5 seconds, but did not start in the final, which was between Bailey of the Otonabee A. C., who won the first heat, Corkery, who captured the second heat, and Holland of the T.A.S., who was second to McGrath. Corkery, who shows every sign of being a comer, beat Bailey by four yards in 29 2-5 seconds.

The junior mile was an interesting event, nine runners started, and the race was warmly contested all the way. Jimmy McMartin of the Otonabees led for three-quarters of a mile, closely followed by Joe Hughes and Hugh Burritt of the Y.M.C.A. Chieftains and C. Sullivan of the T.A.S. McMartin and Hughes fell in turning a corner and the Otonabee man dropped out. Sullivan took advantage of the opportunity to set up a lead, but Hughes wore him down and beat him out in the sprint on the final lap. Burritt was third.

There was nothing to the senior mile but Charlie Thorpe of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers. He led from the start, running easily, and although his club mate, Geo. Fowler, tried hard to hang on, he dropped steadily behind. Thorpe ran a splendid race and finished with a grand spurt, winning by three-quarters of a lap. Fowler was second and Geo. Robinson of the Otonabees third. The other starters were Jimmy McMartin of the Otonabees and Chas. Knapp of the T.A.S.

The Y.M.C.A. had little trouble in beating the T.A.S.A.C. in the relay race in which the teams consisted of four men each to run three laps. Ernie Wilson of the "Y." set up a lead on Corkery of the T.A.S. at the start, and Thorpe, who ran against J Neary, Wallace against Holland, and Adams against Gauthier, added to the lead, so that the blue and white team won by over half a lap.

The feature event of the meet, however, was the five-mile open race which was won by Ernie Wilson of the "Y." Harriers after a desperate battle with Hanlan Howard, the new Hiawatha phenom, and Charlie Thorpe of the "Y." There were four other starters, Geo. Fowler of the Y.M.C.A., Geo. Robinson of the Otonabees, and B. Garside and F. Allen, unattached, but with the exception of Fowler they were never contenders. The pace was hot from the start. After the second lap Wilson let out with a sprint in the hope of killing off Howard, but the Indian swung in behind him, closely followed by Thorpe. The three made a great race, taking turns at pace-making. Meanwhile, Fowler was plugging along behind. The leaders got a lap on him, but at 3 1-2 miles he made a grandeffort and sat down their lead to half the distance, the spectators giving him a hand for his plucky work. The leaders battled it out until the finish. With four laps to go, Howard sprinted, but Wilson and Thorpe hung right on, and in the second last lap Wilson shot to the front with a burst of speed that was too much for the Indian. He did his best to stick, but dropped behind, and Thorpe, who had not intended to run more than a mile, caught and passed him with a wonderful spurt in the last lap, giving Wilson a hard brush for the honours. It was a grand finish to a fine race. Howard made a good impression and will be heard from again.

J. E. Crough of the T.A.S.A.C. won the pole vault with a jump of 7 ft. 6 in. The other contestants were Harry Munro and Lorne Fitzgerald of the Y.M.C.A. Chieftains. All cleared the bar at six feet, but Fitzgerald failed at seven feet, and Munro at 7 ft. 6 in. Crough did this height in his third attempt.

Crough also won the broad jump in clever fashion, his jump of 18 ft. 10 in., being five inches ahead of that made by Dick Evans. P. McFadden was third with 15 ft. 11 in.

ERNIE WILSON
Of the Y. M. C. A. Harriers, who won the five mile race for the Milburn Trophy after a sensational contest last night and who was also one of the victorious relay team.

CHAS. THORPE
Of the Y. M. C. A. Harriers whose work was a feature in last night's meet—Besides winning with the winners in the relay race, he cleaned up the mile handily and was only beaten out by a few feet in the five mile race, in a rattling finish.

The Schemer And the Widow.

By WILLIAM H. HANEY.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"Well, Jerry," I asked, "how did the advertising phonographs come out? Did they cough up any dough?"

Milsap stretched himself wearily in an easy chair before the fire and stroked his drooping brown mustache sadly for a minute without replying. I had not seen him before for two years and knew that he was just floundering out of the slough of despondency which always lay between the end of one of his schemes and the beginning of another.

"The fact is, George," he said regretfully, "that was a fine idea. It would have been the biggest thing you ever heard of if it hadn't been for one thing. Just when we were ready to do business the music trust busted"—

"Yes, yes, I understand, Jerry," I interrupted. "Somewhere a cog slipped, and something went 'zip!' It always does, Jerry. There is only one thing wrong with your schemes—there is always one more cog in your wheel than in the track you run on, and you get bumped."

Milsap looked so bad that I almost regretted my flippant remarks. His last scheme had been to scatter phonographs that advertised a noted breakfast food by song and story. The manufacturer, according to Jerry's plan, was to pay so much for each record put in circulation, and the only drawback had been he would not do it.

But Jerry rallied directly.

"I tell you, Monegan, I've got the scheme this time—it will make coin, you bet—the greatest scheme you ever heard of, and it will give value received too."

IT CONTAINED A SMALL PICTURE OF THE TWO BOYS.

"Well?" I asked dubiously.

"It's a correspondence school," he said, gripping my knee and peering into my face like an encyclopedia agent.

"On the ground too late, Jerry," I said. "There is already a correspondence course covering every field of learning and endeavor, from the art of making peanut candy to the science of not stammering."

"That's it exactly," he exclaimed; "there is a school for everything but one, and that thing is the most important of all. It touches almost every family in this great land and is a question of great perplexity, of vital importance, of burning interest"— He paused to gather breath.

"What is it?" I demanded.

"Raising boys," he answered triumphantly. "I will start a correspondence school to teach people how to raise boys. You see, I want to specialise at first, but may branch out and include girls later.

"But just now it is the problem of the boy that is keeping parents all over the land awake at nights and bringing their prematurely gray hairs down in sorrow and hard work. Look at the interest in the courts and newspapers and magazines in this boy question. Now is the time to strike.

"The course will embrace every step from the cradle to the United States senate and will cost only $25. Think of it! Don't you see how it will appeal? Why, one doctor's bill would cost that, one fine for shooting craps, the telegrams to locate a single runaway."

He gazed into the fire for a time, and I knew by the way the corners of his mustache began to lift the idea was still expanding.

"You see," he continued, "our patronage will not be confined to parents of boys. We will sell a great many courses to young people and old maids. The best recommendation for matrimony any one can have will be one of our diplomas. In fact, I may be able to get laws passed requiring a certificate of graduation from my school before a marriage license will be issued."

* * * * * * *

In due time there appeared in many publications a striking advertisement of "Professor Jerry Milsap's How to Raise Boys Correspondence School."

About six months later Jerry came to see me again.

"I am bothered about help," he explained, "and I came to see, Monegan, if you would consent to take charge of the detective department. You are not a detective, of course, but you can do the work. All you have to do is explain to parents actions of their boys which they do not understand and teach them how to predict from certain signs, hoots and preparations what the boys intend to do."

I consented to try it and thereby lifted a load off Jerry's mind. The concern, he told me, was very promising. More than 200 students had already been enrolled, and many inquiries were coming in by every mail. It was to answering inquiries that Jerry devoted himself—that was why he needed help.

At the end of the week he wanted me to take charge of the moral and educational departments also and promised me a big salary. I consented.

Usually I had little trouble in answering any inquiries that came to my department, but one day I had a letter from a woman in Kansas which I thought best to pass up to Jerry, the fountain head of wisdom.

There were two sons, the woman wrote, one six, the other eight. She was young and inexperienced when she married and since her husband's death had tried to manage a 500 acre farm and raise the boys at the same time. Then she asked many difficult questions.

It was a well written letter, sincere and appealing, and left the impression that here was a brave woman trying cheerfully to carry burdens too heavy for one human being.

Jerry read the letter, sat biting the ends of his mustache for an hour and then dictated a lengthy reply.

In a few days she wrote again. The letter was full of gratitude to the professor for his help and asked many other questions, all bright and pointed. Jerry went to the typewriter and answered that one himself.

Letters came quite regularly after that, and I turned them unopened over to Jerry. Once only did I open one, and that before I recognized the postmark. It contained a small picture of the two boys taken with their mother. I am not much of a judge, but the boys looked bright and energetic and, I was sure, had glorious red hair.

The next morning Jerry came to my desk as I was closing it for the night.

"Monegan," he said very soberly, "this Kansas case interests me very much."

"Is that so?" I said, quite as soberly.

"It is a case that I must work out successfully," he said earnestly. "My professional reputation is at stake. I think I had better run out there and see those boys personally. Can you manage affairs until I return?"

I thought I could, and he went Saturday.

* * * * * * * *

He did not return. I settled up the business, and there was enough to pay all debts, even including my salary.

Mrs. Jerry wrote me when I sent the final report. She said she was writing, as her husband was too tired to write. It was a very nice letter. She thanked me for the way I had managed the affairs, invited me to visit them, and added: "We are very happy and getting along fine. I find it no trouble to manage now that I have some one to carry out my plans, and Jerry is the best hand to carry out plans I ever saw."

Glass-Making Marvels.

A machine has been introduced recently which can be built to produce either the narrow or wide-necked variety of bottles at an extraordinary rate. Its capacity is estimated at twelve bottles per minute, and one man can look after three machines at the same time. The speed of the machines is not sufficient for them to run hot; they can therefore be operated for twenty-four hours every day, which makes the output about 360 gross of bottles per day at a labor expense of three men on eight-hour turns or two on twelve.

STOP SWEARING.

It Is Nothing But a Habit—and Is Very Easily Cured.

"Don't swear or you'll catch no fish," was a remark made the other day by a venerable inhabitant to a much younger man who was emphasizing his talk by the use of some rather strong expletives. No one was engaged in fishing at the time, nor was a piscatorial excursion being thought of. The suggestion was made in the back room of a cigar store, where three or four men were talking over current events, and the utterance made by the aged citizen was intended, as he afterwards said, to show his abhorrence of the nonsensical use of "cuss words." Then he felt called upon to deliver a little homily to his companions, all of whom, like himself, are well-known residents of Washington.

"Men incur habits," he said, "that are really useless, and, in my opinion, swearing is one of the worst of them. One can see why, in moments of passion or great excitement, a person may indulge in swearing, but that some men, and I know several of them, should break out with a series of oaths in ordinary everyday conversation strikes me as beyond reason.

"I presume we have all met men who regard themselves and are so considered as gentlemen who rarely express a sentence without swearing. More than that, they seem rather proud of their proficiency in this direction. I tell you that swearing is a habit that a little determination will easily overcome."

The sermon, coming from the lips of a man whose hair and long beard were as white as snow, had a good effect. The cigar merchant was so impressed that he declared he would hang up a sign in his back room which should read, "Gentlemen Are Requested Not to Swear on These Premises." Whether they allowed themselves the privilege of "cussing" elsewhere, he said, was no affair of his.

Arose to the Occasion.

A successful schoolteacher married a wealthy widower. The man had lived alone with his servants since the death of his first wife. On the morning after the bride's arrival in her new home the cook appeared for orders. Now, the little woman was far more familiar with the classics than with roasts and stews, and she was not a little dismayed when Mary innocently put the question:

"An' how will ye have the beef cooked, mum?"

For the merest instant she hesitated. Not for a fortune would she have the old servant suspect her absolute ignorance of cookery. But her years in the schoolroom had not been in vain. Calmly and sweetly she answered:

"You may cook it your way to-day, Mary, and then another time you can try my way."

And the cook went downstairs with a high opinion of her new mistress.

Foiled.

"I have come, sir, to ask you for your daughter's hand," said the young man boldly.

"And suppose I refuse it?" questioned the old man.

"Then, sir," answered the applicant, "we will abide by your decision."

At this the old gentleman started violently.

"You will not elope?" he asked.

"No, sir; we will not. We know too well what is due to us in an affair of this description. Custom puts certain obligations upon you in the way of providing a proper wedding, and if you think you can escape by giving an imitation of the obstinate father act you are mistaken."

"Foiled!" sighed the old man as he thought of the cost of the wedding. "Take her, my boy, and be happy!"

Ready With the Answer.

Miss Baxter, feeling the effects of a torrid afternoon in June, was attempting to arouse the interest of her languid class by giving, as she supposed, an interesting talk on the obelisk. After speaking for half an hour she found that her efforts were wasted. Feeling utterly provoked, she cried: "Every word that I have said you have let in at one ear and out of the other. You"—pointing to a girl whom she noticed had been particularly inattentive throughout the entire lesson—"tell me, what is an obelisk?"

The pupil, grasping the teacher's last words, rose and promptly answered:

"An obelisk is something that goes in one ear and out the other."

CHINA'S GREAT WALL.

It Was Undoubtedly the Work of a Real Genius.

The Great Wall is often stigmatized as a monument of human shortsightedness and folly by many who are willing to rhapsodize over the Great Pyramid. A great architectural work the pyramid was not. It was simply a stone tumulus, and everything goes to prove that it was nothing more than a superlative mausoleum, a monument of the vanity of the monarch who was entombed beneath it, and considered either as mere bulk or as an engineering feat it sinks into utter insignificance beside the Great Wall, a work of vast practical utility.

It is in fact the Great Wall more than anything which stamps its founder for all time for what he was—a man of the highest order of genius, possibly the greatest genius who has borne sway on the earth. The Chinese of the second century B. C., like the Romans of the first, had arrived at a critical stage in the course of their development, and each nation succeeded in producing a hero at the right moment to lead it to the accomplishment of its destiny. The prescience with which Julius Caesar, confronted with the problem of finding a suitable defensive frontier for the Roman empire, solved it by the occupation of the line of the Rhine is rightly considered as one of the chief reasons for his preeminent place in the world's history. The guarded river that the genius of the great dictator had made the frontier of the Roman empire was the terminus of barbarism for nearly five centuries. Chi Huang Ti was confronted with the same problem. He solved it with equal prescience and greater success by an inspiration of genius unparalleled in history. Where nature had placed no barrier he reared an artificial one, and for ten centuries the northern barbarians pressing down from the great central tableland strove in vain to burst through the bulwarks which he had interposed between their ravening hordes and the rich plains of China.

Probable the Great Wall was a more formidable obstacle to the barbarians of central Asia than the Rhine to the Germanic hordes of Europe. It was at once a well defined frontier, a magnificent military road and an impregnably intrenched picket line along the border. The towers were probably all occupied by pickets and communication maintained by cavalry patrols, a very easy matter on the platforms of the wall. The gates were doubtless strongly garrisoned, and at strategic points along the wall and to its rear bodies of field troops collected in permanent fortresses and intrenched camps. The wall itself was a formidable obstacle to a band of marauders. If they succeeded in scaling it there still remained the nearly insuperable difficulty of bringing across their horses, and a Tartar without his horse is well nigh helpless. Did a stronger force make an attack it must still have been an easy matter to concentrate on the threatened point before the invaders could pass in any numbers.

High Finance.

"I have a bookkeeper in my office who is evidently destined to be one of our future captains of finance, all right," a broker remarked the other day. "He is a good clerk, but of late he has been late several times, and I had to call him down.

"'You have been late three times already this week,' I said. 'What is the trouble—oversleeping yourself?'

"'No, sir, and I am very sorry,' he answered. 'I will try not to let it happen again. It has been due to the fact that I have been walking to the office instead of riding.'

"'Think the exercise does you good?' I asked him.

"'No, sir; rather a matter of economy,' he explained. 'Even small sums count to me, you see, and I have already saved enough to have my shoes resoled.'"

What He Wanted.

Perhaps some of our readers are critical enough in the use of language to decide whether the customer or the salesman was right in the following dialogue:

Customer—Show me a small, low priced shears.

Salesman (facetiously) — Perhaps you mean a pair of sheers?

Customer (severely)—I mean precisely what I said.

Salesman (defiantly, opening a specimen article)—Are there not two blades here, and don't two make a pair?

Customer (triumphantly) — You have two legs. Does that make you a pair of men?

The shears were done up in profound silence.

Force of Habit.

"What did that young cub reporter follow up before he came with us?" asked the managing editor.

"Believe he was a dentist," responded the assistant.

"Ah, I thought so!"

"Why, has he been writing anything about dentistry?"

"Yes, rather suggestive of it. In describing a storm on the lake he wrote that the ship had a difficult time 'pulling out of the teeth of the gale.'"

Her Death.

"Well," said a traveler in the train one evening, "speaking of long lives, my dear aunt died at the age of 106."

"That's nothing," said a silly looking drummer. "I had a grandmother who died at 223."

"Bosh, do you want us to believe that a relation of yours died at 223? It is not only improbable, but utterly impossible," snapped the first.

"Not at all. She died at 223 Broad street."

A Great Discovery.

"Have you made any important discoveries this year?"

"I have," answered the scientific searcher. "I have discovered a new financial backer."

She Was at the Seashore.

He dreamed a dream, then woke up
And laughed, for it was funny.
He dreamed his wife had written him
And did not ask for money.

CHARGING PAPER MONEY.

Checks Against Thefts While In the Process of Printing.

The paper money of the Government is brought in iron bound chests, locked and sealed, from the bureau of engraving and printing to the cash room of the treasury and there delivered upon receipt to the chief of the division of issue in sheets of four bills each. They are complete, with signature and numbers, except for the seal, which is printed upon them with power presses in a small apartment under the cash room.

These presses are worked by two people, usually a man pressman and a woman feeder or assistant. When the seal has been imprinted upon the bills they are counted automatically, bound in packages of equal numbers by bands of paper, marked, signed by the persons who have handled them and passed into the adjoining room, where the sheets are cut and the bills are recounted and inspected, so that the imperfect ones may be thrown out. They are then bound into packages of equal amounts and taken to the drying vault, where they lie upon the shelves for several weeks until the ink has become perfectly dry.

Every safeguard that ingenuity can contrive is placed around these transactions, and the chief of division can tell which of his hundred or more subordinates have touched the different bills in the vaults. He knows who received them, who printed the seal, who wrapped and cut them, for every package is numbered and its history is recorded in an enormous book.

The combination of checks is so complete that the chief of division would know within twenty minutes if a single bill was missing, but he has never had occasion to test this knowledge except twice within fifteen years. Only two attempts have ever been made to steal the money of the Government while it is in this stage of its history.

OUTWARD DISPLAY.

It Characterizes the Social Life All Over Italy.

Social life among the Italians is really not so different from social life in other countries, although certain national peculiarities must be remarked, says Harry Quimby in Leslie's Weekly. Italians even in the most elaborate homes do not wear evening dress for dinner unless there is a party. The particularly fashionable wear a smoking coat and a black tie, but the plain black coat is more universally used. All over Italy social life is characterized by great love of outward display. In Naples particularly the afternoon drive or promenade is important to reputation and happiness. The following will illustrate the prevailing feeling: An American who had taken a flat in a palazio, the first floor of which was occupied by a noble family in reduced circumstances, noticed every day a servant going up the steps carrying a pair of carriage doors. Upon investigating he found that the noble family shared a carriage with other families and that each had its coat of arms upon its own doors.

Fewer Italians go to the famous watering places than people of any other country. The popular annual tonic of the Italians consists of eating grapes. The treatment includes grape juice and grapes, as much as can be taken, in the morning and at noon a rare beefsteak. In the afternoon more grapes and grape juice are partaken of, and at 7 in the evening another rare beefsteak. This is continued for three weeks, when the patient is said to look and feel like a different person. The grapes purify the system, and the beef acts as a tonic and keeps up the strength, according to the Italian physicians.

Praise For the Bishop.

The bishop of an English see, being a newcomer and somewhat troubled with a neglected diocese, thought to inspire his clergy to take occasional services during the week by periodically visiting out of the way parishes and taking one himself.

On one of these occasions, having formed quite a good congregation and having been moved to much eloquence in his sermon, he felt a little not unnatural desire to know if he had made any impression on the usually unimpressionable yokels and put some leading questions to the old clerk, who was helping him to unrobe in the vestry. "Well, I hope they've been pleased with yer," said the old man patronisingly, "and I'm sure we tuk it weery kind o' yer worship to come down and preach to us, but, yer knaw, a worsser one would ha' done for the likes o' we, if so be," he added with becoming humility, "one could ha' bin found."

Innocence.

"Why," he asked, "do girls like so much to display diamond rings on their engagement fingers?"

"Well," she replied as she carelessly twirled the jewel on her third finger, "you know there is nothing like a shining example to stimulate one when he has a purpose in mind."

When she had time to speak again she cried.

"Oh, Fred, I hope you don't think I was trying to throw out a hint. I never suspected that you cared about me at all!"

The Hangings.

Recently a little girl was taken to London by her parents. On her return she was describing all the places she had seen to some young friends. One of them, of a somewhat morbid disposition, asked, "Did you see the Old Bailey, where they hang the murderers?"

"No," replied the girl, "I don't think so, but I saw the Royal Academy, where they hang the artists."

He Smoked.

"What do you mean by smoking my pipe, young man?" queried the stern father of a precocious five-year-old.

"Mamma said if I teased the cat again she'd make me smoke for it," explained the little fellow, "and I teased her again."—Chicago News.

After all, it is the imponderables that move the world—heat, electricity, light—Holmes.

FAKIRS OF INDIA.

One Who Tortured Himself Upon a Bed of Spikes.

In India there are numerous penitents of different sects, called "Fakeers," "Yogees," "Tadins," "Fandaroons," etc., who make a vow to live at the expense of the public and travel about begging, says the New York Press. The Fakeers are Mussulmans, cunning, hypocritical and impudent. They do all sorts of silly stunts and are altogether a disgusting lot. Sometimes they assemble in troops of 8,000 or 10,000, levying contributions wherever they go. The total number of Fakeers in British India is about 900,000.

Among the various brands or breeds of Fakeers you will find the "Dundee," the "Bramhucharee," the "Ramatu," the "Voishnuvu" and the genuine Mussulman Fakeer. Many of the more enlightened Hindoos, especially the Brahmans, hold these mendicants in the utmost contempt and have assisted the British Government as far as they dared in putting them to work. On the other hand, some rich property owners treat the frauds with the greatest reverence.

A few years ago there was a Fakeer who lay on a bed of spikes and took the name of Purrum Soatuntre, which means "self possession" or "independence." At the age of ten this man began a life of self mortification. He would lie on thorns and pebbles. This torture he kept up until he was twenty, and then he wandered about as a Fakeer, going from one holy place to another. At one town he shut himself up in a cell, vowing to do penance for twelve years. There he remained until vermin gnawed his flesh and left marks which lasted through life. The rajah, taking pity on him, opened the door of his cell and bade him step forth. The poor wretch was furious at this act of sympathy and heaped curses upon the rajah's head for breaking in on him.

Torture was nothing to Purrum Soatuntre. "Give me a bed of spikes," he cried, and the rajah, frightened lest the curses of the ferocious Fakeer should blight his reign, complied. And this bed of spikes became a sort of triumphal car for Purrum. He set out immediately on long journeys and was drawn on this awful bed all around the country for thousands of miles, the poor Hindoos worshiping him as a god. He traveled in this way for thirty-five years.

Mule Had Good Memory.

"I was at Tampa when a negro teamster was instantly killed by an army mule, and it furnished a good illustration of the wonderful memory that a mule has.

"The negro teamster used to pound that mule unmercifully. Instead of using strategy and coaxing his mule into submission, he used to beat it hard enough to kill a horse. Well, for two months the teamster didn't drive that mule. But the mule never forgot him. He never made any attempt to injure his new driver, who knew enough to treat him decently. But one day the old teamster came back. The mule remembered him. He waited with as much docility and patience as an ox until he was harnessed, and then, when the old teamster was off his guard, he let fly with both heels, caught the negro in the pit of the stomach and stretched him out as dead as a hammer. The other teamster was standing right there by him, but that mule didn't make any attempt to kick him. He had just been laying for the fellow who walloped him two months before, and when he had finished him he was satisfied."

LIBERAL LABOUR LEGISLATION RECEIVES ATTENTION IN MR. STRATTON'S THIRD ADDRESS TO PETERBOROUGH ELECTORS

To the Electors of West Peterborough,—

In my addresses previously issued, I aimed to specify what had been accomplished by the Liberal Governments of Ontario and the Dominion in promoting the local interests of this riding, and what had been done to promote the progress and prosperity of Canada as a whole.

The records of the Liberal Governments in these two respects are closely connected with, and have a large bearing upon what the Government has done for the promotion of an interest which lies at the foundation of national development and progress—an interest which cannot be helped or injured, as a whole, without benefitting or impairing the general national condition—I refer to the interests of Labour.

The Liberal Government of the Dominion has, ever since it assumed the responsibility of administration, showed an earnest and practical interest in the cause of Labour.

This interest has been exhibited in both specific acts of legislation and administration, and by its general policy; the two combined having the effect of creating conditions eminently favourable to the welfare of the working man.

The Liberal Government has, while recognizing the rights of all classes of the community, done much in a direct way to benefit Labour without undue assumption of protection or patronage, feeling that the working classes as a body asked no favours above any other section of the community—that all they sought was fair play, and concession of their rights as citizens, and a due share of consideration in the legislative and administrative functions which Parliament and the Government are empowered to exercise.

Before referring to the direct acts and provisions in the interests of Labour, I might point out that the general administrative policy of the Liberal Government, while promoting the general welfare, has incidentally benefitted the wage earner.

The tariff adjustment made by the Liberal Government, by cheapening the raw material used in industrial operations, by removal or reduction of duties, directly benefitted the manufacturing industries of the country, and, through them, the working population. The interests of Capital and Labour, rightly adjusted, are so bound up together that what helps or hurts one helps or hurts the other.

When manufacturing industries are prosperous and busy, Labour is well employed at good wages; and under the Liberal policy of improving the condition of industry, the growth has, as everybody knows, been astonishing.

In 1896, the exports of Canadian manufactures amounted to only nine millions of dollars; the first full year of Liberal Government they increased a million and a half, and every year since there has been an increase of from two to three millions, till last year, when there was a sharp advance of five and a half millions to a grand total of exported manufactures of $28,507,124, three times the figures of twelve years previous.

The capital invested in Canadian manufacturing establishments increased from 446 millions in 1900 to 833 millions in 1905—the latest census figures.

In the same period the wages paid to labour in manufacturing establishments, increased from 113 millions in 1900 to 162 millions in 1905, an increase of ten million dollars a year.

In the benefits of this great growth of manufacturing industry, Labour and its interests had its share.

In their tariff adjustment the Liberal Government, by lessening or removing tariff obstacles to the provision of supplies and machinery required by the miner and the farmer, stimulated these industries into greater activity, with the result of larger and more profitable and productive operations—an increased output swelling the traffic of shipping and railways; and in every step of these advances Labour had its share of activity and reward.

So the vigorous immigration policy of the Liberal Government, which has increased the population of the West to over a million, has increased our home market, and created new and enlarged demands upon the eastern manufacturer, with, of course, increased demands for the assistance of labour.

Every man who toils knows that in the past twelve years, the conditions of the labouring man and artizan has been splendid—employment plentiful and wages high.

Not only has the prosperity that has attended the application of the general policy of the Liberal Government conduced to the bettering of the condition of the wage-earner in pocket and property, but the specific Labour legislation of the Liberal Government has safeguarded his rights, protected his person, and promoted his health.

A brief reference to the specific provisions made in the interests of our working people, will show that the Liberal Government's policy in this regard has been of the most energetic, progressive and liberal character; and will also sustain the claim that practically all the legislation enacted—with the single exception of "Labour Day"—has been passed and applied by a Liberal Government of the Dominion within the past twelve years.

Prior to the elections of 1896, the Conservative Government appointed a commissioner to investigate the existence of an alleged sweating system. He reported that there was no such system.

When the Liberal Government came into power it looked into the matter and found that an odious sweating system, ten years old, existed in connection with government contracts for Mounted Police clothing, etc.—men, women and children forced to work long hours in foul, stuffy rooms, at starvation wages. Regulations to put a stop to this white slavery were adopted by the Liberal Government, and have since been carried out with successful results.

This condition of things led to the Liberal Government's fair wage policy, applied to all Government works. It required that every Government contractor must give a fair day's wage for a fair day's work—he must pay the "going" wages in the district where the work is being done.

In contracts for uniforms of soldiers, mounted police, and letter carriers and other uniformed officials, it is provided that work must be done under sanitary conditions, that current wages shall be paid for work done, in proper hours of labour, and a fair wage officer was appointed to see that these conditions are complied with.

In scores of cases where contractors have defaulted in payment, the Government has paid the workmen, thus saving them from loss, and deducted the amount from what was due the contractor.

In 1900 the Liberal Government did what the Conservatives had merely talked about for years—especially before the elections of 1889, 1891 and 1896—established the Department of Labour, directly identified with the interests of working men and working women, the greatest single factor in the building up of the Dominion of Canada.

In addition to all the benefits accruing to Labour through the working of this department, the greatest compliment ever paid to Labour consisted in erecting this Department into an independent Department under an independent Minister of Labour, as we have Ministers of Finance, of Railways, Trade and Commerce, the Premier Minister of Canada declaring that the Department has enough work, and is important enough to require, and have, the whole time, energy and attention of a Minister of the Crown.

The splendid record of the Department of Labour for the past eight years, is a foretaste of what will be accomplished under the added dignity and efficiency represented by a responsible Minister, and under a continuance of Liberal administration.

Under the Conciliation Act of 1900, for the settlement of Labour and Capital disputes, within only four or five years many threatened strikes, some of them of ominous character—like that of the Valleyfield cotton mills—were settled through the Act, and disastrous idleness prevented in the case of 15,000 or 20,000 employees. The saving in capital and wages amounted to thousands of dollars.

An expansion of this legislation was the Act known as the Lemieux Act, to aid in the prevention of strikes and lock outs in all industries connected with public utilities, which makes compulsory an investigation before a strike or lock out can be legally declared.

This extremely beneficial act together with the Conciliation Act of 1900, has been instrumental in saving, to both employers and employees, hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of dollars, in lost business and wages, and in saving immense sums of money, and great inconvenience to the public dependent upon the regular operation of public utilities.

Up till August of this year, the Lemieux Act has been invoked in over forty cases affecting 40,000 employees, and millions of capital, and in only two cases have strikes followed investigations. The Dominion Trades and Labour Congress held in Winnipeg in September last year, voted 59 to 22 in favour of bringing all trades under the Act.

The Railway Labour Disputes Act of 1903, provides for an inquiry under oath into the causes of disputes between railway companies and employees. The result is that railway strikes and the public inconvenience attendant upon tie-ups of large systems are rare, though conciliatory legislation to prevent all strikes, seems to be hardly possible.

The Liberal Government was the first in Canada to pass—in 1897—a law prohibiting the importation of Alien Labour under contract. By appeal to the Privy Council, the Department has proved the Act constitutional; and it has been the means of protecting Canadian Labour from alien competition. In the recent strike of the C. P. R. employees, but for this Act the strike-breakers would have had easy work—the railway shops would have been flooded with idle mechanics from the United States.

In 1905, the Liberal Government procured the passing of an Act making it a criminal offence for any one to induce workingmen to come to Canada on false pretences, and create formidable competition to home labour.

The danger of the invasion of Canada, by the cheap labour of the hordes of Oriental countries, to the detriment of white labour enlisted the interest and intervention of the Liberal Government. The head tax of $100 to exclude Chinese imposed in 1900, was advanced to the prohibitive figure of $500 per head, and additional measures of exclusion were adopted.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux, Minister of Labour, was sent to Japan, and made arrangements for a limitation of Japanese labour satisfactory to Canada, and Mr. Mackenzie King arranged with the British Government for practical cessation of immigration from India of cheap labour.

Acting on the report of a commission which investigated the terrible condition of workmen in railway construction camps on the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, the Liberal Government in 1898, procured legislation permitting the Government to make regulations, providing for the proper housing of workmen in railway construction camps, sanitary conditions, proper medical attendance, and hospitals for contagious diseases, and anything necessary for the comfort and well-being of the men.

Among the legislation enacted by the Liberal Government for the protection of the life and limb of workingmen, in response to the wishes of labour organizations, is an amendment to the Railway Act, requiring all trains to be equipped with appliances, such as automatic car couplers, outside car ladders, hand-grips, etc., so as to minimize the danger of accident, which according to statistics gathered by the Labour Department, amounts to 1000 deaths a year, and three times that number affected with disabling injuries.

A special officer was also appointed in connection with the Railway Commission to inquire into and report the causes of accidents on railways, and the best means for their prevention.

Further evidence of the solicitude of the Liberal Government for the interests of railway employees, is found in the fact that last session the Minister of Railways and Canals had rescinded the clause of the Railway Act, making railway men liable for prosecution for any accident that might be laid at their door, when under nervous strain of such a responsibility and fatigue from long hours without sleep.

The abolition of the sweating system by the Liberal Government, protected women and children, and the investigation made into the excessive hours of telephone girls in Toronto in 1907, brought shorter hours; and inquiry last summer into conditions in regard to the employment of children in cotton factories, will lead to legislation in keeping with the unremitting efforts of the Liberal Government, to protect the wage earner.

Such are the salient points of the record of the Liberal Government in the matter of Labour Legislation and Administration, and no elector, who has at heart the interests of this city and this country, bound up, as they are inseparably, with the interests of Labour in all its departments, can hesitate as to a choice between the government he should support upon this, as upon general questions.

There is no opportunity for comparison of records, for as far as I can recall, there was not a single act of legislation, passed by the Conservative Government in 18 years, in the interests of the Labour element of our population, except the Act setting apart Labour Day as a statutory holiday.

Contrast that with the splendid record of achievement of twelve years I have the honour of outlining above, and no one will doubt the far-reaching and effective nature of the Liberal policy of practical dealing with the interests of Canadian Labour.

I need only add that I am in hearty sympathy with that policy, and if you honour me with election, I shall use my best efforts to assist in promoting the work in this regard of a Government which has done as much in the way of effective legislation and administration in the cause of Labour as in the progressive and prosperity-producing administration of the general interests of all classes of the people of this great Dominion.

Personally, I may claim that I have not been wanting in interest in the welfare of Labour in Peterborough, and elsewhere. As a supporter and member of the Liberal Government of Ontario, which has placed so splendid a mass of legislation in the interests of Labour, on the statute books of the province, I have had my share in doing what has been done; and I have, to the best of my ability, endeavoured, on the more practical and material side, to bring both Labour and Capital into mutually profitable relations, and to contribute, in an humble way, to the material upbuilding of all the substantial interests of Peterborough.

If the electors think that I will be able, as their representative, to give them effective and energetic service, with, as I have striven to do in the past, no discrimination as to class, creed, or political persuasion, I invite, and expect, their support to secure my election as representative of West Peterborough in the Dominion Parliament.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

W. F. Stratton

Havelock Council Decides To Take No Action In Regard To Pool Rooms

Examiner Special

Havelock, Oct. 14.—Mrs. Emily Armstrong of West Toronto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Toman, Sr., of town, whose husband was killed in a wreck at Guelph Junction on March 11, has issued a writ against the C.P.R. for herself and son, claiming $10,000 on account of his death.

At the Council meeting on Monday night, Oct. 5th, Mr. M McNichol asked the council for a rebate on his license. Reeve Thompson stated in reply, that he thought the council had no power to grant a rebate in hotel license. Councillor Knox who is chairman of the License Commissioners, stated that the Provincial inspector of the License Department had advised him to that effect. It was also brought out during the discussion that out of the $2,250 paid for licenses by the hotel keepers the village only received $1,000. Those who were present were quite surprised, and something will be done to get the Department to grant the village the full amount of the high license above the regular amount of $250.00

What a Great Man Said to the Great American People.

Parisian Sage is a discovery of a celebrated scientist, who spent the best years of his life in perfecting this great hair tonic.

In giving his receipt to the American people he said, "Parisian Sage is the most delightful hair dressing in the world, but it is more than a fair dressing. It cures dandruff by killing the germs that infest the roots of the hair; it stops falling hair; it gives vigour and strength to the hair roots." Wm. Madill sells Parisian Sage at 50 cents a large bottle and guarantees it to do all that is claimed for it, or your money is refunded. If you do not reside near a druggist who sells Parisian Sage, send 50 cents to Giroux Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont., and a bottle will be sent you all charges prepaid.

HUMBLED THE PRINCESS.

Fall of a Dusky Beauty From the South Sea Islands.

One night John Sharp Williams, while a student at Heidelberg, Germany, was in attendance upon a swell function at which the guest of honor was a dark skinned princess alleged to hail from one of the south sea islands. This princess was magnificently bedecked and bejeweled, and her warm olive complexion, set off by a mass of black, kinky hair, full red lips, snow white teeth and black, sparkling eyes, made her the center of the function. The masculine-like Germans swarmed about her like bees around a honeysuckle vine, and even Dutch feminisity could not discount the charm of her manner or the beauty of her person.

John Sharp was introduced, of course, and immediately upon obtaining a near view of the princess (?) his southern instincts rose to the surface and his southern blood began to boil. Watching his opportunity, he managed to get to the beauty's elbow. Then, reducing his voice to a low, but perfectly audible key, he sent into her startled ears this alarming query:

"Look here, nigger, where did you come from?"

Panic stricken and with all her self possession scattered, the alleged princess turned upon her interrogator as she heard the familiar intonation of the southerner and looked into his unrelenting face. Then she stammered:

"Fum South Carolny, boss, but fer de Lawd's sake don't tell it."

Whether John Sharp respected the pitiful plea of a southern negress in a faraway land and permitted her to continue her bold imposition upon the credulous Germans the story does not tell. But the fact remains that the "princess" realised that she was in the presence of one who, from intimate knowledge of her race, had divined her African origin, and she could only throw herself on his mercy.—Bilexi Herald.

THE BASTILLE.

Men and Methods in the Famous Old French Prison.

The Bastille as a prison was apparently better kept and cleaner than either Bicetre or the Chatelet, and imprisonment within its walls did not, it would seem, dishonor the prisoner or his family. A great many prisoners were charged as mad, and under this elastic term the violent maniac, the ambitious madman, the young spendthrift, the megalomaniac, the reacher for the philosopher's stone or the secret of perpetual motion—all these tiresome persons might be and were included.

How, then, did these prisoners live? In the underground cells or dungeons, as in the cells in the towers, the prisoners were on bread and water, as a rule. In the other rooms in the main building three meals were served a day, with drinkable wine—"vin potable." In certain cases, according to the quality and distinction of the prisoner, he might supplement the meager furniture of his prison and get a provision of books. Very favored persons were allowed their own servant if he would consent voluntarily to undergo confinement. Voltaire began to write the "Henriade" as prisoner in the Bastille; Abbe Morellet of the Encyclopedia speaks of the great fortress as the cradle of his fame, but we must remember that it was perhaps not advisable to say much about the Bastille when you were still living within its walls and that, as M. Mouin has reminded us, "the old Spartans offered sacrifices to fear." Prisoners, moreover, had to sign on their release an elaborate declaration by which they swore never to divulge, directly or indirectly, anything they might have learned as prisoners concerning the Bastille.—Mrs. Frederic Harrison in Nineteenth Century.

ENGLISH TITLES.

Why Inferior Honors Are Sometimes Refused by Commoners.

Although it costs money to be made a peer, no sum can actually buy a British title, as may be done in some European countries. Honors of this description are in the giving of the king, or, rather, his majesty bestows them on persons at the recommendation of the prime minister, who really has the final say in the matter. Titles are conferred either directly or indirectly—directly when no third person recommends a candidate for royal recognition and indirectly when a third person brings a candidate's name forward, he having good and valid grounds for doing so. The former method, however, is the one which is usually adopted. It is the duty of the prime minister to distinguish a name celebrated in politics, science, art or literature and to decide whether the merits of any given prominent person deserve recognition at the hands of the king.

If, in the opinion of the prime minister, such a given person deserves elevation to titled rank, before the minister takes any steps in the matter the favored individual is apprised of the prime minister's intentions by a personal letter, in which is conveyed the degree or title it is proposed to confer on him, subject to his approval. In four out of five cases the approval is given. The fifth person, who may have been offered a knighthood or perchance a baronetcy, refuses because his refusal may increase his chances of obtaining at a later day a higher title still—a peerage. Armed with the person's approval, the prime minister now takes the next step—that is, obtaining his majesty's sanction, which is rarely refused.

It is seldom that a plain "Mr." blossoms straightforward into a "lord" unless the circumstances are very unusual, such as the reason why a peerage was conferred on Mr. Morley or honors conferred on successful generals in the field, as in the case of Wolseley, Roberts and Kitchener. As a general rule a plain "Mr." is transformed into "Sir"—that is, knight or baronet—and one who is already a "Sir" and has done some signal recognition finds his reward in his ultimate service to the state entitling him to royal elevation to the peerage.

WOMEN OF PARAGUAY.

Patient and Good Natured, Barefooted and White Robed.

Paraguay is rich in local color. The picturesque character of the native population, with their quaint Indian features and habits of everyday life, is interesting to anybody fond of observing strange phases of human life. By nature these people are patient and gentle, seldom complaining, chattering and laughing from sunrise to sunset and taking small thought of what the morrow may have in storefor them.

It is hard to imagine how Lopez could have drilled them into fighting material of strength enough to keep in check the combined forces of Argentina, Brazil and Uraguay for five long, weary years, and it speaks volumes for the indomitable energy of the man that he was able to sustain his position for so protracted a time.

Clothing is very much of a superfluity in Paraguay, says the Boston Transcript. The attire of the women is a cotton chemise with a long sheetlike shawl, or manta, passed over the head and around the body in Moorish fashion. The dress of the men is equally simple, consisting only of cotton shirt and trousers. Both sexes are guiltless of foot covering. At times an almost uncanny feeling rises when a group of these white robed, dark haired maidens pass suddenly with the silent tread of unshod feet.

Of a morning in the market places the women folk flock to sell their wares, carrying on their heads the baskets containing the few cents' worth of native produce they have been able to gather together for disposal in the towns. The soft Guarani language, the common tongue of the Paraguayans, adds further charm to the scene.

No Discharge.

"Maggie," said the inexperienced young thing to the cook, "the biscuits were a sight. If you can't do better next time, I will have to discharge you."

"Ye will, will ye?" Maggie retorted. "I'll have ye know, mum, that I've been workin' out two years, an' I've never been discharged yet. I'm leavin' this afternoon fer a better place."—Judge.

None Particular.

"Pop!"

"Yes, my son."

"When a person saws wood it means they say nothing, don't it?"

"Yes, my boy."

"And do women ever saw wood?"

"No; women believe that sawing wood is a man's work."

To Make Them Smart.

"Mr. Pedagog is an oldtime teacher. He believes in the rod to brighten up dull boys."

"Well, isn't that the natural way to make them smart?"

EFFECTIVE TIME TEST.

The Way a Clever Lawyer Won a Verdict For His Client.

An interesting example of dramatic appeal to human experience during a trial and a conclusive test of the appeal closed a case tried in a western court.

The plaintiff was suing a railway for damages to a building which had been set on fire, it was alleged, by sparks from a locomotive.

Counsel for the road based his defense on the ground that, since the fire was seen by employes on the train and the train was in the station only four minutes, the fire must therefore have been set before the engine pulled into the station. Four minutes, he contended, constituted a period not long enough for a fire to start and get under way.

On the other hand, counsel for the plaintiff argued in this wise: If a young man, sitting on a sofa with his best girl, is holding her hand the time travels like an express train. But if you dump a lot of sparks on the pine roof of a dry building in summer four minutes is ample to settle the fate of the structure despite all efforts to save it.

There were some incredulous smiles at this. The attorney took out his watch and, handing it to the foreman of the jury, requested him to announce the termination of a period of four minutes.

The jurymen leaned over and looked at the watch. Then they got tired and settled back in their seats. The foreman of the jury lowered his hand as the signal of the beginning of the four minutes and then rested it on his knee. The attorney shifted his feet a few times and sat down. The judge looked at the clock awhile and then gazed abstractedly out of the window. A deputy marshal looked in at the door to see what was the matter and patiently awaited the result of the curious scene. Nearly every man in the courtroom had a watch in his hand, carefully studying the face of it. The counsel for the plaintiff was sacrificing four minutes of his time. But he felt that they were well invested.

At last the foreman of the jury announced the termination of the test. To every person in the room the four minutes had seemed at least twice as long. The judge himself afterward said that it seemed something like fifteen. The ordeal had the effect upon the jury that the attorney had calculated. It was an object lesson, a striking exemplification of what might happen in four minutes.

Accordingly the jury found that the defendant's engine had sufficient time in which to fire the building and that the fire had ample time in which to get under way and create a blaze which the men on the train could see. A verdict for damages was brought in to the amount of some $15,000.

How a Good Bluff Worked.

At 10 o'clock the cashier in a certain establishment was seized with influenza. At noon the bookkeeper gasped and collapsed. Both men were sent home in cabs, and the crippled establishment was left to get along as well as it could in such unforeseen circumstances.

At 1.30 the typist announced that he must go and put his feet into hot water or his dissolution would follow. He was given permission to save his life.

At 2 o'clock the three clerks succumbed together. They attributed the attack to some fish of which they had incautiously partaken.

The proprietor was now left alone, save for the presence of one small office boy. Presently he arose and put on his hat with a determined air.

"Tommy," he said, "I think you and I had better go and see the game too!"

Where They Got Off.

The elderly matron with the bundles, who was journeying to a point in Wisconsin and occupied a seat near the middle of the car, had fallen asleep. On the seat in front of her sat a little boy. The brakeman opened the door of the car and called out the name of the station the train was approaching. The elderly woman roused herself with a jerk.

"Where are we now, Bobby?" she asked.

"I don't know, grandma," answered the little boy.

"Didn't the brakeman say something just now?"

"No. He just stuck his head inside the door and sneezed."

"Help me with these things, Bobby!" she exclaimed hurriedly. "This is Oshkosh. It's where we get off."

A Beetle Story.

A beetle weighing two grains is able to move a weight of five and one-half ounces, or 1,320 times its own weight. A man weighing 150 pounds, if proportionately strong, could thus move 198,000 pounds, or nearly a hundred tons. Some years ago I captured a very handsome beetle and placed it under a beaker—a thin tumbler used in chemical analysis—on a shelf of my laboratory. A few hours after the beetle had disappeared very mysteriously, the beaker remaining inverted. He was recaptured and again placed under the beaker. I watched the result and presently found that the beetle walked the tumbler along the shelf till it reached the edge, then crept out and fell as soon as the overhang was sufficient to afford room for escape.

Burglar Was Too Late.

We owe an apology and an explanation to the burglar who opened our office window at the week end, sought the drawer of the cashier—and was disappointed. We do not like to appear inhospitable, but on Friday night we all of us do our own thieving, and there is nothing left for visitors. Any other night we will try to give another sort of surprise.

The Wings of Love.

"Time flies," they say, my dear, and I
Am satisfied it's true.
But, goodness me, what makes it fly
So fast when I'm with you?

The wrestlers and athletes of India develop great strength by living on milk, a little goat's flesh and plenty of food made from flour.

THE TOOLS HAVE BEEN DISCOVERED

Inspector Parkinson Weaves Evidence Round Croziers.

BIGGEST FIND IN YEARS

Dominion Officer Goes to Farm Near Gowanda, N.Y., and Digs Up Complete Counterfeiters' Plant and Large Sum of Money Which Completes Case Against Queer Money Manufacturers.

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 15.—Acting upon information conveyed in the confession of T. W. Crozier, after his appearance in court at Oakville Tuesday, Inspector Parkinson of the Dominion Police, came to Buffalo yesterday morning. With U. S. Secret Service Agent William Gammon, he set out for a farm owned by Crozier, near Gowanda, N.Y. There they made one of the biggest finds of counterfeit notes and tools of recent years.

At the farm, which is two and a half miles from Gowanda, the officers found the barn which Crozier had described in his confession. Tearing up the flooring they dug for a depth of 18 inches, when they unearthed their find.

They found a box containing the tools with which the notes had been turned out.

The find included counterfeit money to the sum of $3,635, composed of 138 counterfeit U. S. silver certificates, 89 imitation of the $5 Farmers' Bank of Canada note, 150 of the $10 note of the same bank, and 100 of the $10 Standard Bank of Canada note.

The remainder of the captured outfit consisted of 47 engraving tools, rubber letters and stamps for numbering and lettering the bills, one set of each of plates for the United States $5 certificate, the $5 and $10 notes of the Farmers' Bank of Canada, the $10 Standard Bank note, the $5 Crown Bank of Canada note, the $10 issues of the Imperial and the Standard Banks of Canada, the $5 note of the United Empire Bank of Canada and several other unfinished plates.

The barn under which the find was made is unused. It is some distance from the house occupied by the tenant of the farm, who knew nothing of the character of his landlord.

Inspector Parkinson is highly elated over the success of his work and was congratulated by Buffalo police officials, who have been much troubled of late by the circulation of this phoney cash.

A Cruel Swindle.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—A pitiless swindle was unearthed when Dow Lavery was arrested yesterday morning. Lavery with another man, not yet arrested, went to Bertha Coulter, whose husband is serving a term in the Central Prison. The other man said he was a son of the Minister of Justice and said that for $25 he would get her husband out. She paid $14 and was to give him the balance yesterday morning. When Lavery went to collect the cash he was arrested by Detectives Mackie and Armstrong.

Lavery pleaded guilty in the Police Court and was sent to the Central for five months.

Jerome After Gambling.

New York, Oct. 15.—District Attorney Jerome took up the gambling situation in New York yesterday and subpoened to his office fifteen well-known sporting men, some of them proprietors of places on the police list of suspected gambling houses, to question them regarding conditions in the tenderloin.

He intends to investigate every house suspected of being a gambling house in the tenderloin and after determining which ones are doing business compel the police to close the places up.

REVIVAL IN TORONTO.

Chapman and Alexander Hold Big Opening Gathering.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—A repetition of the great meetings held during the Torrey-Alexander visitation was shown to be possible last night in Massey Hall, when Dr. Wilbur J. Chapman and Charles M. Alexander appeared on their way to the States after a revival season spent at Orillia.

Dr. Chapman proved to be a splendid speaker, full of fire and enthusiasm.

The music by Mr. Alexander, Mr. Butler and Robert Harkness was thrilling as of old and a verse of the REV. DR. WILBUR J. CHAPMAN.

"Glory Song" had all its old time inspiration.

Dr. Chapman's company follow the maxim, "They never denounce. They just love."

It was a great deal cheaper to convert a man than to try to reform him, Dr. Chapman quoted from Ralph Connor. He did not condemn the sociological workers or the apostles of environment, but the best they could do was only to add a little temper to the axe.

WANTS HER DAUGHTERS.

Hamilton Roman Catholics Are Concealing Children, Says Woman.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—Mrs. Elizabeth Longaker of New York City, is making an endeavor through the courts at Osgoode Hall to recover possession of her two daughters, Elizabeth York, 14 years, and Annie Reilly, aged 11, whom she alleges are being unlawfully held by the sisters of St. Joseph in Hamilton.

Her first husband, Geo. York, died in Hamilton in 1893. Plaintiff went to live in New York in 1900, leaving the girls with the sisters of St. Mary's Orphanage. After marrying Albert Longaker she asked, in, December, 1905, that her daughters be restored to her.

Mrs. Longaker claims she could get no satisfaction from the mother superior of the Sisters of St. Joseph in July, 1907, and appealed to Rev. Father Mahoney, who advised her to get a letter from a priest in New York. She did this and sent it with $10 to Father Mahoney, who refused, she says, either to accept the money or to disclose the whereabouts of her children.

Warrant For Yardman.

Brantford, Oct. 15.—A warrant has been issued here for the arrest of William Maguire, a local railway yardman, said to have been responsible for the violation of rules which resulted in the disastrous wreck on the Grand Trunk Railway near Mt. Vernon.

Maguire, whose home is at Princeton, has not yet been located by the authorities.

The wreck was caused by a freight train leaving the city before the return of the pilot engine on the Mt. Vernon grade.

The inquest has not yet been held.

Noted Surgeon Stricken.

New York, Oct. 15.—After a career during which he has successfully combatted cases that have placed his name high on the scroll of America's most distinguished surgeons, Dr. William T. Bull is confronted with one which he is called upon to diagnose with all the calmness at his command. Bravely he tells friends, he is summoned to attend his last patient—himself.

He is stricken with a cancer on the neck.

A Schoolboy' Joke.

Strathroy, Oct. 15.—Allen Bolton, about 15 years of age, a student at the Collegiate Institute here, was the victim of a practical joke yesterday, which p ved rather serious. Some mischievous student placed a piece of glass on his seat, and he was badly cut. He was conveyed to the office of Dr. A. S. Thompson, and thirteen stitches were required to sew up the wound.

Pleads Guilty.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—In the sessions yesterday Albert Love, a mail carrier arrested for the theft of money letters, pleaded guilty at the solicitation of his wife, who with two children were in court. He broke down in the dock. He will be senteneed later.

Defines Unwritten Law.

Hamilton, Oct. 15.—Police Magistrate Jelfs delivered a lecture last evening on the unwritten law. He said that Thaw and his friends had a misconception of the term, which the speaker interpreted as the law of God or conscience.

$2,000 In Clothes Stolen.

St. Catharines, Oct. 15.—The tailoring establishment of Matthew Kennedy, Front street, Thorold, was burglarized between one and two o'clock yesterday morning. The robbers got away with over $2,000 worth of worsteds.

More Strikers Resume Work.

Winnipeg, Oct. 15.—From several centres, notably Moosejaw, comes the report that all strikers have either returned to work or will return by the end of the week.

Wright Guilty of Manslaughter.

North Bay, Oct. 15.—Judge Britton has reserved sentence on Thomas Wright, found guilty yesterday of manslaughter in the killing of Fritz Young at Iroquois Falls on May 30.

SCORES FACE STARVATION

Arrangement Entered Into Regarding Pacific Coast Oriental Immigrants Will Solve Serious Problem Which Confronted Canadians—Laurier and Strathcona Responsible For Solution of Difficulty.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 15.—J. B. Harken of the Department of the Interior, announced last evening that the Government had solved the Hindu question so far as the Province of British Columbia is concerned.

The entire Hindu colony, consisting of over 2,000, is to be moved from British Columbia to British Honduras.

The plan is being carried out as a result of negotiations which have been carried out between Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Lord Strathcona, Canadian High Commissioner in London, and the Government of Honduras. The later was in London recently and personally talked over details of the scheme with Strathcona.

Harken was sent from Ottawa by Sir Wilfrid and will leave to-day with two Hindu delegates from Honduras to arrange details of the colony at that end of the line.

The Hindus are anxious to move, and the Imperial Government will assist in the cost of transporting them to their new home.

Scores of members of the Hindu colony here are not only out of work, but actually starving. Much suffering will result this winter if they are not moved.

The present plan is to charter two ships to carry them to Panama and send them across the Isthmus, thence to their destination.

They will be employed building the railway in Honduras.

Capitalist Drives Car.

New York, Oct. 15.—Because he would not accept part payment from fire insurance companies on losses in the San Francisco fire, Patrick McFadden, who for 11 years made his home at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco, is now driving a Chambers street horse car; and he said yesterday he would keep on driving till he got his full insurance.

Before the disaster McFadden reckoned his income between $10,000 and $15,000. Even now he might settle with the insurance companies for $6,500, but he prefers to work for $2 a day.

Former Official Sentenced.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 15.—James Milne, formerly general superintendent of the British Columbia Electric Railway, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary yesterday morning on a charge of securing money from the company by means of orders passed by him in his official capacity. There were 23 charges against him and he pleaded guilty. This is the culmination of a series of prosecutions by the company against employes who have secured money by padding pay lists.

The Times on the Elections.

London, Oct. 15.—(C. A. P.)—The Times, discussing the elections, says Laurier is one of the great leaders of the imperial movement and points out that there is a tendency to dissociate the Premier from the record of his Government. However complimentary this is to Laurier, it is unfavorable to the prospects of his party. The Times is inclined to think the Government will be returned with a considerably reduced majority.

Duck Hunter Drowns.

Lindsay, Oct. 15.—A drowning accident occurred yesterday morning at Bald Point, Sturgeon Lake, Andrew Lawson of Beamsville was the victim.

It appears that the unfortunate young man, in company with W. A. Sinclair, Mr. Lowy and Mr. Culp, also of Beamsville, were engaged in duck-hunting off the point. Lawson was about 29 years of age and a druggist by profession.

Salome Shocks Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Oct. 15.—Director of Public Safety Edward G. Lang last evening attempted to stop the "Salome dance" given by Miss Blanche Deyo with the "Joe" Weber Co. at the Duquesne Theatre. He declared he was barred from the stage door, after he had made arrangements to secure entrance, so he could order down the curtain should he find the dance immoral.

PETERBOROUGH THURSDAY OCTOBER 15 1908

THE "MYSTERIOUS MR. E." HAD NARROW ESCAPE; NABBED BUT THE EXAMINER WAS NOT PRODUCED; HE EXPECTS TO BE CAUGHT AT ANY MINUTE NOW

His Adventures Yesterday—Talked Politics on George Street—Watched Crowd Follow His Managers — And Visited The Crystal and Athletic Meet.

STOOD NEAR HIS PICTURES

The Mysterious "Mr. E," of the Peterborough Examiner, is still uncaptured, but he asks us not to be surprised if he is caught any minute now. The people of Peterborough are giving him a hot time, and he admits willingly that this town is a harder proposition than he contemplated. We would like everybody to understand it is immaterial how soon you catch "Mr. E." He will immediately reveal his identity when he is given the correct salutation, providing you are armed with the latest edition of the Examiner.

Excitement in the chase among the people has reached fever heat, and many laughable incidents are constantly occurring through excited individuals tackling the wrong man. Commercial travellers particularly seem to be the ones our amateur Scotland Yarders have especial leanings for. One man was stopped no less than eleven times yesterday, once by an excited woman who stoutly maintained he was the mysterious one. After five minutes' use of the English language and some "French," he finally convinced her of her mistake. No one need fear approaching anyone though, who, in their estimation, might be the missing one, for even if a mistake is made all concerned take it in good part. So arm yourself with the latest edition of the Examiner study "Mr. E's" photos in Barrie's windows and keep your eyes open for every smooth-looking stranger. L. Hayden O'Connor and George Felix Green are daily mistaken for their man dozens of times, and quite enjoy the incidents. Though recourse to "Mr. E's" McLaughlin-Buick car has some times to be taken to get away from the crowds that follow them.

His Movements Yesterday

The Examiner is in receipt of "Mr. E's" letter, covering his movements of yesterday. He writes:

Dear People of Peterborough—Before proceeding to give you particulars of my doings yesterday, I want to tell you that I have never in all my experience, which has been extended throughout England and the United States, had such a splendid chase as I am enjoying in Peterborough. I certainly miscalculated you on my first visit, and I think my managers are in the same box. I tell you candidly that I expect to be landed any minute and it really is hard to believe sometimes that I am not actually fleeing from justice. Well, I made it my business yesterday to get right in amongst everybody. I walked and talked with all the easy ones I came across, and I may add that my conversation was always about "Mr. E." I carried an Examiner in my right hand pretty nearly all day. During the noon hour I walked along Hunter and George streets for nearly five minutes. Was within fifty yards of my manager when he entered the drug store on the corner of Hunter and George. I received repeated signals from him and successfully carried his instructions out.

Talked Politics

Probably the young man with the brown derby and dark suit, who talked to me at twelve o'clock was striking, just around the corner on George street, about the outcome of the coming elections, will remember me. I think he'll recall the dirty-looking dayman with a whip in his hand, who thus conversed with him.

During the course of the afternoon I betook myself away from the centre of the city and strolled through the residential districts. I was attired in a very neat blue serge suit, black bow tie and soft black hat. Without a doubt the lady accompanied by a little girl, who dropped her handkerchief on Water street just as I was passing her, and which I picked up for her, will remember me.

A Close Shave

I had one rather close shave very shortly after walking briskly along Wolfe street. I passed a man standing in front of No. 102, I think, not far from the railway. As soon as he caught sight of me he seemed suspicious, and just as I passed him he stopped me and gave me the salutation, but failed to produce the Examiner. I, of course, indignantly denied the identification and passed on. Rather close escape, eh?

Probably the incident that gave me the most amusement of the day was when Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Green went into Barrie's store. By the way, I might as well tell you now why they did do so. I was standing directly on Barrie's corner when I saw my managers, followed by quite a crowd, coming down George street. Instantly they saw me and gave me No. 7 signal, and, as things might have become pretty warm for me if

THE SHARP TRICK OF JEREMIAH BROWN, LATE OF PETERBOROUGH; HOW HE ESCAPED PUNISHMENT

Examiner Special

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 15.—Jeremiah Brown who was discharged from Central Prison last Friday after two years' imprisonment for robbery at Peterborough, when up at the police court for drunkenness to-day, pleaded that he had not been before a magistrate for two years and was let off on suspended sentence.

OVERHEAD BRIDGE PROBLEM UNDER DISCUSSION BETWEEN CITY OFFICIALS AND MR. STUART

Mr. Robert Stuart of the Quaker Oats Company of Chicago has been in the city the past couple of days on business in connection with his various interests here. He was met by appointment by Mayor Rush and a couple of aldermen in connection with the overhead bridge proposition. Mr. Stuart and the Quaker Oats Company are very much interested in this subject and will do all they can to further it when the time comes. At present there is not likely to be anything definite done.

Mr. Stuart and his firm are also greatly interested in the early completion of the Trent Canal to Georgian Bay. When boats can run through to that water it will be a great advantage to the local concern.

BLACK LISTED MAN CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF THE LIQUOR ACT

Charged with a violation of the Liquor License Act in regard to black-listed persons, a local man appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning. It was proved by License Inspector Stewart that the defendant had been black-listed, and by P. C. Meharry that he was intoxicated early this morning. The magistrate, however, dismissed the charge in the following words:

"I adjudge that in order to convict the defendant he must have been found under the influence of liquor in a place where liquor is sold or dispensed, and that this is the meaning of the sub-section 7 of the Liquor License Act as amended by sec. 8 of ch. 54, 8 Ed VII. Otherwise, a man found drunk in his own house or else where he had been black-listed would be liable to the penalties or imprisonment under the Liquor License Act. In short, it would be making drunkenness a crime. The law has not yet gone that far—and it might be found that the Ontario Legislature has not power to create a new crime.

"I therefore discharge the information."

Mr. W H Moore, who conducted the prosecution, asked that defendant be requested to state where he obtained his liquor, as required under the Act, with the result that defendant stated that he had procured three bottles of liquor in Hastings county two weeks ago.

EXTENSION FOR FOURTEEN FOOT STAGE FOR M. PAPPAS' NEW THEATORIUM

The rear wall of the old Times building has been taken out from the second storey to the ground, for the construction of the new theatorium which M. Pappas is preparing. On the market side of the building there is a space of about fifteen feet between the sidewalk running to Simcoe street and the wall. A foundation is being laid at that place for the stage of the theatorium. The first floor has been taken out and a new one, slanting from the street line to the foot of the stage, is being laid. This will provide seating accommodation for 300 people and the stage will be such that vaudeville performances will be a possibility in the new five cent theatre. The interior will be handsomely finished, and altogether will be modern in every respect.

FOOTED IT FROM PORT HOPE TO THIS CITY; HE MANAGED TO GET WORK ON THE FARM

A young man who came from Hamilton via Port Hope, tramping it from the latter town to Peterborough, applied at the local immigration office yesterday afternoon, secured work on an Otonabee farm and immediately started out to begin duties. He stated that he had had considerable experience in this respect and will likely receive $15 a month.

Mr. Howson stated to the reporter that it is strange how the farmers' demands fluctuate. Some time ago they asked only for men who could plough, but now they are willing to take men who could at least attend to the root crops, enabling the farmers to do the ploughing themselves. The price now being paid is from $10 to $15. All reports are not quite that cheery. One young man commenced with a farmer who offered him two dollars a month. It is hardly necessary to say that he was not long on the job. However, the prices are ranging as stated above, the men with most experience receiving the highest wages.

SPLENDID SCORES BEING MADE AT THE BOWLING CLUB ALLEYS

A splendid basis of comparison of the relative merits of Peterborough and Toronto bowlers is afforded by the results of Toronto league games played on Tuesday night. In one of those games Frank Elliott, of the Torontos, rolled 602 in three consecutive games, while Geo. Capps, of the Royal Canadians, hung up a mark of 235 in one game. Both of these scores constitute records for the season and a great deal of noise is being made over the feat among the Toronto bowling fraternity, who may be surprised to hear that both marks have been greatly exceeded on the P.B.C. alleys within the past week. Billy Wareham, for example, strolled in last night and rolled a single game against Harry Lacheur for a score of 237, while B. A. Lillie, recently, put up a mark of 255 for a single game, and rolled a total of 656 in three consecutive games. The latter mark is only a comparatively few pins below the Canadian record.

Both of these bowlers have entered for the big tournament, which starts to-morrow night, and there are a great many others equally as good, who will compete, the indications being that some of the classiest rolling in the annals of Canadian ten pins will be witnessed. All arrangements are now complete for the inauguration of the tournament and all six alleys will be going full blast after eight o'clock, at which hour play will start.

There are ten teams entered and the draw will be made this evening, when entries will close. The entries for the doubles and singles will not close until next week.

As a special attraction for opening night the mysterious "Mr. E" will visit the alleys and a prize of $5 will be offered to anyone who catches the elusive stranger while he is there.

While the games are in progress the scores as they are made will be marked up on a large bulletin at one end of the room, in full view of all, so that the spectators will be enabled to follow the play closely throughout the various contests.

ONE OF THE NUMBER TO WHOM THE SUCCESS OF NORWOOD FAIR IS DUE

MR. FRANK E. BIRDSALL.
For 20 Consecutive Years the President of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society.

FOR TWENTY YEARS

Mr. Frank Birdsall Occupies Position of President of Agricultural Society of East Peterborough Society for That Length of Time

A MAN RESPECTED BY HIS ASSOCIATES

Few presidents of agricultural societies have enjoyed the esteem and confidence of his associates as has Mr. Frank Birdsall, president of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society. Thirty-nine years ago Mr. Birdsall became president of the association, and for some years following held that office. Changes were then made, but the members, recognizing Mr. Birdsall's superior qualities as a leader, made him president twenty years ago. This position he has held for the past two decades, and in all probability will hold it for some years to come.

EAGLE LAKE CAMP HAS BEEN PITCHED FOR THIS SEASON

Messrs. Gus Sawers, Chas. Butcher and B Mitchell of the Eagle Lake Hunt Club, went back for their annual hunt among their favourite haunts where the game is plentiful and marksmen are few. Fishing and duck shooting will provide them with the best of sport for the next two weeks when they will be joined by the rest of the club.

THE CAMERA CLUB MEETING TO BE HELD ON FRIDAY EVENING

The meeting of the Peterborough Camera Club on Friday evening, at eight o'clock, in Mr. Mendel's studio, will be of especial interest to all lovers of photography, and lists are at Mr. Mendel's studio, McDermid & Jury's and Madill's drug stores, as well as the Tate-Taylor Optical Co., where they may be signed by anyone desirous of becoming a member of the club.

It is expected that final arrangements will be made for the club's first outing on the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day to Springville. All interested are cordially invited to attend.

THE SCORE BY CLUBS

Y.M.C.A.—First in junior 50, junior 220, junior mile, senior mile, five mile open and relay race. Second in junior 50, junior 220, senior mile, five mile open and pole vault. Third in junior 50, junior 220, junior mile and pole vault. Total 49 points.

T.A.S.—First in senior 50, senior 220, running broad jump and pole vault. Second in senior 50, junior mile and relay race. Third in senior 50 and senior 220. Total 8 points.

Otonabee A. C.—Second in senior 220 and third in junior mile. Total 4 points.

IMMENSE THRONG ONCE AGAIN VISITS VILLAGE ON BANKS OF THE OUSE TO ATTEND BIGGEST AND BEST FAIR IN THE HISTORY OF NORWOOD

Annual Exhibition of East Peterboro Agricultural Society Surpasses Itself in Numbers and Quality and Quantity of Exhibits —The Merriest of Merry Midways

FINEST OF SPEEDING EVENTS

President Birdsall and His Efficient Staff Crowned With Success —Works of Art of the Ladies Much Admired—Some Incidents Of the Day

Special Staff Correspondence.

Norwood, Oct. 15.—From the vantage point on the little knoll to the south of the fair grounds, one could only look with wonderment over the throng of visitors who had "dropped in" from the countryside to attend once again the annual Norwood Fair—bigger, better and grander than ever. Yesterday was the important day of the exhibition of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society, and it was only the smile that would not vacate the premises that the directors were wearing in the afternoon, when the crowds came in regular phalanx like and bore down upon the busy gatekeepers. Estimated at between six and seven thousand people, this vast throng, attired in all the colours of the spectrum combined with the most ideal October weather and made the fair undoubtedly the best in Norwood's history.

At least five counties were represented. Holidayers came from Hastings, Victoria, Durham and Northumberland, as well as from Peterborough, and past acquaintances were renewed and new ones formed in abundance. It is the one day in the annual life of Norwood villagers when everybody's relations or friends visit them and are made welcome. Buggies, carriages and vehicles of other descriptions could be seen in back yards, vacant lots and sheds, and even without a view of the fair grounds, it could be easily seen that some prominent event was in progress. There was much truth in the statement of one of the directors—"the fair has indeed surpassed itself."

The Entry List

So far also, as the number of entries were concerned, the exhibition was a complete success. The finest of horses, the choicest of cattle, sheep and swine were there, the poultry coops were filled, and the display building was one prominent attraction of the day. It contained the products of the farm and garden and represented the best in vegetables and fruit that can possibly be produced. The major portion of these exhibits were from Asphodel, Dummer, Douro and Otonabee.

Works of art in pen and crayon and camera productions occupied a prominent place in the building, as did also the homespuns and embroidery work of the industrious housewife.

The Examiner and the Canadian Dairyman and Farming World tents were visited by many.

The man Behind the gun

The East Peterborough Agricultural Society has a splendid coterie of officers. Their president is Mr. Frank Birdsall, a man respected by all who know him, and a worker also. Mr. J. E. Roxburgh is the energetic secretary-treasurer; Messrs. Hugh Neilson and Ed. Hawthorne being the vice-presidents. The directors are Messrs. Andrew Knox, J. A. Sexsmith, John Kelly, W. H. Brethen, Jos. Johnston, J. F. Elliott, J. Andrews, B. C. Parker, H. Dunham. The honorary directors are Messrs. Chas. O'Reilly, J. Brackenridge, John Knox, Geo. Elliott, J. B. Pearce and W. E. Roxburgh.

On the Midway

No person who ever attends the Norwood Fair fails to take in the midway. It was there yesterday, bigger than before, and better patronized. "The game you bring" stands were conspicuous and it was only those with a limited quantity of coin who were unsuccessful in referring to it as the "game you carry away." The living monstrosity—a calf with five legs and six feet—was another attraction. In addition to these there were the snake show, the merry-go-round, the candy wheel, the stalls on the button, ball games, high pitch man, the Beautiful Oriental show and several "juice joints" — more commonly known as lemonade stands. Of course, no fair is complete in these modern times without the ice cream cone booth and it was on the fair grounds, too.

Other Attractions

During the afternoon splendid music was provided by the Norwood Brass Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster A. Brough. The cadet corps of the Norwood High School was inspected on the grounds by Col. Young, O.C.E.O., of Kingston. Their

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY, KINGSTON, TO BECOME SEPARATED FROM THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Examiner Special

Kingston, Oct. 15.—Queen's University trustees have decided for separation from the Presbyterian Church. The conviction of the trustees was that the altered conditions with which the university has to deal in these latter times calls for the removal of the denominational disabilities in the charter of the university. The resolution was carried by 16 to 3.

INFANT CHILD LEFT ALONE IN HOUSE IN AN UNSETTLED PART OF COUNTY WHILE ITS PARENTS WERE AWAY

A case was heard by Magistrate Edmison this morning, in which a woman from one of the less settled parts of the country, complained that her husband had ill-treated her eighteen months old son. High County Constable Cochrane being informed of the circumstances, investigated the affair on Tuesday last. He found the child alone in the house with nearest friends living at a distance of two miles. There were no comforts in the home, although there was a supply of provisions. The infant was sleeping.

Mr. Cochrane started out to find the parents and succeeded after walking to a settlement about two miles distant. The mother has to go to this place for milk for the child, as they have no cow of their own. The mother states that her husband has beaten the child, and Mr. Cochrane stated in his evidence that he did not consider it was given proper attention. Mr. Cochrane told the parents that he would have to take the child and place it in the Shelter. The husband, he said, cried and manifested deep grief, but Mr. Cochrane suggested that he would soon get over that.

This morning the mother voluntarily gave the little one over to the society. Mr. Goodwill, who appeared for the latter, thought the woman should be placed in the House of Refuge for a time, and an effort is being made to gain her admission.

"Statements In Regard To The Peterboro Players Are All Rot" Says Ex O.R.F.U. Secretary Hay

An effort is being made in Toronto to drag Peterborough into the squabble which has originated from the charges of professionalism made against Ottawa, Argonaut and Tiger players of the Inter-Provincial Union, and the Telegram last night advised the O.R.F.U. to look over Peterborough's "bill of amateur health." President Slee of the O.R.F.U., is also quoted by the same paper as saying that all members of the Peterborough team who play against T.A.A.C. on Saturday must make affidavit as to their amateur standing.

When these statements were brought to the attention of J B Hay, formerly secretary of the O.R.F.U., this morning, he characterized them as "utter rot."

"I think you will find," he continued, "that Mr. Slee has been misquoted. True, Peterborough men who competed against Montreal in the Dominion championship game a year ago were disqualified, but so also was every man in the Argonaut team. Now, practically all the Caramen turned over after the Inter-Provincial season to the T.A.A.C. team. These are the same men who propose to compete against Peterborough on Saturday and not one of them to my personal knowledge has been asked to even make verbal affirmation as to his amateur status let alone take an affidavit.

"If Peterborough players are to be discriminated against in this barefaced fashion, things have indeed come to a pretty pass in O.R.F.U. circles. But I think you will find as I stated before Mr. Slee has been misquoted and that his Union will admit Peterborough players on exactly the same terms as T.A.A.C.

'In fact I at present have a letter from Secretary Gladish, offering six permits to any players I might name down here to take part in the junior series and this entire lot competed last year at Montreal and were subsequently disqualified. No affidavits were asked for in these cases and I think you will find that none will be demanded from the men who go to Toronto on Saturday. They are as good amateurs as can be found anywhere and the O.R.F.U. knows it.'

THE Y.M.C.A. AND LINDSAY WILL BATTLE FOR THE JUNIOR HONOURS

The Y.M.C.A. and Lindsay teams will fight it out in this district in the Junior O.R.F.U. series. This was decided last night when a meeting of the representatives of the Clubs was held at the Examiner office. The T.A.S. Athletic Club decided to drop out of the junior series in order to enter the senior ranks and accordingly the "Y" and Lindsay were left in the fight.

Lindsay was represented at the meeting by Mr. McHugh; the T.A.S. by J Deannard, and the Y.M.C.A. by G Cannift. On the T.A.S. dropping out it was decided that the Y.M.C.A. and Lindsay should play a double schedule of home and home games, the first in Lindsay, a week from Saturday, Oct. 24th; the second here on Oct. 31st; the third in Lindsay on November 7th, and the fourth here on Saturday, Nov. 14th. In the event, however, of one team winning the first two games, it was decided that the series should terminate then without playing the other two games.

THE SHAKESPEARE CLASS IS TO BE TAUGHT BY INSPECTOR MOWAT

It is expected a large class for the study of Shakspere will be formed this evening at the Y.W.C.A. It is sufficient to announce that Mr. A. Mowat, B.A., P.S.I., will conduct this class. A cordial invitation is extended to all members to enjoy this study.

Last Friday evening at the Bible Study Circle it was decided that the women of the Old Testament would be studied during the comin Friday evenings. To-morrow evening from 7.15 to 8 the subject will be "Sarah."

OBITUARY

HUGH S. NEILSON

An old resident of Otonabee passed away at his home con. 1, lot 26, on Wednesday, Oct. 14, at 10 o'clock in the person of Hugh Sinclair Neilson, aged 75 years. He was widely known and highly respected. He leaves to mourn his loss three sons, Hilliard, Hector and Allan, all living in Otonabee, besides his wife.

The funeral will be held Saturday at 1.30 o'clock and interment will take place at Cameron cemetery.

ADMINISTRATION OF PUBLIC LANDS.

The Conservatives, with that utter disregard for truth which is their chief characteristic in the present campaign, are endeavouring to mislead the public as to the real facts which concerns the land administration of the present Government, and it may not be untimely to place on record a statement of the case derived from official records.

During the Mackenzie Administration, from 1873 to 1878, the area of timber lands disposed of was 310 square miles. On this bonuses were paid amounting to $7,150, or an average of $23.06 per square mile.

During the Conservative term, from 1878 to 1896, there were disposed of 29,322 square miles of timber lands. On these bonuses were paid amounting to $121,219, or an average of $4.13 per square mile.

From 1896 to May, 1897, the Liberals, under Sir Wilfrid Laurier, disposed of 6,456 square miles, for which $528,878 was paid in bonuses, or an average of $81.92 per square mile.

In addition, the Conservatives granted timber berths within the railway belt in British Columbia between 1885 and 1896 totalling 1,114 square miles, for which bonuses of $56,213 were paid, or an average of $49.10 per square mile.

The Liberals have granted 1,401 square miles in the same railway belt between 1896 and 1907, but it has received in bonuses $463,555, or an average of $330.75 per square mile.

Let us place these facts and figures in a different form:

The late Conservative Government disposed of 29,322 square miles of timber; the present Government of 6,456 square miles.

The Conservative Government for 29,322 square miles received $121,219; the present Government for 6,456 square miles received $528,878. In addition the latter secured annual ground rent amounting to $30,000 per year and fifty cents per thousand stumpage dues.

The Conservative Government received for the timber thus disposed of an average of $4.13 per square mile; the present Government has received for the timber disposed of an average of $81.92 per square mile.

Had the Conservative Government received as much per square mile for the timber they sold, they would have put $2,402,058 into the treasury instead of $121,219.

Had the present Government sold the timber lands at the prices got by the Conservatives they would only have put $26,663 into the treasury instead of $528,878.

In one year of Conservative rule, 1883, 10,326 square miles of western timber limits were given away without bringing one cent of bonus into the treasury.

This consisted of 212 limits, or fifty per cent. more timber than the present Government has disposed of in the twelve years between 1896 and 1908.

Sold at the average price which the Mackenzie Government received this area would have put $237,108 into the public treasury.

If sold at the average price received by the present Government it would have put $845,905 into the treasury.

But it did not bring one dollar into the treasury. It was a free gift without money and without price.

Who, therefore, did the looting of the public domain?

IS IT "TWO OF A KIND"

Much is sought to be made by the Conservative campaigners as to the large profits made by Mr. A. W. Fraser, of Ottawa, who bought a timber limit for $1,650 and sold it for $100,000. The weakness in this scandal is that there is no scandal in it. Mr. Fraser bought the limit by tender at a price above the upset price fixed by the official valuator. His object, like all other men who do business, was to make money. He saw more in the proposed purchase than anybody else, because he bid more than anyone else was willing to give. If anyone else had bid $5 more he would have got the limit. The regulations under which the timber was sold were made by the Conservatives themselves. It is a matter of record that Conservatives alienated 29,322 square miles of timber lands at $4.13 per square mile and of this 23,000 acres were given to party friends for no valuable consideration at all, that is no consideration that went into the public chest. The Liberals since 1896 have sold only 6,456 square miles for $89.92 per square mile, and not one mile has been sold except at public competition and to the highest bidder.

A MAJORITY OF SIXTY-FIVE.

The Montreal Herald has applied to a prominent Liberal in each of the different provinces of Canada for a careful and impartial estimate of the probable number of Liberal members who will go to Ottawa from his province after the coming election. There is much water to go under the bridge yet before the date of polling, but if no unforeseen contingency arises in either direction the following estimates will be found substantially correct.

In the case of British Columbia, the estimate fo the man on the spot is very much more favourable than that of observers on this side of the Rockies, who have been inclined to admit that British Columbia, while having no particular love for the Conservatives, would visit all its own peculiar grievances, real and imaginary, on the heads of the Federal Government and materially reduce its Liberal representation. The Herald's informant in this province telegraphs: "Five, with fair prospects for the remaining two." It is not impossible that he is better aware of the real value of the noisy exclusionist and "better-terms" agitation than outsiders can be.

The estimate by provinces follows:—

Provinces.	Liberals.	Others.
Quebec	65	10
Ontario	39	47
New Brunswick	10	3
Nova Scotia	12	5
Prince Edward Island	2	2
Manitoba	6	4
Saskatchewan	8	2
Alberta	5	3
British Columbia	5	8

The new House of Commons will consist of 221 members, thus giving the Government a majority over all oppositionists, if this forecast is correct, of sixty-five.

The tu quoque argument is not always an answer; but it is pertinent to show that on the same principle that is applied in the Liberal Government—only a little more so—the immaculate Whitney Government is a government of grafters. This same Mr. Fraser, of Ottawa, was a member of the syndicate that purchased the Right of Way mine, in the Cobalt district, from the Whitney Government. Mr. Fraser's holdings in the syndicate cost him $6,000, yet he was offered within a few months no smaller a sum than $300,000 for his interest that cost him $6,000. The Whitney Government sold the whole property, for which less than an eighth is valued at $300,000, for $50,000.

If it was "graft" for Mr. Fraser to purchase by public tender a timber limit which he was able to sell at a big profit, what was it for Mr. Fraser and his friends to buy for a song a mine which is now of startling value?

If the timber limit sale was a sin for the Dominion Government, the mine sale was a bigger sin for the Whitney Government. Is it not possible that it was a lucky strike in both cases, free from any element of crookedness or collusion? The respective governments may not have known, and, doubtless did not know that either property was of exceptional value at the time of sale.

FOR A FRESH START.

The western agents of the Canadian Pacific Railway are now proclaiming that, with the crop movement actually under way, the business depression is over for good. What is worth while to note, however, is that this ready resuperation has been made possible by the fact that in the last ten years in the West the process of settlement has gone on in earnest. What has enabled the railway men to regain their confidence is the fact that there are a million people in the West now, where twelve years ago there were a couple of hundred thousand, and that they have ten million acres under grain, where formerly there were but two millions to draw from. The filling of the West with men is the great practical achievment of the Laurier administration, for the market created by the presence of that new population has been the means of restoring normal conditions in Eastern Canada as well, as of keeping at home those who formerly went to the States for work, and who will now go back to the mills which, springing up in every Canadian city in the past ten years, have been running on short time during the period of non-production that resulted from the dislocation of business in all the world's great financial centres. The revival is at hand, may even be said to be here, and for that we in Canada can thank the Liberal Government and its work.—Montreal Herald.

WELL BUILT.

The Farmers' Sun endeavours to show that the cost of the Government section of the Grand Trunk Pacific is greater per mile than it should be, and tries to prove this by quoting the price per mile cost of, what it considers, similar railways. But there are few similar railways. If the Grand Trunk Pacific costs more per mile it is because it will be worth more per mile—will be better built. It will be finished when it is done and the cost ended. It will have permanent steel and concrete bridges, its curves and gradients will be the easiest possible, and there will be no after expense required to bring the line up to the mark. How many thousands of dollars per mile have the Grand Trunk and the C. P. R. spent to rebuild bridges, reduce grades and straighten curves. The aim is to make the Grand Trunk Pacific the model railway of the world in regard to solidity of structure, permanence and perfection of road bed. Here seems to be a niche to fit in the old proverb—"What is worth doing is worth doing well." This railway will have an empire to develop and it needs to have its back fitted for the burden.

MR. BORDEN AND THE TARIFF.

(Farmers' Sun.)

In a speech at Cobalt last week Mr. Borden in referring to the expansion in Canada's export and import trade, said if there was much more meddling with the tariff this trade would be expanded beyond even the present figures. What the Opposition leader meant was that a reduction of the present scale of duties would cause an increase in our imports.

No doubt the result stated would follow. Does Mr. Borden look upon such a result as an evil? The average tax on dutiable imports brought into Canada last year was 26 1-3 per cent. In making up this average there are included dress goods, to be furnished in Canada, which are allowed entry at 15 per cent., stockinettes, to be used in the manufacture of rubber boots by Canadian factories, at 10 per cent., shoddy, for textile mills, at 7 1-2 per cent., and a host of similar articles at similar rates. These are all raw materials for the Canadian manufacturer. Such low rates are not granted on finished commodities for the use of consumers. Indeed, the duty levied on the completed articles is frequently higher than appears by the schedules. Buggies, for instance, which are nominally taxed 35 per cent., are really, in some cases, subjected to a 60 per cent levy under the provision requiring an arbitrary valuation of not less than $40 in appraising a buggy for Customs purposes.

It may safely be said that the average duty paid by Canadian farmers, on articles used by them, is very nearly 30 per cent. Does Mr. Borden think that should be the minimum tax imposed on farm necessities? Would he increase it if given power?

These are not academic questions. The manner in which they are answered will determine the manner in which the casting votes in a very considerable number of constituencies will be recorded.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Conservative journals and campaigners refused the Liberal Government any credit for the prosperous times the country has thriven under for the past twelve years. Yet they are not slow to blame the Government for the little whiff of depression that came upon us last year, but which is rapidly passing away.

It is stated that the new Dominion Parliament will not meet till January, 1909. The members-elect could not be sworn in till late in November, and the adjournment for the Christmas holidays would come so soon that little work would be possible before January. Besides, the Ministers would not have an opportunity to prepare a programme of measures to submit to Parliament. The next session will, besides, not be so long-drawn-out as the last. The Conservative Opposition will not have the same motive—furnishing ammunition for a general election—in pursuing a course of obstruction.

MYSTERIOUS MR. E. HAD NARROW ESCAPE, THE EXAMINER NOT PRODUCED

the crowd came on, they turned into Barrie's, and, of course, threw the amateur sleuths right off the track. I stood outside and watched them being challenged, and laughed just as heartily as the rest of the people there. I betook myself from the vicinity at my leisure.

Ran into Mr. Graham

By the way, Mr. Geo. Graham of the Oriental Hotel almost rubbed shoulders with me during the fun at Barrie's. I wonder does he remember the young fellow in a dark brown suit and grey cap whom he passed right there.

Nothing of much moment occurred till the evening. I, of course, was billed to visit the Otonabee Athletic Club meet at the Brock street rink, and have no hesitation in saying that it was the easiest proposition in my experience. After keeping my engagement, I dropped into the moving picture show, and quite enjoyed the performance. I half tore the ticket in two as I was going in the door. Ask the man on the door if he remembers about it. I strolled down George street and stood in front of my own pictures for fully five minutes.

Talked to a Young Lady

I asked a young lady dressed in black if she thought she would know him if she saw him. She said she thought that she would. She, of course, had several thinks coming.

Well, that about ends my experiences for Wednesday, and though I had but one narrow escape, yet for all that it was hard, hard work for me. I may be landed any minute now, and would not be the least bit surprised if somebody catches me to-night. I intend visiting the Grand Opera House as I am a great politician. Afterwards I will visit the roller rink. Between 12 and 2 o'clock to-morrow, if uncaught to-night, I will be at the corner of George and Hunter streets, positively. In the evening, if I have still evaded capture, I will be at the bowling tournament at the P.B.C. alleys. Farewell till to-morrow.

Yours,
R. O. S., "Mr. E."

PETERBOROUGH ARTISTS CONTRIBUTE TO NORWOOD MUSICAL PROGRAMME

Norwood, Oct. 15.—Special.—A very fitting climax to the successful Norwood fair was the musical concert given in the town hall last night under the auspices of the Village Council. The talent included Miss Reesor, soloist, and Miss Julia G Choate, violiniste, of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music; Mr. C Le Roy Kenney, entertainer, Toronto, and Mr. Barclay Robertson, elocutionist, Norwood, and formerly of Montreal. Long before the commencement of the programme the hall was filled and the result was that many had to be turned away without the pleasure of hearing the programme.

Mr. C LeRoy Kenney is an entertainer of ability and kept the listeners in good humour throughout his contributions. Also in his appreciation of dramatic effect and the small means by which an audience can be moved he appeared to be a past master. Mr. Barclay Robertson, A Scotchman, who has spent but a few months in Canada, was a favourite. His Scotch dialect blended with the happy selection of his recitations made his recitations the more interesting. Among his numbers were "Granny Tamson's Cat" and "The Christening."

Miss Reesor sang with her usual beautiful expression of musical sentiment and her first appearance before a Norwood audience has gained for her numerous friends. Her numbers were "To-morrow Will Do," by Pontet; "Could I but Tell," by Edwards, and Mascherone's "For All Eternity." The latter especially was very much appreciated. In it the violin obligato was charmingly supplied by Miss Choate. Miss Reesor was encored in every number.

Miss Julia G Choate again demonstrated to a music-loving audience at Norwood her superiority as a violiniste of an artistic temperament and again did she fully realize their highest expectations. She was heard in "Brindisi Valse" by Alard, and in Farmer's "Air Varie" and responded gracefully on each occasion to encores which were just as pleasing. Miss Choate is an artist who has been heard here on different occasions and at every appearance she has been accorded a warm reception. Mrs. H. Nicholl, Norwood, presided at the piano and her work as accompanists for Miss Reesor and Miss Choate was indeed meritorious. Altogether the concert last night was one of the best of its nature that has ever been presented to a Norwood audience.

THE word "OXOL" does not mean one food or one preparation. No! "OXOL" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. and T. C. Windsor, of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and curing all animals, which to them means money.

Scientific Meetings will be organized by Messrs. Windsor and held through out the Dominion of Canada, when farmers desirous of improving their knowledge of stock will have an opportunity of doing so and to be instructed on the life of stock from birth to death, free of any charge.

CONSERVATIVE SLANDERS EXPOSED

Hon. George P. Graham Tells of Imported Journalist.

USING MONTANA METHODS

Thousands Attend Enthusiastic Meeting at Barrie—Latest Faked Despatch to Effect That 100 Miles of G.T.P. is to Be Abandoned—Borden Candidates Condemned as Political Grafters.

Barrie, Oct. 15.—Hon. Geo. P. Graham, speaking to an audience that thronged the Opera House last night, made a complete exposure of some of the methods of the slanderband.

He told how he knew from personal knowledge that a clever journalist(well acquainted with the Montana style of campaign, had been hired by the Conservative party to weave a few truths together, with a mass of untruths, in the hope of stampeding the public into supporting the Conservative party. One campaign lie, apparently proceeding from that facile pen, had been nailed; now another appeared in the shape of a despatch purporting to come from Matheson, Ont., and stating that 150 miles of the National Transcontinental was to be abandoned. That there was not one iota of truth in that statement the Minister of Railways declared emphatically.

Then he showed that one Borden candidate was the man who valued the land in the alleged Moncton land scandal, and that another was a member of the Quebec Bridge Co., condemned by the leader of the Opposition as grafters, while another openly refused to condemn the Rykins irrigation scheme at Medicine Hat. The gathering was roused to a pitch of great enthusiasm by the speech of the Minister of Railways, and the brilliant address of Mr. L. G. McCarthy, late Liberal member for North Simcoe.

Mr. Graham in the course of his speech assured his audience that the Trent Valley Canal would be completed. As to its route he said: "The Severn river route has been investigated, the Nottawasaga has been surveyed, and the only position I can take is that whichever route my chief engineer says is best, there will be the canal, for it is my duty to make it the national work of the people."

Candidate Hanan Hurt.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 15.—A serious accident befell George Hanan, the Niagara Falls Conservative candidate for the County of Welland yesterday morning, when he and Thomas Emery, a liveryman, were driving towards Stamford. The horse took fright at a Grand Trunk engine on Victoria avenue crossing and ran away. Mr. Hanan leaped from the rig, sustaining a sprained ankle and a shaking up which will confine him to his bed for a week or ten days. Mr. Emery, who stuck to the rig, was thrown out and suffered a broken leg and arm, and, it is feared, internal injuries. Both men were taken to their homes in the hospital ambulance.

Ten Years For Maiming.

Windsor, Oct. 15.—Charles White was yesterday sentenced to ten years in Kingston Penitentiary, after being convicted by a jury at Sandwich of maiming and disfiguring Joshua Pierce. The charge of attempted murder was dismissed.

Some months ago White entered Pierce's home and gave him a brutal beating. Mrs. Pierce was charged with complicity in the assault, but Chancellor Boyd took the case from the jury.

Found Drowned at Island.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—The body of Mrs. J. W. Cheeseworth, 332 Markham street, was found in ten feet of water in the Centre Island slip yesterday.

Mrs. Cheeseworth had been suffering from melancholia, induced by ill-health.

She was missed from her home Tuesday night at 10 o'clock.

Bequeathes Brain.

New York, Oct. 15.—The brain of Dr. Alexander Wilder, the journalist and author of many works of evolution, philosophy, psychology and medicine, was bequeathed to Prof. Burt Green Wilder of Cornell University, by the will of Dr. Wilder, which was filed for probate yesterday. Dr. Wilder was president of the school of philosophy of New York. Prof. Wilder has made an unusually complete collection of brains and was endeavoring at last accounts to add to the collection the brains of 100 educated orderly persons.

Edmonton's Cars High Class.

Ottawa, Oct. 15.—The Ottawa Car Co. yesterday made its first shipment of cars to the Edmonton Radial Street Railway, which is now being built in the City of Edmonton. The cars are of an imposing appearance and are much larger than those in use on the lines in this city. They are double trucked with a closed front vestibule, and are painted light blue and yellow.

Snow Interrupts Surveys.

Ottawa, Oct. 15.—The parties sent out for summer work by the Topographical Department are beginning to return to the city. It is understood that the return was made earlier than usual this year owing to the fact that a heavy snowfall made further work impossible.

As a rule the snow does not interfere with operations until November.

Madame La Blonche Sues.

Toronto, Oct. 15.—Madame Marie La Blonche, who was injured by a fall while performing an aerial feat before the Exhibition grand stand, has entered an action against the Exhibition Association to recover damages. She charges negligence on account of a post to which the apparatus was guyed having pulled out of the ground.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION SIZED UP FROM AN INDEPENDENT STANDPOINT

Liberal Party United And Vigorous—Opposition Have Nobody To Take Place Of The Government—Borden's Prospect Of A "Who? Who?" Ministry Does Not Appeal To Confidence Of The Country

The Toronto DAILY STAR Reviewing The Political Situation And The Considerations Which Will Govern The Result, In An Article Written From An Impartial And Independent Standpoint, Presents The Following Estimate Of The Situation.

"In 1896, when the people of Canada effected a change of Government, two facts were apparent. The existing Government was dying, and had ceased to be an efficient instrument for administering the affairs of the country. The Liberal Opposition had demonstrated that it had the material for the formation of a new and vigorous Administration. To-day the positions are exactly reversed. THERE IS NO SIGN OF WEAKNESS OR DISSENSION IN THE GOVERNMENT. There are no symptoms of the disease which, in the Conservative Government, led up to the bolt of the early days of 1896. BUT THE CONSERVATIVE OPPOSITION HAS NOT RECOVERED FROM THE EFFECTS OF THE BOLT OF 1906. When each half of a Cabinet declares that it has no confidence in the other it is inevitable that the country will have no confidence in either. The wound thus inflicted on the Conservative party of Canada has never been healed. THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY, AS TO UNITY AND LEADERSHIP, IS AS BADLY OFF AS IT WAS IN 1896.

"An Opposition leader is not expected to give the details of the Ministry which he would form if he obtained a majority of the House of Commons. But he is expected to show that he has the materials for the formation of a strong Ministry. In 1896 Sir Wilfrid Laurier complied with those conditions. He had beside him such men as Cartwright, Mills, Mulock, Davies, and Paterson, who had fought with him in the House of Commons. It was also understood that the veteran Premier of Ontario would enter his Cabinet, together with Mr. Blair, for many years Premier of New Brunswick, and Mr. Fielding, for many years Premier of Nova Scotia.

"Thus both the conditions necessary to a change of Government were fulfilled. The existing Government was a decaying tree, ready to be cut down; and it was certain that a vigorous new Government would immediately take its place. To-day neither condition is fulfilled. THE EXISTING GOVERNMENT IS FULL OF LIFE AND VIGOUR, AND THERE IS NO AGGREGATION OF CONSERVATIVE STATESMEN READY TO TAKE ITS PLACE. If an elector asks who would be Mr. Borden's colleagues in office in the event of a Conservative victory, the only name that comes up in reply is that of Mr. Foster. THE RESULT OF A CHANGE WOULD BE THAT MR. FOSTER WOULD BE FINANCE MINISTER OF CANADA INSTEAD OF MR. FIELDING, and that as to the rest we should have to trust to luck. There was once in Great Britain an aggregation of statesmen known as the 'Who? Who? Ministry.' The story is that when it was formed the names were given to the Duke of Wellington, who was somewhat deaf, and that after each name he asked 'Who? Who?' It would appear that the leader of the Opposition intends to present the country with a 'Who? Who?' Ministry.

"A leader of the Opposition might be taken upon trust in this way if he had any prospect of a strong support in Parliament. BUT MR. BORDEN'S MOST ARDENT FRIENDS DO NOT HOPE FOR A LARGE MAJORITY. They hope to cut down the large Liberal majority of 66, to weaken and embarrass the Laurier Government, and possibly to bring about a sort of chaos or deadlock, out of which Mr. Borden may emerge with a bare majority. Does the country desire such a result? Will the business of the country be stable and prosperous under a combination of Borden, Foster and Deadlock? Sir James Whitney at Montreal would go no further than to say that Mr. Borden's turn would come, and to limit the life of the Liberal Governmnt to five years. The next five years must take care of themselves. AT PRESENT THE COLD JUDGMENT OF BUSINESS MEN, AND OF ALL WHO ARE NOT CARRIED OFF THEIR FEET BY PARTY FEELING, IS THAT MR. BORDEN'S HOUR HAS NOT COME, AND IT WOULD BE BETTER NOT EVEN TO TAKE THE RISK OF THROWING THE AFFAIRS OF THE COUNTRY INTO CONFUSION."

MAINE TRIAL STARTS

Shooting of Wm. E. Annis Goes Before the Grand Jury.

New York, Oct. 15.—The long-deferred investigation into the death of Wm. E. Annis, who was shot and killed at the Bayside Yacht Club house in August by Capt. Peter C. Hains of the United States army, was begun by the Queen's county grand jury at Long Island City yesterday. Capt. Hains and his brother, T. Jenkins Hains, are now under arrest, Capt. Hains charged with the murder and his brother as an accomplice.

Crone Test Goes Wrong.

Tweed, Ont., Oct. 15.—A peculiar accident occurred at the public school here yesterday afternoon. The principal, Mr. Blake, was conducting a chemical experiment and while he was passing ozone through a glass tube containing logwood in order to show its bleaching powers, an explosion took place. Glass and acid flew in all direction about the room. Mr. Blake's hands and face were cut in a score of places, and several of the scholars were also more or less injured. No serious results, however, are anticipated. Colin Hains, son of Mr. H. P. Hains, local manager of the Bank of Montreal, also was burned about the face and eyes.

Boys Eat Cordite.

London, Oct. 15.—Principal Wyatt of St. George's school discovered yesterday afternoon that a number of pupils had been eating cordite, taken from cartridges. One boy ate so much of it that at noon he fainted. The youths when questioned about it, said they had read about the alleged murderer, Private Moir, eating the stuff and they were sampling it to observe its effect.

Australia's Prosperity.

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 15.—(C.A.P.)—Sir W. Lyn, delivering the budget statement, said the unprecedentedly large custom revenue, £11,645,000, was attributed to the new tariff and the higher price of produce. Lyn pointed out that Australia's imports were £31,000,000 and exports £75,000,000, while the corresponding Canadian figures were £60,000,000 and £52,000,000.

Spirit Lamp Explodes.

Hamilton, Oct. 15.—Fire which started from the explosion of a spirit lamp in the warehouse of the Domestic Specialty Co. Tuesday gutted the building and almost entirely destroyed its contents. The loss has not yet been estimated. Fireman W. Aitchison sustained severe cuts on the hands from broken glass.

Would Not Work; Deported.

Ottawa, Oct. 15.—Immigration officials have deported George Blench and he is now on his way back to England. He was up in the Police Court lately on a charge of vagrancy. It is said that no less than four situations were obtained for him, but he would not work.

Corn Husker Takes Arm.

London, Ont., Oct. 15—While working a corn husking machine on his father's farm at Strathburn, Dougall McCallum had his left arm so badly lacerated by getting it caught in the machine that it was necessary to amputate it.

House Burns; Woman Hurt.

Maxwell, Ont., Oct. 15.—Fire started by the explosion of a lamp in the hands of Mrs. James Radley here on Tuesday night destroyed a dwelling-house and severely burned Mrs. Radley's hands.

Situation Critical.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 15.—The correspondent of The Novoe Vremya at Tabris, Persia, says in a despatch published yesterday that the situation of the foreign residents of Tabris is critical.

Would Kill Distilleries.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 15.—Bryan W. Chafin, prohibition nominee for President, in a speech last night, declared that the loss of negro votes in several southern border states would mean defeat for Taft. "If I go to the White House," said Mr. Chafin, "the first thing my wife and I would do would be to clean up all the whisky bottles. I would also call a special session of Congress on March 5 and I assure you that within twelve months afterwards there would be no more distilleries or breweries in the United States."

C.P.R. Accept New Lines.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 15.—Sir Thos. Shaughnessy and party of directors of the C.P.R., have accepted from the contractors the double track wheat road, 228 miles long, running between here and Fort William. It was built at a cost of $10,000,000. From here the party will go to Lethbridge to take over the Alberta railway and properties as comprising a large colliery at Lethbridge, 113 miles of railway and 235,000 acres of land, suitable for irrigation.

Faces "High Grading" Charge.

North Bay, Oct. 15.—True bills having been returned against James Connelly on two charges, one of purchasing silver ore stolen from silver mines, and another charge of receiving silver ore knowing it to be stolen. In view of the prevalence of ore thefts, known as "high grading," this case is being watched with great interest.

J. O. Curwood Murdered.

Winnipeg, Oct. 15.—A report has been received here from the upper end of Lake Winnipeg to the effect that J. O. Curwood of Detroit, a magazine writer and representative of the Merrill Publishing Co., has been murdered by Indians in the Lac la Rouge country. Cutwood's headquarters were formerly at Port Arthur.

Bomb Thrown In New York.

New York, Oct. 15.—A bomb was thrown early yesterday into the big enclosure in Eighth avenue, between 56th and 57th street, where 250 taxicabs, belonging to the New York Taxicab Co., were stored for the night. There is a strike of chauffeurs in progress.

Alberta Cement Wins Prize.

Spokane, Oct. 15.—Cement manufactured at Exshaw, Alberta, has been awarded a diploma at the interstate fair, and city engineers recommend it for use in civic bridges in preference to the best German and American cements.

Atrocious Act Alleged.

Kingston, Oct. 15.—Jos. McFarlane of Amherst Island was arrested for the alleged cutting to pieces of a bull which he owned with an axe. His sons sold the animal and the father became incensed over the matter.

Allan Liner In Collision.

London, Oct. 15.—(C.A.P.)—The Allan liner Ulunda, Liverpool for Halifax, collided with the bark Santa Anna, in the Irish Sea, and has returned damaged, towing the bark.

Blacksmith Kills a Deacon.

Knoxville, Tenn., Oct. 15.—I. H. Whaley, a deacon of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church of this city, was struck and killed by J. M. Green, a blacksmith, here Tuesday. Green struck Whaley in the face with his fist. In falling Whaley's head struck the railroad track, death following an hour later.

Kaiser Invents a Brake.

Berlin, Oct. 15.—Emperor William has invented a new hub brake for railroad trains and automobiles, which is described as offering the greatest possible guarantee against accident arising from the failure of existing brakes to operate when called upon.

DOMINION ELECTIONS

TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST PETERBOROUGH:

FELLOW ELECTORS:

The time is near for the election of a representative of this Riding to the Dominion Parliament.

Much as I would like to see you all personally, it may not be possible for me to do so before election day, so I adopt this method of presenting my appeal, especially to as many as possible of those I cannot see, for your support.

In convention assembled, my friends, unsolicited, conferred on me the honour of selecting me as a candidate, therefore, I am now before you in that character, soliciting your votes and influence for me at the coming election. Having had the honour of being before you previously in the same character, I flatter myself that I do not need any personal introduction to you. Although I was then defeated, I was not discredited. I conducted clean election campaigns and did nothing to be ashamed of. I have been with and among you all my life, have taken an active part in your public and local affairs, and, being a farmer myself, I have given much attention to such matters and questions as are of special interest to farmers. I have had the honour of representing the municipality in which I live as Reeve and Councillor for a number of years, and at all times I have endeavoured to perform my duties efficiently, fairly and honourably, and in such manner as to shew myself worthy of your good will and support. Therefore, I trust you have reason to judge favourably of my ability to perform the important duties of your representative advantageously to this Riding and creditably to myself. While in politics I am a Liberal-Conservative, I have never been a blind partisan. I shall never consider myself bound to support my party, except when I believe them to be right and acting in the best interests of our country, and can give you a reason for, and justify in my own conscience, at least, the course I shall think it my duty to take as your honoured representative.

In matters pertaining to our County, should you honour me with your confidence and elect me as your representative, I shall always consider my services at your command, and it will be my pleasure to consistently and properly render a good service to a political opponent as cheerfully as to a party associate. I have carefully studied the requirements of this Riding and district and am already familiar with the same, and you will ever find me ready and willing to do my utmost to advance the best interests of our own district, and especially those of East Peterborough, irrespective of local, personal or political considerations.

I trust my position, thus stated, which I consider is the proper one for a representative of the people to take, will have your approval and merit your most generous support irrespective of party.

I hope to have an opportunity during the campaign of addressing you at public meetings on some of the many political questions which are at present interesting and agitating the people. Meanthme I appeal to all my friends, and those who desire honest and economical administration of public affairs and are in sympathy with the Liberal-Conservative platform, to rally to my support and promote an active and enthusiastic campaign in my behalf, and thus for better government, and to see the careless ones and invite them to the polls to cast their ballots for me and the cause of better Government. I trust those whom I will not be able to see personally will be no less active in my behalf on that account. It is time for a change at Ottawa.

I will never forget to be deeply grateful to all those who have so generously and kindly supported me in the past. I shall always be sincerely thankful for, and now again respectfully solicit your votes, influence and active support until the close of the elections on the 26th day of October. Promising you my very best efforts in your behalf, and in the cause of good government, if elected. I am,

Your obedient servant,

JOHN A. EXSMITH.

WATERLOO, QUEBEC

Woman, After Years of Miserable Existence From Ill Health, Finds Help in Vinol

"After years of miserable existence on account of my health, I was getting more discouraged every day, as I had tried nearly everything, without success, to build me up. At last I heard of Vinol. I have taken three bottles and have gained in health and strength every week. I sincerely recommend it to all who suffer from weakness and cough, or any disease of the lungs." Mrs. A. Savard Warden, Waterloo, Quebec.

This is because Vinol is a genuine tonic and body-builder which contains peptonate of iron together with every one of the body-building medicinal elements of cod liver oil but without one drop of oil to upset the stomach and retard its work. Vinol acts directly on the stomach, creates a healthy appetite, and enables the digestive organs to obtain the necessary elements from the food eaten to make rich, red blood, healthy flesh and muscle, tissue, and create strength.

Your money back if Vinol fails to benefit. McDermid & Jury, Druggists, Peterborough.

ADDITION TO SCHOOL AT THE POINT

Other Improvements Are Being Made at The Flourishing Village

Examiner Special

Young's Point, Oct. 14.—The school section here are erecting an addition to the school. The contract has been awarded to Messrs. Reid and Hookaday, and those gentlemen are doing the work quickly and satisfactorily. The dimensions of the new building are 28x32. It will be bricked.

Since the recent rain the farmers have commenced plowing.

The steamer Majestic is still hauling lumber from Gilchrist Bay to Lakefield.

Mr. Killbourn of the Cement Company, Lakefield, is having a cement pier erected below the power house here. The old structure was a wooden pier and was dilapidated from the high water the past two seasons. Mr. Geo. Baptie of Lakefield is overseer of the work and has charge of a number of men.

The English church here has a new bell.

The best tea can be utterly spoiled by exposure to contamnating influences, as bulk teas so often are. The sealed lead packets of the "Salada" Tea Company, give you tea fresh and fragrant from the gardens to the tea-cup. 46

OBITUARY.

CHARLES KINDRED

Another of the pioneer settlers of Otonabee township passed away Tuesday in the person of Mr. Charles Kindred, who died at his home at Greystock. He was 75 years of age and was born in the Isle of Man. Coming to Canada when a young man, he settled at Greystock, Otonabee, and had resided there all his remaining years. He was well known throughout the township and held in high esteem for his many sterling qualities. He was a member of the Zion Methodist Church. Mr. Kindred is survived by his wife, two sons, John of Otonabee and Charles, of Belleville, and one daughter, Mrs. Thomas Breckenridge of Westwood.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock to Little Lake cemetery.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dornwend of Toronto is visiting in this town, and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the hotel.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at the Oriental Hotel on Friday, October 16th.

IMMENSE THRONG AGAIN VISITS VILLAGE ON THE OUSE TO ATTEND FAIR

manoeuvres were performed in a soldierly manner and again they carried off the prize of $10.

The speeding in the ring events were the principal drawing card and 4,000 people at least watched them intently from the sides of the track, from the rising ground to the south and even from the reserved seats near the top of tall maple trees. Two events were run off—the green race and the free-for-all, and the crowd had to be kept back by mounted police. The first included six entries and it took exactly six heats before one horse crossed the tape a winner three times. That wGs Black Prince, owned by McColl. In the early stages it looked anything but a winner, but with speed and stamina it won out in the end.

Green Race

The result of the green speeding event was as follows:

1—Black Prince, McColl... ...343111
2—Queen Bourbon, W. Whittam... 122333
3—Harry Mack, Arthur Elmhirst... 211552
4—Herklen, N. Nicholls (... ...535223
5—Brino Mack, Henry Elmhirst... 454444
6—King, Jas. McConnel... ...6 scratch

Free for All

The free-for-all was probably more exciting than the green event, with close finishes and good time on a track a little better than a third of a mile. Guy, a fast grey stepper, took first money, with Harry Direct a good second.

The scores were:

Guy, C. Armstrong... 211411
Harry Direct, J. J. Cottingham... 121332
Patterson, J. A. Storey... ...302222
Bourbon Brook, Dr. Simmons..433444
White Broncho, Bowen... 545555

Time—2.53, 2.55, 2.55, 2.43, 2.50.

Mr. Ed. M. Elliott, Peterborough, was starter in these events and Dr. Johnston, of Peterborough, timekeeper, and both performed their tasks splendidly.

Best Lady Driver

Much interest centred in the lady's driving event. There were fifteen entries and the prize was a Williams sewing machine, presented by Adolphus Greenbank, of Norwood. Miss Graham, of Hastings, won first; Miss Leask, of Oshawa, second; and Miss Potts, Hordle's Corners, third. Both Miss Graham and Miss Leask are exceptionally fine drivers and it was a surprise to their admirers to see them cut the figure eight and perform other intricate manoeuvres.

SPECIAL EXHIBITS

The number of excellent special exhibits made at the Norwood Fair, helped very materially to make the show not only interesting but very instructive to visitors. Those most worthy of special attention are described below:—

BIRDSALL & SON'S SHORT-HORNS AND SHEEP

From the stock farm of Messrs. Frank Birdsall & Son, there was a fine showing of pure bred short-horn cattle and Oxford sheep. The herd of short-horns consisted of a fine specimen of imported bull, a bull calf, two heifer calves, two four-year-old cows, and two year-olds and one yearling. The uniformity of this herd was very striking. These gave indications of superior breeding, and were awarded honours by the official expert. The two pens of thoroughbred Oxford sheep shown, ten in all, were headed by the imported English ram, "Sunrise," which has proven such a prolific prize winner. The sheep and lambs shown were very high quality.

McLEOD'S FINE HERD OF ANGUS CATTLE

There was a splendid showing of polled Aberdeen-Angus cattle, which brought out strong competitions. The pure bred herd from the stock farm of Mr. James A McLeod, of Plainville, Gore's Landing, was particularly noted for high quality. Altogether Mr. McLeod exhibited 24 head, consisting of an aged bull, a three-year-old bull, a two-year-old bull, a yearling bull, and four bull calves. The rest of the herd consisted of aged cows and heifers and four heifer calves. Every beast was pure bred and all black "as the ace of spades." All the animals showed splendid development, careful breeding and feeding. It was a very even lot, and strong enough to win at bigger exhibitions. Mr. McLeod, at his "Highland Home" stock Farm, carries on a large business in these fine beef cattle, and he has always had excellent placings for his stock.

EXHIBITS OF THE CHATHAM SPECIALTIES

Mr. Chas. C McDonnell, of Downer's Corners, Otonabee, made an attractive exhibit, in which was shown the Chatham fanning mill and bag filler, a handy labour-saving kitchen cabinet, and the Chatham patent platform scales. Hundreds became interested in this exhibit, and those who were not present at the fair should write for catalogues. Mr. McDonnell is increasing the sales every year. At the Keene Fall Show he sold five fanning mills, two cabinets and one scale.

THE MAGNET CREAM SEPARATOR

Mr. J. Raddon of Norwood, the active local agent for the "Magnet" Cream Separator, made an exhibit of this purely Canadian machine in a good position near the entrance to the building. The district agent, Mr. Bennett of Belleville, was also present and assisted in demonstrating the valuable features of the "Magnet." Crowds of farmers and farmers' wives watched and listened attentively while the machine was being tested. Among the strong points of the "Magnet" are these: Low down tank, clean skimming, easy turning, strong frame, lasting wear, simplicity in construction, double ball-bearings, spur gear, one-piece skimmer, easy cleaning, steadiness of motion. The longer the "Magnet" runs the easier it turns. The "Magnet" was well received by dairymen, and Mr. Raddon was handsomely repaid for his exhibit. His address is Box 63, Norwood P. O.

IMPROVED IRON PUMPS

Mr. Robt. Elliott of Peterborough is the hustling agent for the Toronto Wind Engine and Pump Company of Toronto, and the Sylvester Manufacturing Company of Lindsay. He is a former resident of Norwood, and he is familiarly known to many of the residents of East Peterborough. Mr. Elliott is best known for his success in water-supplying for stock and domestic use, and knows the pump business from the ground up. He exhibited at the Fair two improved iron pumps—one from the Toronto Pump Company, with galvanized iron pipes and rods, and porcelain-lined cylinder, and another from the Sylvester Company of Lindsay, with brass cylinder. These were shown to be very durable pumps and guaranteed to last a life-time, and there are none better in Canada. Mr. Elliott's address is 276 Wolfe street, Peterborough.

TO CURE DANDRUFF

It is Necessary That the Dandruff Germ be Eradicated.

"Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Kill the germ that causes dandruff, falling hair and baldness, you will have no more dandruff and your hair will grow luxuriantly. Herpicide not only contains the dandruff germ destroyer, but it is also a most delightful hair dressing for regular toilet use. No other hair preparation is on this scientific basis of destroying the dandruff germ, and none other claims to be, for the simple reason that it is only recently that a destroyer of the germ has been discovered—Newbro's Herpicide, the only hair preparation that actually kills dandruff. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10 cents in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. The "Hit" of the Season

A HALL SPECIAL—THIS OFFERING OF WOMEN'S BEAUTIFUL FALL TAILORED SUITS, REGULAR 25.00 STYLES AT $17.50

The woman who buys one of these Suits will not only pocket a clear-cut saving of seven-fifty but she will own a Fall Suit which will satisfy her in every detail of style and workmanship—and in the lasting wear she will get out of it.

We have never had a "SUIT SPECIAL" which has made such a "hit as this one. The reason is apparent the minute you examine any one of the Smart Suits in this collection—they spell "good wear" in every fold of their making. But this is not all, for the maker of these handsome garments has added many little touches of style to them which are seldom found in Suits selling for less than $25.00

These Suits are Finely Tailored in the Latest and Best Fall Styles

The materials are fine evenly-woven all-wool fabrics in popular new shades of Brown, Green and Navy. Every Suit is well lined and effectively trimmed with Sateen, Buttons and Soutache Braid.

Your choice of any of these Smart Models at ..... 17.50 Instead of $25.00 which you would have to pay elsewhere.

WOMEN'S FALL SUITS AND COATS

Popular Styles---Popular Prices

The prevailing styles in Women's Tailored Costumes and Coats are this season shown in profusion in our large department—styles that embody the latest ideas of the greatest fashion artists from the Old and New World. France has given the cream of the world's modes, while New York has originated some of the most popular creations that appear in our American cities. All the popular ones are here represented in the different cloths and trimmings. From the lowest priced to the highest the effect is high-class and exclusive, far in advance of the ordinary ready-to-wears. They are strictly man-tailored and the lines show grace and beauty. Visit the well known Ready-to-wear Department, on the second floor, and see the fine assortment that we are showing for Autumn, 1908.

Handsome Tailored Costumes in Latest Styles, $25

Twenty-five dollars has long been a popular price for a Woman's Suit, and this season, as usual, we find a large demand for this priced costume and, as a result, we are showing a very extensive range in popular styles and cloths. In a plain and striped Venetian Cloth we have Blues, Browns and Greens in medium length Coat, semi-fitted with the deep back vent and trimmed in various styles with fancy and satin buttons; the skirts are 8 and 9 gored, plain tailored or trimmed with wide fold and buttoned down the entire front with large satin covered buttons.

Women's Coats—New Autumn Styles for $15

The long, loose, or the semi-fitted Coats are in demand this Autumn in plain tailored styles, some handsomely self-trimmed and others trimmed with braids. Our $15.00 lines come in Black, Green and Brown Melton Cloths, trimmed with rows of stitching and self-folds; some have the velvet collars. These popular-priced Coats are without doubt the best that it has ever been our good fortune to offer at the money, and the styles do justice to much higher priced goods. THE CITY LUMBER PILE

A few minutes after 12 o'clock last night a fire alarm was sent in from the corner of Murray and Stewart streets by Louis Roberts, a harness-maker. The brigade responded in very quick time and found that a fire was getting a start in the corporation wood pile. It was only a matter of a few seconds until the water was turned on and the flames were extinguished. There was only old lumber piled in the yard, and very little damage resulted.

WEDDING BELLS

COTTON—HARDING

One of the season's prettiest weddings was celebrated this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Harding, Bethune street, when their youngest daughter, Nettie Rose, was united in marriage to Mr. Robt. S. Cotton, son of Mr. Chas. Cotton, Gananoque. The ceremony was performed beneath a bower of the autumn's richest-tinted foliage arranged so naturally that the drawing-room seemed transformed into a pretty sylvan scene. The idea was vitvified by maple leaves of varied hues, being found in gentle profusion throughout the other rooms and on the drawing-room floor.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. G. Potter in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. The bride was attended by Miss Alethia Harrison, and Mr. W. Cotton, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride wore a charming Princess gown of white organdie with Valenciennes lace and satin trimmings. She entered the drawing-room leaning on her father's arm, while Miss Mary Renwick of Keene played a wedding march. The bride carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid was dressed in white muslin and carried pink carnations.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Cotton left on the 5.30 G.T.R. train for Toronto and Buffalo. The bride's going-away suit was of brown cloth with herring-bone stripe. She also wore a hat to match.

Among the many beautiful presents received by the bride was a set of mink furs from the groom, and from the office staff of the C.G.E. Co. an oak Morris chair.

The following out-of-town friends were present: Mrs. Geo. Denison, and Miss Ollie Mitchell of Lindsay, Miss Jennie and Mr. Thos. Byam of Port Hope, Misses Mary and Ella Renwick of Keene, and Miss Ruby Cotton and Mr. Will Cotton of Gananoque.

ARMSTRONG—JONES

The wedding was quietly solemnized at the residence of Rev. J. R. Webb on Thursday of last week of Miss Bessie Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Jones of Montreal, to Mr. William Armstrong of Peterborough. The bride was attired in a neat blue silk dress. After the ceremony a wedding repast was served at the residence of the groom's uncle, Mr. Armstrong, 66 Waterford street. The young couple will reside at 88 McDonel street.

SLADE—LOBB

A quiet wedding was solemnized last night at the George Street Methodist Church parsonage, the principals being Miss Bertha May Lobb and Mr. Benjamin James Slade, both of Westwood. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Pearson. Mr. and Mrs. Slade will live at Westwood.

BEAVIS—FIFE

A very pretty but quiet wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. Duncan Fife, "Fairview Farm," Asphodel, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 7th, at 5.30 o'clock, when his eldest daughter, Miss Edith, was united in marriage to Mr. Gordon R. Beavis, son of Mr. Nelson Beavis, also of Asphodel. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties witnessed the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. D. A. Thomson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Hastings, the wedding march being played by Miss Willena Fife, sister of the bride.

The bride was prettily gowned in pale cream shadowed striped Messaline silk trimmed with allover lace and satin ribbon, and carried a shower bouquet of white carnations, her only ornament being a pearl crescent, the gift of the groom.

The young couple were unattended, excepting by the bride's little sister, Lexa, who acted as flower girl, looking sweet in a pretty little dress of white, and wearing a gold necklace, her gift from the groom.

After the ceremony and congratulations were over, a dainty luncheon was served in the dining room, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion.

The gifts were both numerous and costly, testifying to the esteem in which the young people are held in the community.

The bride's going away dress was a pretty tailor-made costume of navy blue broadcloth with hat to match.

The happy couple left on the 7.51 train for a short honeymoon trip. On their return they will reside at "Cedar Springs," Asphodel.

Mr. and Mrs. Beavis have the best wishes of a large circle of friends for their future prosperity and happiness.

CONSULT OUR OPTICIAN

The Eye is such a delicate organ that it should never be trifled with. This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

Many opticians take half a dozen or more correspondent courses costing from $7.50 to $25. With this limited knowledge it is little wonder that many are wearing glasses that do not suit them—others that do not require them.

If you have eye-trouble you should consult an optician who has a thorough knowledge of every branch of the optical business. Such a man is our Mr. Taylor.

T.A.S. TO ENTER SENIOR SERIES

Will Play The First Game With Toronto Athletic Club Saturday.

The T.A.S. Athletic Club's Rugby team has definitely decided to play in the senior series of the O.R.F.U. and will play their first game with the strong Toronto Athletic Club's team in Toronto on Saturday. The second game will be played here a week after and in the event of a third game being necessary it will be pulled off here. The T.A.S. have most of last year's senior players and should make a good showing.

Y.M.C.A. ATHLETICS

All Y.M.C.A. Rugby men turn out for practise to-night at 7.15 sharp at the Y.M.C.A.

To-morrow night at 8 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium, the Maple Leafs and Turner's basket ball teams come together in the first game for the Grossman trophy.

This ought to make a fine game, as both teams are in fine shape. The line-up is as follows:

Maple Leafs—Sutherland, centre; J. Downie and G. Martin, forwards; R. Best and S. Lang, defence.

Turner's Five—M. McCarroll, centre; A. Elliott and W. Richardson, forwards; F. Turner and W. Campbell, defence.

PRACTICE OF T.A.S TEAM TO-NIGHT

Every Player is Requested To Be On Hand This Evening.

There will be a final practise of the T. A. S. junior and senior Rugby teams to-night in the Brock street rink at seven o'clock. As both teams play on Saturday, the seniors clashing with the T.A.A.C. in a senior O.R.F.U. game in Toronto, it is important that there should be a large attendance of players. Every man is requested to be out. The team will be picked at this evening's practise.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITIONS

—All cities over the Province are preparing for their exhibition, and Peterborough is no exception to the rule. It is the time we meet our old and new friends, and those who are not our friends. It is also the best time for the introduction of the newest and smartest cuts in fall suits and where they can be shown to the greatest advantage. The New York Ladies' Tailoring establishment have removed their parlours and workshop from 658 George street to 287 Reid street, opposite St. Peter's Cathedral, for the better accommodation of their patrons and are prepared to take orders in any line of ladies' garments. Lady or gentleman fitter. 'Phone 634. d5f13

MISTOOK MR. W. A. BAILEY FOR MYSTERIOUS MR. E.

The Examiner has received the following postcard addressed to the Mysterious "Mr. E." of the Peterborough Examiner:

"Mr. E."—I don't think any Peterborough person can say it properly, since the city officials can't, and neither can the police, unless you increase the reward. You have my sympathy, because a lot of people want me, or perhaps it is my money.

Yours sincerely,

W. A. BAILEY.

Peterborough, Oct. 14, 1908.

Unanimous.

Pan-Anglican Bishop (addressing gathering of Sunday school children in London suburb)—Just think, little children! There are 10,000,000 square miles of territory on the vast African continent without one single Sunday school where little boys and girls like you can spend their Sundays. Now, what will you all try and save up your money to do?

Class (in quick agreement)—To go to Africa.—London News.

The Flight.

"Come fly with me," the young man said,
"Not in the crude old fashioned way.
My aeroplane waits overhead
And frets the bonds that bid it stay.
'Tis but a pleasure jaunt I ask
You'll try with me.
This is no lifelong journey's task.
Come, fly with me!

"The fervid phrase of other days
Has given way to simple fact.
No more poetic fancy plays.
Our speech is simple and exact.
I don't request you'll live life through
And die with me.
I merely am inviting you
To fly with me."

—Washington Star.

The Bonding of the Bough.

"You must have had some very narrow escapes from death during your eventful career," I said to the great detective.

"I have had a few," he admitted modestly. "Probably the closest shave I had was when a band of South American outlaws hanged me and went away without noticing they had strung me up to a rubber tree."—Brooklyn Life.

A Sad Awakening.

There was a young fellow named Jack,
Who sailed on the medical tack.
His friends said, "You can Find him duck of a man,"
But his foes said, "He's naught but a quack."

PLEADED GUILTY TO A TRESPASS CHARGE

Three Boys Fined $2.00 by Police Magistrate Dumble To-day

The four boys who on Wednesday were charged with stealing apples from the property of Mrs. Davidson, Dalhousie street, were acquitted by Magistrate Dumble yesterday morning, but three of them pleaded guilty to trespass and were fined $2 each to be paid forthwith, or, in default of payment, ten days in jail.

Mrs. Davidson wishes to state that although she recognizes the necessity of protecting the property of citizens, she did not take action against the boys, and did not know of the case until it came up on Wednesday.

IS IT LOCAL OPTION FOR RAILWAY TOWN?

Havelock Report That Two Clergymen Are Urging It

Whether or not Havelock is to see a campaign for local option well under way in a few days remains to be seen, but it is altogether probable.

Two of our resident clergymen, during the past few days, have been soliciting signatures on a petition asking the council to present a local option bylaw to the people on the next municipal election day. We do not know whether the petition is being largely signed or not, not yet having had an opportunity of ascertaining that fact.—Havelock Standard.

Successes Which The Famous Sheffield Choir Has Obtained

Were Royally Entertained in Germany—Will be Enthusiastically Received in Canada

IN PETERBORO NOV. 12th

When the famous Sheffield Chorus under Dr. Henry Coward paid a visit to Germany some time ago it was feted and royally entertained everywhere. Each town visited put on holiday garb, the municipal authorities spent a large amount of time and money in assuring the visitors a distinguished welcome, and public bodies generally vied with the municipal corps in the heartiness of their welcome.

It is hoped that Dr. Coward and his singers will meet with an equally warm welcome here on the occasion of their forthcoming visit. In every Canadian town to be visited, preparations are now well in hand which will leave behind for the choir the most pleasant of memories.

Locally, much can be done, and it is earnestly hoped that nothing will be left undone which can in any way contribute to the making of this choir's visit the most notable event in the city's musical history. It is the biggest organized tour of any body of singers in musical history, and as special trains have been chartered to convey the choir from town to town here, and a special steamer chartered to bring the singers across the Atlantic, it will be seen that no expense is being spared.

The members of the choir include many men in the lead in business circles in Sheffield and other great Midland towns in England, for the visit of the choir is one in which business is being combined with pleasure. It is desired not only to draw closer together musically, but by bond of mutual trade development also, and if the local business and musical organizations will remember this, and combine to work for the success of the visit, these mutual benefits will bring to both sides much profit and much that will make the visit of the choir something long to be remembered.

The Sheffield choir will be in Peterborough on Nov. 12.

GREAT WEALTH ALONG THE TRANSCONTINENTAL ROUTE

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.—Special.—Mr. H. J. McKenzie, divisional engineer of the Transcontinental Railway, returned to the city yesterday after several months spent on the line, and reports that the contract for the last section of district "F" has just been let to Messrs. McDougall and O'Brien. This piece of work is 150 miles in length, and extends from Superior Junction to a point near Lake Nepigon. Construction camps are in process of creation on the first forty miles of the work east of the Junction, and the work of clearing the right of way was commenced yesterday. Grading will commence on the first twelve miles next week and the construction of the balance will be started just as soon as the G.T.P. branch from Fort William to the Junction is finished. Only fifteen miles of steel remains to be laid on this branch and it is expected the connection will be made by November 1. The distance is about 225 miles.

The contractors are preparing to rush the work to the limit, and will endeavour to complete their contract at the earliest date possible.

Trains Next Week

Mr. McKenzie is of the opinion that trains will be running between Winnipeg and Fort William before the grain is out next year, and he was enthusiastic in describing the wealth of the country the line traverses. He states that it is the finest pulp wood country he ever saw, there being besides an abundance of pine, spruce and tamarac, with excellent water power all through the district for converting this timber into lumber. He also tells of the wealth of gold at the head of Sturgeon Lake, and predicts a gold boom in that district in the very near future. The line of the Transcontinental runs very close to these mines, and twelve miles north of the lake a body of iron was recently found, for which an offer of $250,000 cash was refused.

Mr. McKenzie thinks there will be a big demand for labour on the new contracts this fall.

TEACH TRUTHFULNESS WITH ROD

There is Murder in Every Heart, Says Rev. T. R. Dean

"You must teach children, at the end of a rod, to tell the truth. They will bear false witness unless taught to tell the truth.

"The sin that is of this age is the desire to have value which is not ours.

"If we did not have the Ten Commandments we would never be convicted of sin.

"The law is the schoolmaster under Christ. God's law is the standard of righteousness which a man has to live up to or become a curse.

"You can make a god of your business, your flowers and plants, of your family or your poodle dog.

"It is easy for us to put up idols and worship them, though they be not the idols of the heathen.

"In every case condemnation comes for what has been done. The fact that you will try to do it no more will not save you in the least. Some one must answer for what has been done.

"There never was a child that did not dishonour its parents. There is no one who has not done, when his parents were absent, what he would not have dared to do in their presence.

"There is murder in every heart, for who has not hated someone at some time? This the Bible calls murder.

"Who has not stolen? Before God he who takes the smallest thing that is not his, steals. You have to teach a child not to steal."

The above are portions of an address by Rev. T. R. Dean, given recently in Toronto.

WOULD NOT STAND FOR POOL TABLES

Havelock Council Refuses License to Mr. John Beaver

At a largely attended meeting of the Havelock town council recently the matter of Mr. John Beaver's application for a license for pool tables was thoroughly discussed.

A large number of those present addressed the council asking that the license be granted, but the town fathers apparently had their minds made up, and were deaf to the arguments of the young men and those supporting the application, and on motion of Councillors Knox and Wood, no action was taken in the matter.

The Leap Year Lady.

By VIRGINIA BLAIR.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"I have often wondered why you didn't marry," said Bobbie Hayes diffidently.

The professor leaned on the porch rail and looked over his rose garden, where the fireflies starred the night with gold.

"Because I love a little lady who doesn't love me," he said dreamily, "and I'll have no other."

"Oh!" Bobbie gasped as one who has come unexpectedly upon a romance.

There was a moment's silence, out of which Bobbie questioned curiously, "How do you know she doesn't love you?"

The professor laughed. "She lets me see that I am her good friend, her comrade, but nothing more."

"Look here, professor, I don't believe you've asked her, not outright, you know," Bobbie accused.

"No, I haven't," the professor admitted.

"I thought so," Bobbie stated. "I know how modest you are. You'd never believe any one cared if they didn't tell you. Now, I had to—why, professor, I just had to hang around you after class and come over here and bore you and beg you to go places with me before you'd believe that I thought you were about the best thing I'd found in college."

The boy's voice was husky with deep feeling, and the professor held out his hand to him.

"Dear lad!" he said.

"And since I've been coming I have found out how lonely you are and—well, I think you ought to marry, professor."

"Alas," said the older man, "if it were as easy as it sounds!"

"It is easy," said Bobbie cocksurely. "I've—I've had some experience with girls, professor."

The professor chuckled. "More than I have had in all my forty years, Bobbie."

"And I've learned," Bobbie asserted solemnly, "that when a man wants to marry a girl he's got to let her know that he cares awfully."

"But she knows that I care," the professor said.

"Have you told her?" Bobbie demanded.

"Not in words," was the response, "but, Bobbie, boy, I've sent her a bunch of pink roses every day that they bloom in my garden, and I have never looked at another woman."

Bobbie sat up straight. "Oh, look here," he said unexpectedly. "You won't mind if I guess who it is?"

"I don't believe," the professor hesitated, "that we ought to bring her name into it."

"Yes, we ought," Bobbie insisted, "when it means your happiness and hers. Isn't it Miss Merriman?"

"How did you guess?" the professor demanded.

"Nobody else grows such old fashioned hundred leaved roses as you, and when I went up to Miss Merriman's room the other night to borrow a book there was a bunch of them on her table."

"She is very fond of roses," the professor murmured.

"Of your roses," Bobbie amended.

"I have no reason to believe that she cares more for my roses than for any other," said the professor.

"Well, I'll bet she does," Bobbie argued. "I'll bet she's got a lot of them pressed in the Bible or her favorite book of poetry."

The professor rose. "I hardly think I like to bring her name into this discussion," he said again quietly, and after that he and Bobbie walked in the garden arm in arm, and they talked of books and of men, but not of Miss Merriman.

The next afternoon Bobbie called on the little teacher.

"I want to know if you'll chaperon some of the summer schoolgirls to a picnic at High Rock," was his excuse. But later in the evening he mentioned the professor. "I don't think he's looking well," he said.

IMPROVED machinery will not, of itself, produce good flour.

You may be an excellent cook, but you cannot produce light, wholesome baking unless the flour you use be the kind that permits such results.

So in the milling; machinery alone cannot produce out of the wrong kind of wheat any more than you can make the right kind of bread or pastry out of the wrong kind of flour.

Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour is made from hard spring wheat—a wheat that is rich in nutriment, that grinds fine and white, and produces bread and pastry that are wholesome and nourishing as well as light and crisp—it's a flour that begins to be good in the wheat fields, not in the mills.

"I have noticed it," said Miss Merriman anxiously. "I believe he is working too hard."

"It isn't that," said Bobbie. "He's in love, Miss Merriman, and the girl he cares for is treating him very cruelly."

Miss Merriman turned pale. "Oh," she said faintly, "does—does he care for some one?"

"Yes," Bobbie stated, "and he ought to be married. He is lonely, very lonely. I am sure if the woman he loves could know she would say 'yes.'"

"I am sure she would," Miss Merriman agreed.

"I have wondered," Bobbie began and stopped, "if you could find out who she is—women have such intuitions about things, and you and the professor are such old friends."

"But," palpitated Miss Merriman, "I'm not a bit of a detective, Bobbie. I shouldn't know how to look for her."

"Well, I'll give you a tip," said Bobbie. "You find the lady he sends his pink roses to; she's the one."

He was looking at her with round, innocent eyes, and he saw the color come back into her cheeks. He saw the uplift of her graceful head, with its crown of shining hair. He saw the radiance of her eyes.

'Are you sure?" she questioned.

"Dead sure," said artful Bobbie. "Look here," he went on. "If you find out who it is, put her on to the fact that it's leap year."

"Leap year?" gasped Miss Merriman.

"Yes," Bobbie stated. "And it's her chance. The professor is such a dear old piece of humility that he doesn't think she can love him, and he's afraid to ask her, because he feels that it might make her unhappy to refuse him. And he's certain that she wouldn't accept."

"Oh, wouldn't she?" breathed Miss Merriman.

"And—and you tell her," Bobbie continued, "that he's the best ever."

"Of course he is," said Miss Merriman. "Haven't I known him all my life?"

"Well, I've only known him since I came to the summer school," said Bobbie, "but I'll always be more of a man for having met him."

They shook hands with enthusiasm, and on the steps Bobbie paused to say, "He's going to High Rock with us."

But Bobbie did not know all the working of the feminine mind, for Miss Merriman, instead of bringing things to a crisis at the picnic, kept away from the professor all day, giving him only a vague smile now and then, instead of her usual frank companionship, and as a consequence the professor went home in a state of desperate forlornness, and even the wise Bobbie was alarmed and wished he had not interfered.

The next evening, however, just at the edge of twilight, as the professor wended his solitary way through the paths of his rose garden, the gate opened and a slender figure in white came through.

"I have come to see your roses," said the leap year lady, otherwise called Miss Merriman.

"Are you real," the professor demanded, "or just a tricky spirit, who will vanish in a breath?"

"I am not a spirit," said the leap year lady, "but I've come to ask you a question."

The professor's face fell. "I knew it wasn't just the roses that brought you," he said. "I suppose it's some tangle in your Greek?"

"No," said Miss Merriman, "it isn't a tangle in Greek. It's a worse tangle. And it has something to do with roses."

"Botany?" asked the unconscious professor.

"Oh, no!" Miss Merriman's voice expressed a certain scorn of his denseness.

"Well, you said it had something to do with roses," the professor told her helplessly.

"Do the roses you send me have anything to do with botany?" Miss Merriman demanded.

"No; of course not," the professor stammered; "of course not. They have to do with"—

"What?" Miss Merriman's tone was eager. Her upturned face pleaded. Her eyes were like stars. A faint glow from the little moon turned her hair to gold, and as the professor looked down at her a great light shone in upon his soul.

"Why—they have to do with—love," he said.

"Of course," was the tremulous response. "Oh, why didn't you say it before?"

"I was afraid," he whispered and took her hands in his.

"You see I had to come—to your rose garden"— she explained in the shelter of his arms.

"To stay always?" he begged, and as she murmured "always" wise Bobbie, coming up the path, saw the tableau in the moonlight and, chuckling as he went, beat a hasty retreat.

The Great Unknown.

It was many years before the "Great Unknown" was identified. At the publication of the "Lay of the Last Minstrel," "Marmion," "Lady of the Lake" and finally of a novel called "Waverley," popular curiosity was excited, and the whole of England rang with the fame of the "Great Unknown," as Scott was called. The secret was well kept. Sir Walter Scott, who all his life had been storing material and training his mind to such concentration that he could work in the midst of interruptions and was able to turn out volume after volume with a rapidity, two a year, that made his readers doubt their very senses. His incognito was all the more perfectly preserved in that he kept open house at Abbotsford, devoting much of his time to entertaining his guests and visiting. It was not until the embarrassment of his publishers occurred that the identity of the author of the "Waverley Novels" was discovered. The case of Scott furnishes one of the many illustrations of the power of deceiving the public in literary matters.

A Bit of Deceit.

Bismarck vowed that after passing a competitive examination a man was never any good—that the strain wrecked him. Still it was cramming, the cramming of the ingenious mind of Lord Chesterfield which brought about the reform of the calendar. Cramming and flattery did it. "I have been of late a sort of an astronomer despite myself," he wrote. "I was obliged to talk some astronomical jargon, of which I did not understand one word, but got it by heart and spoke it by rote as a master." He had to make the peers believe that he knew something of the matter "and also to make them believe that they knew something of it themselves, which they did not." For his own part, he said he could as well have talked Celtic or Slavonian as astronomy and they would have understood him fully as well. They became parties to the deceit. They would not betray ignorance upon a subject as to which he credited them with abounding knowledge. Thus they reformed the calendar.

Had Its Limitations.

A Scottish farmer was proudly showing a visitor an antique clock which had recently come into his possession.

"Isn't that a gran' clock?" he said. "I bocht it at an auction sale in the toon the ither day an' got a rale bargain."

"Yes, but does it keep good time?" the visitor asked.

"Ah, weel, it's no' good enough to catch a train or that sort o' thing, but good enough to get up to yer breakfast by."

A Budding Philologist.

Bobbie, aged five, saw a cow grazing in his mother's flower garden and shouted: "Scat! Scat!"

The cow didn't seem to be much intimidated and calmly ate on. Three-year-old Mary, dancing with excitement, exclaimed: "Tell him to 'scow,' Wobbie; tell him to 'scow'!"

He Understood.

Hewitt—Do you understand where that fellow stood—the one who was just talking to us? Jewett—Sure; he was standing on my feet most of the time.

AN EPISODE OF WAR.

The Only Coward Evans Ever Saw in the Naval Service.

After Admiral Evans had been so grievously wounded in the attack on Fort Fisher during the civil war he was picked up by a marine named Wasmouth and carried into comparative shelter. Wasmouth was killed a few minutes later. Evans' own account continues: "After Wasmouth was killed I soon fell asleep, and when I awoke it was some time before I could recall my surroundings. The tide had come in, and the hole in which I was lying was nearly full of water, which had about covered me and was trickling into my ears. I could see a monitor firing and apparently very near, and the thought came to me that I could swim off to her if I only had a bit of plank or driftwood, but this I could not get. It was plain enough that I should soon be drowned like a rat in a hole unless I managed to get out somehow. Dead and wounded men were lying about in ghastly piles, but no one to lend me a helping hand. By this time I could not use my legs in any way, and when I dug my hands into the sides of my prison and tried to pull myself out the sand gave way and left me still lying in the water. Finally I made a strong effort and rolled myself sideways out of the hole.

"When I got out I saw a marine a short distance away nicely covered by a pile of sand and firing away deliberately at the fort. I called to him to pull me in behind his bar of sand, but he declined on the ground that the fire was too sharp for him to expose himself. I persuaded him with my revolver to change his mind, and in two seconds he had me in a place of safety—that is to say, safe by a small margin, for when he fired the Confederate bullets would snip the sand within a few inches of our heads. If the marine had known that my revolver was soaking wet and could not possibly be fired I suppose I would have been buried the next morning, as many other poor fellows were. As soon as I could reach some cartridges from a dead sailor lying near me I loaded my revolver, thinking it might be useful before the job was finished.

"When I was jerked in behind this pile of sand I landed across the body of the only coward I ever saw in the naval service. At first I was not conscious that there was a man under me, so completely had he worked himself into the sand. He was actually below the surface of the ground. The monitors were firing over us, and as a shell came roaring by he pulled his knees up to his chin, which hurt me, as it jostled my broken legs. I said: 'Hello! Are you wounded?' 'No, sir,' he replied; 'I am afraid to move.' 'All right, then,' I said, 'keep quiet and don't hurt my legs again.' The next shell that came over he did the same thing and the next notwithstanding my repeated cautions. So I tapped him between the eyes with the butt of my revolver, and he was quiet after that."

The Glove on the Pole.

A quaint custom in an English town, Honiton, is "proclaiming the fair." The town obtained the grant of a fair from the lord of the manor so long ago as 1257, and the fair still retains some of the picturesque characteristics of bygone days. The town crier, dressed in picturesque uniform and carrying a pole decorated with gay flowers and surmounted by a large gilt model of a gloved hand, publicly announces the opening of the fair, as follows: "Oyes! Oyes! Oyes! The fair's begun, the glove is up. No man can be arrested till the glove is taken down." Hot coins are then thrown among the children. The pole and glove remains displayed until the end of the fair.

How Hammer of Death Struck James.

The old parish church of Plumstead is probably at least 1,000 years old. The picturesque churchyard, a cherished haunt of the poet Bloomfield during his visits to Shooters Hill, contains a delightfully choice "derangement of epitaphs." One of these on "Master James Darling, aged 10," teaches a lesson of moderation during the cherry season to the youth of other places besides Plumstead. Speaking from his tombstone, Master Darling exclaims:

The hammer of death was give to me
For eating the cherries off the tree.

REMARKABLE WATCHES

SOME WONDERFUL TIMEPIECES HAVE BEEN PRODUCED.

Watches Are Now Made Which Will Strike Time With Set of Chimes —Stop Watches Are Also Marvels of Ingenuity and Workmanship— Metal and Gear Are the Essential Elements.

The construction of complicated timepieces has always been a favorite amusement of the mechanic. Some of the most complex and ingenious large clocks, like the famous one at Strasburg, were the product of former centuries, but probably complicated watches have never been made more accurately and cheaply than to-day. Some of these are described in Cosmos (Paris), by L. Reverchon.

"The striking watch ('repeater') is very old. Nearly two and a half centuries ago it was invented simultaneously by two English watchmakers, Barlow and Quare. . . . Watches that strike the hour when desired are now made like ordinary watches and at a reasonable price. Good watches in metal cases, striking the quarter-hour, may be bought for 100 francs ($20).

"On the other hand, watches are now made . . . that not only strike when desired, by pressing a spring, but also strike the hours and quarters regularly, like a clock. The mechanism is much the same in both cases.

"Not only are ordinary bells for sounding the hours and quarters placed in these watches—some of which do not exceed 4.7 millimeters (1-5 inch) in thickness—but real little chimes.

"We may pass from consideration of repeaters to that of the more recent stop-watch. In its most elementary form this has simply a second-hand on a small dial graduated in minutes. In the most complicated form the mechanism operates two ordinary hands, a primary chronograph-hand, called the 'overtaking' hand, a minute-counter, and finally a small 'lightning' hand, which makes the entire revolution in one second, a quarter at a time. . . . In a stop-watch of this sort the four hands last described may all be brought back to zero at once. It may be imagined with what precision the construction must be carried out that this may be done. . . . Practically, stop-watches without the 'overtaking' and 'lightning' hands are used. . . . and even these give trouble enough to repairers of watches. . . . A third complication in watches is the calendar. Every one is now familiar with watches that show the day of the month and the phases of the moon, for they may be obtained at all the shops at low prices. This type of calendar watch is old. The perpetual calendar, which is quite complicated, dates only from 1860. There are two systems. In one the month-dial has forty-eight divisions, which facilitates construction. In the second, called the twelve-month calendar . . . the month-hand makes its revolution in one year instead of four years, which makes it easier to read. The hands change place at midnight. Calendars are also made with openings, through which the numbers indicating month and day are shown . . . The lunar phases are shown by means of a wheel of fifty-nine teeth, which involves an error of nine hours a year. The mechanism of calendars should receive special care. Their working requires considerable power, and this is why, in most non-perpetual calendars, the moon obstinately refuses to budge."

There are still, we are told, more complicated watch-movements, in which all the features described above are combined. For instance, the writer tells of a watch that is at once a repeater, a "chronograph" or stop-watch, and a perpetual calendar. A mechanism such as this consists of no less than 552 pieces, pierced with 752 holes and held together by 177 screws, some of which are not more than 0.3 millimeter (about 1-80 inch) in diameter. He describes also an astronomic watch constructed by Paul Ditisheim, on whose dial appear hours, minutes, seconds, lunar phases, days of the month, the time of sunrise and sunset, and a device for showing the equation of time. The writer concludes:

"In such complicated pieces of mechanism it is evident that all the wheels cannot be arranged in one plane. They must be disposed in layers, which of course makes the watches thicker than usual.

"At the last competitive exhibition at the National Physical Laboratory at Kew, England, there were eleven complicated watches, among others a repeater giving the minutes, with a stop-watch attachment, made by Stauffer and Son, of London, which obtained 88.7 points in a possible hundred—a very good result. At the same laboratory in 1904 the firm of Golay, of London, had a watch of this class with an absolutely extraordinary number of points, namely 93.2. . . .

"It would certainly seem that chronometric precision had obtain its maximum in mechanisms of this kind, in which weak spring-motors succeed in operating second-hands, under the control of the escapement, with such accuracy that the variations observed during six months do not depart by one-half second from the straight line representing ideally perfect running.

"To reach such truly extraordinary results in actual manufacture there are two essential elements toward which the constructor's whole attention should be directed; these are the quality of the metals used and the gearing of the gears. These two elements become increasingly important as the number of pieces entering into the construction is more considerable. To their absence we must attribute most of the faults of watches of inferior quality."

Newsstands at Sea.

For some time past the stewards on the ocean liners have added to their earnings by laying in a stock of periodicals and books and retailing them to passengers, but the regular news dealer has only just arrived. On such ships as the Lusitania and her sister ship it is quite a pleasant shock on the second day out to come across the news dealer's stall at the entrance of the barber shop or some other as natural place. The papers, it is true, do not bear the morning's date, but the magazines are of the latest issue and the novels the latest from the publishing houses. The stall is entirely new, and whether it has come to stay or not depends upon whether it pays. The rent is high, and besides paying for the privilege the dealer must also pay his passage.—Popular Mechanics.

Eel as Thick as a Cat.

The aquarium now has a sea monster, a spotted moray, which is a formidable name for a species of eel. It is eight feet long, as large in diameter as a fat cat and resembles an enormous eel, except that its head, with a mouth like an undershot bulldog, is crowned with a ridge of spikes. It came from Bermuda. Often the moray has been taken for a sea serpent by green fishermen, as it lives near the surface and often lies with its head on the rocks, seeking birds' eggs and crabs. Superintendent Morgan says this moray is not extraordinarily large, as they grow to fifteen feet and often swim with heads elevated above the sea.—New York World.

Best Speller is Seventy-three.

Mrs. Douglas Gilbert, aged seventy-three, of Pana, Ill., the oldest person to participate in the annual weekl spelling match in connection with the Winona Lake assembly programme, won first honors and was awarded a prize of $20. Without hesitation she spelled "concatenation," on which A. B. Curry of Memphis, Tenn., and Helen Seryoss of Muncie, Ind., who carried off the second and third honors, went down. Other words that proved stumbling stones to the eighty contestants were erysipelas, surrogate, prerogative, plebeian, caoutchouc and innuendo. Five went down on plebeian.—Warsaw (Ind.) Cor. New York World.

German English.

Judge quotes this sample of "English as she is wrote" by a German firm which wishes to tell Americans how to use a new mechanical saltcellar:

"It is necessary that is emploid only a salt table very fine milled and very dried. Another salt is to pound and to dry previously than in this case it is forming masses (crumbs). It is necessary that the saltcellar is not placed humid and is not touched with hands wets. By a good and rational use the cellar is functionning blameless and is of a unlimited durability. The cellar is the best."

Searchlights.

Metallic mirrors for searchlights may supersede those made of glass. The metallic mirror has a surface composed of alternate bands or rings of gold and white reflecting surfaces. It is claimed that this mirror gives a more penetrating beam of light both at night and in foggy weather and that the intensity of the light is so great that it is impossible to aim accurately at the projector. Another advantage claimed is that they are not fractured by concussion and that even when penetrated by bullets the area of distortion is very small.

The Improvement Most Needed Now in Naval Warfare.

The next great improvement in naval warfare will be on the lines of ways and means of repeating what the Russians did—ways and means of charging upon and grappling with the mighty war vessels of an enemy to sink them with the short sword of high explosives.

There is no one thing so much needed in naval warfare at the present time as a more efficient means of wrecking battleships and cruisers with a sufficient quantity of high explosives for their destruction. In other words, there is a more imperative demand for improvements in torpedoes and torpedo boats than in any other branch of the naval service. The effective range of the modern high power gun is now about five miles, and it is the range of the guns that determined the distance between the lines of battle of modern fleets, and the fleet with guns of the longest range has the opposing fleet at its mercy.

A little while ago the automobile torpedo was thought to be a valuable adjunct to the armament of the modern battleship, but the range of the guns has now been so increased that such torpedoes become a useless incumbrance because of the shortness of their range, notwithstanding the fact that their manufacturers have done everything possible to perfect them and to increase their speed and range. Their range is necessarily limited to that attainable by the charge of compressed air they are capable of carrying.

During the past few years the pressure of the air has been increased from 1,300 pounds to the square inch to 2,250 pounds to the square inch and the weight of air from 60 pounds to 120 in the eighteen inch torpedo, and still the maximum range of the eighteen inch torpedo is only from 3,000 to 3,500 yards, practically about one-third of the range of the high power guns which determine the distance apart of the lines of battle, and the maximum rate of speed of this torpedo is about 35 knots.—Hudson Maxim in Metropolitan Magazine.

A Queer Test.

The grocer said to the applicant:

"Your references are good. Show me your style of weighing out five pounds of sugar. There's the scales."

The applicant wreathed his face in the amiable smile all salesmen wear and weighed out the sugar with dispatch and accuracy. He put on too little sugar at first; he added gently a full half pound before the scale balanced.

"You'll do," said the grocer. "You understand the scale trick. It is plain that you learned your trade in the thorough old school way."

"Yes, sir," the other answered. "I learned in the country, and almost my first lesson was that in weighing. You must add, add, add, till the beam tips, because all that adding pleases the customer—seems to him almost like a gift. But if, on the contrary, you substract from the quantity on the scale the customer is affected in the opposite way—you seem to be robbing him. He goes away convinced that you are a stingy cheat."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Beaten at His Own Game.

"A few days since," relates a solicitor, "as I was sitting with my friend D. in his office a man came in and said:

"'Mr. W., the livery stable keeper tricked me shamefully yesterday, and I want to be even with him.'

"'State your case,' said D.

"'I asked him how much he'd charge me for a horse to go to Richmond. He said half a sovereign. I took the horse, and when I came back he said he wanted another half sovereign for coming back and made me pay it.'

"D. gave his client some legal advice, which he immediately acted upon, as follows: He went to the livery stable keeper and said, 'How much will you charge for a horse to Windsor?'

"The man replied, 'A sovereign.'

"Client accordingly went to Windsor, came back by rail and went to the livery stable keeper, saying:

"'Here is your money,' paying him a sovereign.

"'Where is my horse?' said W.

"'He's at Windsor,' answered the client. 'I hired him only to go to Windsor.'"—Pearson's Weekly.

A Wide Range.

When the surgeon who happened to be spending a night at Bushby Inn had set the broken leg of the weather beaten stranger who was the chief victim of an automobile accident the patient looked up at him anxiously. "See here, doc," he said in a husky voice, "I haven't got much of any money. Would you take out your fee in trade?"

"Yes, I guess so," said the surgeon cheerfully. "What is your trade?"

"Well, I've got a number of things I can do soon as I'm on my feet again," said the patient. "I can hang window blinds, or I can put on lightning rods, or I can play the cornet, and I can do 'em all first rate, if I'm the one to say it, doc."—Youth's Companion.

Women Oyster Gatherers.

The work of oyster collecting and culture is most unsuitable for women, but in France, owing to its tedious nature, it does not appeal to men. Often from an early hour in the morning till late into the evening the women are standing up to their knees in water, with a strong sun beating down on them. The result is that never a year passes without some of them going mad and having to be hurried away to the asylums. The work is well paid, as, indeed, it ought to be, while in the case of the few who own beds the profits are large, and small fortunes are quickly amassed.

J. W. GREENAWAY,
Commissioner of Dominion Lands, Ottawa,
28th September, 1908. 2463

THE SECOND ADDRESS OF HON. J. R. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORS OF THE ELECTORAL DIVISION OF WEST PETERBOROUGH

To the Electors of West Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—In my first address to you, I aimed to point out what had been accomplished by the Liberal Governments of Ontario and of the Dominion in promoting what may be described as the local interests of West Peterborough, in the provision of local advantages to meet local needs, and serve public interests.

I now wish to suggest some of the many reasons why the present Government should be sustained, and given an opportunity of continuing the great work it has accomplished for Canada as a whole. There is not a city resident, nor dweller in the suburbs, not a labourer, nor an artizan, not a mechanic, nor a manufacturer, nor anybody in any walk of life, that has not enjoyed more prosperity, had his welfare improved, his business benefitted, during the twelve years of rule of the present Liberal Government, which is now appealing for a renewal of its stewardship.

There is not a farmer in Peterborough county, who does not know that every farm, properly managed, has increased in value, and every farmer in prosperity, in the twelve years of Liberal rule. There is not a farmer who does not know that general conditions have been vastly improved; who does not know to what a general extent the clear deed for the farm has replaced the farm mortgage; new buildings replaced dilapidated structures; home comforts increased, and general conditions of well-being improved.

It is therefore incumbent upon me to present as concise a view as possible of the record of the Liberal Government, whose supporter I am, to set forth what it has done in the twelve years of its trusteeship to promote the general welfare of Canada.

To emphasize this record, the condition of the country previous to the Liberal Government assuming power, may be recalled. It is no exaggeration to say that at that time the country was practically at a standstill; that business was dormant; our industries languishing; manufacturers dissatisfied; the Conservative Government was fighting amongst themselves, and had ceased to effectively govern. Our finances were at low-water mark; expenditure was running ahead of receipts, deficits were almost annual, the national debt advancing, the country torn by dissensions and the outlook gloomy.

The first notable action of the Liberal Government, as a necessary preliminary to national progress, was to restore peace and harmony among the people—by the satisfactory and lasting settlement of a burning question. Peace having thus been restored, the Liberal Government was free to enter upon the work of nation-building.

The tariff, which, under previous administrations, was not giving satisfactory results, either to the people affected, or in the way of revenue, was readjusted with careful consideration of all interests, the consumer as well as the producer. The farmer was helped by having binder twine, barbed wire, Indian corn, cream separators, and articles of staple necessity, placed on the untaxed list of imports. Manufacturers, and through them the wage-earners, were helped by removal, or reduction, of duties on raw material used in manufacturing.

The result was an immediate improvement in the condition of all national interests; prosperity resumed its reign, trade became active, employment plentiful, wages increased, and a rate of good growth taken on which can only be understood by recalling some of the records.

Under the revised tariff, our revenue, even under a tariff lowered on an average of $18.28 per $100, at the close of Conservative rule to an average of $15.66 per $100, under Liberal rule, increased from thirty-six millions a year, in 1896, to ninety-six millions in 1908.

The capital invested in manufacturing establishments increased from $446,916,487 in 1900, to $833,916,155 in 1905, or over seventy million dollars per year.

The wages paid to labour in factories, increased from $113,249,350 in 1900, to $162,155,578 in 1905, or nearlp ten million dollars per year.

The value of products of manufacturing establishments grew from $481,053,375, in 1900, to $706,446,578 in 1905, the increase in the manufactured output of the city of Peterborough in that period amounting to eleven millions odd, being far the greatest proportion of increase of any one place in the Dominion.

The total foreign trade—imports and exports—has in the past twelve years of Liberal administration amounted to the tremendous total of 5,152, millions of dollars.

The yearly growth of the total foreign trade of Canada is shown by the fact that it grew from $239,025,360 in 1896, to $650,738,200 in 1908.

In twelve years the farmers of Canada have received for the products of their farms set abroad more than a thousand million dollars, and the exports of farm products have increased from $50,592,525 in 1896, to $121,171,199 in 1908.

The value of the exported products of our mines has increased from $8,059,650 in 1896, to $39,117,133 in 1908.

Forest products have increased in value of exports from $27,175,686, in 1906, to $44,170,470 in 1908.

In 1896, Canadian bank discounts, the index of commercial and industrial activity, amounted to $224,507,301; they had grown to $584,732,914 in 1908—more than doubled.

The people's deposits in chartered banks and savings banks, have grown from $245,029,143 in 1896, to $650,126,232 in 1908.

The increase in tonnage carried in 1908 by Canadian railways (another index of commercial and industrial activity) was more than fifteen millions greater than the total tonnage carried in 1896, which was 24,266,825 tons as against 68,866,183 tons in 1908.

There was an increase in the export value of bacon and hams from $18,827,928 in twelve Conservative years, to $135,156,311 in the twelve Liberal years; the increase for the same period in butter export values was from $10,513,348, to more than five times—$51,680,095; in cheese, from $127,611,428, to $247,790,332; in wheat, from $45,338,791 to $121,677,659, or nearly five-fold.

In the five years of Liberal rule—from 1901 to 1905—the population of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, increased from 419,512 to 808,863. In the last two years immigration and settlement have so rapidly advanced that the population of these provinces must be well beyond the million mark, for since January 1, 1907, immigrants to the number of 1,219,943 have come into Canada.

Not only have these immigrants the very great value of a million increase of population, but the effects they brought into Canada, exclusive of personal baggage and cash, amounted to $64,442,532, which is fourteen millions more than the total exports of farm products under Conservative rule in 1896.

In 1900 the number of farms worked in these provinces was 54,625; these had increased to 120,439 four years later—1906.

In eighteen years the Conservative Government voted 56 million acres of land to railway companies, or enough to supply 411,000 homesteads of 160 acres each, whereas, in contrast, in twelve years since coming into power the Liberal Government has not given away one acre of land to a railway. The land has been reserved for the settlers, who got 35 million acres in homesteads.

This work of western development, and the increase of population, have benefitted the east; every new household creates fresh demands upon the manufactured and commercial products of eastern Canada, giving increased work to factories and increased employment to working men.

The prosperity, the all-round quickened activity of national life in Canada attendant upon Liberal rule, has given employment to Canadians at home or found homes for them in the west. This is in strong contrast to the do-nothing immigration policy of the previous Government which could not retain the immigrants brought in nor present conditions attractive enough to keep native-born population at home, nor stop the exodus of the flower of Canadian youth to the United States by the million.

The British preference, or preferential tariff, extended to Great Britain, showed the Liberal Government to represent the party of real loyalty—practical loyalty—to the empire. The result of this gift was a splendid advertisement of Canada, and secured British good-will, with the direct results that it substantially favoured the Canadian consumer, increased imports from Great Britain—three-fold—from $32,894,505 in 1896, to $94,362,383, in 1908— and doubled Canadian exports to Great Britain—from $62,717,041 in 1896, to $126,194,124, in 1908.

This preference was extended to most of the British colonies and, in return, Canada secured a preference in New Zealand, South Africa and Barbadoes, with the result that British Columbia canneries captured nearly the whole trade of New Zealand, and shut out the canneries of the United States; and Canada's example has been followed by nearly all the British colonies.

The Liberal Government passed anti-combine legislation, to prevent trade combines from raising prices contrary to the public interests.

Such a record of achievement on the more material side, on the part of the Liberal Government, amply justifies my appeal for your spport to aid in retaining it in a position to continue the splendid service that has been given.

It is not, however, only in material matters, but in matters redounding to the credit of Canada, both at home and abroad, and in providing conditions for the general advantage of the people, that the Liberal Government has done work worthy of the practical recognition involved in its being given another lease of power.

Under the Liberal Government, the French treaty was negotiated by Canadian statesmen, without the help of British statesmen, subject, however, to the approval of the Home Government—a long step forward in Canadian nation-building.

The reign of the Liberal Government has been marked by unprecedented development of transportation facilities—the keynote of Canadian development, progress and prosperity. As a general result, the great bulk of the grain trade of the interior west of the continent is passing through Canadian channels, and New York and other American ports are alarmed at the formidable competition of the Canadian St. Lawrence route.

This condition was brought about by the completion of the enlargement of the St. Lawrence and Welland canal systems to a depth of 14 feet, the equipment of grain shipping harbours on Lake Superior and Georgian Bay, Lake Huron and Lake Erie; the improvement of Montreal, St. John and Halifax harbours, the deepening of the ship channel from Montreal to the Gulf, the extension of telegraph systems down the coast, the abolition of canal tolls, and the making of the St. Lawrence a safe route for ocean ships by day or night.

These great works have not only made the St. Lawrence the grain route of the continent, but directly benefitted shippers and producers—general merchandise and farm products. Last year the saving on reduced insurance rates, caused by the improvements made in the St. Lawrence by the Government, amounted to nearly a million dollars—$922,000.

In the last twelve years, the Liberal Government has expended on transportation; in improving the facilities for marketting the products of factories and farms, the large sum of $121,215,115—on canals, twenty-six millions; on Government railways thirty-one millions; on Montreal harbour and St. Lawrence ship channel, seven millions; on the chief lake harbours, two millions; in aid of the construction and extension of railways, twenty-one millions; and, so far, twenty-seven millions on Transcontinental Railway construction, have been advanced for construction, and upon which, after seven years, the Grand Trnuk Pacific will pay the Dominion interest at the rate of three per cent.

In aiding railways to open up the country to development, the Liberal Government have simply invested money. The Conservative way was to give bonuses outright. The Liberal way is to make no gift, a condition of the Liberal grants being that the railways must regard them as a loan and pay in return, by the carrying of mails, an equivalent to a fair rate of interest.

The necessity of the Grand Trunk Pacific is emphasized by reasons of the conditions existing to-day. The movement of western wheat to the market is at this moment impeded by lack of cars, showing the need of more railway service. To meet conditions which will become more pressing as settlement and crop production will increase, through the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Government has decided upon building the Hudson Bay Railway, as another wheat outlet that in the open season will shorten the distance to Liverpool by thousands of miles. And the Government shows its wisdom by making the railway build itself—by providing for the cost by the sale of lands, now valueless, but made valuable by the building of the line itself.

Having regard to the future of this country, no calculation can estimate the tremendous benefits that are accruing, and will accrue to Canada, through the bold and business-like development of our transportation facilities, by the Liberal Government.

The Liberal Government conceived, and is constructing, the Grand Trunk Pacific, which will practically double the settled and cropped area of Canada, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, over a belt 200 miles wide through the heart of New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, and western Canada. It will open up millions upon millions of new territory for settlement and development; it will give development and competition in transportation to 1200 miles of grain-growing country in the west. The Transcontinental Railway, which will be completed in three or four years, will, at least, duplicate the tremendous development work accomplished by the Canadian Pacific in building up the resources and widening the sweep of Canada's commerce.

The Liberal Government's subsidy of $3,630,000 to the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, secured the speedy construction of a line that opened up the rich mineral Kootenay district, of British Columbia, covered it with thriving towns, villages and mining camps, diverted trade from the United States, and opened up a market for western farm produce. It did more. A condition of the subsidy was a reduction of freight rates by the Canadian Pacific, which built the Crow's Nest line; and this reduction, on wheat alone, saved the farmers in five years, $3,750,000, or $20,0000 more than the amount of the subsidy, not to speak of the vast indirect benefit, a saving and benefit that are to continue for all time.

The Liberal Government established the Railway Commission, whose work is to continually arbitrate between railways and customers, and to deal with and settle freight and other rates. Last session telegraph and telephone lines were brought under the Commission, and now there is assured to the public in respect of these public utilities, all the rights, privileges and advantages that could come from public ownership, and that, too, without incurring a tremendous financial liability for purchase and operation.

The Liberal Government, in its work for Agriculture, has given farming a vital organization, and made the farming interests of Canada one vast co-operative industry. Cold storage for transportation of perishable products and efficient supervision in transit, have resulted in placing Canadian farm, garden, dairy and orchard products upon the British markets in their prime original quality, with a splendid reputation and greatly increased prices.

An example of advanced legislation is the Liberal Government's old age pension act, which brings within the reach of every man and woman in Canada a means for making provision for old age.

The Liberal Government's interest in Labour is shown, not only in the broad conditions provided for creating prosperity and industrial activity, and opportunities for employment, but in providing more specific benefits. This is shown in the abolition of the sweating system, so far as concerns Government contracts; the adoption of a fair wage scale for Government contracts; the establishment of a Department of Labour to be placed in charge of a Minister of its own; the publication of the Labour Gazette; the passing of the Lemieux Act, which though only operative since March of last year, has up to August last, been instrumental in amicable settlement of nearly forty strikes, involving over 40,000 employees, and millions of capital, and satisfactory arrangements were made for the limitation and practical cessation of Oriental immigration.

The Liberal Government's adoption of a revenue tariff that produced revenue, made it financially possible to meet the pressing demands of the provinces for increased subsidies, amounting to nearly five million dollars a year of the people's money returned directly to the people for provincial purposes.

The Liberal Government's management of the Post Office is a triumph of business administration. With a reduction in postage rate of over one-third, and with a vastly increased and improved service, a deficit of $750,000 in 1896 was converted into a surplus which steadily increased year by year till this year it reached the large amount of $1,101,827. Such a fruit of good management permitted the Government to initiate another great postal reform—rural mail delivery—that is free mail delivery to farmers, and before the year is out it will be in operation.

The splendid financial administration of the Liberal Government may be summarized in a few words—we have paid our way, and spent large sums in great public works for the development of the country, without appreciably adding to the public debt, and wihout increasing—but actually reducing—the taxation of the people. Customs taxation was reduced from $18.28 per $100, in 1896, to $15.66 per $100 in 1907, not to mention over one-third reduction in postage rates. If the Conservative average of taxation had been in force since 1896, fifty millions more customs duties would have been paid. The Liberal period of rule has been a reign of surpluses—totalling over one hundred and thirteen millions, or about nine and a half million dollars per year. Conservative revenue averaged thirty six million dollars per year for twelve years ending with 1896. Liberal revenue showed an increase every year till the last fiscal year, when it reached $96,054,905. In the twelve years the expenditure had only grown from $36,940,142, in 1896, to $76,061,451, in 1908.

The expenditure has only kept pace with the progress of Canada, and the Liberal Government has made generous expenditure on public works, which will return to the people a thousand fold.

The financial condition of Canada is sound. Her securities list on a par with securities guaranteed by the British Government, and the confidence of British capitalists is shown by the fact that in the first seven months of this year, British money to aid Canadian development was sent in from England to the amount of 143 millions of dollars.

Among the acts of the Government to advance Canada, the Liberal Government has established an assay office in British Columbia, and the establishment of a Canadian mint, in which our gold and silver coins are produced, adds to our dignity as a nation, and is also a source of profit.

The Liberal Government has enacted legislation concerning the observance of the Lord's Day.

The Liberal Government has appointed civil service commissioners to provide for eliminating political influence in appointments to the civil service.

The Government, acting on the principle that if Canada maintains a Militia, it must be the best, has instituted a great many reforms. New branches of service have been established; the pay of the militia has been increased from 50 cents per day to a possible $1.00; a permanent training camp has been established at Petawawa rifle ranges, and armouries—including one in Peterborough—have been established and built, and the defence of the country amply provided for. The Government has established a rifle factory in Canada, and the "Ross Rifle," to arm the Canadian militia, and pronounced by British experts as the best arm of precision now made, is a "made in Canada" article.

In presenting the foregoing truly remarkable record of achievements, only the salient points of merit have been indicated. A book would be required to unfold it in detail. But enough is shown to amply justify an appeal to the people for a renewal of confidence in a Government which in the short space of twelve years, has brought Canada into a position of prominence in the eyes of the world, has conquered the favour of the Mother Land; has brought Canada from being a timorous dependency, over-awed by hostile tariff-makers in the United States, to the rank of a nation, making her own treaties, coining her own money, a nation full of self reliance and confidence in a future of magnificent realization, for which the foundations have been laid strong and deep by the Liberal Government of the Dominion, whose stewardship is now under review, with confidence that it will meet popular approval.

Such a Government, I have the honour of supporting, and soliciting you to support, in the person of the Liberal candidate. If I am honoured by your confidence, I can only promise that I will endeavour, to the best of my ability, to repeat the efforts to serve West Peterborough and the country, which I have exerted in the course of my past representative relations, with a single eye to serving and promoting the best interests of Peterborough—city and county.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

J. R. Stratton

HER MODERATION.

I saw her in her bathing suit bobbing on the placid sea.
I was her latest raw recruit, and she looked good to me.
We chased each other on the sands, we splashed without a care.
I held her up with willing hands, at times she paddled there.

I've seen her in her ballroom gown, when all was gay and bright,
And feared her waist was coming down though she was free from fright.
I trembled lest the shoulder straps that lopped down on her arms
Might slip or break and cause mishaps unmasking all her charms.

I've seen her romping on the shore, I've seen her waltzing too.
Much half of her to me, therefore, has been exposed to view.
She is a gentle, proper maid. I deem her still sublime,
For modesty she has displayed but one half at a time.

—Chicago Record-Herald.

Too Much For Him.

"Hello, Green. How are you getting on?"

"Rotten. I got the first one in eleven, the second in twelve and the third one in eleven, and then I went all to pieces."—Browning's Magazine.

No Sportsman.

Hal Chase, the famous first baseman, at a dinner in Chicago responded to a toast on the "sporting spirit."

"When I was a boy," said Mr. Chase, "I knew a butcher who lacked the sporting spirit altogether. In a game one August afternoon the butcher tried to steal second. It was a clumsy attempt. He made a clumsy slide, and the umpire declared him out.

"'Out, am I?' shrieked the butcher, wild with rage.

"It was a just decision, and we all backed up the umpire.

"'Out, hey?' the butcher roared. 'Then out you all go from my field!'"—Washington Star.

His Home.

A distinguished Indian officer, Scotch to the core, never lost an opportunity of advertising his countrymen.

One evening at mess he had a large number of guests and had a magnificent specimen of a highland piper on duty.

To draw attention to the man's splendid appearance he turned to him and said:

"What part of Scotland do you come from, my man?"

With a punctilious salute the reply came:

"Tipperary, yer honor."—Answers.

Mistaken.

While a small boy was fishing one Sunday morning he accidentally lost his foothold and tumbled into the creek.

As an old man on the bank was helping him out he said:

"How did you come to fall in the river, my little man?"

"I didn't come to fall in the river. I came to fish," replied the boy.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Made Her Think.

"I am reading ancient history."

"You are, Miss Tinkers?"

"Yes; it's a splendid pastime. It actually makes one think."

"And what has it made you think?"

"Well, I've been wondering and wondering what the ladies of ancient Rome did to amuse themselves in those awful days before bridge parties and motoring."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Preferred the Money.

"Yes," said D'Auber, the artist, patronizingly. "I'm selling my canvases now at my own prices."

"My," exclaimed the young art student, "you don't say so?"

"Yes; I suppose you'd give a great deal to be a great artist too?"

"No, indeed. I'd rather be you."—Pittsburg Post.

The Unlucky Brother.

"I don't see why he took out another accident policy, he's so unlucky."

"Why, that's the very reason, ain't it?"

"But I mean he's unlucky in this way—he hain't had a leg cut off or even a arm broke in ten years!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Knew From Experience.

"Pa!"

"Well, what is it now?"

"Pa, when I grow up, how will I keep from marrying the wrong woman?"

"You won't."—New York Life.

To Be Avoided.

The Artist—You have a perfect head.

The Model—Then I suppose I may say that my head is my fortune?

The Artist—Exactly. But if you're not exceedingly careful it may become a swollen fortune.—Puck.

Good Things.

"Say what you please, there are some good things about Bunko."

"Good things! Yes, and he wants them all."—Baltimore News.

A Sense of Humor.

The Ant—What are all those flies on the window sill laughing at?

The Moth Miller—The cat has just put her paw on the fly paper.

Three Girls and a Bungalow.

By C. B. LEWIS.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The three girls—Florence, Molly and Edith—began talking up that bungalow in January, and long enough before the first April shower they had all their plans perfected. It was to be a unique and romantic summer outing. Florence's father owned a farm on the bay. A frame house had been erected for the tenant, and an old log house stood vacant in a romantic spot. It was, as Florence informed her two girl chums, a dear, lovely, sweet, just-too-nice-for-anything old log house. It would make such a bungalow as could not be found for twenty miles up and down the coast.

On the hill forty rods back of the log house was the new dwelling, occupied by Farmer Jones, his good, fat wife and his lean son Jacob. The girls would take their meals there and have no cooking or dishwashing to do. When they wanted to roast clams and potatoes they could build a fire on the shore.

Just three girls and no crowds, no dressing for dinner, no keeping the hair curled; just three girls, boating, fishing and swinging in their hammocks and cantering o'er the dewy grass in the morning; no cards, no bouquets, no flirtations; the fat Mrs. Jones for chaperon, the lean Jacob to run errands, old Jones to drive into the village once a week after kerosene and baking powder and their mail—the very thought of it produced thrills.

Well, it all came about. They went down early in July to remain for two months. Word had been sent to Jones that they wished to rough it and that he must not remove any of the romance. He obeyed orders. He built three rude bunks, put in an old table and three chairs and furnished a lamp. There were a few panes of glass in the windows, and he did not add to the number; there were a few holes in the roof, and he did not cover them; there was half an acre of pigweeds around the house, and he did not mow them down. Mr. Jones was romantic himself and appreciated the sentiment in others.

The outing started off with "How charming!" "How ideal!" and "How very romantic!" Then the three girls got their heads together and took a solemn vow. It was that they would remain until the very last day of August and that in the interval they would not encourage any young man to address them—any young man except Jacob, from whom they learned that young men came that way at intervals to fish in the bay.

The bungalow was a success from the start. On the first night it rained, and the water dripped down through a dozen leaks; on the second night a cow came and put her head through one of the windows to see what strange cattle had arrived and taken possession; on the third an owl alighted on the rooftree and uttered three whoops, and they were followed by three exclamations of "Murder!" "Police!" and "Help!"

On the fourth day Jacob appeared with a pitcher of buttermilk and some startling news. He had discovered a young man had gone into camp a short quarter of a mile away. He had with him a tent, a boat, plenty of provisions and cooking utensils. It looked as if he intended to stay right there all summer. Jacob had entered the young man's camp and asked him to please move two miles farther up or down. The young man had glared at him and kept on reading a volume of poetry. The news created intense excitement at once. An indignation meeting was at once called, and it was resolved "that the young man has got to go and that we wait upon him in a body and tell him so."

Jacob bravely offered his help, but it was declined. "The body" marched straight for the enemy's camp, each face wearing a look of determination. The enemy was sitting down smoking a pipe, but on their arrival he rose up and doffed his cap and stood at respectful attention. Miss Florence was spokesman, and after a slight shiver she announced:

"Sir, this is my father's property, and you are a trespasser. I have to request that you kindly go away."

"But it happens to be my property," replied the stranger, with a smile. "Your father's farm ends at the creek there."

"But—but we are three girls, sir."

The young man bowed to the three in turn.

"And we have a bungalow and do not wish to be disturbed."

"I shall take great pleasure in not disturbing you."

"But can't you understand, sir, that we are on our vacation and don't want any men around?"

"Sorry, young ladies—extremely sorry—but I am on my vacation and don't want any females around. I will agree to keep my distance if you will keep yours. I have camped here for the past three years on account of this spring."

The delegation walked back to the bungalow without a word. Then the meeting was called to order again, and Miss Florence asked what further steps were deemed necessary to rid themselves of the presence of the impudent intruder.

"Why, if it's his land he has a right there, hasn't he?" ingenuously queried Molly.

"And I didn't expect to see such a good looking young man," sighed Edith.

"Are you girls going to turn traitor?" demanded the chairman in indignant tones. "He may be good looking, and he may be on his own land, but he's no gentleman. A gentleman would have consented to move his camp even ten miles if kindly requested by three girls who were camping by themselves. If he thinks we are going away instead he'll find himself very much mistaken. We must snub him on every possible occasion."

When Farmer Jones was appealed to he said he guessed the young man was within his rights. When young Jacob was told the result of the call at his camp he offered to go over and chuck the intruder into the bay and hold him there, but wiser counsel prevailed, and the bungalow once more settled down to peace and romance. Not for long, however.

After breakfast two mornings later Florence went down to the shore for a row to find the boat missing. The tide had floated it off during the night. As she stood there wondering about tides and skiffs and intruders the young man of the camp came rowing up in his own boat and towing the missing craft. He leaped ashore, raised his cap and drew the skiff upon the sands. Then he entered his own craft without a word and rowed away.

At dinner that evening Mrs. Jones proudly placed a dish of fried squirrels on the table. The girls welcomed it with little screams of delight. Miss Florence had half finished her dinner when she remembered having seen the intruder with a gun on his shoulder in the edge of the woods that afternoon. She suddenly lost her appetite and whispered to the girl on either hand:

"You may bow your neck to the tyrant's yoke if you will, but as for me—never!"

"But such a deep, rich voice as he has!"

"And such eyes and teeth!"

At the breakfast next morning there was excellent fish on the table—fish caught that morning, as Mrs. Jones proudly announced. The girls "pitched in," but after five minutes Miss Florence refused further fish. It came to her like a flash that the impudent intruder must have furnished the supply. She looked at her chums in cold disdain, but Miss Molly clasped her hands and rolled her eyes.

"Oh, I knew he must be a gentleman the first moment I set eyes on him."

"And how terrible it would have been had we driven him away from here," added Edith.

They were traitors to the cause, but their conduct only made Florence the firmer in her determination. Fate knows when to mind her own business and when to interfere with that of others. In this case she held off for a couple of weeks. Miss Florence went out crabbing by herself. She planned to be by herself so as to snub the intruder if he came within ten rods of her.

It is useless to speculate on how a girl and a boat get upset on bay, lake or river. They do, and that's all there is about it. Florence was after the biggest crab of the century when she suddenly found herself sinking down to a watery grave. She didn't know when the intruder came rushing down in his skiff and leaped overboard to her rescue. She didn't know when she was carried ashore and up to the Joneses' house. When she did recover she heard sobs and sighs all around her, and as she tried to sit up she heard Molly exclaim:

"Oh, goody, goody! She will live! He has saved her life!"

"And if she doesn't marry him she's an ungrateful wretch!" added Edith. "Why, we've known for two whole days that he was a son of Senator Blake and one of the nicest young men in the world!"

LONDON

Job Still Open.

The proprietor of a London restaurant advertised for a cook. The first to apply for the berth appeared to be in every way suitable. But before engaging him the restaurant keeper inquired if he could give him a tip for the 2:30 race.

The cook's eyes brightened. He whispered a "dead cert." and mentioned that he had 5 shillings on the horse himself. That was enough. The proprietor gave him a lecture on the evils of betting and showed him the door. As he went out he saw another man about to enter.

"Are you going to apply for the job?" he asked. "Well, if you are asked if you know anything about racing, say you can't tell a Derby winner from a coster's donkey."

The man took the advice, was engaged and commenced his duties. Presently the proprietor rushed to the speaking tube and yelled to the new cook:

"Calf's head one."

Instantly the reply came:

"Did he, by George? What was second and third?"

The Chinese Waiter.

The chief glory of an average Chinese inn is the waiter. This indispensable functionary is the guardian of all your interests for the time being, and when you are not looking he dives into secrets and matters of your own that seem to amuse and enlighten him to your inconvenience and annoyance. Like his confreres in other and more enlightened countries, he hardly ever separates himself from the inevitable napkin, but his badge of waitership is a very practical article with him. With it in summer he mops his damp brow or bare shoulders, while in winter, wrapped about his head, it protects him from rain and wind. The Chinese waiter's napkin is put to all kinds of uses besides those just mentioned. It is used as a dishcloth, a mop with which to wipe the floor, a cloth for cleaning and wiping down tables and a duster. But Chinese landlords are very reasonable in their charges, which in a measure compensate for the inconveniences of living in their inns.

LAST OF THE PASCAGOULAS

An Indian Legend From the Shores of the Gulf of Mexico.

An Indian legend of the Pascagoulas is told by the fishermen and oystermen down on the shores of the gulf of Mexico.

A point reaches out into the gulf near the mouth of the Pascagoula river. The pine trees on it come almost to the water's edge, and between lies a strip of white sand; across a marsh, a border of light green swaying and rustling grasses and beyond a gray cypress swamp the hanging moss of the trees swaying in the wind. To the south the blue waters of the gulf stretch away, with little waves lapping on the chalk white clam shells of the shore.

There in the evening during the short twilight one hears soft music, as if it were the notes of a violin, insistent, changing, sweet. It is the song of the Pascagoulas.

Long years before the Pascagoula Indians had lived upon this point. The white men, 'the Spaniards, came in numbers, and with them the hostile warriors of other tribes, to make war and to drive the Pascagoulas out of the country. Coming from the inland, the enemy took away all chance of flight and hedged them in on the point. The Pascagoulas fought for days and nights in the dark pine woods against outnumbering foes. Then they saw that all was useless, that they could not overcome, and starvation stared them in the face.

The Pascagoulas called a council of the tribe and talked long together. To give themselves up meant lives of slavery or death, and to fight to the last man was to leave the women and children to the mercy of the white men and their allies.

The next morning the Pascagoulas put on all their paint and trappings and burned their wigwams. The men, women and children slowly, deliberately, unflinchingly backed step by step into the water behind them, singing. Not one faltered. They died with their faces toward their enemies, brave and free, and now in the evening when the wind blows over the marshes the pines and grasses sing the song of the Pascagoulas.

THE LAND OF WORSHIP.

The East Believes Too Utterly to Care if Others Disbelieve.

Prayer pervades the east. Far off across the sands when one is traveling in the desert one sees thin minarets rising toward the sky. A desert city is there. It signals its presence by this mute appeal to Allah. And where there are no minarets in the great wastes of the dunes, in the eternal silence, the lifelessness that is not broken even by any lonely, wandering bird, the camels are stopped at the appointed hours, the poor and often ragged robes are laid down and the brown pilgrims prostrate themselves in prayer. And the rich man spreads his carpet and prays, and the half naked nomad spreads nothing, but he prays too.

The east is full of lust and full of money getting and full of bartering and full of violence, but it is full of worship—of worship that disdains concealment, that recks not of ridicule or comment, that believes too utterly to care if others disbelieve. There are in the east many men who do not pray. They do not laugh at the man who does, like the unpraying Christian. There is nothing ludicrous in prayer. In Egypt your Nubian sailor prays in the stern of your dahabiyeh, and your Egyptian boatman prays by the rudder of your boat, and your black donkey boy prays behind a red rock in the sand, and your camel man prays when you are resting in the noontide watching the faroff, quivering mirage, lost in some wayward dream.

And must you not pray, too, when you enter certain temples where once strange gods were worshiped in whom no man now believes?—Robert Hichens in Century.

Scared by Frogs.

It is said to be owed to the frogs of western Australia that that part of the empire is English and not French. About 1800 a party of prospective French colonists landed on the west coast of Australia, but on the first morning they were alarmed by the loud croaking of the frogs, which they took for demons, and retired with all speed to their ships. Western Australia might have preferred the frog to the swan as her emblem, just as Rome might have preferred, instead of the eagle, the goose that saved the capital.

A TRAIN WAS DERAILED YESTERDAY

Seven Are Injured in G. T. R. Wreck Near Allandale.

REAR TRUCK LEAVES TRACK

Meaford Mixed Is Thrown Off Track and Three Cars Topple Over—Occupants of Last Car Are Only Passengers Injured — Seventy-Five Year-Old Lady Has Leg Broken—Crew Is Not to Blame.

Barrie, Oct. 16.—News was flashed through this town about 2 p.m. yesterday of what was believed to be a very serious accident. The word was that all local doctors had been summoned to the scene of the accident.

Fortunately, the accident had not resulted fatally in any case, though some six or seven were somewhat seriously injured, the most serious being:

Mrs. Wilson, leg broken.

Miss Hotson of Parkhill, arm broken.

Mrs. John Potts of Collingwood, ankle hurt.

Percy Hermant of 159 Wilton avenue, Toronto, head hurt.

Drs. Ross and Arnalf attended to their injuries.

The Meaford mixed train, running at the rate of 25 miles an hour, left the track just half a mile north of Allandale, due to the rear truck of the last coach being derailed.

The three coaches went over on their sides, but the occupants of the rear coach, however, were the only ones to suffer seriously.

No blame is attached to the crew in charge and none were injured except Baggageman Gagnon, who was badly shaken up.

Mrs. Wilson is 75 years old and has three times before suffered a broken leg. She was on her way to Toronto to assist her son, Johnston Wilson.

GIRLS ARE BURNED.

One Is Dead, One Fatally Injured on Barge Near Quebec.

Quebec, Oct. 16.—An accident occurred on board one of the barges moored at Archer's wharf in the Louise Basin, in which a mother and her two young daughters were so severely burned that the elder of the children, aged three years, has expired, while the other child, aged two years, is not expected to recover.

The barge is owned by Edmond Paquet, of Champlain, N.Y., who was ashore. While playing the children spilled coal oil on their clothes, which in some manner became ignited. The frantic mother in her efforts to save her children was herself burned.

May Have Been Murdered.

Medicine Hat, Alta., Oct. 16.—Great anxiety is expressed by John S. Lehr of Josephsburg concerning the possible fate which may have befallen his son, John, aged 18, who disappeared on Sept. 24.

Sinister rumors are afloat and the whole district is in a state of unrest. Blood clots have been found beside a neighboring fence and examination of horses and cattle in field showed that none had been injured.

The lad was known to be following up a clue discovered in connection with an incendiary fire which recently destroyed the Lehr dwelling, and which brought "The Dreamers" so prominently before the public.

Shoe Strike Ends.

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 16.—The lasters, whose strike in this city began two weeks ago and resulted in a practical tie-up of the shoe industry of this city, throwing out of employment about 15,000 men, met yesterday to accept the agreement of the Manufacturers' Association, whereby they return to work under the old conditions.

PREMIER ADDRESSES 1,500.

Sir Wilfrid Gets Big Ovation in St. Clet, Que.

Montreal, Oct. 16.—Over 3,000 electors of the two counties of Soulanges and Vaudreuil were present at the meeting which was held at St. Clet yesterday afternoon in the honor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. So soon as the special train arrived from Montreal at 2 o'clock and Sir Wilfrid made his appearance he was the object of a demonstration on the part of the large crowd which assembled to accompany the Prime Minister to the meeting place. A military band led the procession and played national airs. Near the Central Hotel some enthusiastic young men unharnessed the horses of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's carriage and took their places. The meeting was held in front of the parish church. The stands of St. Clet were well decorated with flags, banners and inscriptions.

Addresses were delivered by Mr. Bourbonnais and Mr. Gustave Boyer, candidate for Vaudreuil.

TO BREAK FROM CHURCH.

Queen's University Trustees Recommend Non-sectarianism.

Kingston, Oct. 16.—Queen's University trustees decided to recommend to the Presbyterian general assembly that it was better to release the university from its denominational ties. Besides recommending the senate memorial for consideration, the trustees passed the following resolution by a vote of 16 to 3:

"The trustees beg to express their opinion that the altered conditions with which the university has had to deal in these latter times call for the removal of the denominational disabilities in the charter of the university."

The trustees relieved Principal Gordon of professional duties so that he might give his whole attention to his work as head of the university.

M.P. CAUSED RIOT.

English Socialist Member Told Men to "Rush" Bakery Shops.

London, Oct. 16.—The recent demonstration by the unemployed in Great Britain brought about one result yesterday rather out of the ordinary; this was the issuing of a writ against William J. Thorne, Social Democratic member of Parliament from the southern division of West Ham, for inciting to a breach of the peace by making a speech in which he advised the unemployed to "rush" the baker shops rather than starve.

A body of the unemployed is marching from Nottingham to London. Serious riots was avoided in Sheffield on Wednesday only when the mayor announced that the sum of $500,000 would be devoted to relief work.

Jury to Be Locked Up.

New York, Oct. 16.—The first day of the trial of Chas. W. Morse, the banker and promoter who came to grief in the financial panic of last year, and Alfred H. Curtis, former president of the National Bank of North America, which began yesterday before Judge Hough and a federal jury, developed a surprise, when it was brought out that the jury will be locked up each night, and will also be closely watched during the trial by secret service men. Witnesses will also be shadowed. The defence lawyers objected strongly.

Katherine Wilson, Morse's secretary, it was brought out, had full power of attorney to handle his accounts.

Two Guilty.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 16.—The Seighiano murder trial ended yesterday afternoon when the jury brought in a verdict of manslaughter against the prisoner, Achilo Seighiano. Justice Latchford postponed sentence until later.

Yesterday afternoon Tony Mackie, a Finn from Michipicoten, was tried on a murder charge in connection with the death of Isaac Searl, at Grace Mine, last summer, and the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter. The judge deferred sentence until to-day.

Old Man's Gruesome Find.

St. Catharines, Oct. 16.—An old man named Murray walked into the police station yesterday morning and deposited a basket containing a woman's full arm. Murray asked that the basket be guarded while he endeavored to sell an old rifle which he had in his possession.

Murray is slightly demented. He says he found the arm in the mountain, near St. Davids.

Unwritten Law Fails.

Independence, Kas., Oct. 16.—A jury in the case of Henry Behner, charged with the killing of Tobias Sawyer, whom he suspected of ruining his daughter, returned a verdict here yesterday of guilty of murder in the first degree.

This carries with it a life sentence.

The girl, who was 16 years old, had worked as a servant in Sawyer's home.

Dry in Ottawa Valley.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—Farmers in the Ottawa Valley district are being put in great straits owing to lack of water. In the lower Ottawa Valley, practically all the wells have dried up, and the farmers are taking turns in drawing water from the river.

During September practically no rain fell, and there has been only one wet day in October.

Drops Dead at Meeting.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—One of C. R. Devlin's meetings in Hull terminated suddenly Wednesday night. Charles Morion, a well-known Liberal, who was clapping his hands, fell forward dead. Heart disease owing to excitement was the cause.

Belgium Police Raid Gamesters.

Spa, Belgium, Oct. 16.—In accordance with the Government's anti-gambling campaign, the police raided the International Club, where many people were engaged in playing roulette and baccarat, and seized the stakes.

Rates Will Come Down.

WILL DEVOTE LIFE TO IT

William Martin, Jr., Former Tax Collector Pleads Guilty to Defalcations Amounting to $22,000 and Asks For Suspended Sentence on Condition That He Makes Full Restitution to the Town.

North Bay, Oct. 16.—That Wm. Martin, Jr., former tax collector for the town, and accused of embezzling some $20,000 of the town funds, should be set free to continue in his efforts at restitution, was the plea made yesterday by his counsel, Wm. White of Pembroke. The crown counsel did not object. Justice Britton reserved judgment.

Mr. White after entering a plea of guilty asked for suspension of sentence. Martin, he said, would devote his life and energy toward repayment.

Counsel pointed out the many offices held by accused for year, entailing the handling of large sums of money, creating conditions wherein he might easily become involved unknowingly. All the property of the accused, of his father and of his wife has been turned over to the town and the town council is not anxious to send him to prison. No injury, he said, would result to anyone and the ends of justice would be fully served by leniency, which would restore the accused to his wife and family and enable him to clear his reputation by restitution.

Martin was tax collector while his father was town treasurer, but the son transacted the business of both offices, in addition to being police magistrate and conducting an extensive insurance business and other interests. In May Hardy and Hammond, auditors, reported a shortage to the town of over $20,000 and the accused entered into an agreement to satisfy the deficiency. The agreement not being carried out in its entirety in the time specified, criminal action was begun, and shortly after the balance of the securities specified were furnished by the accused.

Beats Servant Girl.

New York, Oct. 16.—"Al" Reeves, a comedian and burlesque show manager, was arrested in Brooklyn on Wednesday for assaulting a servant. "It is awfully humiliating," said Mr. Reeves, "to be locked up for licking a servant girl. If it had been for robbery or murder, or something like that, I wouldn't have minded half so much."

Mary Kenny told Magistrate Tighe, in the Adams street court that the comedian threw her downstairs and kicked her because she asked to be reimbursed for certain advertising expenses.

Before Reeves went on the road with his show, the girl was told to take good care of his dog. A week ago the pup disappeared. In despair Mary advertised and a boy brought back the animal. She parted with a $5 bill as the finder's reward.

Seizure Rights In Danger.

Montreal, Oct. 16.—Litigation in which Montreal is concerned threatens to upset the right of a city or town in Canada to make a seizure of goods for taxes. Mr. Charles Gaudet has secured an order from the court to force the Attorney-General of the province to defend the constitutionality of the city charter, which is a provincial statute, claiming that the magna charta under which the constitution is laid, gives the citizens a right to a trial before the seizure of goods is made. The principle will apply to other Canadian provinces.

Convinces Jury He's Not Insane.

New York, Oct. 16.—So eloquent was Elias L. Rossin, once a teacher in the public schools here, when he addressed the jury yesterday in his own behalf against a charge of insanity, that they not only rendered the verdict in his favor, but many of them pressed their cards upon him and invited him to call.

Rossin declared he was the victim of various relatives who, he said, wanted to get possession of his property, which amounts to about $1,000.

$500,000 Fire In Arizona.

Bisbee, Ariz., Oct. 16.—Fire Wednesday night destroyed property valued at a half million dollars. Dynamite was used to check the flames. A number of business houses on Main street, as well as residences on Castle and Clameon Hills, were wiped out. Several persons were injured by the explosion of dynamite, but none was fatally hurt.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 16.—The students of the University of St. Petersburg met yesterday to discuss the continuation of the strike they have embarked on because of alleged impositions by the Ministry of Education, but the gathering broke up in a free fight between the opposing factions. Clubs and canes were used freely and many heads were broken.

Jumped Off Train.

Preston, Oct. 16.—James Neilson, a young married man, boarded a C.P.R. freight train coming up the line from Dundalk. This was a through freight, however, and passed Preston at the rate of 35 miles per hour. Neilson jumped off, falling upon his head, terribly crushing it. Dr. McWilliam removed a stone as large as an egg from his skull.

Curwood to Safe.

Port Arthur, Oct. 16.—The report that Curwood, the Detroit magazine writer, who was stated to have gone to Hudson Bay, was killed by Indians, is without foundation. He is on the Duluth Extension Railway and is well.

Endows Tuberculosis Dispensary.

Montreal, Oct. 16.—Lt.-Col. Jeffrey Burland has given the sum of $50,000 to erect a dispensary here for tuberculosis in the Province of Quebec.

PETERBOROUGH FRIDAY OCTOBER 16 1908

THE STRATTON SWING OF VICTORY

STRATTON'S FIRST CITY MEETING A SPLENDID SUCCESS; OPERA HOUSE PACKED BY PETERBOROUGH ELECTORS; GOOD ADDRESSES WERE ENTHUSIASTICALLY RECEIVED

Speeches by Hon. Messrs. Cox and Stratton, and Messrs. McFarlane, Hall and D. O'Connell.

Labour Interests—Fruits of Good Government—Slander Campaign and Local Interests Dealt With.

The magnificent campaign meeting, held in the interest of Hon. Mr. Stratton in the Grand Opera House last night, gave a fresh impulse to the swing of victory that began, continues and grows, in the country campaign. The Grand Opera House was packed with a large and intelligent audience which, by its intelligent attention and discriminating applause, showed that it took the occasion seriously, and had assembled to listen to the discussion of questions upon which hinged the tremendous interests involved in the good government of this great and growing country. The presence of a large number of ladies in the boxes and galleries, added colour and interest to the occasion.

Upon the platform were seated the chairman, Mr. J. J. Hartley, Hon. G. A. Cox, Hon. J. R. Stratton, Messrs. R. R. Hall, ex-M. P., A. McFarlane, D. O'Connell, and G. M. Roger.

At the postscenium of the stage were placed the significant mottoes:

"The Land for the Settler; the Settler for the Land."

"Build up Peterborough by Electing a Business Builder."

And in front of the box balustrades, the following:

"Stratton, Peterborough's Best Friend."

"Watch Canada Grow under Liberal Rule."

"For Greater Canada: Laurier and Stratton."

"Five More Years of Good Government."

The speeches delivered on the occasion were on a high plane, and confined to the discussion of public questions. Necessarily a splendid tone of optimism prevailed in rehearsing the story of magnificent progress made by Canada, and the hope of advance that a continuation of Liberal rule would bring. Mr. Andrew Macfarlane dealt with the relations of the Liberal Government to the interests of Labour, showing how through eighteen long years of Conservative rule their rights had been denied and how the Liberal Government had in twelve years placed upon the statute books of the Dominion, all the legislation, and performed all the administrative acts which contributed to the welfare of Labour. Mr. Hall's speech was devoted to a splendid review of what the Liberal Government had accomplished in the material up-building of Canada and the creation of conditions that made prosperity and growth inevitable. Mr. O'Connell dealt in a most effective manner with the slander campaign being carried on by the Conservative orators and journals. Mr. Stratton's reception was most enthusiastic, the vast audience greeting him with ringing cheers, the band playing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," a reception that showed that he had lost none of the old time popularity that had carried him to victory in half-a-dozen election campaigns. He dealt effectively with the personal crusade of personal attack made against him, showing how unwarranted was its character, and the ringing cheers that were given his statements showed that the thinking electors of Peterborough resented the foul assaults of slander that had been directed against him. The rounds of applause that greeted the conclusion of his address, indicated that the large representation of electors in the audience, were solidly behind him. Hon. Mr. Cox, in the course of a brief but most effective address, expressed his hearty endorsation of Mr. Stratton's candidature, and demonstrated how essential it was to the proper promotion of the solid interests of Peterborough, and West Peterborough, that the electors should send as their representative, a supporter in the capable person of Hon. Mr. Stratton, of a Government which had done so much for Peterborough, and the county at large, and whose programme of administration emphatically assured a continuance of the capable, energetic and fruitful administration the country had flourished under for the past twelve years.

Mr. Hartley, chairman, in a few fitting remarks, introduced the first speaker, Mr. A. MacFarlane.

Mr. Andrew McFarlane, said he would ask the attention of the audience for a brief time to what labour owed to the parties now before them, claiming its support. They knew that up to 1896, they who toiled had received scant attention from the government. We have heard of the man who asked for bread and got a stone, but the Conservative Government was even worse; instead of a stone labour had been given a scorpion. In all the years while it was in the power of a Conservative administration to do something for the cause of the toilers, all they had ever done was the enactment of one law, that enabled the worker to have one day in the year a holiday, at his own expense, none daring to make him afraid. (Laughter). When the present Government had come into power, they had found that labour had been wrongfully treated; that the soldiers of the Queen were being supplied with clothing on which the poor seamstresses toiled at the rate of 2½ cents an hour. The Government decreed that this should not be. They had appointed a commission to investigate conditions and Mackenzie King had reported such a state of affairs that Sir Wilfrid Laurier said a change must be made. And as a consequence they had laws enacted for a fair day's work, which was in force now and would rule the future relations of capital and labour. And the Government had further made provision by laws enacted in 1903 looking to the safety of the employees on our great railway systems, under which railway managers were required to provide all the modern automatic couplings, air-brakes, and other security for the life and the limb of the employee. And recognizing the importance of retaining harmonious relations between capital and labour they had organized the conciliation board, to intervene in case of disputes, on behalf of the public. And as the result, no less than 42 labour difficulties had been settled, within the last few years, involving a great saving to the toilers, involving a great saving to the toilers, a great saving to the interested capitalist, and at the same time conserving the interests of the public that might be disastrously affected by a rupture between these two great elements of our prosperity. Now, they had before them two candidates between whom they had to make their choice. Not long ago, in that hall Mr. Burnham had advanced as a reason why he should be elected to represent them, that he had had the handling of trust estates amounting to $100,000; but when they came to reflect that his connection with that particular kind of business enterprise was confined to drawing interest and making disbursements, it did not appeal to them as tending to place Ham. Burnham on a pedestal as a captain of industry. Then they had been told that two workingmen had known Ham. Burnham all his life, and that he was a good little boy. And the Conservative candidate had also told them at the Opera House, that if these were not credentials enough, he had been "writing" for the benefit of working people. But the workingmen failed to see how or where Mr. Burnham was entitled to their support in Peterborough. They recognized that in spite of his advantages and opportunities, Mr. Burnham had never used one dollar of his wealth in any way to benefit the people who worked, or to advance the material interests of Peterborough. He had never in his life done anything to give a labouring man of Peterborough a day's work. Now, they knew Mr. Stratton from a different point of view. Lots of them could recall when thirty-five years ago, he had started business as a poor boy, on a small weekly paper, and they had seen him develop this business into the daily paper they at present enjoyed, that would do credit to any city in Canada. They had seen the young boy publisher of their recollection at first overthrowing the Goliath of the Conservative party, Mr. Carnegie, and afterward rising step by step in the respect and confidence of the people till he became a member of the Government of the province. How useful to the county and the city had been his services they all knew, and they knew also that he had never been spoiled by any accidents of fortune, but in great positions was just the same to the humblest man in Peterborough as he had always been, ever ready to take an honest man by the hand, and if it was in his power, to help him forward. And he felt sure that the people of Peterborough appreciated Mr. Stratton at his true worth and realized his ability to promote their welfare and that on October 26, he would head the polls by a very large majority, and that his opponent, Mr. Burnham, would be left, "writing, writing." (Applause). They would put into Parliament a doer and not a dreamer, and a man who would give respect to Peterborough abroad, and know how to promote its interests at home. (Applause).

was the next speaker, and in opening expressed the regret he had experienced when he realized that inexorable business affairs had prevented him from appearing before them again as a candidate, for the position which he had endeavoured to fill to the best of his ability. He was pleased to see so very large and representative a meeting of the voters of Peterborough—a gathering that had not been excelled, even by the great "attractions" that had recently been brought in to excite their curiosity, but which had left no lasting impression upon their minds. It was a double pleasure to him to be able to appear before them in support of their old and well-tried representative, Hon. J. R. Stratton. (Cheers). That gentleman had represented them for a period of upwards of twenty years, and in that time he had made, as they knew, a splendid showing in their behalf. He was glad to know that his place had been taken by a man who was going to be a winner (applause), and who would give an able and a creditable representation to West Peterborough in the House of Commons. (Cheers). Their old familiar and popular friend who had represented them so long and so well in the Legislature and in the Government of the province, and was going to Ottawa on their behalf to do greater things for them in a larger sphere of influence. (Applause). Now, let this great audience, those men who were old enough to recall the conditions that oppressed this county and this province in 1896. He need not tell them—they knew—that their property was a drug on the market; farms were being sold under mortgages and the stagnation of business was such that farms offered for sale under mortgage could not find purchasers, the farmers were not receiving the revenue that their industry entitled them to. And they had an equally

TWO YOUTHS ARE MISSING FROM HOME

The disappearance of Leslie Gurney and Walter Irwin from their homes on George and Antrim streets respectively, has caused much anxiety to their mothers. They left, as usual, yesterday after dinner for school, but they neither arrived there nor have they been home since. Both boys were of a timid nature and afraid to be alone at night, and it is feared that they have met with some misshance. Their parents would be pleased for any news regarding their whereabouts.

FEW, IF ANY, HAVE DEMANDED TICKETS FOR WEIGHT OF COAL

When the by-law was passed by the council giving householders the right to demand of coal dealers the tickets from the market clerk showing the exact weight of each load as weighed on the market scales, it was thought that occasionally there would be some to take advantage of it. This, however, does not appear to have been the result. On enquiry this morning at the market Mr. George Ball stated that as far as he knew few, if any, demands have been made. The explanation may be that the people place implicit trust in the coal dealers, and when they are informed that the last load has been delivered they feel that they have received full value for their money. It may be, on the other hand, that they are not aware of the by-law being on the books.

MAN KILLED ON C.P.R. TRACK AT HAVELOCK THIS AFTERNOON

Coroner Gray received word this afternoon from Reeve Thompson of Havelock that Thomas Smith was killed this afternoon on the C.P.R. tracks by being run over by a train. Smith returned from Cobalt a few days ago. He is supposed to have lain down on the track and thus met his death. A wife and three children survive him.

After learning the nature of the case Coroner Gray decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

CORNER STONE OF NEW BAPTIST CHURCH TO BE LAID TO-MORROW

To-morrow afternoon the corner-stone of the Park Street Baptist Church will be laid. The ceremony will be performed by the Hon. J. R. Stratton. The new church will be erected on Park street, and, according to the plans, it will be a handsome structure.

THE SUPPLY OF MARL FOR CEMENT WORKS MEETS THE DEMAND

The opening up of a marble bed near Drummond's Station to be used by the Lakefield Cement Company in the manufacture of their article has proved of great service to the company. Before the Lily Lake supply ran out there was some uneasiness about the future until this place was found, and now two trainloads a day are being taken to Lakefield. It is moreover stated that the supply is practically limitless.

ST. LUKE'S DAY WILL BE OBSERVED IN THE CITY

Day Set Apart for Work Among the Sunday Schools.

The Archbishops and Bishops of the Church of England in Canada have appointed next Sunday, Oct. 18, St. Luke's Day, to be observed as a day of intercession for the work in the Sunday Schools. This day will be duly observed by the local Anglican Churches on Sunday next. Special sermons will be preached referring to Sunday School work, and special prayers will be introduced into the Litany.

The "Mysterious Mr. E." Still Uncaught; Had Several Close Calls In His Travels Yesterday

HON. SENATOR COX'S STRIKING COMPARISON

"I have been discussing matters of public import day in and day out in Ottawa. I know both sides of the House, and I know that there is no more comparison whatever between the party in power and the party who desire to take up the reins of office, than there is between Mr. Stratton and Mr. Burnham. I am not here to say one disrespectful word of Mr. Borden or of Mr. Burnham, but I do say that Mr. Wilfrid Laurier and his Government will do more to advance the interests of Canada than those gentlemen who seek to take their place, and I earnestly hope that you will do yourselves the honour and privilege of sending to Ottawa a man whom you know will look after the interests of Peterborough."—Hon. Senator Cox.

THE PECULIAR FEAT OF A WILD CANARY ON STEWART STREET

If anyone in Peterborough is mourning a missing canary they can obtain the same by applying at 283 Stewart street. This morning a wild canary that had evidently been tamed, lighted on the cage of a pet canary, belonging to the residents at the above-named address, and sought admission. The door of the cage was opened for him and he promptly flew in, and is now enjoying himself, seated on the perch, whilst the lawful owner of the cage sits hunched up disconsolately in the corner.

With excitement in the air after the Examiner's Mysterious "Mr. E" so intense that people are absolutely grabbing everybody, primarily they resemble the missing man's photographs or not, we have decided to publish a full description of the man all Peterborough is looking for. Above you will find an exact description of his general characteristics. Study them carefully, then study the photos in Harris's windows more carefully and you will have a grand chance of being the lucky capitor. Remember this is the second last night of the contest, and the Mysterious "Mr. E" proposes taking the most daring kind of chances from now out. We don't care when he is caught, mind. L. Hayden O'Donnell and George Felix Green don't care, neither does "Mr. E." He expects to be caught at any moment, as he is taking the highest kind of a risk keeping away from shaved head Scotland Yarders.

Ten Year Old Girl Gets Chocolates From Prominent Merchants By Working An Easy Game On Them

Mischievousness in children shows itself in many ways, but it has remained for a little ten-year-old girl to play a game on three of the prominent George street grocers and carry it out successfully. She would enter a store and, in a manner that aroused no suspicion, would give an order for a list of groceries which she would ask to be sent to a certain house. The grocers would deliver the goods, only to have these particular householders blankly disclaim having sent for the goods. At one store one of the articles was a box of chocolates, which she took with her and enjoyed as she walked down the main street.

At Hunter's Store

An Examiner reporter called at Mr. Robt. Hunter's grocery, next to Clark's jewellery shop at the corner of Brock and George street. The little girl had called yesterday morning, and from her general appearance the proprietor considered that she had received good home training. She was neatly dressed, and her manner was such that Mr. Hunter did not question the validity of the order. She would be about 10 or 12 years of age, and was quite bright looking.

Ordered Best Goods

Probably she imagined she was playing store, and the sand had become real sugar, the pebbles in the bottle of water were genuine olives, and the other "make-believe" stock had been transformed into actual goods.

"I want twenty-five cents' worth of best onions, please," she said first. "Have you got Red Rose tea? Well, a forty-cent package will do. I also want a bottle of mixed pickles. Yes, a nice bottle, please, and also a 25c. cent bottle of olives."

This is the way she gave the order, asking for nearly a dozen articles. A box of Fry's chocolates was included. She was anxious to have them delivered to Mr. J. Lundy's residence, 338 Aylmer street. Mr. Hunter explained that he could not possibly send them until the afternoon. The girl calmly stated that she would take the chocolates with her. She gave her name as Linda Lundy. Mr. Hunter, of course, learned that no order had been given by any of the Lundy family, and they were brought back to the store.

Other Grocers

Last week the girl left an order at both the upper and lower stores of Mr. Mason. Grapes, peaches and other luxuries were on the bills. Mr.

Girl and Groceries

Dutton was also paid a visit and likewise found the order a fake. In these two cases the girl had the groceries sent to 451 Stewart street, Mr. Vansant's residence.

She returned to Mr. Dutton's store yesterday and ordered a basket of grapes and a pound of figs. She was going out of the door with the latter parcel when a young clerk called out that she had given the fake order of a week ago. She was called back and on demand returned the figs.

The proprietors were much annoyed by the trouble the girl caused and expressed the opinion that her talents should be developed along better lines. Her identity is known to the grocers and she will not likely bother them again.

Was Charged With Practising Medicine Without Being Registered

Two charges were heard against Mrs. Haines, Antrim street, at the police court this morning, to the effect that she had practised medicine and mid-wifery without being a registered physician. The charges were instituted by Mr. Rose, of the Ontario Medical Council, and the prosecution was conducted by Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, while Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for the defendant.

In the first charge Mrs. Daniel Crough, of Emmamore, gave evidence to the effect that she had been suffering from inflammatory rheumatism, and on the advice of a doctor had decided to secure a nurse. It was found impossible to get one to stay in the house, but Mrs. Haines had consented to come when she could, and had massaged her and had administered some pills.

Mr. Crough gave similar evidence and stated that Mrs. Haines had been paid $20 for six visits.

The magistrate reserved judgment until Friday or next week.

In the second charge of practising mid-wifery judgment was also reserved, after evidence had been given by several witnesses.

LIBERAL MAJORITY SURE.

The poor, dear Review has this motto extending across the head of its front page. "The Conservatives will give the Dominion Honest Government." There's just as much chance of their giving the Dominion "honest government" as of their giving it any kind of government. And of this there is no chance at all. There's a certainty that the Liberal Government will be returned to power. The electors will sweep away the "refuge of lies," upon which the Opposition campaign is founded. The Toronto World by a calculation as wonderful as these by which the average Conservative scandal is worked out, comes to the result that the Conservatives will win in the Dominion by a majority of 6. This is only about 66 out. The result will be at least 60 the other way—the Liberal majority in the coming election. If the Conservatives were as optimistic in regard to the resources and future of Canada they would stand a much better chance to realise the optimistic views they profess to take of the outcome of the present contest.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY.

The Liberal Government having devised an economical way of introducing rural mail delivery—a plan that is cheap because it is an adaptation of existing mail routes to rural mail delivery and announced that it would be promptly supplied — the Conservative campaigners said it was only electioneering clap-trap, a device to catch votes. The Government that does things quickly dispelled this idea, by providing for an immediate introduction of the system, and is going ahead installing the system as rapidly as possible; as rapidly as if there was no election contest, and over a wide area of Canada the system will be in operation, and in hundreds of cases rural mail delivery will carry to the homes of the farmers the news of the triumphant return of the Liberal Government to power on October 26th.

An Ottawa despatch says that the Post Office Department is busily engaged in sending out mail boxes for installation along a large number of rural mail delivery routes now being established in all the Provinces of Canada; and within a few days mail will be delivered to farmers in over forty different counties, from Halifax to Vancouver.

In addition to the rural mail delivery route established last week between Hamilton and Ancaster the following routes are now being organised, and will be in operation shortly: Brighton and Campbellford, Kemptville and Merrickville, Berlin and Cross Hill, Newmarket and Sutton, Guelph and Erin, Peebles and Woodstock, Orangeville and Camilla, Chicoutimi and Saguenay (Quebec), Cotswold and Palmerston via Teviotdale, Picton and Solmesville, Woburn and Scarboro' Junction, Port Hope and Bewdley, Cobourg and Harwood. Simcoe and Waterford, Owen Sound and Balaclava, Cobourg and Roseneath, Grafton and Centreton, Aultsville and Bush Glen, Rosensol and Highland Park (Alberta), Strathcona and Agricola (Alberta), Otter Point and Victoria (British Columbia), Charlottetown and Cherry Valley (Prince Edward Island). (Also several other routes in Saskatchewan, Manitoba, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

WON'T GET THE JOB.

The job of governing Canada is now open to tender. When tenders were invited for works on the Panama Canal by the United States Government, the lowest tender was often rejected because the tenderers had not a good record on previous contracts that had been entrusted to them. Their record was bad—in the "classy" language of the street, they had "fallen down on their job."

The two parties now tendering on the job of governing Canada are the Liberal Government and the Conservative Opposition. The tender of the Opposition is the "lower"—if grammar permitted, the "lowest"—if we judge from the campaign of scandal they are waging.

But, in spite of their tender being the "lowest" ever known in the history of Canada, the people won't award them the contract. Their record is bad—they "fell down on their job," the 1878-1896 contract. This idea doesn't need much elaboration. The open-eyed elector will easily see the point.

MORE CONDEMNATION FOR MR. BURNHAM.

Mr. Burnham in the opening speech of his campaign at Bennfort gloated over the fact as he declared it, that Canada's borrowing credit was exhausted in Great Britain and illustrated his claim by the false statement to the effect that the last Canadian loan was a failure. The Examiner showed that this was a flat misstatement. A further disproof of the unwarranted character of Mr. Burnham's unpatriotic libel of Canadian credit is the loan floated a few days ago by Hon. Mr. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer of Ontario. He effected a loan through the Bank of Montreal, in the form of treasury notes of $800,000 at the exceedingly favourable rate of 3 1-4 per cent. And this, in spite of the fact that the money market on account of the unsettled state of affairs in the East, was somewhat panicky, and nothing but gilt edge securities would command attention. How preposterous and childish it is for Mr. Burnham to talk like an ill-informed and petulant school boy, of what he doesn't know, but should know, if he aspires to receive the confidence of the people.

ONE OF THE SCANDALS.

Mr. Glen Campbell is the Conservative candidate in Dauphin, Manitoba, and thereby hangs a tale. Our readers are aware of the Conservative efforts to represent the Liberal dealing with timber and lands as a prolonged carnival of corruption. Hon. Frank Oliver recently addressed a meeting at Dauphin, and related how in the old days of Conservative rule 628 square miles of timber were granted to Conservative politicians and favourites for which not one cent of bonus had ever been paid. It is interesting to note that among the Conservative "looters" whose names were disclosed by Mr. Oliver is Mr. Glen Campbell, the Conservative candidate in Dauphin, who in his speech of acceptance of the nomination had to admit that, as disclosed by Mr. Oliver, he, Mr. Campbell, is one of the chief owners of the Brown, Bedingfield & Co., closed leases of 55,747 acres. He defended the lease as a proper business transaction.

It is not our purpose here to inquire into the propriety of this timber limit lease. Let it stand. What we wish to point out is that this very lease forms the basis of one—if not the biggest—of the timber limit scandals to which the scandal-mongers are devoting so much attention. If the reader will turn to the Conservative campaign book entitled "Facts For the Electors," he will find that Glen Campbell's lease occupies the "place of honour," standing first in the list under the heading: "Looters of the Public Domain." It was a leading feature of Mr. Ames' "peep-show," and Mr. Ames was wont to introduce it with a dramatic demand for "restitution."

This is an illustration of how the unscrupulous Conservative campaigners manufacture scandal ammunition and it does not stand alone.—Hamilton Times.

PERSISTENT MISLEADING.

The Mail and Empire is without proper regard for truth and fair play. In face of contradictory facts its columns yesterday contained the following:—

"G. E. Mayes offered to dredge the harbour of St. John for 50 cents a yard. The Laurier Government gave him a contract at 55 cents after he had agreed to pay the extra 5 cents per yard to George McAvity. He has since paid to George McAvity, out of the money he has received, the sum of $35,953."

The fact is that Mayes got the contract because his was the lowest of two tenders, the other being that of Haney & Miller, of Toronto, who tendered $1.00 per yard, while Mayes' tender was 55 cents. Mayes associated McAvity with him in the work and under an agreement the profits were divided. The Mail and Empire asserts or insinuates in the above paragraph that Mayes offered to do the dredging at 50 cents per yard, and that the Government forced 55 cents upon him. This is entirely untrue. Mayes put in two tenders, in the first he offered to dredge earth at 49 cents and rock at $8.90, and Haney & Miller wanted $1.25 for earth and $3.50 for rock. As there was very little rock Mayes' tender was much the lower of the two. But it was found that Mayes was ineligible since his dredge was not registered in Canada. As the Government wished to have the work done as quickly and as cheaply as possible, it was decided to call for new tenders, making any dredge eligible. New tenders were called for on Aug. 21, 1905, and the same two parties tendered. Mayes' figures for earth were 55 cents and Haney & Miller's figure was $1.00 per yard. Mayes' being the lower tender, of course, got the contract, and that's the way the Government, according to the Mail and Empire, forced a 55 cents per yard contract on a tenderer who had only asked 50 cents per yard. No further remark is necessary to emphasise the unscrupulous character of the Conservative campaign of slander.

There will be disaster for some of the candidates in this contest. Some of them have already lost their voices, and others stand to lose their deposits to boot.

DOING AND DREAMING.

Britain, Canada and India have settled the Hindu "yellow peril," so far as British Columbia is concerned. The entire Hindu colony, numbering about 2,000, is to be removed from British Columbia to British Honduras, to work on railway construction. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, cooperating with Lord Strathcona, the Canadian High Commissioner, and the Governor of Honduras, has brought the matter to this satisfactory issue; and the British Government will assist in the removal of the Hindus to Honduras.

The "yellow peril" charge against the Liberal Government has been the favourite theme of Conservative campaigners. Yet, in the administration, in the pursuit of a vigorous immigration policy on which the development of Canada depends, the Government has done all that can be done to prevent the up-cropping of undesirable conditions. The Chinese head tax was increased from $100 to $500, and arrangements made to place almost prohibitory restriction upon Japanese immigration, and here we have heroic treatment of the Hindu problem. The Liberal Government has too much interest in the welfare of Canada; they have done too much and are doing and propose doing, too much to do anything that can be prevented, that would antagonize their aims for the up-building of Canada.

It is the height of absurdity, not to say impudence, for the Conservative party or its representatives in the press and on the platform, to say that the Liberal Government is neglectful of, or indifferent to or opposed to, the welfare of labour, whose welfare and interest everybody of the plainest common sense knows is the base and foundation of all national progress. Criticism in this regard comes with ill grace from the representatives of a party which in all its long, active and responsible association with the Government of Canada, has never passed a line of legislation or performed one administrative act specifically and overtly in the interests of labour or the working men. On the contrary, there has never been a year in the twelve years of Liberal Administration that has not witnessed far-reaching and beneficial labour legislation. That has been an integral, a vital part of its policy.

And it is continued to this very hour. The stress of a general election campaign has not obscured the view of the Government in regard to labour interests. While their enemies have been vilifying and slandering the Liberal Government on the score of Oriental immigration, that Government has been quietly working. As in all the conditions that differentiate the two parties, while the Conservatives have been TALKING the Liberal Government has been DOING. The contrast attains as strongly between the two parties as represented in public life, as between the Liberal and Conservative candidates in West Peterborough. One is a doer; the other is a dreamer. Peterborough and West Peterborough demand a live representative, with business qualifications and the business capacity required to do satisfactorily the representative business of a live, energetic and progressive city and county.

VOTE FOR STRATTON, A BUSINESS BUILDER.

THE MAN OF ACTION.

This morning when I was being shaved the barber observed pleasantly:

"Your hair is getting a little thin on top."

"Uh-huh!"

"Do anything for it?"

"No!"

"Here is a tonic that is guaranteed to raise hair—"

I stopped him before he could get any further.

"See here, friend!" I protested. 'How can you recommend this hair-restorer, when you yourself are as bald as a campaign lie?'

"It's all in the way of business,' he replied.

And, after all, was that bald-headed barber a bit more absurd than are the members of the Opposition at Ottawa, when, in spite of their records, they offer to give the country a clean and efficient government? They may well say "it's all in the way of business."

But I suppose it is about the only thing they can do in the way of business.—Toronto Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

A Northumberland postmaster has been committed for trial on a charge of stealing Conservative campaign literature. No jury on earth will make it more than petty larceny. Appropriation of articles, to constitute theft, presupposes value.

One can't please our good Conservative critics of the Liberal Government. The campaign lie in Ottawa is that the Government is getting the rural delivery boxes made in the United States. The Toronto News scents a "graft" in the fact that the work of making the boxes has been given to the Office Specialty Company of Newmarket.

The Conservative journals boast of having Mr. Thomas Murray, a former Liberal on Mr. Borden's platform at Cobalt. Mr. Murray is one of those rare aves, a Liberal for revenue, whose congenial home is in a Conservative camp. Mr. Murray wanted a place on the Railway Commission. It was not given him and therefore he has gone into cold storage in the shades of Opposition.

When Premier Hazen undertook to slander Hon. Mr. Pugsley he ignored the fact that time was the essence of the contract. He made a mistake of two years and the gap was fatal to his fixing upon the Minister of Public Works an offence which was no offence in a professional capacity, —when he was not a Federal Minister and had no idea of being called to the Cabinet.

"MYSTERIOUS MR. E" IS STILL UNCAUGHT

ing tournament at the P.B.C. alleys to-night, and if circumstances are favourable, will attempt to bowl a ball down the alleys, all depending on the interest displayed. His managers maintain that this is without a doubt the most daring chance any many in a similar position has ever taken. Everybody has a grand chance of capturing him, and the many golden dollars offered for his capture.

The Roller Rink Episode

"ME. E's" managers have written the following letter to the Examiner:

"Everybody wonders, probably, why "Mr. E" failed to visit the roller rink last night, as advertised. "Mr. E" in his letter explains the reason but we believe it worthy of a little comment here. When "Mr. E's" managers went to the rink last night relative to getting a line on the conditions of things, and to prepare for "Mr. E's" entry, they found that the proprietor of the rink had locked and barred every entrance but the main one, and had stationed five men in different places to capture "Mr. E" when he attempted to pay his visit. As Messrs. O'Connor and Green believed it manifestly unfair to themselves and the patrons of the rink, who had paid their good money to go inside, for the proprietor of the rink himself to attempt to capture the money, they decided not to have "Mr. E" make an entry, and so announced to the people outside. Any blame therefore attaches to the proprietor of the rink for his non-appearance."

Mr. E's Adventures

Writing to the people of Peterborough 'Mr. E" to-day says, covering his movements of Thursday:

"I begin to wonder each time I write whether or not it will be my last letter to you. You are certainly exhausting every particle of energy I have. I have lost some little weight and no small amount of sleep trying to devise ways of fooling you, and while I am anxious to enrich my reputation by deceiving you until to-morrow evening, I must admit that my capture will give me no small amount of relief. This morning it was 8.30 before I got 'twixt the sheets, and I think I earned every minute of the five and a half hours I slept. Yesterday was a corker, and I had one of the hardest times of my whole experience in keeping my identity. I arose rather late and had a breakfast of two egg sandwiches and a cup of coffee at the Chinese restaurant, paying for my breakfast with a two-dollar bill. While he was making change, I kidded him about "Mr. E.," but no suspicion crossed his mind, I could see.

Narrow Escape in Hotel

During the morning I visited most of the hotels, and while at the Snowden House I had a very exciting time. While walking through the rotunda, and just after I had spoken to the clerk, a young fellow came in the front entrance after me, but I had spotted him spotting me. I immediately made my way to the rear of the hotel, made a quick change in my garments, and came out in view of my chaser. He asked me if I had seen a fellow inside. I replied, No; why, are you after 'Mr. E.?' He told me he was, and during the course of conversation I learned our friend's name was N. S. McGuire, another one of those commercial travellers hailing from Toronto.

Asked for Matches

Yesterday was what I call match day, and I was working the "Can you oblige me with a match?" I quit when I had filled nearly two pockets. I have handed them over to headquarters. No doubt many of you are aware ere this that I was in the vicinity of George and Hunter streets at noon yesterday, and I intend being there again to-day. I had what you might call a narrow escape during the noon hour. I was coming down George street, when I observed an astute young girl approaching, about 19 years of age wearing a blue dress with a stripe, and carrying a small parcel in her left hand, together with the Examiner. Now, the lady was looking for me without a doubt. Her eyes landed on me, and as I approached her with a quick step before she could get her breath, I remarked, "Well, I suppose you were just getting ready to ask me if I was 'Mr. E.,' eh?" and walked right on. Poor girl. I am sorry it was not 8 o'clock Saturday night. If it had been I would certainly have given myself up to you. But I have my duties to carry out, and certainly this is one of them.

Visited Many Places

I came down George street, and, as expected, I saw my managers on the corner. I received signals which I obeyed, and passed on down Hunter street and lost myself. During the day I visited Richard Hall's, Neill & Co.'s, the postoffice, and visited most of the down-town hotels and drug stores, American Cereal Co., Canadian Automatic Telephone Co., and came through without a scratch. I visited the opera house in the evening, entering with ease, and I was a little surprised to see my manager appear at the door and signal me to remain until the close of the meeting. I was glad, indeed, but wondered what was up, as I was advertised to appear at the rink. It is a strong point with me to appear when I say so, and in these cases it is always understood that the proprietors of any establishments I may visit shall not take advantage of their positions and make it impossible for their patrons, who have paid their good money to get inside, have an opportunity to catch me because the proprietor has locked every entrance but the main one, and placed five men there to catch me. I am only human, remember, and furthermore I call such conduct grossly unfair to the patrons of the rink, and everyone in Peterborough. Consequently, I did not make any visit.

Expects to be Caught

I shall visit the P.B.C. alleys to-night. I may get caught, and if I do this is my last letter, so I want to take advantage of the opportunity to thank all you real good sports of Peterborough who have given me such a splendid chase. When I say real good sports, I mean it in every sense of the word. You have not don onee thing that has not been fair and above board, and when you have been beaten you have done as real sportsmen always will—admitted it, and given me the credit. I only wish I had longer to stay with you. Hurrah for Peterborough. I shall be in bed early to-night if uncaptured, as I would then expect lots of fun to-morrow.

Don't overlook the fact that you must be a resident of Peterborough county to secure the rewards.

"MR. E."

In fairness to the young men who sit up watching for the Mysterious "Mr. E." till the small hours of the morning, we wish to state that "Mr. E." is in safe quarters at 12 every night. If you don't catch him by that time you'll have to wait until Saturday.

depressing condition in their political affairs. There was the Hon. Thos. McGreevy, sent to jail for abuse of the confidence of his people, and his chief Sir Hector Langevin retired to private life because of his damaging connection with these scandals. These were dark days for Canada, but it had remained for Sir Wilfrid Laurier to lift the country out of the gloom. (Cheers). The resources, of the country were just as great then as they are to-day, its opportunities just as large, and no avenue of progress was closed, but the Ministers of the day were not equal to the occasion—could not rise above their petty squabbles—were not equal to the great occasion which the progress of this young nation had presented to them. And then there came upon the scene Sir Wilfrid Laurier, with his large views, and his patriotic ambition for the progress and development of Canada. That great statesman had recognised that the first and immediate thing to do was to settle what was called the "Manitoba school question," which was productive of animosity between race and religion. He speedily settled that so that we have heard of it no more. Then Mr. Laurier took up the serious and practical matter of the tariff. He found on the other side of the border, a hostile tariff, that was operating against our interests, and on our own side a tariff that was supposedly protective, but that protected nobody and only operated to the benefit of the American manufacturers. Mr. Laurier felt called upon to act, and he did act, and the result was that the interests of the Canadian consumer, as well as of the Canadian manufacturer were considered in the formulation of an intelligent tariff, properly adjusted to our needs, and by the exercise of simple common sense business methods, confidence was restored and business interests began their march to prosperity. Our people were taught to look back to that country, the Mother Land, from whose loins the most of us had sprung, and our community of interest became realised and appreciated. We had discrimination against German goods in favour of our kin, and in spite of Sir Charles Tupper's doleful prophesies, this country had gone on as never before. And we had now in Canada great and prosperous manufacturing institutions that we never had before. (Applause). Then Mr. Laurier took up the transportation question. He recognised that no matter how great our resources, or how much our production, it would not avail, until profitable markets were placed at our disposal. The old Government had been just as sincere in its desire to help the country, but they had not resorted to the right methods. They did not possess this element of practical and business knowledge which the present Government had been enabled so successfully to apply to the affairs of the country. Applying common sense business methods and ideas to the situation, the Government had created conditions of prosperity—beyond the wildest dreams of the enthusiastic Canadian. He recorded the progress of events leading up to the prosperity which we had attained and said that with the single exception of Mr. James Kendry, the country had been satisfied. And he didn't believe that they would greatly blame the Government because they had refused to place an additional price of $2.00 to $4.00 a suit on the clothes they wore. He recounted the work of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, by the administration of his Government in creating conditions that made our local markets, and concluded with an appeal to give a rousing majority for Hon. J. R. Stratton, on October 26. (Loud applause).

Mr. Daniel O'Connell.

Daniel O'Connell, on coming forward, said that they were all convinced that on October 26th, Hon. J.R. Stratton would be our member-elect, not only on account of their recollection of the past service, but also for the confidence they felt in Mr. Stratton as a man of themselves. They had before them two men, and it was for them to make their choice. They had known of Hon. Mr. Stratton, during all his career, and they knew that he had always had a single eye to the best interests of Peterborough. Mr. Burnham had told them from his own lips that one of his claims to their support was that he was an honest man. Well, there were four or five thousand people who could make the claim in this city, and none of them were looking to be sent to Parliament on that account. The people were asked to contrast the experience which they had during the past twelve years, and the time that had preceded that date, and in making this comparison, they could not help realising their duty, and the advantage to themselves, of seeing that the present Government, with its progressive and common sense policy, was continued in office, (applause) and West Peterborough sent to support them a man of whom they would all be proud—Hon. J. R. Stratton. (Loud cheers). Referring to the reckless charges that were being emploited by Mr. Burnham and his friends, there could be no better evidence presented to an intelligent people than the fact that for twelve years they had had a supposedly careful, watchful and vigilant opposition, whose duty it was to scrutinize and to criticise every act of the Government. None of these charges of which we had heard so much, had been presented on the responsibility of any member of Parliament. He scarified Mr. Roblin, who had presented himself in that hall to instruct the electors of Peterborough, but who had to be sent home in disgrace on account of his barefaced falsehoods. He dwelt upon the position in which Hon. Geo. E. Foster, who was presented by Mr. Burnham as the coming Finance Minister of the country, had placed himself by his method of handling the trust funds of financial institutions, and said that a common slanderer such as he had been proved to be, had no right to challenge a man whose record for fidelity in every walk of life, business or public, was as well known to them as it was to the voters of West Peterborough. (Cheers). He went into the transactions which Mr. Foster had had with the business concerns with which he had been connected, and said if such a man was to succeed Hon. Mr. Fielding, Lord save the mark! (Laughter and applause). He went on in an eloquent and effective speech to ridicule the absurd charges that had been brought against the Government since the adjournment of the session of Parliament, where they ought to have been brought, and concluded with a strong appeal to the voters to do their duty as men and return to the House of Commons to represent them in the ensuing term, a manly man, in whom their faith would never be misplaced, Hon. J. R. Stratton. (Prolonged cheers).

Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Was received with an exceedingly flattering demonstration of applause. It would be vanity for him to say that he was not delighted with the very cordial greeting he had received, but as he had always been given such by his fellow citizens in his home town, where he knew everybody, and everybody knew him. He was delighted, but not surprised at so large an attendance at a meeting called in his interest. He believed that this large gathering had met to listen to the discussion of public questions. He was sure that they were not drawn together merely by curiosity, but by a realization of their duty in the serious matter of electing a man to represent them in Parliament. He supposed, and they supposed, that they were gathered for the purpose of doing something that would add to the history of the progress of this city of Peterborough. He was glad to see so many of the ladies of Peterborough present on this occasion, and he realized that the presence of the wives and daughters of his neighbours was not without its significance in this election. The ladies had no votes, though their time was coming, but they had an influence not to be despised, and of which he was proud to have the advantage. The people before him in this large assemblage, were pretty well acquainted with the conditions. There were very few of them to whom he was not accustomed to say "Good day" when he met them, and he had been going up and down among them all his life. They had known him in private life and in public life, and each one of them knew that it made no difference to J. R. Stratton who a man was if he were brought his attention. Now, Mr. Borden had been here, Mr. Roblin had been here, Mr. Hanna had been here, and even the man from Manitoulin, from whom some of the dregs of the Opposition party had expected a great explosion, had been here, and they had come and gone without electrifying the citizens of Peterborough, and it was an easy matter to know why. First, because they had nothing to explode, and next, because against every assault he (Mr. Stratton) was able to present the effective defence of a straight-forward course as a citizen. And although they had had in that hall the leader of the Opposition, though the great guns of the Conservative party had been here levelled against him, he felt sufficiently strong in his integrity, and in the consciousness that he possessed of having always and at all times done the best he could for the people of Peterborough, he did not believe that the foolish aspersions by which he had been assailed, would affect their minds, and that with the aid of the electors before him ,he would be the next member for West Peterborough in the House of Commons. (Loud applause.) They (the people before him) were the judges, and it was their dut yto select their representative in the Commons, and he (Mr. Stratton) was more than willing to leave the issue to the people, who had known him through life. In this contest they had heard some reflections upon himself of a personal character. The Conservative candidate, in his opening address, made the business of the Home Life Assurance Company his particular concern, and had made an effort to insinuate that there had been something in his (Mr. Stratton's) relations with the Home Life that was discreditable. Well, the controversy was known to every man who chose to inform his mind ,and it was enough for him to say that the people who were financially interested had given striking proof of the confidence which they were willing to repose in him (Mr. Stratton.) It seemed reasonably clear, under the circumstances, that Mr. Burnham would have to find some other means of helping himself into Parliament besides the effort to throw mud on the skirts of a man whose political and personal garments were clean. (Applause.) He felt sorry for Mr. Burnham that he had not associated with people from whose contact he might have derived some higher ideal of political life. He (the speaker) had sufficient confidence in the common sense and sterling intelligence of his neighbours to be convinced ffthat knowing as he was they would accept him as he was. (Cheers). He felt that with all the Hannas and the men from Manitoulin they could bring into the county, he had lost none of the confidence with which the people of Peterborough had been accustomed to honour him. The opposing party had done its best in the effort to down him, but they would realize that he was "still in the ring," though somewhat battered, yet not disfigured, and as capable as they could desire of filling the place to which they would elect him on October 26th as their representative in the House of Commons at Ottawa, (cheers) and by a good big majority, (great cheering.) He felt encouraged before this great audience, and especially by the presence of so many ladies who had honoured this gathering, and the enthusiasm which they had manifested was very gratifying to him. He knew the influence which they could exercise, and he knew, too, that you could not excite the interest of the ladies except in a righteous cause. (Cheers.) While the ladies had no vote at the present time, he recognized the influence which they wielded and he was gratified for their sympathy, the more because he knew that their sympathy was rarely misplaced, and that it would not be extended to him unless he had in some humble manner proved himself worthy of it. (Cheers.) His opponent, Mr. Burnham, who had brought into the city the leader of his party, Mr. Borden, and Mr. Roblin, the premier of the Tory province of Manitoba, who had since his appearance in this hall been sent home in disgrace as a convicted slanderer, had made an attack upon him (Mr. Stratton) on account of a business transaction of the Home Life Insurance Company, when that institution was merged with the People's Life. He emphatically denied Mr. Burnham's qualification to deal with such a subject. How could they expect a crusty old bachelor like Mr. Burnham to know anything about "Home Life" matters (Loud applause)? and laughter.) Seriously, referring to this slander, of which Mr. Burnham had made himself the instrument, he thought it was sufficient to say that the majority of the shareholders, and many of the directors of that company were coun l among the leading Conservative business men of the province, and the fact that these men, whose money was at stake, and who really were the only people concerned in the handling of their affairs had year after year elected and re-elected him (Mr. Stratton) to the highest position they had at their disposal, ought to be enough to convince anyone of the silliness of this among Mr. Burnham's other silly statements. He (Mr. Strattton) felt really sorry for Mr. Burnham. During the next five years, the term for which they were about to elect him (loud cheers) to Parliament, he would be glad to use his influence to help him find a home, notwithstanding that he himself had been dispitefully used by that gentleman. (Applause.) But he realized that this great audience had not assembled to discuss these personal matters, which had no real connection with the issues of the campaign. However much he regretted it, he was compelled to advert to the statements which Mr. Burnham had put on the centre of the stage in his opening meeting in this place. He did not think it necessary with the people among whom he had grown up from childhood, to whom his life was an open book, to defend himself against Mr. Burnham's insinuations, because the proffer of such a detence would imply doubt of the confidence of his neighbours which he did not entertain. Mr. Burnham did not seem to be able to comprehend that a man could as he (Mr. Stratton) had done, handle hundreds of thousands of dollars without some of it sticking to his fingers. (Cheers) .Mr.Burnham had started out with loud professions of a desire to con- They all knew how he had carried out this proposition, by the contemptible and cheap slanders that had been circulated concerning himself. He (Mr Stratton) felt himself so well grounded in the esteem of his fellow citizens that he believed his reputation was safe in their hands, and that their knowledge of him was such that no tongue of malice could be used to his hurt. (Cheers.). Among the alleged claims that Mr. Burnham had presented in intimation of a reason why he should be permitted to go to Parliament, was his statement that he had, while the other people were helplessly asleep, written in the Review some articles on "Rural Mail Delivery." But while he was dreaming the Government was acting, and the rural free mail delivery was becoming an accomplished fact throughout the country, as rapidly as the arrangements could be made, and within a very short time the people of West Peterborough will have a daily mail at their gates, a realization of what rural free delivery means. (Cheers). Now, it is not any wonder that his friend, the enemy, was in favour of "rumal mail delivery," since it had been developed that rural deliver of mails had been practised—delegates from the northern sections of the county had been brought in to this city recently, with all their expenses paid, to pack the convention by the Conservative machine, to outvote the city delegates, and ensure the nomination for himself. They had also been offered from Mr. Burnham's Review newspaper the tempting proposition of $10 to reward for the best essay on "How the Grand Trunk Pacific will ruin Ontario Farms." Had any of them secured this regard? Had any one read these essays? He thought not, (laughter) and he might offer a million dollars instead of ten, and still get no takers, because the topic which suggested it was too foolish for any sane person to occupy his attention with. Mr. Burnham's idiotic suggestion regarding the Grand Trunk Pacific would not appeal to the common sense of the electors of this riding, and his absurd views upon his nation-building project, as printed in the Review, would only bring him into contempt and ridicule. (Applause.) It seemed a waste of energy before an intelligent audience such as filled the capacity of this hall, to give attention to Mr. Burnham's doleful tale of what the Grand Trunk Pacific might do to the country. We have had an experience, and we know better. Mr. MacFarlane had dwelt at some length upon the manner in which labour had been treated under a Conservative Government, and how it had been accorded consideration since 1896. Perhaps some of us did not sufficiently realize the place of labour among the factors that make for national growth, stability, and progress. We have at the command of the captains of our progress, five sources of national wealth, and upon thees all prosperity must rest: the farm, the forest, the fisheries, the mines and the manufacturing industries constitute the elements out of which national progress and prosperity are wrought. The brain that conceives and the hand that acts, are at the bottom of our everyday progress, and no government would perform its full duty that did not recognize the importance of the great producing element of labour. It was not difficult for them to recall that during eighteen years all that had been done for labour was the enactment of a labour law, law—under which, as had been said the worker might once a year, and at his own expense, have the privilege of a holiday. He did not intend to disparage the holiday—far from it, and he gladly gave credit to his opponents for what had been done in this instance. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," is an old proverb, and as an employer he realized that the holiday is not a bad thing for the employers, while it is a good thing for those who toil, but that should not lead them to forget that it was the present Government which had given the first real and practical recognition to the right of labour, and to the place which it ought to occupy among the institutions of the country. If the sweatshops had been abolished, as had been explained by preceding speakers, it was to Sir Wilfrid Laurier that they owed it. And if public regulations had been put in force that ensured the highest wage scale to the man working on a government job, it was due to the administration. The Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier had not contented itself with mere empty expressions regarding labour, but had put itself on record in an unmistakable manner as the friend and the champion of the man who toils. And that was nothing more than a natural recognition of the foundation upon which the Liberal party was based. The leaders of the Liberal party, and he himself, their candidate, had worked up from humble beginnings. They all knew what toil was, and when they were placed in a position to influence legislation, it was merely a natural sequence that labour found a friend. (Applause). Now, regarding the great question, which was really the most important question before the people to-day, that of transportation, which concerned the movement of our crops so that the producer could get the greatest result and which even more affected the manufacturers whose interests was advanced by having made available the quickest and the cheapest means of reaching the field of consumers, our present Government had done more to extend the facilities upon which the welfare of the farmers and the manufacturers depended, than any administration that had preceded it. And the people had realized the benefit, and they, in common with the people before him, were going to acknowledge it in their votes. (Loud cheers.) Mr. Burnham had not only attacked the Canadian Pacific as an "inexcusable" enterprise, but he had questioned the wisdom of the Grand Trunk Pacific, which was being constructed under a mandate of the voters of the country four years ago, and in his (Mr. Burnham's) present attitude on these questions, he condemned the work of Sir John A. Macdonald, and repudiated the efforts ocf our Master Builder, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, to give fulfilment to the patriotic ambition of his predecessors, would not appeal to patriotic men. His attitude on those questions demonstrated his absolute unfitness to represent the best interest of the county in the House of Commons at Ottawa more strongly than any words that he (Mr. Stratton) could place before them. Mr. Burnham tells the people of this constituency that he does not approve of the development of the great resources which belong to the people of Canada in the west. He affected to be solicitous for the welfare of the Ontario farmer. Mr. Burnham seemed not to have the capacity to comprehend, as he thought all the intelligent electors of Peterborough did, that what the great west produced in wealth, we of the eastern provinces enjoyed the benefit of. Mr. Burnham's ideas were such that if they had been shared in an degree by our people we would still be in the backwoods of progress. It is to the progressive, commonsense policy that has been applied to the affairs of the country by a statesman who loves his country, and who has the genius to make it great—Sir Wilfrid Laurier. (Loud applause.) Let them look at figures. Our trade, the volume of what we sell, has in twelve years, increased to the enormous sum of $411,000,000, and this result means $172,000,000 more than the trade of Canada during the whole eighteen years of Conservative misrule that preceded the policies of the Laurier administration. This was an enormous commercial advancement—the figures were too big to be easily comprehended, and the credit was due simply to the common sense policy which Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues had so successfully applied to the affairs of Canada. (Applause.) Under the practical application of that policy, for they were doers and not dreamers, through the improvement of our transportation facilities, by rail and by our waterways, we have seen that the export of farm products had grown from $50,000,000 in 1896, to the enormous sum of $121,000,000 in 1908. And this progress was accompanied by a remarkable development of our manufacturing industry, which was not subsidized, but stimulated by a tariff that gave them raw material at the lowest cost, and had put an end to the "slaughter market" operations of the United States' manufacturers. In the twelve years of Liberal rule the Government has spent $121,215,115 in the public works which made our progress possible. That is a good deal of money, but it covers the creation of the cold storage facilities which have given our products their propet value in the European market, the provision of warehouses at Fort William and Port Arthur, Montreal and the seacoast cities, the improvement of the Welland Canal and the St. Lawrence channels, which altogether has so commanded the movement of the great agricultural product of the interior that to-day New York, Buffalo, Boston, and all the cities that are concerned in the movement of the western product are in alarm at the position which Montreal has assumed, and it is a proud thing for us to reflect that out of a Canadian inland port which has been made by the enterprise of our Government, a seaport has been created from which we have this year handled more grain than all the cities of the Atlantic coast line of the United States combined. (Cheers.) The progressive policy of the Government has in twelve years added to our population 1,210,430 settlers in the Northwest, and these men did not come empty handed, for they added by their means to our visible possessions no less than $64,440,000. Why, in the last year the citizens who came from the United States to seek the greater freedom and the larger liberties that we in Canada enjoy, brought with them no less than nine millions of dollars in effects. This great sum was exempt from duty as "settlers' effects," but in addition to that, upon dutiable goods which they brought in, the customs received a revenue of nb less than $2,000,000. Let us consider how that influx into the great west affects us. We have here 500,000 families settled in this new country, for whom it is easy to estimate that the average expenditure is $500, or a total of $10,000,000, which goes to buy the goods they need and which are supplied from the Ontario manufactories. And that is the reason why our factories are prosperous, in spite of Mr. Burnham's foolish wail about building up the west at the expense of the east. (Applause.) In this present year of grace the grain produced by that great western empire of ours is estimated at 125,000,000 bushels. Think of it! At the lowest possible market value, $60,000,000 added to the wealth of the country to keep commerce in operation and to make a market for the factories of Ontario—of Peterborough. And these results are to go on, and multiply, through the operation of the great Grand Trunk Pacific transcontinental line. This project has been criticized by Mr. Burnham, who has also condemned the Canadian Pacific. To-day we are exporting a grain crop, as the result largely of that railway, that will bring into this country one hundred millions of dollars of created wealth, to be shared between the western farmers and the eastern factories. We have a larger and a richer country than the United States, free from earthquake and cyclone, with a better climate, a richer soil and inexhaustible resources in the forest and the mine. The results of the Grand Trunk Pacific will duplicate or triplicate what has followed the Canadian Pacific. The Province of Ontario must inevitably more and more progress in the expansion of its industrial enterprises to keep pace with the enormous market in this great west of the present, and greater west of the future, for manufactured products. Already Hamilton, Midland and other places, are seeking to concentrate for their own benefit the advantages being opened up. Peterborough, already a manufacturing centre, on the main arterial line of transportation, which is to be perfected by the enlargement of the water channels, possesses a wonderful future, if its representatives are vigilant and energetic enough to force u on the Government just recognition of its claim to leading consideration in the prosecution of public enterprises to develop adequate communication between the east and the west. Ontario is undoubtedly in the near future to become the Pennsylvania of this Dominion and it is up to an efficient representative of its interess at Ottawa to make the city of Peterborough the Canadian Pittsburgh.

In conclusion he would say that though he had been painted in the darkest of colours by the friends of his opponent in this campaign, that did not disturb him, for he felt that the people of Peterborough, who knew him best just as he was, making no pretension to being a saint, but honestly and fearlessly doing his duty to himself and to his neighbour, and he was satisfied to leave the issue in their hands. (Cheers.) Therefore he asked them, irrespective of politics, to vote for him, for the progress of Peterborough, and if he were elected he would serve them just as faithfully as they knew he had for eighteen years in the Ontario Legislature and Government. As their member, he would know no politics but would do his best to advance everything that would help to advance the welfare of the people of the city and county. (Loud applause.)

Hon. Geo. A. Cox.

Senator Cox, who was loudly applauded on coming forward, said: "I have simply come here as an old resident of the County of Peterborough, and I am very thankful to Mr. Stratton for inviting me to be present to-night. I am always proud to be recognized as a citizen of Peterborough, as for the last fifty years I have been doing what little I could to build up the town, and I am as anxious to-day as I ever was to assist in the advancement of Peterborough. It is because of this fact that I am here to ask you to send to Ottawa the very best man to assist in doing what would be best for the constituency. I have known Mr. Stratton all his life and I have known his opponent for the same time. If I had to select the editor of a monthly magazine I would think that Mr. Burnham would be a competent careful man, but I do not think he would be a good representative for you in Ottawa. I am saying that to you as Conservatives as well as Reformers. What we want is a representative who will build up the community. I ask you if the town has not prospered to a greater extent under Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his associates than it ever had before. I am sure that you will all admit that the prosperity of the country is greater than it ever has been. Then why make a change? You would not want to change the present administration for the one that would succeed if the present opposition came into power. You take my advice and send to Ottawa the Hon. Mr. Stratton. I have no ulterior motive. I desire the prosperity of this county. I wish to see in power an administration of progress, an administration, strong, able and successful in forwarding the interests of the county and of the Dominion, and I feel that it would be a very great mistake for the people of Canada to make a mistake at the present time. I have had very great opportunities of judging. I have been discussing matters of public import day in and day out in Ottawa. I know both sides of the House, and I know that there is no more comparison whatever between the party in power and the party who desire to take up the reins of office, than there is between Mr. Stratton and Mr. Burnham. I am not here to say one disrespectful word of Mr. Borden or of Mr. Burnham, but I do say that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his Government will do more to advance the interests of Canada than those gentlemen who seek to take their place, and I earnestly hope that you will do yourselves the honour and privilege of sending to Ottawa a man who you know will look after the interests of Peterborough. I am satisfied that Mr. Stratton will on this, as he has on every other occasion, receive a great many independent Conservative votes of those who desire the prosperity and progress of their native city above their political leanings, and on that account I am sure that Mr. Stratton will be returned by a good large majority. But do not send him there with just enough to show that West Peterborough approves of her favourite son, but give him a majority such as he used to receive when he represented your interests in the Provincial House."

Mr. Cox then contrasted for a few moments the energy, and the ability of the present administration with the policy of scandal of the Opposition, but he was sure that with the ample explanation that had been given there was not much need for further discussion. He again expressed his appreciation of the invitation of the Liberal Association to address the meeting, he was glad to contribute in any way that he could to the advancement of the City of Peterborough, and the surest way of attaining that end was to send Mr. Stratton as the representative to Ottawa. (Cheers).

Albert Eggs.

In a hen's egg only one-fifth of the substance is nutritious, one-ninth part is refuse, and the remainder, the greater portion, is water.

White shelled eggs are not quite as good as yellow ones, for they contain a trifle more water and a little less fat. But your purveyor knows this and frequently colors his white eggs with coffee.

Judged by the amount of nutriment, a goose's egg is the most valuable. Next in order are ducks', guinea fowls', hens', turkeys' and plovers'. Eggs contain a large quantity of sulphur, which is purifying to the blood and good for the complexion.

To get the best egg you must feed your fowl on grain, and to cook it in the most digestible way you must not boil the water. Heat the water to 180 degrees and leave the egg in it for five minutes. You will then digest every morsel. But if you boil it for three minutes no less than one-twelfth of it will fail to be digested. Thus if you eat two eggs boiled for three minutes every day you waste five dozen in a year.—London Mail.

The Leopard and the Pan.

One day a worthy Kulu housewife came out from her cooking and, standing on the ledge of rock at her door, emptied a pan of boiling water into the rank herbage growing below. It fell, splash, on the back of a sleeping leopard, who jumped perpendicularly into the air as high as the roof of the hut. What might have happened next? Who can say? But the astonished woman dropped the pan with a clang upon the rock, and the leopard took one leap downhill. The pan followed, and the leopard's downward leaps became longer and swifter as the pan bounded after it from rock to rock.

When last seen the leopard had just achieved a leap of about 350 feet to the very bottom of the ravine, thousands of feet below, and the pan had whirled about 500 feet over it on the opposite side. The leopard would have eaten the old woman with pleasure, but a pan which first scalded half the side off him and then bounded clanging in his wake from the top of the Himalayas to the plains below was something which he could not face.—London Chronicle.

A Mexican Tradition.

"Boys, what's the matter? Fever? Die, then; die, then." That's the song the doves sing down in old Mexico when a native has penumonia, and almost invariably he lies down, refuses to swallow the medicine prescribed by the physician, resigns himself to his fate and in a few weeks he dies. The dove, however, sings the song in Spanish. It is a tradition among the Mexicans that once the fever accompanying an attack of pneumonia seizes them it is necessarily fatal, and because of this all medicine and all physicians are refused and the Mexican usually dies. The dove brings the story of death in its weird cooing, according to the belief of the natives, and many who have been seized with the fever who otherwise might have recovered have succumbed owing to their belief in the tradition. That is the reason, it is said, why penumonia is fatal to so many Mexicans.—New York Herald.

The Only Explanation.

Old Mrs. Smith was a chronic complainer and was constantly sending for the family physician and giving him a list of her fancied ailments. He always listened quite patiently, but was getting a little tired of hearing the same things over and over.

One day when the old lady considered herself in an unusually bad way she sent for the doctor and, after going over the usual list, ended by saying: "Really, doctor, I do not know what in the world is wrong with me. I can neither lay nor set."

The doctor looked at her a moment, then said in a solemn tone, "Madam, you must be a rooster."—Kansas City Independent.

Wanted Something Quicker.

Some few years ago I issued a policy on the life of a man who was far from being a model husband. I called for the premium every week and rarely got it without a grumble from the wife. The last time I called she said:

"I ain't going to pay you any more. There's Mrs. Smith only had her old man in M.'s society three months, and he's dead, and she's got the money. I'm going to put my old man in that, so you needn't call again."—Liverpool Mercury.

The Maoris.

The Maoris of New Zealand now number 42,000 odd.

Flannel.

Flannel will not harden or shrink if, when new, it is put into clean cold water and left for a week, changing the water frequently. Wash well in warm water, using a little soap to remove the oil. Flannel thus washed never hardens.

The Telephone.

Professor Dolbear, inventor of the telephone, is reported to have explained in a lecture how he came to invent the telephone as follows:

"My father invented a system by which deaf mutes could converse, and finally I invented an apparatus by which the vibrations of speech could be seen, and it turned out to be a telephone. It occurred to me to make a machine that would enable one to hear vibrations. I went to an aurist, and he advised me to take the human ear as my model. He supplied me with a dead man's ear, and with this ear I experimented, and upon applying the apparatus I found that the dead man's ear wrote down the vibrations.

"I arrived at the conclusion that if I could make from vibrate on a dead man's ear I could make an instrument more delicate which would cause those vibrations to be heard and understood. I thought if I placed a delicate piece of steel over an electric magnet I could get a vibration, and then the telephone was completed.

"The telephone arose from my attempts to teach the deaf to speak. It arose from my knowledge, not of electricity, but as a teacher of the deaf. Had I been an electrician I would not have attempted it."

Cocoanuts Make Good Fuel.

"Mine is rather a curious business," said a man who owns a small warehouse and shed down near London's docks. "I deal in cocoanut shells, and last year I sold more than 50,000 bags full of them as fuel.

"I buy thousands of cocoanut shells from stall keepers all over London, from confectioners, from cocoanut oil extractors, from market sweepers and others. I won't tell you the usual price, but sometimes I get them for nothing, for carting them away, in fact. I sell them at fourpence a bag, most of my customers being poor people, who mix them, when broken up, with 'slack' coal. But in scores of hotels and large houses a quantity is bought to be mixed with coals as fire lighters, for the immense amount of oil in cocoanut shells makes them take fire at once. Try it and see.

"I have rivals in the business in other parts of London, and some of the makers of patent fire lighters mix large quantities of the shells in their compositions."—London News.

Rats on Ships.

"Are rats destructive? Well," said a captain of a merchantman, "I once knew them to get through £5,000 worth of stuff in five days.

"Japan does an immense trade with China in cocoons, and the first time I carried such a cargo they were packed in sacks. When we got to Hongkong we found that the rats had discovered that part of a cocoon was good to eat, and the bill for their board came to £5,000. The shipowners were stuck for that amount; but, the packing being considered faulty, the claim was disallowed. It was the first and last time I ever knew the rats had, for ever since Japan has packed cocoons in zinc lined cases.

"Every time a ship gets back to Liverpool a rat catcher is set to clearing out the rats, but by the time we have loaded up again the rodents are every bit as numerous. In some ports we use rat guards on the ropes, and the ship is always fumigated before taking a cargo of fruit or tea. But there is no getting rid of them entirely."—London Graphic.

Prepared For Contingencies.

"We have lots of curious 'last requests' from patients who are about to have operations performed," said a nurse in the women's surgical ward of one of the New York hospitals, "but I thought about the last word had been said on this subject one day last week when one of my patients before going to the operating room called me to her and asked me to write two postal cards to her husband so that she might sign them before the operation. One was to read, 'My dear husband, the operation was at 10 o'clock this morning, and I am getting along fine.' The other one was: 'My dear husband, the operation was at 10 o'clock this morning, and I am sorry to say I died. From your loving wife.'"—New York Times.

Her Tongue.

They were talking of figures of speech.

"Have you ever noticed," said one, "how fond people are of vegetable metaphors when they are dealing with a woman? Her cheeks are 'roses,' her lips are 'cherry,' her hands are always 'lily' hands, her mouth is a 'rosebud,' her complexion is 'like a peach,' and her breath is 'fragrant as honeysuckle.'"

"You've forgotten one," said the cynic."

"Whats that?"

"Her tongue. It is a scarlet runner."—Exchange.

Consistent to the Last.

"If I was to commit suicide at sea," said Weary Walker as he shifted the hay band on his left foot, "I'd jump from th' bow of th' boat."

"An' why not from th' stern?" queried Limpy Lannigan.

"If I jumped from th' stern," said Weary, "I couldn't avoid th' wash!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FARM AND STOCK WERE SOLD

Mr. Nathan McIlmoyle Had a Successful Sale Yesterday

A successful sale of farm property was held yesterday in Smith at the residence of Mr. Nathan McIlmoyle when he disposed of his effects, implements, stock, etc., realizing a very fair sum. The stock was of good quality and was sold at varying prices. Some went at from $40 to $50 and others were slightly cheaper. The horses also returned a substantial figure. The farm itself is said to have been disposed of to a son of Mr. Wm. Clarkson of Lakehurst for $5000. Mr. John Haggart was the auctioneer.

"OTHELLO"

Considerable interest is manifest, especially in social circles, in the approaching engagement at the Grand of Mr. John Griffith, who will appear next Wednesday evening in an elaborate production of Shakspere's tragic masterpiece, "Othello." This interest is occasioned not alone by the recognized high position occupied by Mr. Griffith as foremost among the greatest of present day tragedians, but from the fact that so large a portion of the local public are able to appreciate the poetic beauty of Shakspere's grand plays and are eager to witness Griffith's reputed excellent performance.

The version of "Othello" presented by Mr. Griffith is that used by Edwin Booth—with whom he was associated many years ago—and closely follows the text of Charles Knight's standard edition which is based on the folio of 1623. It will be found by the student of Shakspere to differ somewhat from other stage-copies of the piece; to present certain novel features of treatment, which are thought to be improvements; and to be a full, adequate, correct and satisfying presentation of Shakspere's magnificent work.

The role of "Othello," which Mr. Griffith plays, gives him full scope for his undoubted dramatic genius. In his development of the character, the great tragedian runs the entire scale of human emotions—from the most supreme happiness in his great love for the fair Desdemona and the knowledge of her devotion to him, to the terrible anger when the lying tongue of Iago persuades him of her infidelity; and later, the despairing anguish, when, after having murdered her in his blind and jealous rage, he is convinced of Iago's base deception and of Desdemona's faithfulness, he slays himself and falls on the lifeless form of his wife. Mr. Griffith is said to depict these varying scenes with such vividness and power that he carries his audience with him through the entire gamut of emotions. The role of Desdemona is played by Miss Edyth Totten, and her portrayal of the fair Venetian is equally convincing, it is said. Seat sale opens Monday morning.

Iron Discipline Prevents A Terrible Yachting Disaster

Famous Tourist Yacht Wrecked—S. Y. Argonaut Run Down in Fog Off Dungeness

231 WERE QUIETLY SAVED

Dr. Lunn's tourist yacht Argonaut which started on Monday from Tilbury for the Mediterranean, was run down in thick fog off Dungeness at 8.30 a.m. on Tuesday by the Newcastle ore steamer Kingswell, and began to sink at once.

The 231 passengers and crew showed no panic. Discipline was perfect; and ladies first, then men passengers, Lord Lyveden last, then the crew, and last of all Captain Reedman took to the boats, to be transferred in about an hour to the Kingswell. In about twenty minutes the yacht had gone under.

The scantily clad, baggageless passengers had hardly settled down in the Kingswell when her damage was found so extensive that another hasty transference had to be made to the boats and after a time to the collier Southmoor, which landed the famished party at Dover in the afternoon. Most came on to London by special train. It was well that they left the Kingswell, for she had to be beached at New Romney to prevent foundering.

£6,000 in Jewels Lost

Graphic pictures of the scene in the yacht were supplied at Dover and Charing Cross by the 113 passengers, many hatless, one in pyjamas, some slipperless, most without a scrap of baggage, and some without money. One of them, the Comtesse de Hamil de Manin, stated that she had lost £6,000 worth of jewellery.

Dr. Murray Leslie, of Harley Street, who remained, gave our representative a most vivid narrative: "There was a double concussion, and we reeled from the shock. Nearly all the other passengers were below, having breakfast. They sprang up with white faces. I rushed below to my friends. Then the purser hurried in. 'There is absolutely no danger,' he cried, 'please go on with your breakfast.'

"Most of the passengers did so. I had actually started my plate of porridge when the captain came into the saloon. 'It would be as well,' he said, 'if you all came on deck.' He was perfectly calm. We trooped on deck. Two passengers rushed up from their cabins, crying, 'The water is flowing over the floors and among our luggage.' Nine boats were lowered and we went down into them, the captain calling out, 'Ladies first, then gentlemen, then the crew.'

"The ladies behaved splendidly. They had no hats, some had shawls round their shoulders, others light coats. Many of the men were in slippers. One or two I saw carried small handbags. We rowed across to the Kingswell, a quarter of a mile away. As we looked back the stern of the Argonaut stood high out of the water, and waves were washing over her bows. Many of the ladies had ropes under their arms to help them up the ladders as we went aboard.

"We had not been twenty minutes on the deck when the officers said, 'You must take to the boats again.' We were towed behind as the steamer was put towards Dover. In each boat a seaman stood with a knife ready to cut us adrift if the ship sank. The water became a little choppy and some of the ladies were ill.

"Presently the Southmoor emerged from the mist. Rope ladders hung from her deck, and up them we had to swarm. Before we reached the harbour Dr. Lunn's younger brother, who was in charge of the party, made a speech on the deck highly complimenting the courage of the ladies of our party.

Lord Lyveden's Tribute

"One lady, just as we were getting into the boats, cried out, 'Oh dear, oh dear! I have been obliged to leave four absolutely new hats in my berth! What shall I do?'"

The Comtesse de Hamil de Manin, whose town house is in Circus Road, St. John's Wood, was in her cabin when the crash occurred. "The stewardess," she said, "who was bringing my breakfast, said that it had been knocked out of her hand by the shock. I could not even fasten my hair, and had to go on deck with one ordinary slipper and a bath slipper. As I left the cabin I seized a sable cloak, but that was all I could take, and my jewellery and valuables, worth some £6,000 were all left behind."

Lord Lyveden said: "We are most grateful that we are all here. I should like to pay tributes to the splendid discipline and magnificent behaviour of the captain and his officers. It might have been a usual incident of an ordinary excursion."

The Argonaut has borne five names since she was launched in London in 1879. As a tourist yacht she has covered 250,000 miles. On August 9 of last year she grounded near Vilnasfjord, off the coast of Norway, but the passengers were picked up by another yacht. Dr. Lunn values her at £35,000, and she is insured. — Overseas Daily Mail.

CONSULT OUR OPTICIAN

The Eye is such a delicate organ that it should never be trifled with. This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

Many opticians take half a dozen or more correspondent courses costing from $7.50 to $25. With this limited knowledge it is little wonder that many are wearing glasses that do not suit them—others that do not require them.

If you have eye-trouble you should consult an optician who has a thorough knowledge of every branch of the optical business. Such a man is our Mr. Taylor.

Lindsay Man Intoxicated In Fatal Fall Down Stairs

Lindsay, Oct. 16.—Special.—Between eight and nine o'clock a man, presumably under the influence of liquor, was arrested on Wednesday night by Constable Shortt and placed in the cells. The man was evidently incapable of walking, as he fell to the floor a short time after being incarcerated and suffered from a severe scalp wound, which bled profusely. The unfortunate man was conveyed to the Ross Memorial Hospital, and is to-day in a very serious condition. He was unconscious yesterday afternoon, and Dr. Brown, who is in attendance, states that his skull is fractured and that he is also suffering from a hemorrhage of the brain. Very little hopes are entertained for his recovery. He is said to be a farm hand in the employ of a farmer in Ops Township.

It has been learned that the name of the unfortunate man is Thomas Sloan, and that he was employed by Mr. Percy Howden, who lives on the Little Britain road. When being placed in the cells last night, he suddenly became somewhat dizzy and reeled backward and forward several times, finally falling heavily on the cement floor. When picked up it was found he had sustained a deep cut in the head. Dr. McAlpine was quickly summoned, when his wounds were dressed, after which he was removed to the hospital, as stated above.

TEMPERANCE MEETINGS ON SUNDAY

These Who Will Speak on This Subject in Opera House.

Arrangements have been completed for two great meetings in the Opera House on Sunday at 4.15 and 8.30. The musical service will be under the direction of Mr. W. J. McCann, of this city, who will be assisted by Mr. J. C. Miller, as cornetist. Mr. Gordon Wright, of this city, will sing and a ladies quartette will also assist.

Exceedingly interesting addresses will be given by Mrs. Owen Hitchcox, Rev. James Lynch and Rev. Ben. Spence, all of Toronto. The meetings are open to the public.

The address given in the evening by Rev. Ben. Spence will be illustrated by stereopticon views, by Mr. Dyer, of Toronto. Mr. Percy Mulhern, the boy soprano, will also sing in the evening.

Crosby's Cure

By SIDNEY HODGES COLE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

In the cool gloom of the big, dim office the eminent physician looked keenly at Crosby and shook his head.

"Your trouble, my boy, is a common one. In fact, it is becoming alarmingly common in these days," he said. "You are afflicted with what I choose to call 'neurosis Americana;' in other words, plain ordinary overwork. You've got to drop it for a time.

"The financing of all these things you've had on hand just now you must leave to some one else or let them finance themselves. It is imperative that you get away, and at once. Go tomorrow, anywhere where it is quiet, and you can live for a time close to good old Mother Earth."

Crosby nodded wearily.

"Oh, yes," said he, "a camp up in the wilderness, I suppose"—

The physician interrupted him with a vigorous shake of the head. "Keep away from the camp," he said flatly. "The simple life they advertise is a delusion and a snare. I know them from A to Z."

He leaned toward the younger man with a smile of understanding. "I was in the same boat once myself," he observed. "I am going to tell you what I did and advise you to go and do likewise. I started out with no fixed destination in view. I traveled until I found a quiet little town that suited my fancy. There I settled down, and in two months I was a new man. Suppose you try that plan."

The next morning Crosby hurriedly put his business affairs in order as best he could, and early afternoon found him speeding away en route for Ashville Junction.

At the Junction he took the branch line, bought a ticket for the end of the route and settled himself comfortably in the train to watch the many little villages from the window and pick out one that struck his fancy as a quiet place of abode for a month or more.

At twilight the train stopped before a little box of a station which bore the name "Freeburg" in gold letters on the sign above the tiny ticket office. In the soft light the place was decidedly attractive. Green stretches of meadow went rolling away to the distant hills, which loomed cool and majestic against the flaming western sky.

Crosby alighted and from the uneven station platform took in his surroundings with a sigh of satisfaction. From the station agent he learned of a farmhouse, a half mile away, where he would very probably find the accommodations he sought in the way of board and lodging.

He picked up his suit case and made his way thither. With no difficulty he found the place, a small white house, nestling beneath giant elms at the foot of the hills. The elderly couple who lived there received him hospitably, and Crosby, after settling with them as to terms, ate his supper and was shown to a rather bare but spotless room under the eaves.

It was a pretty vista from the one window. Just beneath it were three apple trees laden with fruit. Beyond them the great bulk of the hills rose against the pale of the evening sky, and to the left a little lake made a patch of silver in the green of the fields.

Crosby, tired out, retired early and slept as he had not slept for months. He was awakened early in the morning by wild whoops, much high pitched laughter and the noisy clatter of many children. He arose and looked out of the window.

The apple trees had borne strange fruit overnight. Among the branches he saw a half dozen small and irrepressible boys climbing about at imminent risk to their small necks. A score more, with a great deal of unnecessary noise, were climbing over the fence just beyond.

Crosby groaned. Plainly the serpent in multiple form had entered his little paradise. He dressed hastily and went downstairs. His host and hostess were awaiting him at the breakfast table, and to his somewhat irritable questions they explained that the place next door harbored a fresh air brood from the city; that they really did very little damage and were allowed to climb the apple trees at will.

Breakfast was a rather gloomy affair. Crosby ate little, but did a great deal of thinking. When it was over he went to his room and consulted the time table he had brought from the station. The first train either way left at 1 in the afternoon. In the apple trees below the fresh air infants were holding high and noisy carnival.

With a grunt of disgust, Crosby rose and went downstairs. In the kitchen he informed his host that foe unlocked for reasons he could not stay; that he would leave on the 1 o'clock train. Then, there being nothing else to do to kill time, he went out for a walk, taking the path that led to the little lake.

He had nearly reached the water when a great commotion sounded just ahead—screams, howls of terror and sobs. He broke into a run and, rounding a turn in the path, saw the cause of it all. In the water a small red head bobbed up and down beside an overturned boat, while a group of children close to the edge of the lake made the morning hideous with demonstrations of their grief and terror.

Crosby was a good swimmer. In a second his coat and shoes were off and he was swimming with sure, strong strokes toward the red head. In another few minutes he had the boy ashore, apparently but little the worse for his mishap.

As they reached the shore some one came running along the path and caught the dripping child from his arms. Crosby looked up to find a very pretty and very anxious faced young woman beside him.

"Oh, how can I ever thank you?" she cried impulsively. "The children are not allowed to come here. I never once thought of their disobeying us. If you hadn't been here"—

"It is really nothing, I assure you," said Crosby with as much dignity as his dripping clothes and his disheveled hair permitted.

"I must get him back to the house at once," she said.

"If you'll permit me to carry him," Crosby suggested, taking the boy from her arms. "Don't worry. He's really more frightened than hurt."

They walked back the path together, Crosby quite oblivious to his drenched clothing and the motley, chattering group of children that trailed them. He was aware only of the glowing cheeks of the girl beside him, of the pretty poise of her head, of the fine lines of her strong young figure and the softness of her voice.

"I wish I might call at the—the home here," said Crosby as he left her at the gate.

"I—that is, we—would be delighted if you would," she replied.

Crosby went homeward with his head in the clouds. In the back yard he encountered his host, gloomily whittling a stick by the chopping block.

"Say," he called as Crosby came up, "me an' Marthy's been talkin' it over—about your leavin', you know. We come to the conclusion that maybe it's them fresh air young uns that bothers you. If that's it I'll see they don't come nigher'n the fence."

"Don't do anything of the sort," said Crosby, with finality. "Annoy me? Not at all. Indeed, I find them interesting—most interesting. And, by the way, Mr. Dean, I'm not going. I shall stay all summer—as long as the fresh air youngsters stay, in fact."

It was early in September that the eminent physician sat in his big, dim office smiling over a letter he was reading.

"The neurosis Americana has completely disappeared," one portion of it ran, "but it was not quiet that did the trick. Indeed, I should lay the cure to noise and excitement."

The eminent physician frowned.

"I am sailing the 24th," the letter went on, "on the Colonia on a little trip to Sorrento and Sicily. In strictest confidence I will add that the trip is of the wedding variety."

"Ah!" said the physician, with a soft chuckle of comprehension.

A Feat For Blondin.

"Speaking of the straight and narrow path," said a congressman, "reminds me of a story about a man I knew in Chicago who stayed very late at a dinner at the club. When he came out he started to walk in the middle of the street.

"'Hey, John,' said a friend who met him as he was making the best of his way along the car tracks, 'why don't you walk on the sidewalks?'

"'Walk on the sidewalks?' snorted John. 'Do you think I'm Blondin?'"

Got Tired Quick.

A farmer hired a hand from town. The first morning the new hand went to work he accompanied the farmer into the hay field. They put on a load and hauled it to the barn. By the time it was unloaded it was 9 o'clock. "Well," said the new hand from town, "what will we do now?" "What will we do now?" roared the farmer. "Why, we'll go after another load of hay!" "In that case," said the new hand from town, "I will resign."

TRAINS COLLIDE.

Winnipeg Express on C.P.R. Crushes Into Construction Train.

Parry Sound, Oct. 16.—A collision occurred at the C.P.R. station here yesterday afternoon between the Winnipeg express south and a supply train of the Ross, Harris Construction Co.

The supply train, consisting of two loaded freight cars and engine 371, was standing on the main line taking water when the Winnipeg express came along and ran into the supply train, demolishing the freight cars and scattering the freight. No one was hurt, and the only damage to the express engine was the loss of a smoke-stack and headlight.

The passengers got off with a shaking up, caused by the application of emergency brakes, and the consequent collision. The train was not running very fast, or there might have been a number of casualties.

The crew of the supply train expected to fill the tank and clear the track before the express arrived.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Three runaway Montreal boys of 16 are stranded at the Soo.

Michael McNeil of Dominion, N.S., aged 60, was killed by a fall of stone and coal.

At Vermont, Neb., one Italian was killed and another will die, the result of a riot among navvies over a board bill.

Loaded with hay and straw the sloop Ariadne sprang aleak while on the way from Wolfe Island to Kingston and had to be abandoned.

A writ was issued yesterday on the superintendent of the Matteawan Hospital, ordering Thaw to be produced in Pittsburg for bankruptcy proceedings. The attorney-general will be consulted.

Newfoundland Taxed.

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—Mr. Arnaud, Canadian trade commissioner, Newfoundland, in a report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, gives some figures which go to show that the islanders constitute a highly taxed community.

While there was no diminuation in the revenue during the fiscal year recently closed, a slight gain being recorded, the Auditor-General of Newfoundland figures out that the average tax per family amounts to over $50. This means that the people are paying out in taxes one-fifth of the earnings of each family. From eight to nine-tenths of the people of the island are engaged in fishing, and the earnings of the average family are less than $200.

The colony carries a net debt of over $20,000,000, and a per capita debt of $86.

Highway Robbery.

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 16.—Antonio Enion, an Assyrian peddler, was knocked down and robbed by an unknown colored man on the Cemetery road, a quarter of a mile from the city, yesterday afternoon. Twenty-five dollars in cash and some jewelry was booty.

It is reported that the negro was caught at Charing Cross late yesterday afternoon.

Surgeon Stricken.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 16.—While standing with a lancet in his hand ready to perform an operation on a patient at the home of Joseph Hidy, Dr. J. L. Worley was stricken with paralysis.

His entire left side was paralysed. He is 52 years of age.

Breaks Neck In Hotel.

Brampton, Oct. 16.—Thomas Simpson, a middle-aged farm laborer who had been boarding at the Royal Hotel for some days, fell down stairs at an early hour yesterday morning and broke his neck, dying a few minutes later. Nothing is known here of his home or friends.

Mission Board Centennial.

New York, Oct. 16.—The American board of foreign missions in annual conference in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon decided to hold its annual convention next year in Minneapolis, and to celebrate in Boston in 1910 the centennial anniversary of its foundation.

Grate Fire Explodes Gasoline.

Albuquerque, N.M., Oct. 16.—Mrs. Louise H. Chamberlain, a society leader, was burned to death. A servant cleaning a rug with gasoline came too close to an open grate fire and an explosion followed, and Mrs. Chamberlain's clothing caught fire.

Canada-Australian Navy.

London, Oct. 16.—(C. A. P.)—The Morning Post says financially Australians are capable of creating a naval force which in conjunction with a Canadian squadron might eventually release the Empire from dependence upon the other allies in the Pacific.

What Colonies Could Do.

London, Oct. 16.—Lockwood's London letter says that continued bad G.T.R. returns have very seriously alarmed the shareholders, and its unfortunate that the board insists on adopting such an offhand way with its shareholders as it creates a bad impression.

Falls From Tree.

Berlin, Ont., Oct. 16.—Nelson Gottsleben, aged 20, a farm hand, while picking apples, got too far out on a branch which broke, breaking his shoulder-bone and causing concussion and hemorrhage of the brain.

THE PROGRAMME IS NOW ARRANGED

Russia and France Agree on Terms of Treaty.

WILL SAFEGUARD TURKEY

Russia Struggles to Get Right to Send Warships Through the Bosphorus—Montenegro Sends Greetings to Servia and Talks of Holy War For Rights — Austrian Ships Off Spizza, Montenegro.

Belgrade, Servia, Oct. 16.—The Servian National Assembly yesterday received from the National Assembly of Montenegro an enthusiastic reply to its message of greeting a few days ago. It was signed by M. Goynica, president of the assembly, and concluded as follows:

"We believe that the time is ripe for Servia and Montenegro to raise a common standard in defence of the sacred ideals of the Serbs. Let us wage war together, shoulder to shoulder, for it will be a holy war."

London, Oct. 16.—Great Britain, Russia and France have reached an agreement on a program to be submitted to the other powers as a basis for discussion by the proposed European conference to settle the Balkan situation. The proposals to be laid before the powers are eight in number.

Every desire to arrive at an understanding, but safeguarding at the same time the interests of Turkey, has been shown. In the first place Russia wanted the right to send warships through the straits in time of peace, that is to say when Turkey was not at war—under special conditions and special restrictions. In reply Great Britain asked that the same right be accorded all nations. To this Russia demurred, arguing that foreign warships could only desire to enter the Black Sea for belligerent purposes. Ultimately an agreement apparently was reached by which the rights of ingress and egress granted Russian warships shall be accorded on the same conditions to the ships of any other power not at war with Russia.

Paris, Oct. 16.—A special despatch from Sofia to Le Matin quotes the Premier as saying that Bulgaria would refuse to make pecuniary compensation in return for recognition of her independence.

"We have not proclaimed Bulgaria's independence," said the Premier, "in order to ransom her for a sum of money. If we must ransom Bulgaria again, we prefer that it be without blood."

Cettinje, Montenegro, Oct. 16.—Six Austrian warships anchored yesterday off Spizza, in Dalmatia, a crown land of Austria-Hungary. They are not more than ten miles from Antivari, the sole port of Montenegro.

Belgrade, Servia, Oct. 16.—The newspaper Dewni List publishes what purports to be the text of a secret treaty between Bulgaria and Austria.

There are three clauses in this treaty. In the first Austria authorises Prince Ferdinand to declare the independence of Bulgaria and promises to maintain the Coburg dynasty in Bulgaria. The second provides that if complications arise through the announcement of the annexation of Bosnia and Herzegovina, Prince Ferdinand will take the part of Austria. The third sets forth that the Austrians and Bulgarian Governments will work in common accord in the affairs of the Balkan peninsula.

Missing Balloon Found.

Berlin, Oct. 16.—The German balloon Busley came down Tuesday morning at 5 o'clock in the North Sea. The two men on board were rescued by a passing steamer.

Although no award has been made officially, the English balloon Banshee, which came down on the coast of Denmark, is regarded as the winner of the international cup contest. The French balloon Condor is second and the Belgian third. As it is not practical to hold long flights in the British Isles, the Banshee may give over the first place to some other country.

Shoots Two Men.

Winnipeg, Oct. 16.—Incensed at being robbed in a foreign boarding-house in the north end, from which he alleges he was thrown out with considerable violence, John Omucki expended $15 for a revolver, and returning, shot Igenaki Jamimowski, believed to be the proprietor, in the right side, and Karol Dunytruka in the forearm. Jamimowski is in a precarious condition.

Conductor Killed.

Hanover, Oct. 16.—While uncoupling a car in the C.P.R. yards here, Charles P. Clarke, conductor of a mail train, met a terrible death.

While switching the mail train off the main track to make way for the eastbound express he slipped in between the cars to uncouple them. In some way his foot got caught and the car wheels passed over him mangling him in a fearful manner.

He leaves a wife, but has no children. His parents live in London. His father and brother are also railway men.

Doctor Falls Into Hole.

Woodstock, Oct. 16.—Dr. Mearns, who has been stumping for the Liberal candidate, E. W. Nesbitt, in the present campaign, was rather seriously injured Wednesday night. He had gone out to Princeton to speak at a joint meeting of North Oxford and Brant Liberals, and at the Drake House stables he accidentally walked into an excavation. He sustained a sprained ankle.

Explosion Kills Seven.

Fort Collins, Col., Oct. 16.—Seven men were killed and 23 injured, some fatally, as the result of a premature explosion at the Ingleside lime quarry, 18 miles from here, yesterday afternoon.

The blast went off in the face of 40 men. Many of them were hurled 200 feet. The explosion was heard for miles.

TORONTO, Oct. 15.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market for Wednesday and Thursday, as reported by the railways, were 199 carloads, composed of 3346 cattle, 3626 hogs, 3975 sheep and lambs and 108 calves.

Exporters.

A few odd lots of heavy butchers' cattle were bought for exporters at prices ranging from $4.80 to $5, and, in one instance, $5.25 per cwt. was paid for five or six choice cattle. Bulls were sold from $3.50 to $4 per cwt.

Butchers.

Choice picked lots of finished butchers' are scarce, and prices for them are higher. Out of 3346 cattle on the market, there would not be more than a couple of loads all told that could be classed as choice picked cattle; in fact, we did not see enough to make up one load, but there might have been more. Prices for picked cattle are firm at $4.75 to $5, and one lot of five or six choice heifers was reported sold at $5.25; good butchers' were reported at $4.30 to $4.40; medium, $3.40 to $3.90; common, $3 to $3.20; cows, $2.60 to $4; canners, $1 to $2 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report a dragey market, caused principally by the poor quality of cattle. All of good quality found ready takers, but common class stuff was hard to cash at a reduction of from 25c to 40c per cwt. in price from last week. The Messrs. Murby handled about 250 cattle this week at following prices: Good quality steers, 850 to 1050 lbs., $3.25 to $3.60; feeders, 800 to 900 lbs., $3 to $3.25; good stockers, $2.60 to $3.00; common stockers, $2.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers were large, but the quality was not in keeping with what has been on sale for several markets. Prices ranged from $28 to $65 each, and the average price for good to choice cows would be about $50 each.

Veal Calves.

Good veal calves are scarce. Prices were firm at $3 to $7 per cwt., but there were few at the latter figure.

Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts were the largest of the season, nearly 4000. Prices took a tumble, and drovers had much difficulty in making sales at what the lambs cost in the country. Many drovers complained of having lost money on their shipments. So great was the run of sheep and lambs that every pen was filled and many cattle yards as well. Export ewes sold at $3.25 to $3.50; rams, $2.25 to $2.50; lambs, $4 to $4.50 per cwt.

Hogs.

Receipts of hogs were large, 3626 arriving on the market from all sources. Mr. Harris reported prices unchanged at $6.25 for selects fed and watered and $6 for lights. Drovers report $6.15 and as high as $6.20 being paid in the country at several points, but $6.15 seemed to be the general price f.o.b. cars at country points.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Oct. 15.—Cattle—Receipts, 250 head; steady; prime steers, $5.75 to $6.25.

Veals—Receipts, 600 head; active and steady.

Hogs—Receipts, 6000 head; fairly active and 5c to 10c lower; heavy, $6.20 to $6.05; mixed, $5.75 to $6; yorkers, $5 to $5.90; pigs, $4 to $4.80; stags, $4 to $4.25; dairies and grassers, $5 to $5.75.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 4000 head; steady; lambs active; sheep mixed, $1.50 to $4.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Beeves—Receipts, 1061; feeling unchanged; dressed beef in fair demand at 7½c to 10½c per lb. for native sides; Texas beef at 6c to 7½c. Exports to-day, 29 cattle, 30 sheep and 2500 quarters of beef.

Calves—Receipts, 116; veals, steady; western calves in poor demand and weak; common to good veals, $5 to $8.75 per cwt.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 2633; sheep, firm; lambs, 15c to 25c higher; sheep, $3 to $4.25; lambs, $5 to $6.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 2944; feeling barely steady.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—Cattle—Receipts, 6500; market steady to strong; steers, $4.40 to $7.75; cows, $2.25 to $5.25; heifers, $2 to $4.35; bulls, $2.50 to $4.50; calves, $3.50; stockers and feeders, $2.60 to $4.05.

Hogs—Receipts, 15,000; market 5c to 10c higher; choice heavy shipping, $6 to $6.15; butchers', $5 to $6.15; light mixed, $5.40 to $5.85; choice light, $5.60 to $5.80; packers, $5.25 to $5.85; pigs, $5.50 to $5.15; bulk of sales, $5.80 to $6.

Sheep and lambs—Receipts, 14,000; market steady; sheep, $4.25 to $4.65; lambs, $4.75 to $6; yearlings, $5.25 to $5.

Barbadoes-Canada Trade.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 16.—The preferential tariff adopted by the Legislative Council of Barbadoes providing for reduced rates on certain Canadian products on the condition that Canada reduce her duties on sugar below the present rates, probably will not become operative because of the failure of the British and Canadian Governments to agree to the arrangement, according to Consul Martin.

TWO FAST JUNIOR CITY LEAGUE GAMES ON BILL TO-MORROW

Two good Rugby games are scheduled for to-morrow afternoon at Riverside Park when a double-header will be pulled off in the junior City League. At 2 o'clock the Y.M.C.A. and Collegiate Institute will clash and a grand game should be the result. Dr. McPherson has been working out the school team four afternoons a week and they are in superb shape. The "Y" have not been losing any opportunities to practice either and will be ready for the battle.

The second game between the T.A.S. and Rough Riders should be equally interesting. The abstainers are in much better shape than they were last Saturday and will give the Rough Riders a hard fight. It should be close all the way.

THE GAME TO BE REPLAYED; Y.M.C.A. TEAM WIN PROTEST

The victory of the T.A.S. over the Y.M.C.A. in the Junior City League last Saturday will not count, the executive at a meeting held in the Examiner office last night, deciding to throw out the game and have it replayed. The Y.M.C.A. had protested six of the T.A.S. on the ground that they were over age, and the T.A.S. had a counter protest against the Y.M.C.A., which they dropped, however, last night.

There were present Messrs. R. F. McWilliams, president; J. D. Clarke, secretary; C. E. Simon, Y.M.C.A.; P. Porter, Rough Riders; J. Deannard, T.A.S., and Harry Hall, Collegiate Institute.

The T.A.S. admitted they played men over age, and President McWilliams wanted to award the game to the Y.M.C.A. A vote was taken and the delegates split even on the result. The "Y" were willing to play the game over, and that course was finally decided upon.

There will be two games in the league to-morrow—the Y.M.C.A. and Collegiate Institute at 2 o'clock, and the T.A.S. and Rough Riders in the second game. Two splendid contests should result.

"BILLY" HEWITT HAS FINE OPINION OF WORK OF THE CHICAGO CUBS

Mr. W. A. Hewitt, sporting editor of the Toronto Star, who attended the world's series of games in the interests of that paper, sends the following opinion of the "cubs," which is interesting, coming as it does from a Canadian authority:

Detroit, Oct. 14.—The Chicago Cubs are world's champions again, for the second year in succession, and there is none to deny them the honour. They are admitted on all hands to be the greatest ball team in the world, even the American League magnates, who hate to see any merit whatever in the National League, being forced to acknowledge that the Cubs outclass anything that they have on their circuit, even more so than they outclassed their champions, the Tigers. As one of them remarked to-day, homeward bound from the ball grounds:

"Yes, sir. Start at the catcher and go all the way around to the catcher again, the Cubs have it on anything playing baseball."

Everything favoured the Tigers this year. They had no excuses of a tired and crippled team. The plea of exhaustion was not advanced, as the Cubs, because of accidents at critical stages of the race, had to fight to the last ditch to win the National League pennant, and the Tigers, therefore, went into the series well rested after their victory in the American.

The Cubs have been called "the machine," and that appears to be the most apt description applied to them. They work together magnificently, and while there is no radiating star like Tyrus Cobb, every man fits in like the cog of a perfect-fitting wheel. There is no dearth of good hitting ability, and the tail-end of the batting order is feared as much by opponents as those who have gone before.

But aside from the individual brilliancy of the Cubs, it is the team work that wins. They have speed, ability, brains and every other requisite for a successful team, so how can you beat them?

Ask Hughie Jennings!

LIEUT. HALSWELLE'S STORY OF THE 400 METRE RACE IN OLYMPIC GAMES

Lieut. Halswelle gives the following account of that famous 400-metres race at the Olympic games:

"As regards the 400 metres Olympic race, Carpenter did not strike me any vigorous blows with his elbow, nor were there any marks on my chest, nor did I say that Carpenter struck me or show the marks to any press representative. I did not attempt to pass the Americans until the last corner, reserving my effort for the finishing straight. Here I attempted to pass Carpenter on the outside, since he was not far enough from the kerb to do so on the inside, and I was too close up to have crossed behind him. Carpenter's elbow undoubtedly touched my chest, for as I was moving outwards to pass him he did likewise, keeping his right arm in front of me.

"In this manner he bored me across quite two-thirds of the track, and entirely stopped my running. As I was well up to his shoulder, and endeavouring to pass him it is absurd to say that I could have come up on the inside. I was too close up after half way round the bend to have done this; indeed, to have done so would have necessitated chopping my stride, and thereby losing anything from two to four yards.

"When about 30 or 40 yards from the tape I saw the officials holding up their hands, so slowed up, not attempting to finish all out."

Crushed Under Auto.

Picton, Oct. 16.—Dr. Wm. G. Tyner, aged 30, was found dead early yesterday morning in a swamp on the roadside near this town. His automobile lay on top of him. On his way home he had evidently run off the road in the darkness.

BOWLING TOURNAMENT TO BEGIN AT P.B.C. ALLEYS TO-NIGHT

Everything is now in readiness for the inauguration of the Ten Pin Tournament at the P.B.C. alleys to-night, and a big crowd is expected to witness the opening games of the tournament. All six alleys will be started at eight o'clock, and some of the best bowling in the annals of the game in Ontario should be witnessed. The scores will be posted conspicuously and the spectators will thus be enabled to follow the play from start to finish.

Six teams have been drawn to meet to-night, and they number amongst them some of the cleverest bowlers in Peterboro. The Mysterious Mr. E. will be an added attraction, and his managers say that he will have the hardest work that he has encountered during the week in eluding the amateur sleuths who will be on his trail.

The draw for to-night has been arranged as follows:

FRED WHITCROFT IS HOME ON A VISIT FROM EDMONTON, ALTA.

The many friends of Mr. Fred Whitcroft, the well known Peterborough hockey player, who now resides in Edmonton, Alta., were agreeably surprised when he dropped into town this morning on a short visit to his home here. Fred looks as if the West had thoroughly agreed with him and is the picture of health.

Speaking of hockey matters to the Examiner, he stated that Edmonton would have a great team this winter and would be down East in January after the Stanley Cup, which they confidently expect to carry off. The line-up has been secured and will consist of players of class, but the names he was not prepared to divulge at present. Mr. Whitcroft stated that his visit east was not for the purpose of picking up hockey stars.

He was given a warm welcome back to the city by his friends and has been shaking hands ever since he arrived.

Congratulations Wanted.

On entering his club one evening not long ago a young Philadelphian was accosted by a friend, who exclaimed:

"Why, Charley, you are positively beaming! What's up?"

"I'm in the greatest luck imaginable," responded the other. "You know I've been hanging about a pretty Yonkers girl for almost a year. During all this time she would never admit that she loved me. She would only say that she respected me. But now, old chap, congratulate me, for last night she confessed that she respected me no longer; that she loved me!"—Lippincott's Magazine.

Pat and the Lava.

An Irishman, having returned from Italy, where he had been with his master, was asked in the kitchen, "Now, then, Pat, what is the lava I hear the master talking about?"

"Only a drop of the crater," was Pat's reply.

The Liberal Government has never given an acre of land to a railway corporation since coming into power twelve years ago.

The Liberal Government gave four times as many homesteads in twelve years as the Tories gave in eighteen years of office.

A Girl's View of It.

"We were late," groaned the girl, who was tired, "because we went fifteen blocks out of our way."

"Why did you do that?" asked her brother. "Why didn't you keep your eyes open and take the right car?"

"I did," said the girl. "I knew which way to go, but my escort got confused, and I didn't dare put him on the right track. If I had he never would have forgiven me. I have lost the friendship of three interesting men by that very evidence of strong mindedness. Experience has taught me that next to being caught in a fib the thing that most riles a man is to be guided by a woman. To wander around like a babe in the woods, to retrace his steps a dozen times and finally to arrive somewhere an hour late are blunders that he can cover up with one excuse or another, but for a woman to take the 'lead and say 'We want this car' or 'We must go this way' presupposes a state of lamentable ignorance on his part and makes him hate that woman forevermore."—New York Press.

Wasted Royal Effort.

The king of Wurttemberg while out motoring in the country with the Grand Duke Adolphus of Mecklenburg saw coming toward him a cart drawn by a white horse in which were seated a sturdy old peasant and his wife. As the motor car approached the white horse became very restive, pranced, reared and finally fell down on the roadway. The king and the grand duke immediately ordered the chauffeur to stop and, getting down from the car, went to the assistance of the fallen animal. Meanwhile the two old peasants sat stolidly in the cart and made not the slightest effort to raise the horse. The grand duke seized the creature's head, and the king proceeded to loosen the traces. After a good deal of trouble the horse was got upon its legs again and reharnessed, and then the grand duke addressed the old man in the cart. "There," he said, handing him a coin, "it's all right now, my good man. You can go and tell your friends that the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg picked up your horse and that the king of Wurttemberg helped him." The peasant bit the coin to see if it was good and then replied: "Ye might have saved yourselves all this trouble, for my old horse always lays down when he hears one of those horrid motor cars coming. But as soon as it's past he gets up again of his own accord."—Reliman.

Heroic Hens.

One does not generally ascribe heroism to the useful domestic hen, but in "The Bird Our Brother" Olive Thorne Miller quotes Sir Edward Arnold's story of the bravery displayed by a hen when a ferret escaped from confinement suddenly appeared before her.

She was in charge of a brood of chicks, and the ferret was evidently after something to eat.

"Imagine," says the narrator, "some rural matron abruptly confronted with a dragon or foaming tiger! Terror would paralyze her. She could and would probably do nothing but scream. But this fussy, foolish little Dame Partlett fluffed out her gallant plumage and went for the monster so vigorously, pecking and kicking and bewildering him, that the little ones were safely perched in a small fir tree before the dangerous beast had filled his wicked mouth with her feathers and angrily given up the chase.

"Our glorious order of the V. C. has been awarded for deeds which were the merest child's play compared to the valor of that heroic hen."

A similar devotion was exhibited by this universally misunderstood bird during a disastrous fire in Minnesota, known in the annals of the state as the Hinckley fire. When walking over the ruins, a man discovered a dead hen sitting close on the ground. He poked her with his foot, when she fell over and disclosed a lively little brood of ducks, which ran out, apparently glad to be released. She had protected them with her own life, for she could easily have escaped herself.

Gold.

An assayer waved his hand toward the ingots lying in a corner of the room.

"A good assayer," he said, "can tell at a glance whence a piece of gold came, as a good wool sorter can tell what country's soil gave his fleece its color. It is a matter of color. California gold is yellow, Australia gold is red, and the gold of the Ural is the reddest found anywhere. Placer gold is yellower than that obtained from the quarts, and behind you is an Alaskan placer ingot, the yellowest gold in the world.

The Reason.

Pheeder—I'm always sorry when the shad season is over. It's the only fish I like. I wonder why Providence gives it to us only in the spring—

Crabbe (a rabid pessimist)—I'll bet it's because that's the only season when it has all its bones.

Mysterious "Mr. E." Receives Letter From A Young Lady

The young ladies of the city, at least some of them, sympathize with the Mysterious "Mr. E" in his loneliness. A representative of the feminine sex has written him a letter—not exactly a love letter—but nevertheless she is apparently eager to meet him and she has signed her name. She gives her address as the Y.W.C.A., and "Mr. E" has handed it over to the Examiner:

Y.W.C.A., Peterborough,
October 14, 1908.

To the Mysterious "Mr. E," Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—You, no doubt, know of the great amount of interest your presence has aroused among the people of Peterborough. Yet I am sure that does not compensate you for the loneliness you must feel in a strange city. I can sympathize with you, being a stranger likewise.

I have a plan in mind. How would you like to come over some evening and meet some of the girls, under an assumed name? It certainly would be great sport.

Of course this must not be printed among your adventures, because the rules of the competition are naturally very rigid, and some of the innocent girls here would be blamed.

Now, if you feel disposed to fall in with this plan communicate with

DRINK PLENTY OF GOOD WATER

Also Valuable Recipe to Relieve Kidney Trouble Anyone Can Prepare

TRY THIS AT YOUR HOME

"The people here do not drink enough water to keep healthy," exclaimed a well-known authority. "The numerous cases of kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism are mainly due to the fact that the drinking of water, nature's greatest medicine, has been neglected.

Stop loading your system with medicines and cure-alls; but get on the water waggon. If you are really sick, why, of course, take the proper medicines—plain common vegetable treatment, which will not shatter the nerves or ruin the stomach."

To cure rheumatism you must make the kidneys do their work; they are the filters of the blood. They must be made to strain out of the blood the waste matter and acids that cause rheumatism; the urine must be neutralized so it will no longer be a source of irritation to the bladder, and, most of all, you must keep these acids from forming in the stomach. This is the cause of stomach trouble and poor digestion. For these conditions you can do no better than take the following prescription: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime, but don't forget the water. Drink plenty and often.

This simple information and simple prescription should be posted up in each household and used at the first sign of an attack of rheumatism, backache or urinary trouble, no matter how slight.

WEDDING BELLS

HENNESSEY—PERDUE

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, on Tuesday morning, Oct. 6th, when Miss Polly Perdue was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Herbert Hennessey, of Ennismore. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McGuire, and the wedding march was played by Miss Mollie O'Brien. The bride wore a dress of Alice blue silk, with white picture hat. She was attended by her sister, Miss Kate Perdue, who wore a suit of blue with hat to match. Mr. Michael Hennessey, brother of the groom, was best man. After the ceremony they were conveyed by a handsome team of Peterborough greys to the bride's home. In the evening they left for Peterborough, where they will make their future home.

THE GOVERNMENT AND ZAM-BUK

Survey Out from Fort William Takes This Wonderful Salve

Zam-Buk, the favourite household balm is now adopted as "The Doctor" by leading parties in surveying various parts of the Dominion lands.

Mr. Henry Hall, writing from Fort William, says: "Having proved how beneficial Zam-Buk is in cases of cuts, skin injuries and diseases, I determined to keep a supply handy. Being engaged to go on a survey, I thought it would be a most useful thing to take along. I obtained a supply in Fort William, and very well it was I did so. I may say that pretty nearly every day it was called into requisition by one or other of the party for cuts, bruises, burns or some injury or other. It is wonderful how quickly Zam-Buk takes the soreness out of cuts, burns, bruises, or injuries, and on our survey it earned golden opinions from all who had occasion to try it. I have found it very fine for skin disease, and I can strongly recommend it as a household balm."

Mr. Lascelles Scott, one of the leading Government analysts, says: "I have no hesitation in certifying the entire purity of Zam-Buk, which, in my opinion, is excellently adapted for skin injuries and diseases."

Zam-Buk cures cuts, scalds, burns, bruises, eczema, scalp sores, ringworm, ulcers, abscesses, chapped places, cold sores, blood poisoning, chronic abscesses, etc. As an embrocation it relieves rheumatism, neuralgia and sciatica. All druggists and stores sell at 50c a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Three boxes for $1.25. Send 1-cent stamp for dainty sample box.

INTEREST OVER MATCH IN HAMILTON

Football Men are Anxious to See Hurtubise in Action.

"Gene Hurtubise is a big, powerful fellow and a good wrrestler," said a well known football player last night, "but I think that Wally Barron had it on him in the football field. Gene played snap for Peterborough when that team was in the O.R.F.U., and on several occasions had to stand for a lot of gruelling at the hands of Barron. The Peterborough grappler was always in the thick of the football fray, however, and I guess that Barron was the only man he would take anything from."

When Hurtubise wrestles Conkie's unknown at the Armoury rink on Saturday night, he will have a harder proposition that he ever met on the gridiron. Conkie has been working out with the unknown this week, and thinks that his man will defeat Hurtubise, although Charlie is not an unbiased critic, since Hurtubise won some of his money a few weeks ago.

The match will take place at Armoury hall on Saturday night, and promises to be a corker. As it will be a great football day here, the Ottawa and Hamilton teams will likely attend in a body to see the Peterborough Rugby man in action on the mat.—Hamilton Herald.

T.A.S. READY FOR GAME TO-MORROW

Will Clash With the Strong T. A. A. C. Senior Team.

The T.A.S. Athletic Club's senior Rugby team will journey to Toronto to-morrow, where they will clash with the T.A.A.C. seniors at Rosedale grounds in a senior O.R.F.U. game. The locals have not had much practice but are in fairly good shape and expect to make a creditable showing, although they realize that in the T. A.A.C. they are up against the strongest team in Toronto with the exception of the Varsity fourteen. They had a good practice at Brook street rink last night.

BUSINESS MEN AT THE Y.M.C.A.

N. Laing	6
E. Hamwell	4½
B. Taylor	4
N. McWilliams	3
B. Hunter	1

The next event will be the one mile.

All the Y.M.C.A. Harriers team are asked to be out to-night for the regular run. They will leave the Y.M.C.A. at 9.15.

All Y.M.C.A. senior Rugby men are kindly requested to turn out for practice at Riverside Park sharp at 2 on Saturday.

GENE HURTUBISE IS IN FINE SHAPE

Ready for His Match with Conkie's Unknown in Hamilton To-morrow Night.

Gene Hurtubise is in fine shape for his match in Hamilton to-morrow night with Conkie's "unknown," and the latter will have to be a top-notcher if he hopes to down the local mat artist. Gene has been working out regularly at the Brock street rink, going on last night with Fitzpatrick and Dickson in two hard bouts. He showed great form and is apparently in the best of condition. Local fans will await with interest the outcome of the match. Gene's adversary will undoubtedly be a wrestler of some class, as Conkie knows the mat game thoroughly and may be depended upon to be on hand with a good one.

COURT OF REVISION TO CONSIDER THE APPEALS

The Court of Revision will meet on November 3rd, when the appeals against the assessment for 1909 will be taken up. The falling off in the number of appeals from last year is significant. The time for receiving appeals closed yesterday and the number totals but 76. Last year the appeals reached the remarkable total of 322, so that this year's complaints are not quite one-fourth of those registered in 1907. It is not expected that the Court of Revision will have the difficulty experienced last year.

DOMINION OF CANADA'S NEW SEAT OF EMPIRE ON THE FAR NORTH EASTERN FRONTIER; RICHES OF THE COUNTRY TO BE OPENED TO CIVILIZATION

Old Time Explorers Tell of the Wonderful Flora, Fauna and Wealth That Will be Made Accessible With the Opening of the Hudson Bay Railway

A LAND OF UNTOLD VALUE

(By W. C. KING.)

The recent government announcement of the immediate building of a railway to Hudson Bay has turned all attention to that little-known region. As in the case of all frontier countries, to which attention is suddenly turned, all kinds of stories are told of the new seat of empire, and many men are posing as authorities who have never been nearer the region than the Winnipeg city hall.

The writer of this, W. C. King, is an old frontiersman and has spent years in the country of which he writes. His story of the resources, flora, fauna, distances, character of railway building, will be listened to with interest, for he speaks with greater authority than most. The article follows:

"Port Churchill is situated north of Winnipeg on Hudson Bay, about 600 miles distant from the prairie capital, in, approximately, lat. 58.50, long. 93.30, and when the road is built the following will probably be the route—Winnipeg to Erwood on the C. N.R., thence to Pas junction and from there via Nelson House to Port Churchill on Hudson Bay. At first this will probably be a three-day railway journey. From Churchill to Liverpool, Eng., under favourable circumstances, will take say seven days by fast ocean steamships, the total being ten days for a journey of 4000 miles.

"Commercially, the road's exact value is as yet unknown, but likely to be fabulous. The following are some of the reasons:

"From all points west of Winnipeg, according to locality, it materially reduces railway haulage and adds but very little to the ocean distance, say a matter of two or three hundred miles. On cattle and grain shipped from Calgary or Edmonton it saves over one thousand miles of railway transit, as it involves only a four days' journey to Port Churchill, in lieu of ten days to Montreal. It is needless to remark on the immense saving this alone will effect. Besides there is a moderate temperate climate the whole distance from June 1 to Nov. 1.

"This route means a personal convenience and a saving of expense to the general travelling public, that as yet is little realized. One can embark in Britain or Europe and land in Manitoba with no customs, no questions, no trouble or changes.

Vast Natural Riches

"Exact knowledge of the commercial value and resources of the country to be opened out and developed by the Hudson Bay-Port Churchill route is as yet most limited. All we do know is that the following minerals are widely distributed. The mineral belt of Canada stretches across the continent from Hudson Bay and Labrador to the Pacific, mostly north of latitude 55. The natives and Eskimo have from the beginning of time made use of virgin pure copper for axes, knives, spear heads, arrow heads, fish hooks, pipes, and other purposes. The copper is so soft and pure and so widely distributed that the several bands residing in the Mackenzie River district, Yukon, Great Bear Lake, Great Slave Lake, Athabaska Lake, and Deers Lake to the vicinity of Churchill, select only choice small pieces, suitable for the article to be manufactured, and succeed in beating it into shape between two hard stones. Iron pyrites, which is also very pure, is found, and the Indians temper it to a surprising degree of hardness, sufficient indeed to chop timber and perform all other duties required, fish oil and moath blow pipes being used in the tempering.

"The copper and iron area is immense and almost inexhaustible. Co-

CHATS ABOUT FAMOUS BOOKS AND THEIR AUTHORS

By F. M. D.

There are certain people in the world, well-versed in literature, who profess to hate "chats about books." Clement Shorter, the well-known writer and critic, mentions one of this class in his introduction to "Victorian Literature, Sixty Years of Books and Bookmen." He says: "One writer of great distinction, in literature and in law, informed me that he absolutely hated chatter about books. 'Let the public,' he insisted, 'read these authors, and not talk about them.' This seems to be a case of talking for effect. The great majority of people in this work-a-day world have not the leisure to devour whole tomes of literature, and are glad of the chance offered them of getting some knowledge, superficial though it may be, of those whose names are famous in the bibliography of their own and other countries. To these the purveyors of bit-bits of literature are the truest of benefactors. Following in their footsteps, we can surely find something to while away our few hours of leisure, something to amuse, something to uplift, something to edify.

First, let us note from what humble beginnings the present vast mass of literature has sprung. Its origin is older than most of us are apt to imagine. Far back in one of the earliest dynasties of Egypt, the oldest book of which we have any knowledge came into being. The papyrus relating to this, which Egyptologists claim to be about 4,000 years old, was found by a M. Prisse, a Frenchman, and is now preserved in the National Library at Paris. But this document is only a copy of another which was written quite 2,000 years earlier in the reign of one of the sovereigns of the fifth dynasty! It is only within the last 100 years, however, that the ancient writings, which have been discovered on papyri and the tombstones of Egypt were rendered intelligible by the discovery of the Rosetta Stone in 1799 by a young French officer of engineers, named Boussard, who was engaged in making excavations at Fort St. Julien, near Rosetta, a town at the mouth of the Nile. England, as we know, was at that time at war with France, and the latter country was unable long to keep the stone, as General Hutchinson, on the surrender of the French forces, obtained possession of it, and it now reposes in the British Museum.

The great importance of the Rosetta Stone lies in the fact that from the inscriptions on it, which are in three distinct characters, the hieroglyphic or emblematical, the demotic or common form, and the Greek, learned scholars have been enabled to lay bare to the world the records of the ancient world. The Rosetta Stone itself is of black basalt, and measures 3 feet 9 inches by 2 feet 4 1-2 inches by 11 inches, and recounts a decree promulgated in the year 195 B. C. by the priesthood, assembled at Memphis to do honour to Ptolemy Epiphanes, King of Egypt. "Bible Illustrations" tells us that "in recognition of his benefactions to his country, honours were to be paid to the King's statue, a yearly festival was appointed, and a copy of the decree in hieroglyphics (the priestly form of writing) and in demotic and in Greek, was to be engraved on stone and set up in every temple of the first, second and third orders. The stone of which we speak had been set up for this purpose in the temple, near Rosetta.

Having shown, however briefly and imperfectly, how the ancient literature of Egypt came to be decipherable, let us make a bound of some thousands of years to the first known book in England. Literature had prior to its appearance, flourished for centuries in Greece and Rome. Art also and sculpture had been brought to a great height of perfection. But England, while the Eastern air was throbbing with the very spirit of genius, slumbered still in the lap of savagery.

As in the early literature of the countries to which we have alluded, song was the instrument by which writers sought to convey their thoughts to the people, so in Britain the earliest recorded efforts in literature are couched in verse. The two oldest are Beowulf and Caedmon's Creation. Beowulf is a poem of about 6,000 lines. Its hero is a Danish soldier, who slays a sea monster, Grendel, but is himself slain by a huge dragon. The other poem is by Caedmon, the cowherd of Whitby. The Venerable Bede tells us the story of his inspiration. We find it in Collier's History of English Literature.

"It was the custom in those days for each to sing in turn, as the harp was pushed round the hall at supper. This Caedmon could never do; and when he saw his turn coming he used to slip out of the room, blushing for his want of skill, and eager to hide his shame. One night, having left the hall, he lay down to sleep in the stable; and as he slept he dreamed that a stranger came to him and said, "Caedmon, sing me something." "I know nothing to sing," said the poor herd, "and so I had to slink out of the hall." "Nay," said the stranger, "but thou hast something to sing." "What must I sing?" "Sing the Creation," replied the stranger, upon which words of sweet music began to flow from the lips that had been sealed so long. Caedmon awoke, knew the words he had been reciting and felt a new born power in his

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness—you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you could not explain to the doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. From her vast correspondence with sick women during the past thirty years she may have gained the very knowledge that will help your case. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt the power of to conquer all female diseases.

Mrs. Frank Emsley, Lindsay, Ontario, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"When I wrote to you some time ago, I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had inflammation of the feminine organs and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all women who suffer with female troubles."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

"Ay, we can use them now." Thereupon McNamara roused the commanding officer at the post and requested him to accouter a troop and have them ready to march at daylight, then bestirred the judge to start the wheels of his court and invoke this military aid in regular fashion.

"Make it all a matter of record," he said. "We want to keep our skirts clear from now on."

"But the townspeople are against us," quavered Stillman. "They'll tear us to pieces."

"Let 'em try. Once I get my hand on the ringleader, the rest may riot and be damned."

Although he had made less display than had the judge, the receiver was no less worried about Helen, of whom no news came. His jealousy, fanned to red heat by the discovery of her earlier defection, was enhanced fourfold by the thought of this last adventure. Something told him there was treachery afoot, and when she did not return at dawn he began to fear that she had cast in her lot with the rioters. This aroused a perfect delirium of doubt and anger till he reasoned further that Struve, having gone with her, must also be a traitor. He recognized the menace in this fact, knowing the man's venality, so began to reckon carefully its significance. What could Struve do? What proof had he? McNamara started and, seizing his hat, hurried straight to the lawyer's office and let himself in with the key he carried. It was light enough for him to decipher the characters on the safe lock as he turned the combination, so he set to work scanning the endless bundles within, hoping that after all the man had taken with him no incriminating evidence. Once the searcher paused at some fancied sound, but when nothing came of it drew his revolver and laid it before him just inside the safe door and close beneath his hand, continuing to run through the documents while his uneasiness increased. He had been engaged so for some time when he heard the faintest creak at his back, too slight to alarm and just sufficient to break his tension and cause him to jerk his head about. Framed in the open door stood Roy Glenister watching him.

McNamara's astonishment was so genuine that he leaped to his feet, faced about, and, prompted by a secretive instinct swung to the safe door as though to guard its contents. He had acted upon the impulse before realizing that his weapon was inside and that now, although the door was not locked, it would require that one dangerous, yes, fatal second to open it.

The two men stared at each other for a time, silent and malignant, their glances meeting like blades; in the older man's face a look of defiance, in the younger's a dogged and grim purposed enmity. McNamara's first perturbation left him calm, alert, dangerous, whereas the continued contemplation of his enemy worked in Glenister to destroy his composure, and his purpose blazed forth unhidden.

He stood there unkempt and soiled, the clean sweep of jaw and throat overgrown with a three days' black stubble, his hair wet and matted, his whole left side foul with clay where he had fallen in the darkness. A muddy red streak spread downward from a cut above his temple, beneath his eyes were sagging folds, while the flicker at his mouth corners betrayed the high nervous pitch to which he was keyed.

"I have come for the last act, McNamara. Now we'll have it out man to man."

The politician shrugged his shoulders. "You have the drop on me. I am unarmed." At which the miner's face lighted fiercely, and he chuckled.

"Ah, that's almost too good to be true. I have dreamed about such a thing, and I have been hungry to feel your throat since the first time I saw you. It's grown on me till shooting wouldn't satisfy me. Ever had the feeling? Well, I'm going to choke the life out of you with my bare hands."

McNamara squared himself.

"I wouldn't advise you to try it. I have lived longer than you, and I was never beaten, but I know the feeling you speak about. I have it now."

His eyes roved rapidly up and down the other's form, noting the lean thighs and close drawn belt, which lent the appearance of sparseness, belied only by the neck and shoulders. He had beaten better men, and he reasoned that if it came to a physical test in these cramped quarters his own great weight would more than offset any superior agility the miner might possess. The longer he looked the more he yielded to his hatred of the man before him and the more cruelly he longed to satisfy it.

"Take off your coat," said Glenister. "Now turn around. All right! I just wanted to see if you were lying about your gun."

"I'll kill you!" cried McNamara.

Glenister laid his six shooter upon the safe and slipped off his own wet garment. The difference was more marked now and the advantage more strongly with the receiver. Though they had avoided allusion to it, each knew that this fight had nothing to do with the Midas and each realized whence sprang their fierce enmity. And it was meet that they should come together thus. It had been the one certain and logical event which they had felt inevitably approaching from long back. And it was fitting, moreover, that they should fight alone and unwitnessed, armed only with the weapons of the wilderness, for they were both of the far, free lands, were both of the fighter's type and had both warred for the first great prize.

They met ferociously. McNamara aimed a fearful blow, but Glenister met him squarely, beating him off cleverly, stepping in and out, his arms swinging loosely from his shoulders like whalebone withes tipped with lead. He moved lightly, his footing made doubly secure by reason of his soft soled mukluks. Recognizing his opponent's greater weight, he undertook merely to stop the headlong rushes and remain out of reach as long as possible. He struck the politician fairly in the mouth so that the man's head snapped back and his fists went wild, then, before the arms could grasp him, the miner had broken ground and whipped another blow across, but McNamara was a boxer himself, so covered and blocked it. The politician spat through his mashed lips and rushed again, sweeping his opponent from his feet. Again Glenister's fist shot forward like a lump of granite, but the other came on head down and the blow finished too high, landing on the big man's brow. A sudden darting agony paralyzed Roy's hand, and he realized that he had broken the metacarpal bones and that henceforth it would be useless. Before he could recover McNamara had passed under his extended arm and seized him by the middle, then, thrusting his left leg back of Roy's, he whirled him from his balance, flinging him clear and with resistless force. It seemed that a fatal fall must follow, but the youth squirmed catlike in the air, landing with set muscles which rebounded like rubber. Even so, the receiver was upon him before he could rise, reaching for the young man's throat with his heavy hands. Roy recognized the fatal "strangle" hold and, seizing his enemy's wrists, endeavored to tear them apart, but his left hand was useless, so with a mighty wrench he freed himself, and, locked in each other's arms, the men strained and swayed about the office till their neck veins were bursting, their muscles paralyzed.

Men may fight duels calmly, may shoot or parry or thrust with cold deliberation, but when there comes the jar of body to body, the sweaty contact of skin to skin, the play of iron muscles, the painful gasp of exhaustion—then the mind goes skittering back into its dark recesses while every venomous passion leaps forth from its hiding place and joins in the horrid war.

They tripped across the floor, crashing into the partition, which split, showering them with glass. They fell and rolled in it, then, by consent, wrenched themselves apart, rose, eye to eye, their jaws hanging, their lungs wheezing, their faces trickling blood and sweat. Roy's left hand pained him excruciatingly, while McNamara's mastered lips had turned outward in a hideous pout. They crouched so for an instant, cruel, bestial—then clinched again. The office fittings were wrecked utterly, and the room became a litter of ruins. The men's garments fell away till their breasts were bare and their arms swelled white and knotted through the rags. They knew no pain, their bodies were insensate mechanisms.

Gradually the older man's face was beaten into a shapeless mass by the other's cunning blows, while Glenister's every bone was wrenched and twisted under his enemy's terrible onslaughts. The miner's chief effort, it is true, was to keep his feet and to break the man's embraces. Never had he encountered one whom he could not beat by sheer strength till he met this great, snarling creature who worried him hither and yon as though he were a child. Time and again Roy beat upon the man's face with the blows of a sledge. No rules governed this solitary combat; the men were deaf to all but the roaring in their ears, blinded to all but hate, insensible to everything but the blood mania. Their trampling feet caused the building to rumble and shake as though some monster were running amuck.

Meanwhile a bareheaded man rushed out of the store beneath, bumping into a pedestrian who had paused on the sidewalk, and together they scurried up the stairs. The dory which Roy had seen at sea had shot the breakers, and now its three passengers were tracking through the wet sand toward Front street, Bill Wheaton in the lead. He was followed by two rawboned men who traveled without baggage. The city was awakening with the sun which reared a copper rim out of the sea. Judge Stillman and Voorhees came down from the hotel and paused to gaze through the mists at a caravan of mule teams which trotted into the other end of the street with jingle and clank. The wagons were blue with soldiers, the early golden rays slanting from their Krags, and they were bound for the Midas.

Out of the fogs which clung so thickly to the tundra there came two other horses, distorted and unreal, on one a girl, on the other a figure of pain and tragedy, a grotesque creature that swayed stiffly to the motion of its steed, its face writhed into lines of suffering, its hands clutching cantle and horn.

It was as though fate, with invisible touch, were setting her stage for the last act of this play, assembling the principals close to the golden sands where first they had made entrance.

The man and the girl came face to face with the judge and marshal, who cried out upon seeing them, but as they reined in, out from the stairs beside them a man shot amid clatter and uproar.

"Give me a hand—quick!" he shouted to them.

"What's up?" inquired the marshal. "It's murder! McNamara and Glenister!" He dashed back up the steps behind Voorhees, the judge following, while muffled cries came from above.

The gambler turned toward the three men who were hurrying from the beach and, recognizing Wheaton, called to him: "Untie my feet! Cut the ropes! Quick!"

"What's the trouble?" the lawyer asked, but on hearing Glenister's name bounded after the judge, leaving one of his companions to free the rider. They could hear the fight now and all crowded toward the door, Helen with her brother, in spite of his warning to stay behind.

She never remembered how she climbed those stairs, for she was borne along by that hypnotic power which drags one to behold a catastrophe in spite of his will. Reaching the room, she stood appalled; for the group she had joined watched two raging things that rushed at each other with inhuman cries, ragged, bleeding, fighting on a carpet of debris. Every loose and breakable thing had been ground to splinters as though by iron slugs in a whirling cylinder.

To this day, from Dawson to the straits, from Unga to the arctics, men tell of the combat wherever they foregather at flaring campfires or in dingy bunkhouses, and, although some scout the tale, there are others who saw it and can swear to its truth. These say that the encounter was like the battle of bull moose in the rutting season, though more terrible, averring that two men like these had never been known in the land since the days of Vitus Bering and his crew; for their rancor had swollen till at feel of each other's flesh they ran mad and felt superhuman strength. It is true, at any rate, that neither was conscious of the filling room, nor the cries of the crowd, even when the marshal forced himself through the wedged door and fell upon the nearest, which was Glenister. He came at an instant when the two had paused at arm's length, glaring with rage drunken eyes, gasping the labored breath back into their lungs.

With a fling of his long arms the young man hurled the intruder aside so violently that his head struck the iron safe and he collapsed insensible. Then without apparent notice of the interruption, the fight went on. It was seen during this respite that McNamara's mouth was running water as though he were deathly sick, while every retch brought forth a groan. Helen heard herself crying, "Stop them! Stop them!" But no one seemed capable of interference. She heard her brother muttering and his breath coming heavily like that of the fighters, his body swaying in time to theirs. The judge was ashy, imbecile, helpless.

SUFFERED TORTURES FOR 70 YEARS

Wife of a Prominent Physician Tells How She Was Cured.

Mrs. J. R. Flock is the widow of one of the best known physicians in London, Ontario. She was treated by her husband and many other medical men yet never received any lasting benefit. Just by accident, she tried a well-known remedy, and now, after 70 years of suffering, she is well. Read her letter to Fruit-a-tives Limited.

"Dear Sirs,—Since my early childhood (and I am now in my seventy-third year) I have suffered indescribable torment from stomach trouble and indigestion, complicated with liver disorders. Being the wife of a prominent physician (the late Dr. J. R. Flock), I, naturally enough, had a prejudice against proprietary remedies. I was, however, unable to benefit to any great extent through my lifetime, from taking the ordinary remedies of physicians, being constantly in delicate health from stomach disorder and vomiting. Accidentally I came into possession of a sample of "Fruit-a-tives"—tried them, and found myself wonderfully benefitted. I take them now as my only medicine and they are keeping me in the most satisfactory health.

After finding out the wonderful medicinal qualities of "Fruit-a-tives" I have recommended them to many of my friends and acquaintances, who have also had the best results from their use—and one lady friend that I have recently recommended them to has used them for Sciatica, from which she suffered constantly and was unable to procure any remedy that would relieve her. She is now taking "Fruit-a-tives" and is cured.

I am glad to be able to recommend "Fruit-a-tives" and will be glad if you will use my name in any way that will be the means of bringing your remedy before the public."

Elizabeth's Position.

By CARL WILLIAMS.

Copyrighted, 1903, by Associated Literary Press.

Elizabeth found the town formidable as she emerged from the station to face the horde of shouting hackmen. At other times she had come to the city with a party or she had been met by the people whose guest she was to be. This time she came alone to face the new life which graduation and a determination to make a career had opened up to her.

In her pocketbook was $50, a card with the home address upon it in case of accident and a clipping from the Moreton Century. These were the shield and buckler in the fight she was to make for success. The money would keep her going until she obtained a position and the clipping would cheer her. It was written in the editor's best style and ran:

Miss Elizabeth Cady, whose graduation essay on "The Wider Scope of Woman's Sphere" was the sensation of the high school exercises, will leave for the city Monday to become a valued recruit in the great army of commerce. We predict that it will not be long before our accomplished townswoman leaves the ranks to assume an important position of command.

With such an augury for her future Elizabeth could not turn back. Her mother had sent marked copies to all their relatives, and, for her mother's sake as well as her own, Elizabeth felt that she must succeed.

She swallowed the lump that came into her throat and headed for the street car. In other days she had always taken a cab, but now she felt that she could not afford the expense. It was at the time when toilers were returning to their homes and the cars were crowded to the rails, but she bravely climbed aboard and thankfully accepted a strap with the feeling that she was already one of the workers.

The Home For Self Supporting Girls, to which she had been recommended, was vastly different from the accommodations to which she was accustomed. The tiny room with its two iron cots and its duplication of bureaus and rockers sharply marked the line that separated the two girls domiciled together.

There was no homelike air about the place, and the chill atmosphere of the dining room found a responsive chill in her heart. She went to bed early, feeling that she must stifle her sobs to avoid annoying her roommate.

She lay in the narrow bed thinking of the dainty room at home, with its white dimity hangings and its great white bed. If she had listened to Joe Trenton she would be there tonight, dreaming of the time when she and Joe would have a home of their own.

A score of times Joe had proposed, but Elizabeth had made the career of woman her fetich and she would not sacrifice her freedom. Joe's last effort had been ill timed, for he had spoken on the night of her graduation, when the plaudits of the audience still rang in her ears and bits of the essay echoed loud and clear.

"Perhaps—when I have found my career," the girl had promised gently, "but don't you see that to turn back now upon my own principles would be false to myself? Others, looking to me for example, might be tempted to turn back too."

"What if they did?" argued the man. "Do you have to put happiness from you just to practice what you preach?"

"Of course," she cried. "We who would lead must be prepared to sacrifice."

In the elation of the moment she had pictured herself a leader of her sex. She did not bold with the extremists who argued that woman should vote and rule the nation, but she had given herself heart and soul to the theory that a woman had a right to a career, and she was her own most enthusiastic convert.

Now she regretted her stand as she choked back her sobs, but when morning came she was again strong in her resolve. She sallied forth with a list of addresses. Toward evening she returned. The list had proved unfruitful, and the kindly faced woman at the desk offered words of encouragement that fell upon ears too tired to grasp their meaning.

That day was but the first of many. Wearily she trudged from place to place, but the demand was for skilled workers. Some seemed willing to give her a trial if she would serve for varying periods without pay, but this was out of the question. She must have a position by the time her slender resources were exhausted or she must return home and confess failure.

The thought preyed upon her mind, and daily she grew thinner and more worried until the little woman at the desk, whose big, motherly heart was great enough to embrace her whole brood, sighed to see her. With a beaming face she came to Elizabeth's room during the sixth week of her stay and announced a visitor. Elizabeth, thinking that one of the many men who had taken her address had come to announce the reconsideration of his refusal, made herself tidy and with uncertain tread hurried to the parlor, where a half dozen other girls were entertaining callers. With a little gasping cry she stumbled toward Joe Trenton, who sprang forward to greet her.

"I didn't know that you were in town," she cried when the greeting was over and they were sitting in the seclusion of a corner. "Why didn't you let me know that you were coming?"

"No time!" exclaimed the man. "I had a sudden call to town, and I thought that I'd look you up. Let's go over to the park and get some fresh air, and I'll tell you all the gossip that the Century hasn't printed."

Elizabeth hurried for her hat, and presently they were making for the tiny park near the home. Elizabeth had seen it only in passing, for there was no energy left after her day's search for employment. Now the soft grasses reminded her of home, and it was a wistful face that she turned to Joe when they had found a bench.

"Tell me about Morton," she commanded, but Joe shook his head.

"All in its turn. Tell me about yourself first. Got a job?"

"Not yet." Elizabeth was glad that the dark concealed her flaming cheeks. "I think I shall have a position in a day or two, but things are very dull here just at present."

"They're dull everywhere," was the listless comment. "I was looking around a bit today. Don't you think, Bess, that you ought to leave the jobs to the girls who really need them when there are so few?"

Elizabeth was startled. Here seemed to be a chance to get back home without appearing to surrender.

"What do you mean?" she asked tensely.

"There are lots more girls than there are jobs," he explained. "Now, some of them will have to get left if the girls who are clever, but who don't really need to work, get their places.

"You'll be tickled to death to land this position you have in mind, but maybe some girl who might have had it if you had not come will be crying her eyes out because she was not as clever as you and is still hunting a place. You have a father to support you. Maybe the girl who might have had the job has others to support."

Elizabeth's hands clasped so tightly together that her rings bit into the soft flesh. For the last two weeks she had been nerving herself to admit failure, to go back home and confess that the city had beaten her. Joe was offering her retreat with honor. It seemed almost too good to be true.

"Don't you see," argued Trenton, "that you really owe it to others to delay your campaign until the demand exceeds the supply? It's only fair to those who need the work."

"Perhaps you are right," assented Elizabeth, with a show of hesitation. "Of course it is hard to give up one's ambition, but I guess you are right, Joe."

"I know of a job that you could get that would not put any one else out," suggested Joe, as though suddenly inspired.

"What is it?" she asked eagerly.

"Housekeeper—for me," he explained, with a chuckle.

Elizabeth drew back for a moment. She did not want to seem to surrender too quickly, and yet—he had shown her the way out. She put her hand in his.

"I'll take the place," she said quietly.

She had gone up the stairs to her room with a promise to meet him at the station in the morning, and Joe turned to the gentle faced woman, who still sat at her desk.

"You're right," he said gratefully. "That argument won out. We're awfully obliged to you for writing—her folks—and me."

"I am very glad that I could help," was the gentle response. "I hope that you two will be very happy."

"I didn't say anything about that!" cried Joe in surprise.

The gentle faced woman only smiled. For ten years she had mothered numberless girls. She did not have to be told that Elizabeth had found her position.

McDermid & Jury

A Division of Purpose.

Some years ago the Yankee schooner Sally Ann, under command of Captain Spooner, was beating up the Connecticut river. Mr. Comstock, the mate, was at his station forward. According to his notion of things the schooner was getting a "leetle" too near certain mud flats which lay along the larboard shore. So aft he went to the captain and, with his hat cocked on one side, said:

"Cap'n Spooner, you're getting a leetle too close to them flats. Hadn't you better go about?"

The captain glared at him.

"Mr. Comstock, jest you go for'ard and tend to your part of the skuner. I'll tend to mine."

Mr. Comstock went for'ard in high dudgeon.

"Boys," he bellowed out, "see that that er mud hook's all clear for lettin' go."

"Aye, aye, sir!"

"Let go, then!" he roared.

Down went the anchor, out rattled the chains, and like a flash the Sally Ann came luffing into the wind and then brought up all standing. Mr. Comstock walked aft and touched his hat.

"Well, cap'n, my part of the skuner is to anchor."—Everybody's.

Men Should Brush Their Hair More.

"Very few men brush their hair enough," said a downtown barber. "Fact. Most ills of the scalp can be traced to that fault. You see it's this way: A man is generally in a hurry when he dresses, and he never takes time to brush his hair—simply smooths it down, generally only with a comb—and as a result dandruff is allowed to accumulate and trouble begins. Now, with a woman it's different. A woman has to carefully brush her hair at least once a day. If she didn't it would be a pretty mess. It's very length saves her, for in brushing it each day she gets out all sorts of impurities, dandruff and the like, all of which is for her own good. Now, that is the chief reason why fewer women suffer from dandruff than the unfortunate members of the opposite sex, and it is also the reason why the hair is a woman's crowning glory even if she is fair, fat and forty. So brush your hair every morning thoroughly if you want to keep in the swim."—Philadelphia Record.

U. S. First Mail Service.

The first record contained in U. Sick Twenty Years, Had Given Up All Hope.

Peruna Relieved After All Else Had Failed.

Chronic Internal Catarrh.

Many an invalid is dragging out a miserable existence with catarrh of the internal organs. There is no disease equal to this in producing complete wretchedness, absolute despair, haggard misery, and stubborn weakness.

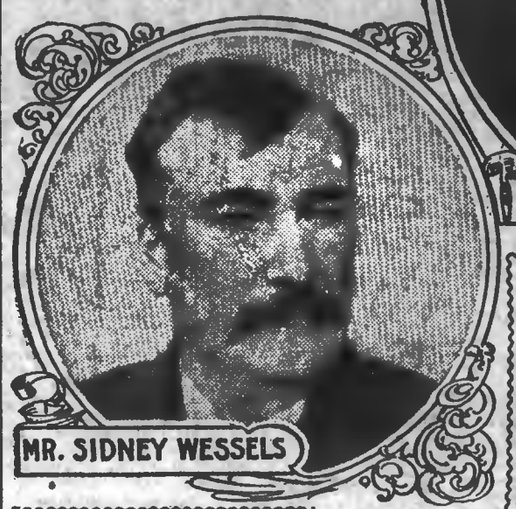
An army of this sort of victims have one by one discovered that Peruna could be relied upon to relieve such cases.

One man tells another man, and in this way the news spreads until in all parts of the country are to be found men who have been permanently liberated from the thraldom of internal troubles.

Many cases of catarrh of the stomach, kidneys and other abdominal organs have reported themselves as permanently relieved.

We give below testimonials which illustrate the benefit of Peruna in these cases.

MR. ABNER N. KEEP



MR. SIDNEY WESSELS

Grown Young Again.

Mr. Abner N. Keep, Vineland, Ontario, Can., writes: "For over twenty years I was a sufferer from catarrh and had tried almost everything I could hear of. I doctored with physicians in Philadelphia and Buffalo, besides with specialists in Nebraska, but did not get relief.

"Finally, after being exhausted in health and funds, I decided to try Peruna. This was after moving to this country two years ago.

"One bottle of Peruna gave relief. After taking five bottles I was sound and well.

"I am eighty-two years old and feel as good to-day as when I was in my thirties.

"I give this for the benefit of the afflicted in general, as I am but one of many in this country who know what it is to contend with sickness and pay out the last dollar in doctor bills."

Appetite Returned, Enjoys Meals.

Mr. Sidney Wessels, Meriton Ontario, Can., writes:

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia and indigestion for twenty years, during which time I tried different doctors, but did not get the desired results.

"I have been compelled for weeks at a time to give up work, being completely prostrated. I had to confine myself to a milk diet, as nothing would remain on my stomach.

"I had about given up, thinking my case incurable, when I heard of Peruna and decided to try it.

"One bottle made a great change, and after using another bottle of this wonderful medicine, I had complete freedom from pain, my appetite had returned and I could again enjoy my meals. I believe Peruna is the grandest medicine under the sun."

Mr. Robert E. Hanvey, Treas. Knights of Industrial Freedom, also a well-known writer and lecturer, writes from 118 Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill., as follows:

"I was in good health until about four years ago, when my back became lame and sore. The pains kept increasing with severe twitches and slow, exhaustive aches. Urine was highly colored and passed with great irregularity.

"I knew this must be inflammation of the urinary organs.

"Having read of Peruna I decided to try it.

"I found relief from the pain within ten days. The aches gradually diminished, and it was a blessed relief I can assure you.

"Within three months I was well once more. My appetite had returned, nervousness and irritability were things of the past, and for over two years now I have been a healthy man."

Mr. H. L. Emory, Vice Chancellor and Master of Arms, K. P.'s, of Omaha, Neb., writes from 205 North Sixteenth St., the following words of praise for Peruna as a tonic. He says:

"It is with pleasure I recommend Peruna as a tonic of unusual merit. A large number of prominent members of the different orders with which I have been connected have been cured by the use of Peruna in cases of catarrh of the stomach and head; also in kidney complaint and weakness of the pelvic organs.

"Peruna tones up the system, aids digestion, induces sleep, and is well worthy the confidence of sufferers of the above complaints."

Peruna has saved many people from disaster by rendering the kidneys service when they were not able to bear their own burdens.

Rural Telephone Proving a Great Boon to Farmers

In Sickness and in Ordinary Every Day Use It Saves Money and is a Great Convenience.

COST IS NOT VERY HEAVY

From The Canadian Dairyman.

"The farmer who has used the rural telephone could no more dispense with it than he could with the postoffice. There certainly is no better investment of money that a farmer can possibly make than the $10 or $15 per year that he pays for his telephone.

"In Haldimand county, where the natural gas is a wonderful convenience for heating and lighting, and almost every farmer has a gas well, he will frankly tell you that he would prefer to go back to the wood stove and coal oil lamp rather than be without the use of the telephone."

The practical value to the farmer of the rural telephone was thus expressed by Mr. Byron Gee, Selkirk, Ont., secretary and manager of the Erie Telephone Co., who attended the Independent Telephone Convention at the City Hall in Toronto recently. "I used the telephone on my farm east of Selkirk for two years before I moved into town, so that I know whereof I speak," he added. "A farmer, after getting accustomed to a 'phone in his house, simply couldn't get along without it.

"I know one farmer who saved a horse by being able to telephone to a veterinary surgeon, and thus getting him out twice as quick as by driving to town for him. Another case I know of, where a barn was struck by lightning in the night. The fire signal was 'phoned to the farmers around, and a dozen of them had gathered in time to save part of the contents of the barn, which could never have been done if help had not been so speedily secured. In the same way a doctor can be summoned in case of sickness in the family, and there are, doubtless, times when a man would give a thousand dollars to be able to communicate directly with a physician. You see then that in all such emergencies the rural telephone is invaluable.

"But for ordinary every-day use it is also worth ten times the yearly cost of the 'phone. A farmer can telephone to town and get the market prices, and easily save the cost of his 'phone by landing what he has to sell on the market when the prices are right. Likewise, he can inquire about trains, make engagements or obtain information that will save him an endless amount of time and travel.

"Think of the convenience to the farmer also to be able to go to the 'phone after dinner and arrange with this or that farmer near-by any little business they have together without walking or driving to him. The women, too, find the telephone a boon they could not now do without. When the farmer is away all day or for a couple of days, how handy it is for his wife to 'phone to her neighbors or friends, or in to town if necessary. She can also make her engagements over the 'phone or inquire about meetings or anything else going on in the neighborhood. As a means of facilitating social intercourse it is of the utmost value, and the rural telephone on this score alone would be well worth the investment.

"Our company began business in April, 1906," Mr. Gee continued, "and we have now 600 subscribers, and will have from 700 to 750 by the end of the year, for we have more applications than we are able to supply. The farmers pay $12 a year, which covers the installation of the 'phone, and gives them free connection with their market town. They pay a small fee to 'phone outside their own district exchange, but this would not cost them more than $2 or $3 in a year. We have no connection with the Bell Telephone Company because they demand an option to purchase our whole system, and also that we buy all telephone supplies from them. These conditions we refuse to agree to. We have five exchanges respectively about the towns of Selkirk, Fisherville, Cayuga, Hagersville and Jarvis.

"On a nine-mile line east of Selkirk there are 53 farmers who have 'phones, and only five farmers without them. We farmers intended organizing as a mutual company, but our solicitor advised us to make it a joint stock company, and we did so. The dividends for the first year were six per cent., and for the second year ten per cent.

"The telephone is the greatest boon that has come to the farmer in a long time," Mr. Gee concluded, "and he is the man who needs it—a great deal more than your resident in the city."

VALUE OF SOUNDNESS IN HORSES

Farmers do not Seem to be Able to Detect it and Thus do not Realize it.

From The Canadian Dairyman.

That many do not realize the value of soundness in horses is plainly evidenced by the many old, broken down brood mares showing with foal at foot at the local fall fairs. That many are incapable of recognizing unsoundness in horses is shown by the large number of unsound horses exhibited. No sane man who is conversant with the horse business would expect to win a prize with an unsound horse, yet year after year, unsound horses are paraded before the judges in the hope of getting a prize. The owners of such horses either are unable to detect unsoundness or they depend for their winning chance upon the possibility of the judge overlooking or being incompetent to discover such defects.

If there is one thing above another that demands great emphasis in the horse ring it is this matter of discounting unsoundness. A judge should put his foot upon it wherever it is detected. Not under any circumstances should an unsound horse get within the prize money. The exhibiting public cannot be taught too soon that unsoundness will not go in the showing.

It is hard to believe that owners of horses that are afflicted with one or more forms of unsoundness to which the horse is heir, would exhibit them in the hope of being awarded a prize. While we realize that there are exceptions, we must account for such subjects appearing in the ring as being due to the lack of ability on the part of their owners to detect such deformities.

If then we cannot expect farmers, who exhibit horses, to detect unsoundness, how much less can we expect the average farmer who raises a few colts each year to detect such. Surely the need for legislation, calling for a qualified veterinarian's certificate of soundness for each and every stallion that stands for the public service, is apparent.

CREAMERY WILL NEVER TAKE THE PLACE OF DAIRY

From the Canadian Dairyman

While the creamery is essential to the development of butter-making, as a national industry, it will never altogether displace the private dairy. Where there are a sufficient number of farmers in a section to support a successful creamery, one should be established. There is less labor in sending the cream to the creamery and having it made into butter on the co-operative plan than in making the butter at home, and the returns are usually better.

There are many individual farmers, however, who are not adjacent to a creamery, or who are in a cheese district, but prefer to make butter, that will find a private dairy a paying investment, if operated in the right way. The old fashioned way of making butter will not do. It must be made after the modern plan, and be of a quality that will command a ready market. There is nothing to prevent as good butter being made on a farm as in a creamery, providing the same system of separating the cream and in churning and working the butter is followed. There are private dairymen to-day making butter who get as good a price for their product as any creamery does. But they understand their business and conduct it along approved lines.

In a private dairy the conditions should be most favorable for making good butter. The maker not only has control of the cream but he has control of the cows, their feed, and the milking and separating of the cream. From the beginning to the end of the process, he can keep an oversight over things, and if he understands his business, should turn out a quality of product second to none. Many private dairymen are doing this and others desiring to or compelled to make their own butter, should follow their example. The butter must not only be of good quality but must be put on the market in first-class shape. Many good butter makers fail in this regard. They neglect those little things connected with the marketing of the product that are essential in obtaining the highest price and in retaining their customers.

The cream separator is a great help to the private butter-maker. It enables him to obtain a uniform grade of cream, and to care for the cream in the best way. A striking example of this came to the writer's notice a few weeks ago. A farmer out of reach of a creamery or cheese factory was compelled to make his own butter. He purchased a separator, and began operations after the approved plan, putting the butter in pound prints. The butter made at the time of our visit was of very fine quality, and as good as any creamery. It commanded ready sale at the village store. In fact the storekeeper supplied the wrappers, free of cost, with his own name and brand printed on them, and made a special feature of selling the butter. On the adjoining farm, where the conditions were more favorable for caring for the cream, there being a cold spring near the house, no separator was used. The butter was a very low grade as compared with the other; the flavor was bad, and the quality inferior. It may not be fair to ascribe the better quality of the butter made in the former case to the use of the separator. But so far as we could see in the different methods followed, it had a great deal to do with it. There is this about it, a farmer with a few cows, who invests in a cream separator will give more attention to the business. The care necessary in operating a separator successfully, becomes a habit, and is carried through the entire process. The separator must be made to pay for itself and this it will not do, if the cream is not cared for properly, and the butter made and handled in a slovenly way.

As to the market for dairy butter, there should be no trouble on that score, so long as the quality is good. First class butter will command a good price, no matter whether made in a creamery or not. The farmer with the separator mentioned above, found a market for his butter among some of the patrons of a cheese factory a few miles away. The buyers came to the farm for it and willingly paid the same price that the storekeeper paid when delivered at his store. In other cheese centres, where patrons prefer to send all the milk to the factory, and buy butter for their own use, a private dairy can obtain a good market for its butter during the summer months.

The help problem has to be reckoned with in private butter-making. Unless the farmer is so situated as to have plenty of help, and has the facilities for making good butter, it is better to patronize a creamery, if there is one handy. Even under favorable conditions, both as to help and facilities, it may pay to do so. A well managed creamery will always give a good return, and the farmer has not the worry of sending to market for his product, and getting his pay therefor.

WEIR & O'BRIEN

ARCH. WEIR JAMES O'BRIEN

Grateful To Hiram.

By ANNA MUNSON.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

No one would have thought of Hi Tremway in connection with the tender passion. In Lakehead he had the reputation of being a woman hater of the most pronounced description, and Martha Curtis, a maiden lady of very certain age, who had "designs" on Hi, was the only person in all the Lake Loma district of whom the grizzled woodsman was afraid.

For that reason it seemed strange that Hi should take such an interest in the affair between Norma Downing and Bryce Logan. The Downings had a camp at the upper end of Lake Loma, and it was Gordon Downing who loaned money to Hi for the purchase of the gasoline launch in which he made morning and evening trips around the lake.

Loma, with its alternate bluffs and valleys, was largely dependent on this water bus for service. The wagon road ran far back into the woods to escape the uneven shore, and a trip by the road to the Downing camp was a matter of several hours. In the boat it required less than an hour, even when stops were made at the other camps, and Gordon Downing was regarded as a public benefactor when he started his water express.

Bryce Logan had come only that spring, but none of the regulars was regarded with greater favor by Tremway than this jolly young fellow. Logan always had a pleasant word and a cigar for the expressman when Hi drew into his dock with the mail and supplies.

"I HEARD YOUR PA SAY HE'S GOIN' TO TAKE YOU TO 'TURRUP.'"

Then, too, there were notes to be carried to the Downing camp and letters to be brought in reply. More than once Hi had arranged for a moonlight trip around the lake and had given his strict attention to the motor and the steering wheel, yet he could not help gathering that for some unreasonable prejudice Gordon Downing was opposed to the match between the two.

This fact caused Hi to think that the banker was not as clever as he was generally considered to be, since any man in his sober senses would be glad to have Bryce Logan for a son-in-law.

So matters stood when from the Pullman special there stepped on to the Lakehead platform a portly form that every one recognized as that of Gordon Downing.

It was the invariable habit of the banker to spend August with his family, and his appearance in the middle of July caused a little ripple of speculation. Sensations were few in Lakehead, and even so natural a happening as the anticipation of a vacation caused talk for want of better conversational topics.

Only Hi realized that there might be some connection between this untimely visit and the presence of Bryce Logan at the lake. He knew that Bryce had planned to return to town before the banker should arrive, and he guessed that some word of Logan's presence there had reached the capitalist, the more particularly as there was a glint in Downing's eyes that betokened trouble.

When the new arrival reached the landing he found Hi bent over the motor tinkering with its parts, failing to evoke the responsive pant that announced the conclusion of the repairs.

"I'm sorry, colonel," he cried as he looked up and pretended to see Downing's wrathful face. "It just had to happen that the motor would break down the day you came. I ain't had no trouble all season until now; no, sir, not one little speck of trouble. Better leave your trunk and I'll fetch it over this evening. I guess I'll have it ready by then. Jim Saunders 'll take you over in one of his rigs."

Downing raved and swore at the thought of a four hour trip in a stiff riding buckboard, but Hi held out no hope, and presently the city man went rattling off behind a sorry pair of nags that constituted the livery service of Lake Loma.

Twenty minutes later, when Hi judged that the buckboard was well inland, the motor recovered its powers as though by a miracle, and, casting off the painter, Hi started up the lake. The postmaster, who had come down with the mail for the camps, called after him that he had forgotten the letters, but Hi's only response was a wave of the hand and the reports of the motor changed into a steady hum as the highest speed was thrown on.

Along the lake the campers, anxiously watching for the mail, were surprised to see the launch shoot past with a short toot of the whistle in lieu of the mail.

No stop was made until Logan's camp came in sight, and Bryce himself came running down to the landing.

"Gordon Downing's come," announced Hi. "I pretended that the boat was busted, and he's on his way to his camp with Jim Saunders' rig. It'll be a good three hours before he gets there. If you really want the girl we'll go and get her. It's an hour back to the landing, and before Downing finds out and can get back to Lakehead we'll be over in the next state, where you don't need a license. Are you coming?"

"You bet I am," cried Logan as he sprang into the boat. "I'll get a coat on the way back. Come on, Hi, let's get in motion."

"You don't need a coat," growled Hi. "I guess Miss Norma 'll marry you without a coat."

"I hope so," answered Logan gayly. "The main thing, Hi, is to get her to marry me."

There was a little point which formed a bay for the Downing camp, and on this point Norma was accustomed to wait for the launch and obtain Logan's letters. They found her now awaiting Hi's arrival, and the guide steered for the shore.

Hi turned his back on the greeting, but turned again to add his arguments to Logan's.

"You'd better, Miss Norma," he urged. "I heard your pa say he's goin' to take you to 'Turrup' to get you away from Mr. Logan. He knows that he's here, and you know your pa when his eyes get small and he smiles. You bean there, I guess. That's the way he looked when he started, and Jim Saunders' rig ain't goin' to help his temper none."

The threat of separation persuaded Norma, and Logan helped her into the launch. In another moment they were headed for Lakehead, and the whirring motor shook the boat as Hi crowded on every ounce of power.

With a straight run they were soon at Lakehead landing, and while Hi tied up the boat and thoughtfully removed the sparking plug Logan went in search of a rig. He returned presently with a team and drew up at the landing.

"Come ahead, Hi," he shouted. "We want you to be the best man. Jump in and we'll head for Chesuick and the parson."

Hi clambered out of the launch, and the red glowed under the tan as he approached the wagon.

"Do you s'pose that there'll be room in there for Marthy Curtis?"-he asked shamefacedly. "She's been kinder pesterin' me to carry her on and off this ten years, an' I guess it's as good a time as any right now. It seems like it was in the air."

"Like hay fever," declared Logan, with a laugh. "I never knew before that matrimony was contagious, but jump in and we'll capture Martha in no time at all."

It was a quartet that started for the state line. Norma sat beside Logan in the front seat, and behind them Hi held Martha's hand and sought to explain the situation to the flustered damsel.

"You see, Marthy," he began, "'twasn't as though I didn't want to marry ye. It was jest that I couldn't get my nerve up. Then I saw that Mr. Logan had to be married right away if he didn't want to lose Miss Norma, and so long as I had my hand at it I wanted to make a good job all the way round."

"We should be very grateful to them," cooed Martha as she took a fresh grip on Hiram's hand to assure herself that this was no dream from which she would presently waken.

"We are," assented Hiram as he noticed that Logan was trying to drive with one hand. "And I'll bet that they're mighty grateful to us."

Who Breaks the Dishes?

"Jason," said Mrs. Calliper to her husband as they sat at dinner, "I went this afternoon to the china closet to get a certain glass dish that I wanted. When I picked it up I lifted only half of it. The other half remained on the shelf. Somebody had broken it and then placed it there in that way so that they wouldn't have to tell me about it. Now, of course, neither you nor I broke that dish, the children didn't break it, the servants didn't break it. Now, how did it get broken?"

"Expansion and contraction"—

"Jason!"

"Well, Cynthia," said Mr. Calliper soothingly, "you ought not to worry about that dish. Science has in recent years made great advances, and many things which were once mysterious are now as clear to us as the pages of an open book. But the question, 'Who breaks the dishes?' has never been answered, and it is not likely that it ever will be, and why, my dear, should you waste your time in trying to discover the undiscoverable?"

Odd Contrasts in Climate.

New York is usually thought of as being directly west from London. It is, however, despite its far more rigorous climate, 900 miles nearer the equator than is the British capital. The bleak coast of Labrador is directly west of London. The same line passes the southern part of Hudson bay and Lake Winnipeg. On the other side of the continent it touches the southern extremity of Alaska and continues through the center of the isthmus of Kamchatka and Siberia and Russia to Homburg.

It is astonishing, too, to reflect on the fact that Montreal, with its winters of extraordinary severity, is 350 miles nearer the equator than is London. Montreal, indeed, is on the same degree of latitude as Venice.

Another illustration of the unexpected in contrasts is found in a comparison of St. John's, Newfoundland, with Paris. Paris has a winter of comparative mildness, while St. John's is a region of bitter cold and fogs, with drifting icebergs along its coast. Yet St. John's is 100 miles nearer the equator. —New York Tribune.

Fasting in Japan.

From time out of mind, says the Japan Times, certain devotees of that country have visited a celebrated temple at Narita twice a year to perform the pious act of fasting within its sacred precincts. A "fasting hall" has been specially erected for their accommodation. Observations kept on 226 men and 32 women who fasted showed that of the whole number 59 fasted less than a week, 174 fasted one week, 10 continued fasting two weeks, 14 fasted three weeks, and one went without food for five weeks. Inquiry as to the motives of the fasters showed that 169 men and 25 women desired to rise in the world, 13 men and 2 women wanted to increase their business profits, 16 men prayed for the safety of their families, 13 men and 4 women sought cures of diseases and 10 men wanted general good luck. Only three persons, two men and one woman, fasted in gratitude for the fulfillment of former prayers. "It need scarcely be said," remarks the Japan Times, "that the period of their fasting was the shortest."

Snowball Showers.

More than one explorer in cold climates has noted the curious phenomenon of a "snowball shower." The balls, it is true, are not very big, the average being about the size of a hen's egg, but they are true snowballs for all that—compressed globes of snow, not little lumps of ice or hail. A fall of the kind occurred in north London in March, 1850, and at the time it was observed that the balls seemed five times as dense and compressed as ordinary snow and in no way to be told from the usual handmade missiles. They had fallen during the night and were strewn many layers thick over a very large area. No cause—except a doubtful electrical one—can be ascribed for the strange phenomenon, and mountaineers are apt to discredit the stories of snowball showers told them by the old guides till suddenly in the midst of an ordinary storm they find themselves assailed as though by myriads of mischievous schoolboys.—London Standard.

A Patient Judge.

A western judge, sitting in chambers, seeing from the piles of papers in the lawyers' hands that the first case was likely to be hotly contested, asked, "What is the amount in question?" "Two dollars," said the plaintiff's counsel. "I'll pay it," said the judge, handing over the money. "Call the next case."

He had not the patience of Sir William Grant, who, after listening for two days to the arguments of counsel as to the construction of a certain act, quietly observed when they had done, "That act has been repealed." —Argonaut.

Up Against a Hard One.

The great delver into the secrets of nature who had accumulated a fortune and retired from active business in order to be able to give his whole time to study and experiments was observed to be cogitating profoundly.

"What are you giving your mind to now?" inquired one of his laboratory assistants.

"I am merely wondering," he answered, "what becomes of all the corks."—Chicago Tribune.

In Doubt.

"That's a curious looking mule you're driving," remarked the man who was whittling a pine stick.

"Yassir," answered Erastus Pinkley. "He is kind o' cur'us."

"What will you take for him?"

"What'll I take foh him? Say, boss, is you referrin' to dat mule as a piece o' property or an affliction?"—Washington Star.

Mrs. L. GARSIDE.

20 YEARS A HOPELESS CONSUMPTIVE
NOW NO SIGN OF LUNG TROUBLE.

This statement is no fiction, for Mrs. L. Garside resides at 509 York Street, London, Ont., and to use her own words is: "Always happy to reply to anxious enquirers and let them know what PSYCHINE has done for me."

Four years ago, Mrs. Garside wrote: "Your remedy, PSYCHINE, did wonders for me. I was about 28 or 30 years of age when I took your treatment. I was in consumption and the very best doctors told me there was nothing else that could be done, this was 20 years ago, so as a last hope I gave your remedies a trial. • From the first this was a most wonderful success. PSYCHINE certainly gave me new lungs, and I honestly believe PSYCHINE saved my life." Writing four years after under date August 7, 1908, Mrs. Garside says: "My statement still holds good, my lungs never troubled me after your treatment which I took after being told there was no hope."

PSYCHINE, Dr. Slocum's great Health Remedy, is known everywhere as Nature's Greatest Tonic, building up the entire system, not only rendering it proof against these terrible germ and other diseases, that are so deadly in their operation, but it is the sworn and deadly foe of the germs and the diseases themselves. Bacilli, or disease germs, cannot live in the system with PSYCHINE. Send for FREE TRIAL BOTTLE. See coupon.

INQUISITIVE EDWIN.

Things He Wanted His College Bred Mother to Tell Him.

"Say, maw."

"Well, Edwin?"

"Why do little boys have to go to school?"

"To get an education, dearie."

"How long do I have to go to school?"

"Till you are grown up."

"Then do I get my education?"

"No. You get it while you are going."

"Get it all the time I am going?"

"Yes."

"Huh! I'd rather get it now and not go to school."

"But you can't."

"Did you get one, maw?"

"I did, but I have no use for it."

"What's the matter with you giving me yours, then?"

"Tut, tut, child! Every person has to get his or her own education."

"Hum! Who's got paw's?"

"Why, he has."

"Gee! Nobody 'd think he had one, would they?"

"Your father conceals a great many of his attainments, son."

"What's a attainment, maw?"

"Something one has acquired in the way of learning or accomplishments, I believe."

"I think I know about accomplishments, maw. I heard Mr. Bingle say paw was accomplished."

"Are you sure? Mr. Bingle is ordinarily very accurate in his statements."

"Yes, I'm sure. He said paw was a accomplished liar."

"Ah, well, Mr. Bingle hasn't gone back on his record! Now run away, Edwin, and let me finish reading 'A College Girl's Unhappy Wifehood; or, She Was Taught More Higher Mathematics Than Housekeeping.'"

"But, maw."

"But bother! What now?"

"S'pose I don't get a education?"

"Then you wouldn't know anything when you become a man."

"Oh, that's all right, maw; I could be a juror!"—Chicago Journal.

The Irritating Mississippi.

The Mississippi is the greatest irritant in the United States. Its fickleness, conscious power and taunting eddies bring oaths to the lips of the most respectable and law abiding residents along its lower course. The greatest admirers of the river, the people who sing its praises with the most emphasis, are the ones who go off on a tangent of temper quickest when they find a new caving of river bank headed toward the newest and most expensive levee, built to protect great plantations, while just across the stream rise worthless bluffs and useless sand bars. Talk to a Mississippi river man—shanty boater, pilot, raftsman, plantation owner or city merchant—and he will brag about the river wonders. Its bigness charms him and makes him feel large and elated. Bring him around to his own experiences with it, and suddenly a shade of resentment crosses his face as he recalls a shanty boat wrecked by a cyclone, a steamboat snagged, a raft torn up in some bend, a plantation undercut and washed away or a season's trade spoiled by an overflow and crevasse.

"We love the river, damn it!" is a literal expression.—R. S. Spears in Atlantic.

The Exact Spot.

When illicit distilling was common in the highlands there was an old man who went about the country repairing whisky pots.

The gauger met him one day and, surmising that he had been doing repairs at no great distance, asked what he would take to inform him (the gauger) where he repaired the last whisky pot.

"Och," said the old man, "she'll shust tak' hauf a croon."

"Done!" retorted the gauger. "Here is your money, but be careful to tell me correctly."

"Och, she'll no' tell the gentleman a lee."

Getting the money, the old man quietly remarked:

"I shust mended the last whisky pot where the hole was."

Needed In Every Home.

When he reached home he opened the package he was carrying and displayed a number of placards, some of which read "For Show" and others "For Use."

"There!" he exclaimed triumphantly. "I flatter myself I have solved the problem."

"Solved the problem?" she repeated. "What problem? What in the world do you intend to do with those cards?"

"I am going to give them to you," he replied, "so that you can put them on the various cushions scattered about the house."

Jessie.

It is related that when the young man who afterward became General Fremont ran away with and married Jessie, Tom Benton, the great senator, made terrible threats of what he would do to the young man. He would give him roasts and bullets, and so on. To all of which Mrs. Benton quietly remarked, "Yon had better give him Jessie, my dear."

A Mean Man.

Medical Man—Jobson has done the meanest thing I ever heard of. He came to my house the other night, ate a big dinner, got indigestion and then went to another doctor to be cured.

The most wasted of all days is that day on which one has not laughed.—Chamfort.

True to Her Training.

"Where was the new star discovered?" asked one dramatic critic of another.

"In a laundry," was the reply.

"Ah, well, she can't forget her old calling. She's mangling the part."

The Other Way.

"So you refuse me admittance," complained the newly arrived spirit to St. Peter. "You turn me off into the cold."

"No," replied the old saint, "into the hot."—Boston Transcript.

A Suspicion.

She—How is it your sister did not sing tonight? He—Oh, the doctor has forbidden her. He says she must not sing for six months. She—Does he live near her?

An error gracefully acknowledged is a victory won.—Gascoigne.

So Bad as That!

A young medical student who was calling upon a girl volunteered to sing and help entertain the company which arrived unexpectedly. At the end of his second solo he turned to the young lady and remarked: "I am thinking of taking vocal lessons. Do you know of a good teacher?"

"Yes, indeed," was the quick reply, "I know the very one for you. Here is his address," and she scribbled the name on a card, giving it to the student.

Next day he called up the teacher by telephone: "Is this the instructor of vocal music?"

"The what?" was the answer.

"The vocal teacher?" was repeated.

"Naw," came the reply, "I don't teach nothing. I file saws!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Most Northern Canada.

Of the possibilities of extreme northern Canada a traveler writes: "The country that one passes through from Athabasca Landing down to the Arctic Red river is full of vegetation and will, in my opinion, one day be settled. In all the mission gardens at the different posts that I passed I saw wheat and barley growing, potatoes, lettuces, turnips, carrots and every kind of vegetable that one grows in one's own garden at home. The country is thickly timbered near the banks of the river, and there are few places in which you do not find large patches of prairie. You pass by a great outrush of natural gas, and oil is oozing out for miles along the river bank."

A Sense of Propriety.

"So you stole this man's ax?" said the judge.

"Yessah. I reckons dar ain' no use tryin' ter spute de facts."

"What did you do that for? He said he would have been perfectly willing to lend you the ax."

"Yes; but you see, jedge, dat man's on'y jes' moved in de neighborhood. I doesn' know him wel enough ter go 'roun' ter his house borryin'."—Washington Star.

Hard to Say.

"If your mother bought four baskets of grapes, the dealer's price being a quarter a basket, how much money would the purchase cost her?" asked the new teacher.

"You never can tell," answered Tommy, who was at the head of his class. "Ma's great at bargaining!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Accepted.

"Quills has had a story accepted at last," remarked a journalist to a colleague.

"Surely not," was the rejoinder.

"Yes. He went home at 2 o'clock this morning with an awful yarn, and his wife believed it."

A Big Door.

The following is a copy of a bill posted on the wall of a country village in England: "A lecture on total abstinence will be delivered in the open air, and a collection will be made at the door to defray expenses."

Surface Transit.

"Step lively, please," said the conductor.

"If I was young enough to do that," responded the aged passenger, climbing aboard, "I'd walk and beat your car."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Weather Experts.

The Icelanders are expert weather prophets and are able to tell by the disposition of the air in the evening from which quarters the wind will blow next day.

To Polish Copper.

When there is no time to polish the copper in the regular way, an emergency shine may be quickly imparted in the following manner: Mix a cup of flour, a tablespoonful of salt and a cup of vinegar to a smooth paste and after dipping the article to be cleaned in hot water apply the mixture quickly and carefully with a soft cloth. Then wash in hot suds and polish with a dry cloth. Alcohol on a soft cloth is also a quick cleaner of copper.

Public Baths.

The first public bath in England for hot bathing purposes was opened in 1679.

A White City.

All of the buildings in Valetta, the capital of the island of Malta, are of white stone. There being no smoke or fog to discolor them, they are as fresh and clean now as when they were erected.

An Acre.

Measure 209 feet on each side and you will have an acre within an inch, United States land measure.

Mine Luck.

The Calumet and Hecla copper mine was discovered by Billy Royal, who found his lost pigs under the shelter of a "rock" which proved to be almost pure copper.

Fruit Skins.

The skin of an apple or pear is harmful and has been known to bring on acute gastritis which resulted fatally. The skins of fruits are meant for the protection of the fruit and should be no more eaten than the shell of a nut.

DO YOU EAT RIGHT?

Few People in Peterborough Really Know How.

Slow eating and regular meals are of great benefit to a wrong acting stomach. Those who suffer with indigestion and weak stomach can with care and the use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets restore the digestion to a healthy condition, so that they can eat what they want at any time without fear of distress or suffering.

After a few days' use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, the headaches, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, flatulence, sleeplessness, distress after eating — all those symptoms of a weak stomach—will disappear, and perfect digestion and good health will be restored.

Wm. Madill has so much confidence in the power of Mi-o-na to cure indigestion that he guarantees satisfaction, or money back. Price, 50c.

YOU SHOULD SERIOUSLY CONSIDER

The Life Insurance proposition because it is of the utmost importance to everyone. Life is short and accidents are common. We may be for years without meeting danger, yet our turn is likely to come at any time. Best to be provided against mishaps and have one's family protected against poverty in case we should be suddenly snatched away. We have some very liberal propositions to offer you in gilt-edged policies, and our results on matured policies have seldom been equalled.

balt, lead, plumbago, silver, salt, mica, coal, oil, gas, building and grindstone clays, ochre and brick, pipestone and valuable gems are also distributed in various and many places, and are simply awaiting railway transport to become marketable value.

"Furs, game, fish, fresh water and salt, timber, whalebone and oil (seal and porpoise), each and all add to the country's value.

A Wonderful Harbor

Churchill harbour is simply a landlocked lake of eight miles in length running northeast, and southwest by about four miles in breadth, in area approximately two townships in extent. The Churchill or English River falls into the harbour on its southwest corner. An outlet of about one quarter of a mile wide at Fort Prince of Wales, leads to the open sea and to deep water.

This channel at low water in its shoalest spot is 27 feet deep. It has an average tide of two fathoms. The sheltered harbour required dredging and the removing of large boulders, stones and other impediments. Its deepest and best ship anchorage gives 45 feet, opposite the present whaling station. A powerful ice breaker could keep the channel leading to the open sea serviceable the whole year round. As time will prove, suitable tugs, aided by light houses, fishing stations, improved charts and all the important wireless telegraphy, will simply pick up and lead in a transatlantic vessel with ease, as soon as it enters the straits at the Button Islands.

As to the dangers of fogs and ice bergs, such as are encountered on the banks of Newfoundland and the St. Lawrence route, this route can favourably compare with the others. The comparison is in favour of the Churchill route.

It must not be forgotten that during winter months the Arctic ice and the bergs are stationary, and the channels are closed. Severe cold weather from December to March must ever be encountered.

Farming in the Interior

Port Churchill on the coast is not, and never will be, a farming country, but will prove to be one of the most convenient outports in the world with healthy, bright, windy weather, beautiful scenary, safe anchorage, with good shelter for shipping. Many desirable fishing stations can be established along the coast from Cape Churchill northward, thence east to the Atlantic, the ample water power of the Churchill River will prove of great value to manufacturing and electric power industries. From twenty miles inland, gardening or farming can be undertaken, at about one hundred miles inland good soil is found in spots, potatoes, barley, rye, and vegetables can be grown, while ample swamp and slough hay can be procured. Cattle must be warmly stabled and fed for two hundred days in the year.

Game, large and small, musk ox, caribou, deer, bear and fur bearing animals, at certain seasons, are plentiful. Also wild fowl, geese, ducks, ptarmigan, etc., during summer, breed on the coast. Good salt and fresh water fish can be secured, domestic cattle can be raised. Soon now by 1912—we will wonder how we could ever have allowed ourselves to credit such imaginary difficulties and dangers, as we formerly did, in discussing this route.

The Next Transcontinental

As a grand national park for Arctic animals, the Churchill country cannot be beaten; as a military highway it is unapproachable and invincible.

Twenty years from date the advantages of the shortest transcontinental railway from the end of Chesterfield Inlet to Port Rupert via the Barren lands and the Na-honey river pass, will be as strongly advocated and as desirable as this Hudson Bay-Churchill route now is.

Questions have been asked as to the roadbed of the new route. The Pass to Churchill, 445 miles, can be easily accomplished in three sections at moderate cost in three years, as follows:

Division No. 1, south, 170 miles.
No. 2, central, 175 miles.
No. 3, north, 100 miles.

South division—The Pas to Nelson house vicinity, crossing of Waskwatin river or Burnt Wood river. The first 50 miles is mostly upon high sand-ridge, then follows rock, swamps, lakes, timber and rough country. Pass and Moose Lake will be the base of supplies.

Central division—Crossing of Waskwatin to Burnt River in the vicinity of Nelson House to junction of Little and Big Churchill, 175 miles. This is a rough country with rock, swamp, muskeg, timber, following each other, but there are no difficulties that skilful engineers cannot surmount. Mostly what is taken out of one place is put in another, Split Lake will be the base of supplies.

Northern division—Mouth of Little Churchill to Fort Prince of Wales on Hudson Bay. This is a rolling, rocky and swampy country. The easiest road runs north of Churchill harbour. Six to eight bridges of different size more length than height, will be necessary. This does not include the small creeks, rivulets or culverts. Timber suitable for railroad ties will be procured locally, also gravel, sand and building stone.

Some Convincing Figures

Following is the table of some of the more important distances in the north. When the railway is completed and the line of steamers in operation, these points will be as well known as Anticosti, Sable Island, and the various points that at present mark the path of the Canadian liners across from Quebec to Liverpool.

Flora and Fauna

A short list follows of some of the flora and fauna of Fort Churchill and vicinity: Cranberries, blue berries (both round and oval), yellow or swamp berries, eye berries, partridge berries, poisonous snake berries (both white and crimson), weed berries (i.e. Kenokanuk), ground juniper, huskie or barren land berries, strawberries, gooseberries, red and black currants, raspberries, Pembina or high bush cranberries, Saskatoon or La Poire, with several other species. These all ripen in early July.

Fruits and flowers (wild): Roses (wild) pale and red; tulips, violets, (both white and blue), lords' and ladies' Arctic snowdrops, daisies, anemones (several varieties), hyacinths or moose flowers, besides at least fifty other varieties, water lilies (both yellow and white), water violets and water daisies, forgetmenots, wild onions, wild rhubarb and celery, camomile, heather, wild cherries, etc., mosses and ferns and grasses.

Trees: Jackpine, stunted and barren land; swamp jackpine with branches stretching out close to the ground, at times 10 to 12 feet long, beginning at 2 inches thick. The height of the tree runs from 4 to 5 feet. It has a very hard wood, but is brittle and full of gum; it has a pleasant smell and needles like jackpine or cypress. Spruce, larch or red pine (both swamp, small, and upland, large), poplar (three kinds), willow, several varieties; birch, scrub and ordinary.

Fish: Whitefish, 1 to 6 lbs.; three varieties: trout, lake, 2 to 30 lbs., large; river, 1-2 to 3 lbs., medium; tidal water jackfish, 1 to 20 lbs.; suckers, 1 to 3 lbs.; La Loche or Mari-Bech, 1 to 2 lbs.; dories, 1 to 2 lbs.; sturgeon, 1 to 50 lbs.; herring, 1-4 to 3-4 lb.; eels, large and small; crabs, fresh and salt water; lobsters, small turtles, shellfish and clams, various.

Ants of many varieties also are found here. Their houses at times are 20 feet in circumference and several feet high. The carcass of an animal, say a fox, wolf, mink or even small deer if placed near an ant heap will in a few days be picked clean.

The coast is noted for owls. In spring (April 16 to 25) migratory birds arrive, going north, and they pass south Aug 20 to 30 and leave the coast before the end of October.

Snow birds are the first to arrive; fall duck, cranes and plovers the last to go away. Pelican and northern divers have been reported as having wintered at some of the cascade open water tunnels.

Snakes, lizards, leeches and frogs are noticed in several varieties, but are not poisonous.

The aurora shooting stars, constellations, planets and stars are generally very bright and beautiful.

Wonderful Mirages

The mirage is at times very wonderful, as many as 3 and 4 strata of hills and lake, ridges known to be over 50 miles distant, will appear in every shape in vicinity—almost supernatural in appearance.

Among the minerals found are quartz veins from 6 inches to 2 feet; quartzite, very rich, clean, sharp, brittle; sandstone, several varieties; spar, various magnetic stone, shales, limestone, three kinds; boulders, clay, gravel; sands, three kinds; mineral, various kinds; stone, clear, well marked and pretty.

The mosses and ferns are legion.

To develop this wonderful, little-known, but valuable country, the Government should foster and treat liberally all enterprise — considering the difficulties, dangers, pecuniary risk, etc. The Government should not strangle enterprise or hamper it with red tape and royalties, and should encourage any and all men to venture and bring to light its hidden treasures such as gold, silver, platinum, nickle, copper, iron, lead, mica, quartzite. Specimens of all the above have been found. This is not visionary. They are there. But what we want to know is: Where? What quantities? How to work and get them to a market? Build railways, towns, settlements, develop the country, and soon we will have a new seat of empire in the far northeast.

A FOREST ON FIRE

Men Fighting The Flames in Mr. J. E. Fitzgerald's Limits at South Bay---May Result in Big Loss

WOOD IS IN DANGER FROM CREEPING FLAMES

Capt. Chas. Gray of the Ajax was in the city to-day from the northern lakes and he informs the Examiner that a forest fire is still raging at South Bay in Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald's woods. It is being fought steadily by the crew of the Ajax, who are trying to save a forest of 200 acres from the flames. Mr. Fitzgerald has several cords of wood in it, and if these catch on fire he will experience a big loss.

THE DIRECTOIRE TROUSER LATEST IDEA FOR MEN

The directoire trouser is the newest idea in men's clothing. It is rather difficult to describe it, much less to imagine it, and by seeing it only can one realise the extreme notions that the artists are following in their latest fashions for men. One design that was made for a Toronto clothing firm, gives the idea that along the outside seam of the leg, extending from the bottom to a short distance above midway to the knee, there is no stitching, and four buttons are shown, suggesting that it is left unsewn. This style would meet with favour among college men, to whom extreme effects, giving distinction, always appeal.

The Clothier and Haberdasher says:—"Directoire trousers made from Lincoln green wool with a neat stripe, and laced with green silk cord from the knee downward, have been hailed by Chicago tailors as the logical development of the promenade for men."

The effect of the directoire fashion among women is thus plainly evident. Even the sheath notion is seen in trousers. In them the leg seams are on the outside; instead of running down to the bottom, they will stop at the knees, and be laced from that point on. For those who are of more retiring natures, the seam is not open to expose the calf of the leg, but is formed into a plait.

ALL THE TOLL WAS NOT COLLECTED THIS MORNING

One of the results of the potato affair at the market to-day was the loss of six or eight dollars toll. Market Clerk Ball was unable to attend to both things at once, and it was 12.30 before he was through with the case. By that time most of the farmers had sold out their goods.

STATEMENT MADE BY ROLLER RINK MANAGER

Manager Genno of the Roller Rink desires to make his explanation why the Mysterious "Mr. E." did not make his appearance as scheduled Thursday night. He claims "Mr. E.'s" managers did not advertise his coming as they stated they would, and when he found that the Mysterious One would be at the big political meeting prior to coming to the rink he (Mr. Genno) was anxious to cancel the engagement. Mr. Genno further states he had not the rear doors of the rink locked. He had been asked to have the lane and lobby cleared to give "Mr. E." an opportunity to get in, but he refused, and the manager then called off the engagement.

"I am in Peterborough to stay," he remarked, "and I always want to give to my patrons what I advertise."

INTERCESSION FOR SUNDAY SCHOOLS

To-morrow, St. Luke's Day, special intercessions will be offered at the 8.30 a.m. service on behalf of Sunday school work and scholars. Teachers are asked to be present.

At 11 a.m. also special intercession on behalf of Sunday school work and the sermon will be preached by Rev. F J Lynch, M.A., of Toronto.

The two new Bible classes will meet at 3 p.m., for senior boys in the upper vestry, and for men and women in the church, when the first of a short series of instructions will be given by Rev. Canon Davidson.

At 7 p.m. in connection with the Festival of St. Luke, "the Beloved Physician," Rev. Canon Davidson will preach a special sermon on "Religion and Health," announcing the conclusions reached by the recent Lambeth Conference of Bishops in regard to this subject after thorough investigation.

DECLARATION

Examiner Office, 7.30 P M,
October 12th, 1908

I hereby swear upon my Solemn Oath not to reveal my indentity to any person or persons or impart any information to any person or persons that might enable them to claim the whole or any part of this reward offered for my capture.

The grand and exciting chase after the Mysterious "Mr. E" has reached the last day and the clever, smooth-faced man has so far successfully maintained his identity in the face of thousands of people trying to effect his capture. For four days he has mingled with the people, talked to them, and he enters on his fifth and last day unscathed. He must absolutely be captured by some one by eight o'clock to-night. If no one succeeds in landing him before that time, on the stroke of the clock he will give himself up to the first person he meets. So let every person carry a copy of to-day's Examiner with him. The mysterious one is going to try his utmost to evade detection till the last moment. He will be around the main streets all afternoon and will pay three visits to the Oriental Hotel cafe before seven o'clock. He had a comparatively easy time yesterday, as he tells you in his letter:

Dear People of Peterborough,—For four long days I have succeeded in keeping my identity from you, but it has been hard, hard work for me. To-day I enter on my fifth and last day, and am very thankful I am quite pleased to think that I have been able to fool such shrewd people as yourselves for so long, and realize that I have had one of the grandest and most exciting chases in all my experience. To-day I will devote my energies to the down town streets and will attempt to obtain refreshments three times at the Oriental Hotel cafe this afternoon, between three and seven. Remember that I must absolutely be caught to-day some time. Surely I will not have to give myself up to some one. Yesterday I did not take very many chances, to be perfectly frank with you, but at that gave you many opportunities to catch me. I had breakfast again at the Chinese restaurant on George street, but quite fooled the Chinaman again. I had a half-hour visit to the library in the morning and paraded the streets of East City. As advertised, I passed the corner of George and Hunter streets at noon quite easily. Shortly before 12 o'clock I was made acquainted with a very well-known young man about town under a fictitious name. The young man in question, after the ruse was made, realizing he had been fooled, especially asked my managers to withhold his name. Just as the fire reels passed us up Hunter street by the American Hotel we both started to run after them, and together ran past the corner of George and Hunter street after the reels while everybody's attention was riveted on them. I of course, bid my accomplice good-bye shortly after without him realizing how close he was to the Mysterious "Mr. E." During the afternoon I lay rather low, although I was in the Oriental Hotel cafe for ten minutes. I spent the rest of the time in the residential districts to the north. In the evening I was advertised to visit the P.B.C. alleys, but knew I would have a particularly difficult time. Realizing that I would need accomplices, I soon made myself strong with three gentlemen, and the four of us made our way to the alleys, after reaching the top of the stairs unchallenged, I saw at once that it would be an utter impossibility to successfully enter on account of the crowd at the door and the scarcity of people inside, so I quickly withdrew. However, I will make up for this by taking daring chances to-day and giving everybody opportunities galore to capture me. Remember, I will positively attempt to obtain refreshments three times between 3 and 7 o'clock at the Oriental cafe. Please let someone come and catch me and don't have me give myself up at 8 o'clock. In this my last letter to you, I wish to heartily congratulate this grand little city on the splendid brand of sports it breeds. Nowhere are they better. Remember again that each and everyone who reads this has a splendid chance of being my lucky captor. Farewell, good people of Peterborough.

Sincerely yours,
R. C. S.,
The Mysterious "Mr. E."

Employees of the Oriental Hotel and all newspaper men are barred from the contest.

THE WEST RIDING CONTEST

(From the Havelock Standard.)

The electors of the West Riding of Peterborough are in the midst of a strenuous contest in the present election. Mr. Burnham, the Conservative candidate, is putting up a vigorous, though, in our opinion, an ill-advised campaign—a campaign of personal abuse against his opponent, Hon. J. R. Stratton. Mr. Burnham is, we believe, a most learned scholar, and a writer of some repute, but we do not think that he is cut out for a political life. To our mind, and from what we can gather, the return of Mr. Stratton is a foregone conclusion, and it would be an indifferent compliment to pay to the sagacity of the voters of Peterborough to think otherwise, in view of his association and co-operation with public-spirited men who have made Peterborough a live industrial city, and in view of his public service, forceful personality and personal popularity. All this may be assumed without any disparagement of Mr. Burnham. So far as we can observe, this election is likely to be decided upon personal and non-partizan grounds; upon the recognition of the peculiar value to the material interests of Peterborough which it would be to possess in Parliament an advocate so strongly equipped for practical service as Mr. Stratton unquestionably is—rather than upon any acute division of the people upon what are recognized as strictly political divisions. We must admit that there is no doubt but that it would be for the welfare of many constituencies if the people were influenced in the choice of their members, more by personal interest and the exercise of common sense, than by any old-time political prejudices.

POTATOES ON THE MARKET ARE FOUND TO BE SLIGHTLY UNDER SPECIFIED WEIGHT

Fifty-eight bags of potatoes weighed on the market scales this morning proved to be under the correct weight of ninety-one pounds. Chief Rossel sprung the surprise about 10 o'clock, when he had P. C. Newhall choose promiscuously from among the potatoes offered for sale single bags to be weighed as samples of the loads. About a half dozen were called upon, and as a result the platform around the clerk's office was piled high with bags by 11 o'clock.

One man was Mr. F. Clarke of Fraserville. P. C. Newhall asked him to take a bag over to the scales, and on being weighed it was shown to be a trifle light. Ninety-one pounds was the weight required by the Chief, the extra pound being allowed for the bag. However, in most cases, if the beam showed ninety pounds, he allowed it to go as correct. When Mr. Clarke brought his load over, the other bags were found to weigh 94 pounds, 96 pounds, 93 pounds, etc. Chief Rossel, therefore, did not prosecute him.

Mr. Clarke said: "I did not weigh these, but I will guarantee that if you measure them you will find them a good bushel and a half, and that's the way I filled my bags."

Mr. S. Seabrook of Smith brought over a bag and it tipped the beam at 93 pounds. He told an Examiner reporter that he weighed every bag at his home.

In Police Court

Four others combined had fifty-four bags under weight. They appeared before Magistrate Dumble on the charge of offering for sale potatoes in bags which did not contain ninety pounds. Mr. F. D. Kerr, representing one of them, contended that the men did not claim that they had ninety pounds in the bags, and that no penalty should be imposed. Mr. Dumble, however, stated that the bags were to weigh ninety pounds, and if the men offered potatoes for sale by the bag it was understood that they were of the specified weight.

One of the men had told his hired man to weight a pail of potatoes and fill the bags to the required weight with it. Another had neither weighed nor measured them, simply filling the bag as full as possible.

Magistrate Dumble said that he believed it was merely carelessness on the part of the farmers, but the bylaw should be complied with to the letter. He imposed the small fine of $2, but did not confiscate the potatoes.

These men, of course, have no intention of selling potatoes that are under weight, and, undoubtedly, as Magistrate Dumble states, it is nothing but carelessness that they do so, and not a deliberate act.

Man Was Accidently Injured In A Bad Fall From A Waggon

To-day about noon an accident befell Mr. John Strain, of Robinson street, East City, which may be of a serious character. He is employed by Mr. W H Meldrum, and fell from the waggon in which he was driving. He was removed in an unconscious condition to his home where medical aid was summoned.

THE NEW ROUTE TO WESTERN CANADA

An attractive and pleasant trip to the West is via the Grand Trunk "only double-track route" to Chicago, connecting for Winnipeg, via St. Paul, Minneapolis and Duluth. INTERESTING HISTORY OF THE BY-GONE DAYS OF THE FERTILE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH MONAGHAN

Surveyor's Chains Dragged Over it Almost a Century Ago—Some of the Early Settlers

GROWTH OF THE TOWNSHIP

The Township of North Monaghan which occupies the south west corner of the county of Peterborough, is bounded on the north by the Township of Smith, on the south by the county of Northumberland, on the west by Otonabee Township and on the east by the River Otonabee. Its history is blended with that of City of of Peterborough, from which it was separated in 1850, on the latter's incorporation as a town. Until that date the population and general statistics of Peterborough were included with those of the township.

Like the other townships of the county, the surface of North Monaghan is hilly, but not inconveniently so, it being on the whole, excellent rolling farming land. On the eastern part of the township, in the neighborhood of the river, it is swampy. The roads are of an excellent character, the township having had the advantage of the expenditure of a large amount of clergy reserve money.

Monaghan was surveyed in 1818 and received its first settlers in that and the following year. Among these early settlers were William Fowser, Robert Thompson, Robert Morrison, John Tully, William Birdwhistle, Thomas and Robert Leadbeater, Richard Alexander, Robert Cross, John Foster, James Wilson, Matthew Wilson, William Wilson, Wilfred Drysdale, John Burney, and Thomas Speers.

These settlers came into the township singly, or in small groups, and, making their way through the thick underbrush of the forest, selected lots of land, and which they judged would prove suitable. After learning the number of the lot and concession, from the marked posts, which had been recently passed, there by the surveying party, they returned and made the necessary application to the land agent. More than one night did these hardy pioneers have to sleep in the open air, tired and foot sore. But having at last received their lands, they returned with their families.

Then did the grand old forest, silent but for the wild beast and bird re-echo with the sound of the settlers' axe as it was swinging from morning until night by strong hands, anxious to make a clearing where a shanty could be put up. Soon was the wilderness dotted with humble log houses, whose blue smoke curling upwards towards the evening sky told of peace, happiness and hope in a new and lonely land. Little by little, the tree covered acres gave way to new clearings, which in their turn, stretched out into wide and prolific farms.

The "blaze" of the pioneers' axe the only means by which provisions and implements could be brought from Port Hope, became a narrow and crooked foot path which in its turn was improved until fine gravel roads stretched throughout the township.

THE BUSINESS TRANSACTED BY THE CAMERA CLUB

The Peterborough Camera Club held its regular meeting in Mr. Louis Mandel's studio last night, and a large number of members were present. Considerable business was transacted.

At the next meeting, which will be held on October 30th, a report of the committee on the constitution and bylaws of the club will be received. It was also decided to have an entertainment of some kind at that date—including possibly a lantern slide exhibition, if arrangements could be made for it.

Mr. Mandel gave an exhibition of sepia work, much to the pleasure of the club, who all warmly thanked him for his trouble.

DR. HAMMOND TO BEGIN PRACTICE IN PETERBOROUGH

Dr. E. A. Hammond, son of the late J. E. Hammond, Esq., has arrived in the city from London, England, and will soon open an office for the practice of his profession, at the corner of Smith and George streets. Mr. Hammond is a graduate of Trinity University, Toronto, but has been in the Old Country for some time pursuing special lines of study and practice in heart, stomach and skin diseases and consumptive ailments, at the great hospitals especially devoted to their treatment. He also spent some time in the wards of the Rotunda Hospital in Dublin, in maternity practice and gynaecological research. Dr. Hammond, therefore, comes well equipped with the latest special knowledge and experience in relation to the subjects specified above. His professional card will appear in the Examiner in a day or two.

FAULT IS NOT FARMERS'

They Give Good Measure, According to Government Stamped Half Bushel, Says One of Their Defenders

THE MEASURE SHOULD BE CONFISCATED

In connection with the potato episode on the market to-day, it was pointed out to the Examiner that the farmers are using half-bushel measures stamped with the Government stamp, and so far as measuring is concerned, they do this correctly and honestly. But when the potatoes are weighed a shortage is found. The Examiner's informant states that it is an injustice to the farmers to blame them and to impose fines upon them, as they do not mean to sell underweight. If a man conscientiously thinks he is doing right, he is doing right, and therefore these measures which cause him to give light weight should be confiscated, and not the man's potatoes. A Government-stamped half-bushel should not be made if what it holds does not come up to the required weight.

A Peterborough Man on the Winnipeg Express That Collided With Supply Train at Parry Sound

ENGINE LOST PILOT AND SMOKE STACK IN COLLISION

Mr. Walter Fisher, who returned home yesterday from the west, was one of the passengers on the Winnipeg express which collided with a supply train of the Ross Harris Construction Co., on Thursday. The latter was standing on the main line taking water, when the accident occurred. The passengers were shaken up, but no one was injured. The engine of the express lost its smoke stack, headlight and pilot, and the covered with flour from one of the box cars which it demolished. It continued on its route several stations further and attracted the attention of hundreds by its appearance. A few miles west of Parry Sound the express met with another delay in the form of a pitch hole on the mainline.

Assessment Appeals Are Not As Numerous As Last Year

The time for appeals against the assessment for 1908 expired Thursday night. City Clerk Armstrong reports 76 appeals, and that the Court of Revision has decided upon Nov. 9 as the date for the first sitting to hear those appeals. Last year there were 323 appeals altogether.

Park Street Baptist Boys For The Examiner Road Race

The boys of Park street Baptist church who are interested in athletic sports met last night and enjoyed an hour's hard work. The club announces that they have some fast long distance men, and some of these, including Cross and H. Reid, will be entered in the Examiner road races Thanksgiving day.

The Water Commissioners' Chairman Visits Lindsay Plant

Lindsay, October 17th— Special— Mr. Frank Matthews, chairman of the Water Commissioners, Peterborough, along with Superintendent W. Henderson, of the Peterborough Waterworks system, were in town yesterday, and inspected the new ozone filtration plant, which is almost completed.

Mr. J. Howard Bridge, who is installing the plant, turned the water into the new filter and the sterilizer for the benefit of the visitors. The sterilizer worked like a charm with the exception of a few leaks in the pipes. The filter was flushed out and it is probable that the water will be turned into the mains in a few days after some minor cement work has been done.

Mr. Matthews expressed himself as gratified to see the sterilizer work so perfectly from the outset as generally there is trouble when first used. The visitor is an old Lindsay boy.

A SERIOUS RESPONSIBILITY.

The city of Peterborough, as the commercial and distributing centre of one of the richest and most important agricultural districts in Ontario, as a railway centre from which radiate several lines in different directions, as the most important point on the almost completed Trent Canal, and as the seat of numerous flourishing industries and mercantile establishments, is vitally interested in having in the Dominion Parliament the best available representation.

It is self-evident that a community possessing material and other interests so varied as to be affected in some way or other by nearly every measure of general legislation presented to the Dominion Parliament, requires to be more careful in the choice of a representative than ridings more largely agricultural in their character.

West Peterborough should obviously be represented by a member who, by virtue of his experience, knowledge of affairs, familiarity with finance and financiers, and business connections, is best qualified to secure for the constituency every reasonable consideration, and adequately and influentially voice and give effect to local opinion on all matters affecting local interests.

Questions and matters are continually arising which closely affect a busy, thriving, enterprising and ambitious city like Peterborough, whose satisfactory settlement depends upon the extent of the representative's familiarity with business and financial methods, and standing and influence in the world of commerce, and finance, and the world of business.

The representative of West Peterborough, to be of the largest usefulness, should not only possess the qualities essential to success in business, but he should hold such a position in the estimation and knowledge of the public as to be able to bring his efforts to bear effectively and make his influence felt.

A candidate who possesses all these essential qualifications in large, if not full measure, may safely be said to be the Liberal candidate in this contest, Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Peterborough city and county did not by any means suffer in the past in regard to any interest by having him as its representative. During his twenty-year term as member, he, as will be generally acknowledged by political friend and foe alike, industriously used his influence, and faithfully devoted his best efforts to build up and advance the material or other welfare of Peterborough.

He was always at the front when the interests of the town and county were at stake, and it can be justly said that in more than one instance enactment of legislation vitally concerning our industrial expansion was due to his persistent efforts to secure support and neutralize energetic opposition to its adoption. Every citizen interested in the growth and progress of the city, in deciding where he can place his vote with the greater assurance of his wishes in that regard being met, will have little trouble in deciding how to use it.

The Liberal Government of the Dominion will, it is humanly certain, be retained in power by a renewal of the popular mandate given in 1896, and confirmed in 1900 and 1904. All who give unprejudiced study to the situation admit this truth. The Opposition fully realizes it.

If the electors of West Peterborough should so far forget their best interests as to ignore the past valuable services which Mr. Stratton has been able to render the city and county in the past; if they should prefer his opponent in the contest, they would find this riding occupying, in relation to its interests, a much less favourable position. Instead of being represented by a member who would be able to make its legitimate demands respected in the councils of the dominant party, the party endowed with the power to meet these demands, it would have as an exponent of its great and growing requirements an opponent of the Government, an evident disability added to lack of experience and business qualifications and practical ideas of representative and administrative responsibility.

Such a representative, even with the best intentions, would self-evidently be in a position to do little for either city or county—do little in a representative capacity to advance the interests of either city or county. We could not expect a member in political antagonism to the party in power to have either the confidence or zeal or influence or opportunity to press to the point of recognition the claims of West Peterborough for legitimate benefits, as successfully as could be expected under opposite circumstances.

Mr. Stratton, in the past, while he faithfully represented West Peterborough, was never remiss in looking after the needs of his constituency, never omitted any opportunity to advance its interests—either as a representative or a citizen. The fidelity of his past services is a guarantee of equally faithful services in years to come. In the past, as a member, he allowed no other interest to stand in the way of being practically alert and loyal to the interests of his constituency in all matters in which a representative should be required to interest himself.

He was always assiduous in looking after local interests, and in forwarding all measures and enterprises affecting the welfare and promoting the prosperity of Peterborough.

He has lost none of the interest thus exhibited in the past; and enlarged experience has additionally qualified him for good service; and the wider field of opportunity he is seeking at the hands of the electors will permit of his giving even more effective service.

All this the practical men of West Peterborough fully realize. All who conscientiously desire to act for the best interests of the city and county will support Mr. Stratton, who has done in the past all a man could do as a public man and private citizen to deserve their support by all the means in his power to make the traffic and industrial facilities of the city known where the knowledge of them would bring results, and to help with means and influence to place Peterborough in the position she occupies as one of the foremost, industrially and commercially, of the minor cities of the Dominion.

In view of these few considerations, it is self-evident that the hearty support of Mr. Stratton in this contest will be in the best interests of the manufacturer, the workingman, the merchant, the property holder, and of the city at large in all the varied matters involving the growth and prosperity of Peterborough and the country tributary to it.

Seriously considered, the issues of this contest impose a serious responsibility upon the electors in relation to the best interests of the city and county.

FAIR PLAY ALL ROUND.

The Conservative candidate, Mr. Burnham, professes to have a very tender heart for the farmers' interest. He tries to make himself believe —he can't make any man of common sense believe— that the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will injure farm values in Ontario. He thinks a great deal of the welfare of the farmers. He is willing to "soak" them with high prices on clothing, and throws out a sop of cheaper farm machinery at the expense of the agricultural implement makers. While he is supporting his stumping chum, Mr. Kendry, in his demand for a "sky high" duty on woollens, and the candidate himself claims, "a tariff as high as the clouds," he supports the policy of his party that seeks to make a plaything of the tariff, instead of the stable measure that Mr. Fielding has made it. Mr. Borden, the opportunist, is for "adequate protection," everywhere but in the west, where high tariff is unpopular.

To trim their tariff sails to the western breeze, the Conservative party tried to reduce the duty on agricultural implements last session.

When the House was in committee of the whole last session on the tariff, Dr. Schaffner, a Conservative M.P., moved this amendment:

That the committee consider item 445 re agricultural implement duties and that it be amended by striking out the figures 17 1-2 per cent. in the general tariff and inserting in lieu thereof the figures 10 per cent."

The above resolution, it will be seen, declares for reducing the duty on the products of the Peter Hamilton Company's works 7 1-2 per cent. below that of the Fielding tariff, and the Conservatives actually fought all day over the motion, filling over 60 columns of Hansard with speeches, and actually divided the committee, the amendment being negatived by a vote of 22 to 56!

Who was it that fought up for fair play to the agricultural implement makers against the solid Conservative phalanx, which stood for a sky high duty on the production of every other industry but the makers of what the farmers need? Mr. Fielding, Liberal Finance Minister,

Mr. Kendry and other woollen mills magnates are not satisfied with a duty of from 30 to 45 per cent. against competing products, but they are quite willing to cut off implement makers with 10 per cent. duty—reduced from the reasonable figure of 17 1-2 per cent. A candidate who doesn't know what the country needs and wants; (who doesn't know what he himself wants—except votes—doesn't present a very potent plea for the support of electors who know what they want in the way of capable and live representation.

Is it good business, as the Conservative party is doing, to make the tariff the plaything of political expediency—to drop it to please one section, to raise it "to the clouds" in another, to favour some special interest with a strong political pull?

The Liberal Government has treated the tariff in a business manner, adjusted it to bear equally upon all classes. It favours the manufacturing interests, and through them the working man by making large lines of raw material duty free—it lowers the duties on articles essential to the farmers' interest. It was made an all-round square deal—fair to every interest and its principle is a fixture. Everybody knows where he is at and business men can strike out with confidence that no unsettling tariff tinkering will upset his plans, and paralyse his business. A stable and equitable tariff, like the Liberal tariff, is good business, while the Conservative policy of tariff trimming which truckles to one section or interest, and unduly favours another, is unbusiness-like and dishonest.

All round equality in tariff treatment is what we have and what we'll hold.

A CIGAR SPEAKS.

A cigar contains the philosophy of the Conservative candidate.

Mr. Burnham opposes tooth and nail the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and declares that the Canadian Pacific was "inexcusable as a business enterprise."

And here is where the cigar tells its story of the immense development due to, and impossible without, the C. P. R.

Mr. Fred Whitcroft, of Edmonton, is home on a visit. Just before coming east a cigar manufacturer, with the breezy generosity of the west, gave him three or four boxes to distribute among his friends in Peterborough.

What have these cigars to do with the Transcontinental Railway? Very much indeed; they are a concrete object lesson in the marvellous development of the west, due to railway construction and facilities.

Half a dozen years ago the cigar manufacturer mentioned began business in Edmonton, with himself as the only cigar maker. To-day he has a large factory, employing forty hands, and turning out cigars by the million.

The great growth of his business is a type of the great growth of his city and the west.

In 1901 Edmonton had a population of 2,500; five years later it had grown to 11,000; to-day it is 24,000; as shown by a special census taken for the purpose of a municipal vote.

If it had not been for the Canadian Pacific Railway—for the branch line from Calgary to Edmonton—Edmonton would still have been an insignificant struggling village instead of being as it is to-day a well-built, bustling, busy, thriving city growing by leaps and bounds.

And Edmonton is but a type of the tremendous growth prevailing in the west, due entirely to railway construction, without which the enterprise of the Liberal Government in promoting settlement could not have been applied. All this is primarily due to a railway—the C. P. R.—which the statesmanship of the Conservative candidate declares was "inexcusable as a business enterprise."

With such a example of obese intellectuality and astounding impracticality can any intelligent elector entertain the idea of assisting to provide the live city and county of Peterborough with a representative so utterly lacking in business insight and enterprising outlook?

The cigar speaks, and as its fragrant spirals rise in the autumn air, so do the aspirations of a candidate so lost to national ambition, go up in smoke.

THE ROORBACK CAMPAIGN SOON TO BE OPENED

The public will have to wait till Oct. 19th to find out what the Conservative Government has done in the cause of labour. A campaign sheet is to be issued stating that the Liberal Government is a "scab" government, and asking electors to "vote for Borden and their bread and butter." The letters from headquarters state that these roorbacks are 500 for $50, but this significent sentence is added—

"But I do not want them posted or distributed until Monday, the 19th inst., except in lumber camps or railway camps, where they can be posted or distributed on Friday or Saturday, the 16th or 17th inst., as I anticipate they will cause a furore among the workingmen of the country, and it made public too soon it will give the Grits a chance to counteract the effect."

That stamps the lie on the face of it, so look out for it when it is let loose. Keep a lookout for last minute campaign lies.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Opposition roorbacks are becoming ripe. "Trust them not, they are fooling thee."

The Mail calls Borden the coming Premier. Christmas is coming and will be here ahead of Mr. Borden's Premiership.

If Mr. Mayes, the contractor, could have sold his $110,000 dredge to the government for $160,000, we never should have had the blackmailing charges against the Minister of Public Works.

It took a page address for Mr. Stratton, the Liberal candidate, to tell what the Liberal Government had done for labour, and at that the story was told in a very condensed form. If the Conservative candidate is crowded for space in his paper he might drop out a "want ad." and tell the whole story of what the Conservative Government in eighteen years of opportunity did for the cause of labour.

Stratton's Triumphal Progress Repeated in Good Old Ennismore

Splendid Campaign Meeting Held Last Night---Enthusiastic Reception of Mr. Stratton and His Stirring Speech---Rousing Address by Mr. D. O'Connell---Mr. R. R. Hall's Informing Speech---The Chairman's Remarks.

The meeting called in the Town Hall at Ennismore, on Friday evening, was by far and away the largest gathering of the electors of that township that has been held in many years. Not only was the hall filled to the porch, but it was an interesting and instructive fact that the first five tiers of seats were filled by the ladies from the neighbourhood, who were in evidence in support of Hon. Mr. Stratton's campaign. The lovely fall weather had encouraged the wives and daughters of Ennismore to give the seal of their presence at this meeting, to show how the homes of the riding regard the candidacy of the gentleman who is to be their next representative in the Parliament of the Dominion, and it was perhaps owing to the inspiration of their presence, that the efforts of all the speakers of the occasion, and of the candidate himself, were given a tinge of eloquence that pervaded the meeting throughout. The meeting was organized by the election to the chair of Mr. John Young, who briefly intimated that as they had before them both their ex-member and their future member (applause), and other orators of recognized ability, he would not take up their time, and introduced as the first speaker,

Mr. J. J. Duffus.

Mr. Duffus said he was glad and proud to see so large a gathering, which, if he did not misinterpret its sentiment, was assembled to give expression of its intention at the polls to give an approval of the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier (cheers), which had done in the past twelve years so much for this county, and to send to Ottawa, their able, well-tried and popular friend, Hon. Mr. Stratton (loud applause) to aid Mr. Laurier in developing the policies which had set Canada on the road to greatness among the nations of the world. The more forcibly to emphasize in their minds the duty that lay before them, he had only to call their attention back to the days that preceded 1896. They would remember that in those days, between Peterborough and Keene, the most familiar man on the road was the bailiff—and there were few farms indeed that did not have that undesirable adjunct, the mortgage. As they knew, very different conditions prevailed to-day and it was due to the progressive, energetic and patriotic policy of Sir Wilfred Laurier that we owed relief from the disastrous conditions that had oppressed them. (Applause). Let them call back their recollection and ask themselves what had they ever received from the Conservative administration that had preceded Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Even after the advent of the Liberal party in 1896, for a long time, they had been unable to get anything done for the County of Peterborough. But a change came when they had elected Mr. Hall as their member, and our people were enabled to secure just what was, in a fair and legitimate way, coming to them from the Dominion Government. And while they would regret the retirement of Mr. Hall, they felt consoled to know that he (Mr. Hall) was to be succeded at Ottawa by so efficient, so capable, and so well proved a man as the Hon. J. R. Stratton. (Loud applause). And he felt that the people of this county, and of the township of Ennismore, would rally to that gentleman's support, and see that the services of so able a public man were not lost to the welfare of Peterborough. (Applause). The workingmen of the county were with him, the business men were with him, the farmers were with him, and the ladies were with him, and it would be a strange thing indeed, if with all these elements of strength, he would not be sent to Ottawa, as the result of this election, to give a strong hand of support to the noblest and most statesmanlike man Canada had ever had—Sir Wilfrid Laurier (Great applause)—a man who was recognized not only in Canada, and in Great Britain, but throughout Europe, as a genius who was moulding great events in the history of the world. (Cheers). He believed the people of Ennismore would join the other people of the West Riding of Peterborough in rolling up a majority in endorsement of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and in support of Hon. J. R. Stratton, on October 26. (Voice—sure thing, and great applause). He hoped the young men of the county, who had perhaps never voted before, would take advantage of this occasion to perform a duty that would be of benefit to the country and the county, and start out right by voting for Mr. Stratton. That gentleman did not need any recommendation from him. They knew that if by his ability, and industry, and integrity, he (Mr. Stratton) had succeeded in life, he had also spent his means freely among them. There was not in this county a church, or an association, or an influence of any kind whatever that was for the progress and uplifting of the people, that had not felt the helping hand of J. R. Stratton (great applause), and going up and down the riding, wherever he went there were few people whom Mr. Stratton could not call by name, and few who did not recognize him as he was, an unpretentious gentleman, who had never been spoiled by success, and whom they all, Grit or Tory, were proud to be able to call their friend. (Cheers). And therefore, aside from all politics, it was that the people of West Peterborough would take care that on October 26 Mr. Stratton would be selected as their next representative. (Loud applause).

Mr. Daniel O'Connell.

Mr. O'Connell, on appearing on the platform was greeted with an applause that indicated that he had a warm place in the regard of the audience. He said he felt a peculiar pleasure in seeing before him so large and intelligent an audience. He had addressed during this campaign many splendid audiences, but he felt that in point of numbers and the intelligent interest which they took in the welfare of their country in the present emergency, this surpassed them all. He was especially glad to see so many of the wives and daughters of the farmers of this district before him, for he felt that every single lady there represented one vote, and every unmarried lady, at least four. (Laughter and great applause). They had had before them the Conservative candidate, who had offered them as a central reason why he should be elected, and his principal plank before the electors of West Peterborough, the fact, which he alleged for himself, that he was an honest man. Well, that did not appeal strongly to him (Mr. O'Connell) for he knew that in the City of Peterborough, out of a population of 17,000 people, there were at least 16,000 who could claim good title to the same qualification upon which Mr. Burnham placed such stress. Honesty was the simple duty of a good citizen who respected himself and who desired the respect of his neighbours, and while it was a very desirable quality indeed in a public man, it did not constitute by itself an equipment to a man for the great duties and responsibilities that devolved upon a member of Parliament. Mr. Burnham seemed, by his own claims, to have spent a whole lifetime in being "good," but that was something that belonged to the humblest citizen, and he did not believe that on that simple ground, Mr. Burnham would be able to inflict upon the people of this riding the misfortune that his election to Parliament would be. (Applause). Now, Mr. Stratton had been before them as a public man for the past eighteen years; as they knew, and as no one had disputed, he had performed his duties faithfully and well, and with an advantage to the people of this county that was every where realized and recognized. He did not come before them just before an election to claim an acquaintance for an obvious purpose, but, as they knew, he was always the same, their neighbour and their friend, and this he would continue to be, whether he were elected or defeated in this campaign. (Great cheers). And if they were to put aside the question of party politics, and from an unprejudiced and impartial and simply common sense standpoint, regard the situation before them, he did not believe that there were ten men in Peterborough county who would not acknowledge that Hon. J. R. Stratton was the man who would best serve their interests as their representative at Ottawa, which he undoubtedly would be when the votes were counted on October 26. (Loud applause). Now, going away from the personal view of the candidates, it was their duty to consider the claims which were offered by the Opposition, why they should replace the splendid administration which Sir Wilfrid Laurier had given to the people of this country. As they knew, it was the duty of an opposition in Parliament—a faithful, vigilant and watchful opposition, worthy of the name—to criticize in every reasonable way the conduct of affairs by the Government, and to be able to present to the people some intelligent reason why a change should be made. But the Conservatives who were to-day appealing to them had not taken this course. They had resorted to a campaign of scandal and slander. Now, it would be readily understood by thinking men, that in a country like ours, extending across a broad continent, employing in the conduct of its public affairs hundreds of thousands of public servants, that there would be found, here and there, now and then, some weak vessel, and all that could reasonably be expected of a Government was, when any case of violation of duty was brought before it, to deal promptly and effectually with it. And it was well for them to bear in mind that in all this vast and complicated machinery of the civil service, the Opposition had not been able to place a finger upon a single act of wrongdoing or of even questionable conduct on the part of any member of the Government, in the administration of public affairs. (Applause). They had false charges made by politicians, who had been before them; they had had the man Gamey imported into the riding, who in a spirit of buffoonery, had claimed a misdirection of a paltry few hundred dollars, by some of this vast army of the employes of the Government, but during these past twelve years, the administration of affairs had been of such character that with all their malice, and with all the desire they had to besmirch their opponents to help themselves into office, they were not able to put a finger upon a single dishonest transaction of any member of the Laurier administration. (Applause). But how different in former years. When the Liberals were on the Opposition benches, these men of painstaking effort, of broad-minded views, and of conscientious sense of public duty, made charges from a sense of responsibility: they took their political lives in their hands and formulated the charges which they made on the floor of Parliament. They not only made charges, but as the result of a parliamentary investigation they proved them right up to the hilt. They did not wait till it was just before an election to present unfounded aspersions upon their opponents in the hope that the lie might not be found out till after its evil work was done. And what had resulted? Why to their knowledge, a leading member of the Conservative ministry, Sir Hector Langevin, had been compelled to resign and been driven into private life, and two Conservative members of Parliament, whose fingers were tainted with corruption, had been sent to the common jail for the term of one year. (Cheers). In contrast to this experience at the present day, after twelve years of the conduct of public affairs during the most important period of the history of Canada; after the handling of hundreds of millions of dollars as the public stewards, not one man on the Opposition side could to-day truthfully point to one single dollar wrongfully used that could be properly charged against the present Government. (Applause). They had had in this county Mr. Roblin, that man who, beyond others, as the premier of a province, ought to have recognized the responsibility of a public man, and yet that common slanderer had dared to stand up before the electors of Peterborough and falsely charge Hon. Mr. Sifton with the misappropriation of some $200.00 for the benefit of his friends. And he would say that they had never had in Canada a Statesman of broader views and a more comprehensive grasp of what the needs of Canada required than Mr. Sifton, who had been their Minister of the Interior. (Applause). By his intelligent and business-like policies, he had made the resources and the opportunities of Canada known not only in Great Britain, but throughout Europe, and as a result a million of settlers had been brought in to fill the waste spaces in our great western heritage, which had been neglected by the reckless and improvident administration of the Conservative party. This man, Roblin, had come in here and had made charges that the Liberal Government, for the benefit of Hon. George A. Cox and Mr. Jaffray, had betrayed their duty, and he knew that this charge, when he made it, was false and untrue. (Cheers). Mr. Cox and Mr. Jaffray had treated the libel with the contempt that it deserved, but by the testimony of the editor of the most influential Tory newspaper of to-day, Mr. J. F. Willison, reluctantly given, the slander of Mr. Roblin had been driven down his throat and he had been compelled to retire to his Province of Manitoba, a disgraced and discredited man. He went on to allude to the extraordinary and disgraceful attack that had been made upon Hon. Mr. Pugsley, the Minister of Public Works, by Premier Hazen, of New Brunswick, who had been presented to them as a coming member of Mr. Borden's administration that was never to be. (Applause). The charge had then been made that Mr. Pugsley had received $2,000 in 1908, in connection with a public contract. And on the very next evening Hon. Mr. Pugsley, from the same platform, was able to present an abject apology from the man in whose statement this charge had been based, showing that this payment had been made to Mr. Pugsley three years before he had ever dreamed of being a Dominion Minister, and in the ordinary course of his business as a lawyer, and for services rendered. (Applause). That was a sample of the dirty weapons by means of which the Opponents of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Government, hoped to advance their ends. He (Mr. O'Connell) did not believe that such tactics would appeal to the people of the Dominion, to the Voters of West Peterborough, or to the good people of Ennismore, who were intelligent enough to appreciate public honesty. (Cheers). And this same man, Roblin, this convicted public liar, what was the record of his own party, and what was his own record? He had told them that the present Government was squandering the public domain of the country and the timber resources, of the Dominion. But the truth was that while in eighteen years of their life the successive Conservative administrations had been only able to settle 10,000,000 acres in our Great West, in the last twelve years no less than 35,000,000 acres had been occupied by the settlers who had been taken in there under the policy of the Laurier administration, to make our country prosperous and to progress as it had never progressed before. They had been told by Mr. Burnham that the timber lands of our Dominion had been given by the Laurier administration to their friends, the truth being that not one single square mile of such lands had been alienated except by public advertisement, under which any man in Canada had the chance to bid, and in all cases were disposed of to the highest bidder for a cash return to the Government. And what was the record of Mr. Burnham's friends? Why in 1883 they had absolutely given away to their relatives and their friends ten thousand square miles, covering the privilege of a choice of the most valuable timber lands from Halifax to Vancouver, without passing into the treasury of this Dominion one single dollar. (Cheers. And Mr. Roblin himself, the man who came to Ontario and posed as an advocate of "The Land for the Settler"—what did he do? As premier of Manitoba, he had been given the charge of a heritage, in trust for the people of 500,000 acres of public land, and in one short year, as soon as he got the opportunity, he (Roblin) dispossessed the Provinces of Manitoba of 320,000 cares of these lands, and turned them over to speculators and land sharks to grind the last dollar out of the actual settler. (Applause). He referred to the disgraceful connection of Hon. Geo. E. Foster, whom Mr. Burnham was advocating as the future Finance Minister of Canada, with the affairs of the Union Trust Company, through collusion with this same Roblin, and his improper use of his influence in the handling of the funds of the Foresters, which had resulted in his being separated from further connection with these institutions, and said, if ever such a man as Hon. Mr. Fielding were to be supplanted by such a man as Geo. E. Foster, the people of Canada might exclaim, "God save the mark!" He went on at length, giving facts and figures, showing what had been achieved for Canada under the present administration, and trusted that their good sense, their patriotism, their intelligence, and their appreciation of their own best interests, would impel them to vote on October 26, to uphold the Laurier administration, and to return to the House of Commons their old, tried, trusty and true friend, Hon. J. R. Stratton. (Loud applause).

Mr. O'Connell concluded: In the laying of this foundation of national prosperity the hand of Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been that of the master builder. But, as great as his services have been in that respect, they have been still greater in a broader and better sense. This country with its diversified races and creeds from its beginning has at all times presented problems that made demands upon the skill and ingenuity of our statesmen. Be it said to the credit of our great public leaders these great men who have stood high in the esteem of their people, the leaders of the country's two great parties, these men, who at various stages of the country's history have had placed in their keeping their country's destiny, Cartier, Baldwin, Lafountaine, MacKenzie, Sir John Macdonald, Sir John Thompson, it matters not to which party they belonged that they were animated, they were overwhelmed by one sentiment, spurred on by one impulse and thought, the unification of the people, the fostering of a national and patriotic spirit, the obliteration of the racial and sectarian asperities and animosities that work a country's ruin, and the burying of them in the oblivion of a forgotten past. But in this great service of devotion to their country, none has been more assiduous than our esteemed premier, our fellow-citizen and French-Canadian, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. (Loud applause). Let me quote his own words:

"If there is one thing to which I have given my political life, it is to try to promote unity and harmony and amity between the divers elements of this country. My friends can desert me, they can withdraw the trust which they have placed in my hands, but never shall I deviate from that line of policy. Whatever may be the consequence, whether loss of prestige, loss of popularity, or loss of power, I feel that I am in the right, and I know that a time will come when every man will render me full justice in that respect." These are the sentiments of a patriotic Canadian, and appeal to every sensible man. If this young country is to maintain her position as leader amongst that constellation of nations that constitute the outlying portions of the British Empire, to achieve that rank and dignity amongst the nations of the earth to which her vast territory and almost unlimited resources entitle her, she must have a united people, a people permeated with a common patriotism, amongst whom the only test of citizenship is a man's devotion to his country and her best interests, and attachment to those broad and liberal institutions, transmitted to her by the country from which she has sprung, a country in which each equally bears the duties and burdens imposed by the state, and all share alike in the rights and privileges of a common Canadian citizenship. (Prolonged cheering).

Mr. R. R. Hall.

Mr. Hall(who was received with hearty cheers, said that while he felt regret that circumstances had prevented his presenting himself as their candidate, while he felt convinced that his attention to the duties that devolved upon him as their representative at Ottawa had been such as to command their approval, and no one more keenly than he felt the value of the approval of a constituency after he had given it a term of service, and he believed that he had that approval. Yet it was with a peculiar pride and pleasure that he had been accorded the privilege of nominating in convention to succeed himself, the man who was to be the next representative of West Peterborough, in the House of Commons at Ottawa, the Hon. J. R. Stratton. (Loud cheers). He felt deeply grateful when he recalled the splendid support that Ennismore had given to him four years ago, a majority of 134 votes, that had exactly offset the majority against him in Peterborough City. But he was equally well satisfied that in the Hon. Mr. Stratton they had a sure winner in this election. (Great applause). And he (Mr. Hall) was glad that it should be so. If he had served them well, as he had endeavoured to do, and in a manner which he felt proud and grateful to think had commanded their approval, he believed he would be succeeded by a gentleman whose devotion to the welfare of Peterborough and past services in their behalf, were beyond question, and who would make West Peterborough recognized, to the advantage of its people, on the floor of the House of Commons at Ottawa. He would direct for a few moments their attention to matters which, perhaps, they did not like to reflect, to the dark days which they had not forgotten, about the time of 1896, when lands were a drug in the market, when the chattel mortgage was the order of the day; when these conditions of depression that prevailed in the county were also experienced in the cities, because the manufacturer and the farmer were equally the sufferers, and our young people, to seek the opportunities of life, were driven away to a foreign land. To-day they had a different experience. Prosperity had been restored to the land by the wise policy and the sagacious administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and more than that by the placing of one million of new settlers on our magnificent domain of the West (cheers) we had been started on a new era of prosperity. What had Sir Wilfrid Laurier done on being confronted with the difficult situation in which the incapacity and neglect of his predecessors in office had left the country? He first had to consider the difficult question of a race prejudice that circumstances had unfortunately imposed upon him. And he had settled this promptly and satisfactorily, and it was heard of no more. (Applause). A situation had preceded him of which Canadian people had reason to be ashamed. They had seen a minister of the crown retired in disgrace and leading supporters of the Conservative Government sent to the common goal, for malfeasance and dishonesty. They remembered Sir Mackenzie Bowell crying out in the bitterness of his soul that he had been living in a "nest of traitors," of whom the Hon. Geo. E. Foster was the chief—a time when a man was almost ashamed to say "I am a Canadian." In that condition of public affairs, which it was humiliating even now to recollect, the people of Canada had set their eye upon a rising statesman, who to-day had achieved a place not surpassed in importance by any man in the British Empire. (Applause). By his wisdom and patriotism that dangerous sectarian cry had been banished forever, and Canada stood to-day as a place where the safeguards of freedom and justice, and the recognition of equal rights and privileges to all, which should obtain wherever the British flag floated, were maintained for all. (Applause). And then he turned his attention to the tariff question—to the commercial and industrial interests of the country. By the hostile operation of the McKinley tariff, by the prohibitive tariff which our neighbours had erected against the products of our factories, our manufacturing interests were crippled, and the progress of that department of industry was at a standstill. But Mr. Laurier was equal to the occasion. He recognized that in Great Britain there was a market open for our people and by his preferential tariff that gave 33⅓ per cent. of advantage to the products of the Mother Country, the stream of commerce was diverted to that land. And the result was that Canadian industry, freed from the fetters of a distinctly hostile market, had found a wider sphere, and progressed with gigantic strides. (Cheers). Sir Wilfrid had recognized that in order to open up the greatest field of opportunity for our young manufacturing industries, and not less to get the best and most profitable market to the products of the farm, the transportation facilities of the country must be enlarged. And he set about to enlarge and improve the highways of commerce, by the development of the canal system, by the deepening of the St. Lawrence channels, so that the great modern steamship could get safe and convenient access to our seaport of Montreal; by the improvement of terminal facilities, not only at Halifax and St. John, but at our great inland port of Fort William; by lessening the dangers of navigation so that the cost of insurance was reduced by 50 per cent.; so that to-day our port of Montreal is the envy and the jealousy of the great eastern cities of the United States, and in the present year had received more grain than all the combined American cities of the Atlantic seaboard. (Cheers). This was a proud record for the people of Canada, and it was but the threshold of the great future that was before them. And the time was coming soon when even the wheatfields of the United States would find their way to European markets along Canadian channels. (Cheers). Mr. Hall went on to show how in the development of the Great West this Government had maintained the central idea of the lands for the settler, and had steadfastly applied that principle to its administration of affairs. He showed how the Government had compelled the railways to make their selection of lands which had been granted to encourage settlement, the refusal of which, permitted under Conservative administration, had greatly retarded the progress of western settlement. And it was important for them to consider how the development of the country had been affected by the progressive policy of the Laurier administration, in order to properly realize how disastrous it would be to return to the old policy which had so greatly in the years past retarded the progress of the country. Our foreign trade had reached the enormous proportion of $650,738,200, and it was recognized by the world that our progress as a nation had been more marvellous than that of any other country except Japan. He did not believe the people of West Peterborough would make the grave and serious mistake that it would be to send Mr. Burnham to Ottawa to misrepresent them, but that on October 26, they would by a decisive majority send Hon. J. R. Stratton to Parliament, and help in winning a glorious victory for their great Canadian Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier. (Great applause).

Hon. J. R. Stratton.

Mr. Stratton received a greeting that indicated with no uncertain sound where the heart of Ennismore lay in this election, and that its people were in line with the other agricultural sections of the riding in their support of him. He expressed, in opening, his gratification at this very large and unusual audience, which he took as a presage of victory. It was a source of pride and satisfaction to him that his meetings in the present campaign, in every quarters of the riding, had been the largest within his recollection, and he felt that this unusual interest in the question of the hour, and the spirit that had been manifested at all these meetings indicated the determination of the people of West Peterborough to give their votes for the continuation in power of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and of his election to Parliament to aid that great statesman in his work of developing the progress and prosperity of Canada. (Loud applause). He was gratified to see before him so many ladies of their neighbourhood and he warmly appreciated their sympathy and support. The ladies would not only influence the result, he believed, to his advantage, but from their presence a deliberative meeting became more orderly and less boisterous, and even the utterances of the speakers themselves took on a more elevated tone. They had just listened to two addresses, of signal ability and rare eloquence, and Mr. O'Connell and Mr. Hall had so thoroughly covered the issues which were before them to decide, that they had left little for him to say. Mr. O'Connell had expressed himself with a power, and a convincing logic that must command their attention and approval, and Mr. Hall, as they might have observed, had developed into one of the most effective speakers of the day. These gentlemen and himself, and all who had spoken in his behalf of the campaign had endeavoured to maintain a clean, decent and dignified attitude before the electors, but they had been met with a torrent of abuse unexcelled in violence by anything that had occurred in former years. In his candidacy, he had not brought into the county any outsiders in an attempt to influence them, but had preferred to make his appeal to them as his neighbours and his friends who, even if they disagreed with him, would at least accord to him the same respect that he extended to them. (Applause). His opponent had brought into the riding Mr. Roblin, who, as they had heard, had afterward been expelled from the province in disgrace by his own friends; they had brought in Hon. Mr. Hanna, who was his (Mr. Stratton's) successor in the office of Provincial Secretary of Ontario, and he had also benefitted by the presence of the man from Manitoulin, of whom they had heard so much. (Laughter and applause). And not one of these gentlemen had been able to enlighten the people of Peterborough in any way to cast reflection or discredit upon him, although it was the ardent desire of a few people to do so. (Cheers). It was his pride and his pleasure to know, and to have the knowledge shared by the people of West Peterborough, that after twenty years of public life, and four years of responsibility as a cabinet minister, although he had been subjected to more abuse than almost any other public man in provincial affairs, Hon. Mr. Hanna, with the aid of an American expert, who had spent two years in searching the books of the province, was not able to put a finger upon a single transaction to which any dishonesty or any impropriety on his part could be attached. (Cheers). They had made no such disclosure as they had been led by evil minds to expect, because they could not do it; it was not there. (Applause). He felt reluctant to refer to so transparent and stupid a slander as had been directed against him in regard to the affairs of the Home Life Insurance Company, based upon a matter that was purely a private concern, affecting the shareholders and policy holders of the company alone and totally irrelevant to the political questions which were before them for their consideration, but as Mr. Burnham seemed to centre his vain hope of election upon that matter, he (Mr. Stratton) might be pardoned for briefly alluding to it. His audience would, of course, recognize that it was not reasonable to expect an old bachelor like Mr. Burnham to have a proper conception of the concerns of "home life." (Laughter and applause). But it was enough to say that the transaction upon which Mr. Burnham and a few of his friends had placed such stress, was a simple business transaction, in which not the slightest impropriety could be traced. The money which it had been imputed he had taken was his own money, a part of a sum which he had advanced to enable two insurance companies to effect an amalgamation. And it was enough to say that after this amalgamation had been effected he himself had been elected, and again re-elected, president of the reorganized company, by the directors and shareholders, whose money was at stake, and who were really the parties interested. (Cheers). And he was in a position to defy Mr. Burnham, or the Review, of which he was the editor, to put a finger upon any transaction of his business or political career that was not an honorable transaction. (Cheers). He (Mr. Stratton) had been before the people of this county for twenty years, during that time had been for eighteen years their representative in the Legislature, and had also been honoured, in their behalf, by a seat in the government of the province, and in that time he could say with truth and without a boast that no man could point to an act of his that was not honourable and straightward. (Loud applause). He believed that it was within bounds for him to say that this was his credit, and that it was because this was true, and because the people of the county knew that it was true, that he had been enabled to hold his own against all the efforts that had been made to accomplish his political downfall. (Cheers). And he believed the good people of Ennismore, who had for so long stood by him, who knew him well, would in this election repeat their old verdict of confidence, and that by their aid, in line with the independent voters of the other sections of West Peterborough, he would on October 26 be elected, as Mr. Hall had prophesied, their member in the next House of Common, to support the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier at Ottawa. (Loud applause.) The county had reason to feel proud of the gentleman at the head of the Government, who had not only done so much to advance the material interests of the Dominion, but who when he appeared for Canada in the Mother Country, had not only electrified the people of the old land, but had commanded the admiration of the European nations, and who stands to-day, in patriotism and statesmanship head and shoulders above any other man in the British Empire (loud applause)—whose very name was a tower of strength to our financial credit abroad. (Cheers). They had heard the Government assailed in the most unwarrantable way by Mr. Burnham for the putting under way of the great Grand Trunk Pacific Railway system, that was to be so great and powerful a lever to push forward the progress of Canada. In order to judge of the wisdom or the prudence of the Government's dealing with this great enerprise, they had only to go back to the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which had accomplished so much for the advancement of Canada. The Liberal party had not questioned the value of this project but they had objected to the methods of the then Government in dealing with it. The lands that had been granted to aid in its construction, of which the future value had been taken no concern by the Conservative Government, were worth to-day $150,000,000 in cash. Compare this transaction, and this vast subsidy was in addition to an enormous cash subsidy which was advanced at the beginning of the enterprise, with the conditions under which Sir Wilfrid Laurier had secured the procuring of the great transcontenental railway now being largely constructed and soon to be completed. All that this gigantic undertaking, which was to open up a new empire of resources for our country, would actually cost the Dominion, was the sum of $12,000,000 to $15,000,000, the interest upon cash advanced for construction of a portion of the road from Winnipeg to Moncton for a period of seven years. They were already feeling the benefit from the construction of the road, for everything that entered into its building came from Canadian sources, and this great expenditure, of which our factories had so large a benefit, had no doubt been in a large measure the means of protecting the country against the universal wave of depression of the past year, and which had been so disastrously felt throughout the United States. And when this railway was completed, and the Hudson Bay Railway added, to give a prompt and profitble market to the grain product of the Golden West, when the great line of water communication was perfected by the construction of the Trent Valley Canal, and the works on the Welland and the St. Lawrence channels, we would have introduced an era of national development and progress, of opportunity and prosperity that would bring in an enormous population to our western territory, and bring back to live under a free flag the thousands of our sons who had in years past been exiled to a foreign land by the unprogressive policy of the Conservative Government of Canada, which had preceded the great statesman who was directing the progress of Canada to-day. (Applause.) They would find that cheaper coal for their firesides would add to their domestic comfort and economy, and the local factories, and the cheaper transportation to markets, would advance the price of their produce; the monopoly of the steam railways would be curbed, and they would have passing their doors, and in a hundred ways distributing its benefits, the produce of the west, not only from Canadian but from American sources, to Montreal, the great seaport of the Dominion. He sketched the development which he anticipated from the opening up of a New Ontario, which had been made possible by the policy of the Ross administration, of which he had been a member, and as the grand result of all these forces of progress he looked forward to an Ontario that would be in its manufacturing enterprise and commercial greatness, the Pennsylvania of Canada, and it might not be too much even to expect that with the advantages which the policy of the Government was providing, this Peterborough of ours might become the Pittsburgh of our new development. (Applause.) He ridiculed Mr. Burnham's pretension that the eastern farmers were not concerned in the pregress of the Great West, and pointed out that in this present year there had been produced there 130,000,000 bushels of grain, which would bring into the country $125,000,000 of new and created wealth, and that at least $60,000,000 of this vast sum would come to Ontario to buy from the factories and industrial enterprises of this province what was required to supply the needs of the western settler. (Applause.) Referring to Mr. Kendry, he said that gentleman now complained against the tariff of the Dominion as it affected the industry in which he was engaged, but the fact was that he had made no complaint, though duly notified by Mr. Hall, against the tariff schedule when it was under consideration, and it ill became him at this late day and for a political effect to advance this complaint. To grant what Mr. Kendry wanted would mean an increase of $2 to $4 on every farmer's suit of clothes and the Government had refused to impose this burden upon them. (Applause.) Those who knew Mr. Kendry would find it hard to believe that he was suffering from any want of prosperity. (Laughter and cheers.) Mr. Burnham had told them in his opening campaign address, that this country should be conducted without any taxes whatever, and that it was the duty of a Government to accomplish this rule of things. That would be a "good time coming," but he was afraid that it would never get here, and if it ever did, they might also expect the government to be charged with the responsibility of their grocer's bills, though Mr. Burnham had forgotten to indicate from what source the Government was to find the money after taxation had been abolished. (Laughter and loud applause.) He paid a trib te to Mr. Hall, who they would admit had procured for West Peterborough from the Dominion Government more practical benefits than had been obtained by all his Conservative predecessors, and in asking for their support for himself, could only pledge himself to give them that same earnest, vigilant and active attention to their interests which he had devoted to them during his eighteen years in the Ontario Legislature. Mr. Stratton was loudly applauded on taking his seat.

A vote of thanks to the chairman, cheers for the ladies, Mr. Hall and Mr. Stratton closed the most important political meeting that has yet been held in Ennismore.

TRAMP BEATS WOMAN.

Farmer's Wife Assailed by Ruffian Seeking Money.

Brockville, Oct. 17.—Choked and beaten was the experience early yesterday morning of Mrs. William Charlton, the wife of a farmer living three miles from Brockville. Her assailant was a tramp, who had applied for breakfast. She had consented to give it to him, bringing the stranger into the kitchen. Seeing her alone, he demanded money, saying: "I can get my breakfast whenever I like."

Mrs. Charlton screamed and ran to the door in an effort to call the male members of the family, who were in a barn some distance from the house.

The stranger grabbed her by the throat, but she broke away. She did not get the door open, however, before the tramp struck her on the shoulder, knocking her down to the floor unconscious. She remembered nothing for half an hour, and, upon reviving, summoned her husband and others, but the tramp had decamped and no trace of him has been found since. He made a hasty search of the house, as $1.06, which had been placed on a shelf in the kitchen, is missing.

Dominion Controls Fishing.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 12.—Judge Howey at New Westminster yesterday quashed the conviction against John Kendall, fisherman, who was hauled before the court several weeks ago on charges of contravention of the new provincial fishery laws.

Judge Howey declared that it was clearly shown that provincial authorities had no right whatever to attempt control of the waters of the Fraser river, the Privy Council have established the Dominion's control to inland waters.

This decision is flatly against a great deal of the fishery regulations passed at the last session of the Legislature.

Husband Aged 86, Wife 23.

Windsor, Oct. 17.—Ainsley Scott, 86 years of age, was brought from Grand Haven, Mich., to Detroit to serve a sentence of three months, in default of a fine of $60, for practicing medicine without a license. He was followed by his wife, who is only 23 years of age. She declares she will try to obtain money enough to pay the fine. The young wife states that her octogenarian husband is an actor, but has been in hard luck, and their trunks are now being held for an unpaid board bill in Stratford, Ont.

GANANOQUE MAN OUT OF TROUBLE

Had Rheumatism, but Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured It.

Hugh Abernethy on His Feet Again—Cure is Easy, Simple, Natural and Permanent.

Gananoque, Ont., Oct. 16.—Special—That rheumatism can be cured surely, simply and permanently is the good news that Hugh Abernethy, a well known resident of King street, is spreading among his neighbours.

"I had suffered from rheumatism and stiffness of the joints," Mr. Abernethy states. "My muscles would cramp. I could not sleep, and I had terrible headaches. I took many different medicines, but nothing did me any good till I tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. Six boxes put me on my feet again."

Others who have taken Mr. Abernethy's advice and used Dodd's Kidney Pills are also loud in their praises of the old reliable Canadian kidney remedy. For Dodd's Kidney Pills cure rheumatism and other blood diseases by curing the kidneys. Sound kidneys keep the blood free from impurities. And with no impurities, such as uric acid in the blood, you cannot have such painful and dangerous diseases as Pain in the Back, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuralgia and Heart Disease.

Keep your kidneys strong and well with Dodd's Kidney Pills, and you can face the cold wet days of fall without a fear of rheumatism.

FAT IS OUT OF STYLE

To paraphrase Caesar's remark, the directoire gown came—was seen—and has conquered. So fat ladies are reduced, so to speak, to the necessity of either reducing at a very rapid rate or of eliminating themselves from public view until the fashion dies out. Otherwise they risk being ridiculous.

Since many fat ladies will not eliminate themselves, however, but, per contra, will insist on wearing the curveless gown, no course is open to this well-meaning scribe than to tell them how they may eliminate the fat.

What is there, then, that reduces fat safely? What pleasant inexpensive article is there on druggists' shelves that can reduce a pound a day without causing wrinkles or stomach ache? What can the pharmacists offer as an improvement over scanty victuals or ten mile walks without breakfast? Is there anything pleasant to take and inexpensive to buy that will reduce one uniformly, quickly and innocently thirty pounds a month? Here is the answer: Either write the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., or ask your local druggist for Marmola Prescription Tablets, and for 75 cents they or he will give you one large case of these fat reducers, containing so generous a quantity of tablets that sometimes only one case is needed to produce the desired results. Can you match that for a simple solution of your problem?

Early History Of Park Street Baptist Church; Corner Stone Of New Church Laid To-day

How the Mission in the South End Of The City Was Begun—An Important Era Begins To-day

INTERESTING INFORMATION

To-day the corner stone of the new Park Street Baptist Church was laid, the Hon. J. R. Stratton officiating. The history of the advance made by this congregation is a most interesting one, especially to those who were interested in the organization of the church more than twenty years ago. In view of the new era upon which it has entered to-day, under the pastorship of the Rev. W. C. Riddiford, the following history by a member of the congregation is produced:

The Park Street Baptist Sunday School, which was formerly called the "South Ward Baptist Mission," has entered upon its twenty-first year. On the second Sunday of August, 1888, this school was organized. Some time previous to this date the late Rev. Alexander Grant, who was then Superintendent of Home Missions, was taking a walk in the south end of the town along with Rev. P. C. Parker, who was then pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church. Mr. Grant remarked here is a good place for a mission.

Shortly after Mr. Parker and those interested, met in the building known as the mission building on Dalhousie street. Mr. R. J. Kidd was elected superintendent, and Mr. W. E. Mann, secretary-treasurer, with the following as teachers:

Mr. W. Stock, Miss M. Mann, Miss Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Cuckoo and Mrs. Fitzgerald.

The attendance on the first Sunday was twenty. There was a gradual and steady increase. The school from the first was self supporting. On the 24th January, 1890, the first social and concert was held. The receipts for the year were $127. In March, 1890, the secretary-treasurer, W. E. Mann, resigned to go to Victoria, B. C.. In November of the same year Rev. P. C. Parker resigned the pastorate of Murray Street Baptist Church and was called to First Avenue Baptist Church, Toronto. In the following year, 1901, the attendance was eight. The librarian reported 278 volumes in the library. During the year the school came into possession of a legacy of $500, bequeathed by the late Mrs. Charlotte J. Nicholls. About this time Mr. R. J. Kidd, the superintendent, resigned. Mr. H. Grundy was elected in his place. Rev. J. E. Trotter, now of sainted memory, was pastor of Murray Street Church. The sum of $170 of the Nicholls' bequest was expended on the lot from which this church has recently been removed, and during the summer of 1892 a building was erected which forms the main part of our present edifice.

On the second Sunday of October, of same year, that building was dedicated for worship by Rev. J. E. Trotter. This began a new era in the school's history, increased accommodation and a more favourable locality, gave a decided impetus to the work. In January, 1893, Mr. Grundy resigned his position as superintendent. Miss M. Mann was elected to take charge. During the year the highest attendance was 116. Mr. J. J. Reeves became student pastor for the summer months. A very great advance was made when Brother W. J. Pudy, of McMaster University, was called to labour in the field. His services in the Sunday School were greatly blessed. The attendance then was 142. Ten scholars were converted, baptised and added to the church. In the two years following the school increased, its attendance being 204. Twenty-eight from the school were added to the church.

The Church Organized

Mr. James Chapman, also of McMaster University, spent the summer following in the field. His assistance in the school was of great benefit and blessing. In March, 1897, Rev. Mr. O. C. Elliott became pastor, and under his pastorate the school grew and prospered.

In June, 1899, the school lost one of its most efficient members and teachers, namely, Mr. A. L. Grover, now of Portage la Prairie. One of the encouraging features of the year was that quite a number were added to the church. The attendance in 1900 was less than the preceding year, several families having removed to other places. In June our pastor, Rev. O. C. Elliott, resigned and removed to Belleville.

During his pastorate our two Bible classes reached their highest membership. Pastor Elliott's class of men numbered 35, while the ladies' class, with Mr. F. G. Gillespie as teacher, numbered 19. Those adult classes proved to be a great benefit to the school. Mr. J. H. Hanna, a graduate of McMaster University, immediately followed Pastor Elliott. Shortly after coming to the church he was ordained to the Gospel Ministry. On the 15th of March, 1903, Pastor Hanna resigned. The church was two months and a half without an under shepherd. After much praying and waiting, Rev. A. H. Brace accepted the call to become pastor and entered upon his duties in June.

On March 23, 1905, the annual festival was held, which was a great success. The reported total receipts of the year were $248.96. Through the special effort and untiring zeal of the scholars the sum of $124 was again added to the building fund. On Sept. 2, 1906, the 18th anniversary combined with Flower Sunday was observed.

In March, 1907, the annual tea and concert was held.

July 8, 1907, the school received with thanks a special donation of $300 from the Nicholls Estate by the executor, Mr. Richard Hall. This sum was deposited in the Dominion Bank, to be used for library purposes only.

On the first Sunday in May the congregation bid farewell to Pastor Brace, and to-day we gladly welcome Rev. W. C. Riddiford as his successor, and we look forward with confidence and joy to great blessing and prosperity for both church and school.

JOS. CONYERS in Denman Thompson's Big Comedy Success "OUR NEW MINISTER" Grand Next Thursday.

Music and Drama

DENMAN THOMPSON'S "OUR NEW MINISTER

Instructions to John P. Brawn, when entrusted by Denman Thompson with the role of "Skeezicks," the Bowery boy, in the author's comedy of life in Hardscrabble, N. H., "Our New Minister," shortly to be seen here with the original company and the New York production of scenery.

"Skeezicks," the breezy New York urchin that drops into Hardscrabble looking for work, should be played briskly. The boy is about eighteen. Only by suggestion now and then does he suggest the gamin raised in New York's Bowery, this is his manner of expressing some of his words. Otherwise he is a cheery, self-reliant, witty youngster, with self-confidence enough to tackle any job. He is absolutely without fear, and has no respect whatever for the traditions of Hardscrabble. There is no class distinction in his lexicon. Age is not entitled to any more deference than immaturity with him. He has a youth's gift of judging things fairly accurately by intuition. To him a wink is as good as a shout to a deaf and blind horse. His smartness is most pronounced in repartee. Without effort, he is able to strike at the very heart of a situation and in a single word bring confusion to even a scholarly foe. His lingo is profuse in slang, clean slang that gets there. He himself appears to be utterly unconscious of the fun he is ever making at the expense of this, that or the other citizen of Hardscrabble. The detective, Startle, comes in for most of Skeezicks' contempt and suffers most in an amusing way at his hands. The boy is dressed carelessly, but cleanly. The cheer of the character is further emphasized by a larkish whistle that keeps him company on his errands when he is not bandying smart sayings with the village folk. "Our New Minister" comes to the Grand next Thursday, Oct. 22nd.

JOHN GRIFFITH IN "OTOELLO"

The coming of few important attractions has excited the remarkable degree of interest that has been manifest since the date of Mr. Griffith's engagement in "Othello" was first announced, and it is expected that almost the entire house will be sold out long before the doors open on the night of the performance. Mr. Griffith's performance of Shakspere's grand tragedy will attract the most fashionable audience of the season thus far, and is looked upon as a social event of much importance, as well as an attraction of undoubted merit.

The greatness of Mr. Griffith's acting in the character of "Othello" is attested by enthusiastic praise of the various critics who have reviewed his performance elsewhere. He is credited with dramatic ability fully equal to the famous tragedians of the last century, who are now lost to the American stage. Miss Edyth Totten has also received much praise for her portrayal of Desdemona, and all the other characters are said to be in capable hands, while the scenic investitures are fully adequate. A thoroughly satisfying performance of Shakspere's greatest of tragedies may therefore be consistently expected. Mr. Griffith comes to the Grand next Wednesday, Oct. 21. Plan opens Monday.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

The Suggestive Questions on the Sunday School Lesson by Rev. Dr. Linscott for the International Bible Study Club for October 18th, are:—

David's Kindness to Jonathan's Son.—II Sam. ix.

Golden Text — And be ye kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving one another. Eph. iv: 32.

What is the greatest sentiment which a human heart can experience?

Verses 1-5 — What had been the relation between David and Jonathan?

What degree of merit would you give to kindness shown to one person for the sake of another person?

(This question must be answered in writing by the members of the Club).

What would you say of a man who refused help to a stranger, until he learned he was the son of an old friend and then lavished kindness upon him?

If Jesus were to come to us, incognito, for help, and we refused him; then learning who he was, ran and offered our services, what would be the attitude of Jesus to us in such a case?

Should we wait to be appealed to, before we show kindness to our fellows or should we take pains to look up those who need our kindness and sympathy?

If we speak cross to, or snub, a stranger, or refuse to help him in need when we have the power, or if we act just the contrary to this, is there any reason to believe that Jesus takes our action as if rendered to him personally?

Verse 6 — What are some of the benefits which come from being the son of a good father?

If often occurs that the character of parents, as in the case of Saul, entirely changes during the period covered by the birth of their children; does such change affect the hereditary tendency of the children born under the different dispensations?

Verses 7-8 — Is it necessary, or right, under our Christian civilization, for a good man in a humble position to pay more respect to a man in an exalted position, than he should to a so-called equal, or to render obsequious obedience to any man?

How would you characterize the act of David in giving to Mephibosheth all the land that was owned by his grandfather Saul?

If a son legally acquires property on the death of his father, which the son afterwards learns that the father had no moral right to, is he in honour bound to restore the property to the moral owner, as soon he learns who it is?

Verse 9 — The earth, the sky, and the sea are the common gifts of God to mankind as a whole; what moral right, therefore, has any man to exclusive ownership in either, or any part of these common gifts of God?

Verse 10 — From our usual standards for social conduct, David did a fitting and a generous act in inviting an impecunious king's grandson to eat at his table, but by what law of Christian ethics are masters justified in compelling their servants to eat at a separate table?

When God looks down upon a rich land owner and his large number of servants who till his land, does God necessarily have any more love for, or admiration of, or interest in, the master than the servants?

Verses 11-13 — What should be the relation between masters and servants according to the standard of the Kingdom of God?

What should our individual relation be toward the "lame" and those who are unfitted to make their own living?

Is it an advantage or a disadvantage for the average young man in being able to sit continuously at "the King's table"?

Should the State make provision to keep the aged and all who are not able to support themselves?

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITIONS

—All cities over the Province are preparing for their exhibition, and Peterborough is no exception to the rule. It is the time we meet our old and new friends, and those who are not our friends. It is also the best time for the introduction of the newest and smartest cuts in fall suits and where they can be shown to the greatest advantage. The New York Ladies' Tailoring establishment have removed their parlours and workshop from 658 George street to 387 Reid street, opposite St. Peter's Cathedral, for the better accommodation of their patrons, and are prepared to take orders in any line of ladies' garments. Fall Waists

Ours are the Aristocrats of the Waist Fashionables

¶ Our Waists are delightful. The styles are prettier, more becoming and more varied than ever before. Truly--Dame Fashion has been kind to the waists.

¶ Simplicity is the keynote of most Waist Styles. Tailor made effects will be very fashionable this fall--- Net Waists in pretty conceits and in the new tailored effects, will be much in evidence.

¶ This is a brief statement of the waist style news. A visit to our Waist Dept, 2nd floor, will show a varied and charming expression of these tendencies, for all the good Waist Ideas are here. Their extremely low prices will not be the least of their charm---view them--you'll voice our opinions.

OBITUARY.

MRS. TIMOTHY COUGHLIN

The friends of Mrs. Timothy Coughlin, formerly of Hastings, will regret to learn of her death on Thursday in Norham. She died from heart failure after only a few hours' illness. Mrs. Coughlin after leaving Hastings went to Toledo to reside, and came over this summer to visit her sister and mother at the old homestead in Norham. Her husband predeceased her some two years ago.

WEDDING BELLS

KILLINBECK—HOGG

On Tuesday, October 13, at the residence of Rev. Alex. Gilray of the Presbyterian Church, College street, Toronto, was celebrated the marriage of Miss Mary Edna Hogg, daughter of Mr. Wm. Hogg, Harwood, to Mr. Alex George Killingbeck, son of Mr. John Killingbeck, 35 Lafayette avenue. They were attended by Mr and Mrs. Robt. Cameron, of Toronto. After a pleasant honeymoon they have returned to Peterborough and will reside at 41 Jackson avenue.

CHANGE IN TIME TABLE

A reconstruction has been made in the arrangement of the complete time tables issued by the Grand Trunk Railway System which will be appreciated by the travelling public. Where tables are shown of the condensed time of trains between the several points where through equipment is run, this equipment is shown directly opposite the time table giving passengers the information they desire in the easiest possible way and without turning to other pages to find what equipment is on several trains shown. To make railway time tables plain to the travelling public is a problem with the railways but this new innovation has overcome a considerable amount of trouble, which has been experienced in the past in knowing what equipment could be found on through trains.

Sequel to "Cuddle Doon"

Mrs. Andrew Mackay, Woodville, has kindly sent 'Wauken Up,' a sequel to 'Cuddle Doon,' asked for by L.H.R., Fergus.

Wull I hae to speak again,
To thae weans o' mine?
Eicht o'clock, and weel I ken
The schule gangs in at nine.
Little hauds me but tae gang
And fetch the muckle whup;
O, ye sleepy-heidit rogues,
Will ye wauken up?

Never mother had sic faught,—
No a moment's ease!
Cleed Tam as ye like, at nicht
His breeks are through the knees;
Threed is no for him ava"
It never hauds the grup;
Maun I speak again, ye rogues,
Wull ye wauken up'?

Tam, the very last to bed,—
He winna rise ava',
Last to get his books and slate,
Last to roon awa',
Sic a limb for tricks an' fun,
Heeds na' what I say;
Rab and Jamie—but thae plagues,
Wull they sleep a' day?

Here they come, the three at once,
Lookin' gleg an' fell,
Hoo they ken their bits o' claes,
Beats me fair to tell.
Wash your wee bit faces clean,
An' here's your bite an' sup,—
Never was mair wiselike bairns
Noo they're waukened up.

There the three are aff at last;
I watch them frae the door—
That Tam, he's at his tricks again,
I coont them by the score.
He's put his fit afore wee Rab,
An' coupit Jamie doon;
Could I lay my han's on him,
I'd make him claw his croon.

Noo to get my work on han',
I'll hae a busy day;
But losh! the house is unco quate
Since they're a' away.
A dizzen times I'll look the clock
Whon it comes roun' to three,
For cuddlin' doon or waukenin' up
They're dear, dear bairns to me.

ALEXANDER ANDERSON.

"The Last to Cuddle Doon".

Miss Bessie Leslie, St. Anicet, Que, kindly furnishes a copy of the pathetic little poem 'The Last to Cuddle Doon.'

I sit afore a ha'lf-oot fire,
An' I am a' my lane,
Nae frien' or fremit dauners in,
For a' my fouk are gane.
An' John—that was my ain gude man,
He sleeps the mools amang—
An auld frail body like mysel',
It's time that I should gang.

The win' moans roun' the auld house
An' shakes the ale fir tree,
An' as it soughs it waukens up
Auld things fu' dear to me.
If I could only greet, my heart
It wouldna' be sae sair;
But tears are gane, and bairns are gane
An' baith come back nae mair.

Ay, Tam, puir Tam, sae fu' o' fun,
He fan this warld a fecht,
An' sair, sair he was hadden down,
Wi' mony a weary wecht.
He bore it a' until the en',
But when we laid him doon,
The grey hairs there afore their time
Were thick amang the broon.

An' Jamie, with the curly heid,
Sae burly, big an' braw,
Was cut doon in the prime o' youth,
The first amang them a'.
If I had tears for the auld een,
Then could I greet fu' weel,
To think o' Jamie lying deid
Aneath the engine wheel.

Wee Rab, what can I say o' him?
He's waur than deid to me;
Nae word frae him thae weary years,
Has come across the sea.
Could I but ken that he is weel,
As here I sit this nicht,
This warld wi' a' its faucht an' care
Wad look a wee thing licht.

I sit afore a ha'lf-oot fire,
An' I am a' my lane,
Nae frien' hae I to dauner in,
For a' my fouk are gane.
I wuss that He wha rules us a'
Frae where He dwells abune,
Wad touch my auld grey heid an' say
'It's time to cuddle doon.'

YOUR DYSPEPSIA WILL VANISH PROMPTLY

There Will be No Stomach Distress Follow the Heartiest Meal

Why not start now—today, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juices working. There will be no dyspepsia nor belching of Gas or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and Dizziness, and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cts for a large case at any drug store here and will relieve the most obstinate case of indigestion and Upset Stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take Gas from the stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines, and, besides, one triangule will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as a sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When Diapepsin works, your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table, and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all Stomach Misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to begin taking Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin, because you want to be thoroughly cured of Indigestion.

SEVENTEEN PERISH IN A BUSH FIRE

Forest Fires Destroy Michigan Refugee Train.

CREMATED IN GONDOLA CAR

Citizens of Little Village of Metz Fleeing in Hastily Made Up Relief Train on Detroit & Mackinaw to Alpena Are Caught When Train is Ditched Between Blazing Ties and Burned to Death.

Alpena, Mich., Oct. 17.—Seventeen people lost their lives Thursday night in the burning of the Detroit & Mackinaw Railroad relief train, which was carrying the inhabitants of the little Village of Metz, 23 miles north of here, to safety from the forest fires which were sweeping away their homes.

The ill-fated train was ditched by spreading rails at Nowicki siding, a few miles south of Metz, and the terrified refugees were forced to abandon the cars and rush for safety either down the track, with burning forests on either side, or into the plowed fields nearing the siding.

Eleven of the victims were women and children, who were unable to escape quickly enough from the gondola car which they were occupying. Their charred bodies were found there yesterday when rescuers reached the scene.

Two of the men victims were members of the train crew. Four additional fatalities occurred in the neighborhood of the wreck. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wagner died from heat and exhaustion on their farm near the scene of the wreck, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nowicki, Jr., lost their lives in their burning house near the siding where the wreck occurred.

Following is the list of the dead in the wreck: William Barrett, Alpena, brakeman; Arthur Lee, Alpena, fireman; John Koniesany, Mrs. John Koniesany, John Koniesany, aged two; Joseph Koniesany, aged three; Helen Koniesany, aged seven months; Mrs. George Cicero, Margaret Cicero, aged two; George Cicero, aged five; a third Cicero child, aged eight; Mrs. Emma Hardie and Pauline Hardie, aged nine; Mary Hardie, aged three; Minnie Hardie, aged eight months.

When the forest fires closed in on Thursday about the little village, a special train of three empty box cars and two coal gondolas were rushed to Metz.

As rapidly as possible the people and their goods were loaded in the cars. When the train started there were about 100 frightened people aboard. The flames were already sweeping through the village. Nearing Nowicki Crossing, the engineer saw blazing piles of cedar ties on both sides of the track. Opening wide the throttle he tried to dash through at full speed, but the heat had loosened the rails and they had spread and the train left the track. Blazing piles of ties surrounded it and in an instant the cars caught fire. The terror-stricken people caught by the peril from which they were fleeing, jumped from the cars and rushed down the track. They were cremated in the gondola car, where they were caught.

Sixty people who spent a night of terror on a southbound train from Cheboygan, was hemmed in all night by fires at LaRogue, have just arrived here on a relief train.

The fire yesterday afternoon is reported to be dangerously near Rogers City. La Rogue also seems to be doomed, unless rain comes within a few hours. Women and children have been sent away from this village.

Farms between Metz and Rogers City have been ravaged by the fires.

Detroit, Oct. 17.—A despatch from Hurst, Mich., says: Henry C. Kemps, his wife and two children, were burned to death yesterday or Thursday night. The four bodies were found yesterday in the ruins of the farmhouse.

Forest Fires Threaten Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 17.—Forest fires have again broken out in Chippewa County and are threatening in the extreme. Brimley, a town 15 miles west, is in serious danger of destruction, and Neebish settlement was saved Thursday night only by heroic efforts of the fire department from the Canadian Soo, which went there with an engine on a tugboat.

The smoke is so thick that it was impossible to see across the river yesterday, and boats are either tied up or operating under check. Unless there is rain soon, the losses will reach hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The flames reached the city limits here Thursday night and threatened a dynamite storehouse.

Farm House Burns; Family Escapes.

Harrow, Oct. 17.—About midnight Oct. 15, the two large barns belonging to W. C. Cornwall were destroyed by fire.

About 4 o'clock yesterday morning the dwelling of Ralph Mickle, a farmer, living about six miles northwest of Harrow, was destroyed. Mickle, his wife and children barely escaped. Nothing was saved.

Formed Mine Owners' Association.

Kenora, Oct. 17.—In order to promote the revival of the mining industry and secure unison on matters pertaining to the auriferous mining industry, a public meeting was held Thursday, and a Mine Owners' and Prospectors' Association formed. Capt. Machin, M.P.P., was the initiator.

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—The Government has received many applications to purchase old-age annuities, and will begin the sale next month. The applications are from lawyers, doctors, clergymen, merchants, farmers, business men and wage-earners.

Pamphlets explaining the scheme are being issued.

Arrested on Serious Charge.

Windsor, Oct. 17.—Ross Summers of Cornell, who is wanted by the authorities in Woodstock, was arrested in Detroit and brought to Windsor. Summers is charged with having attacked two young girls near Woodstock in September.

STRATTON'S ADDRESS TO THE ELECTORS OF THE RIDING OF WEST PETERBOROUGH

To the Electors of West Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—I have been unanimously selected as candidate, in the Liberal interest, for the representation of West Peterborough, at the elections to be held on October 26th, and I hereby solicit your influence and vote, feeling that, as a supporter of the Liberal Government of the Dominion, I can render the city and riding at large, good, faithful and fruitful service.

All who know me, and after nearly twenty years of representation of the riding, that should include the majority of the electors, know in what manner I have discharged my duty to West Peterborough.

Aside from the policy of the Government on whose behalf a candidate is appealing for support, the determining factor in deciding an elector's support, should be the fitness of the candidate to give efficient representation. The elector should, therefore, choose the man whose known qualifications and record assure the exercise of effort and influence on behalf of the advancement of the interests of the riding, and to procure to it that measure of Government attention to which it is fairly entitled.

Therefore, in setting forth below what has been done under the Liberal representatives of West Peterborough in enlisting the good will of governments in securing substantial benefits, an adequate idea can be formed of how greatly to the advantage of this constituency will be the election of a candidate in sympathy with the Government, which has the power to vouchsafe advantages that may be faithfully presented.

I may, therefore, be permitted to point out a little of what has been accomplished for West Peterborough, through its representatives, by Liberal Governments. First, as my own share:

The work of procuring the construction of the Bensfort bridge, south of the city, is the equivalent of securing distinct benefits to residents of South Monaghan, through shortened distance to reach the market in Peterborough, and to the latter by facilitating the visits of the township people to the city. The building of a road through the township of North Monaghan north also served to lessen the distance the people of South Monaghan had to traverse to reach the city.

The procuring of a grant to assist in digging the Cavan drain, meant a much shortened way of access for the residents of northern Cavan to the Peterborough market, to the mutual advantage of themselves and Peterborough merchants and the reclamation of some thousands of acres of previously valueless swamp lands.

The procuring of large sums to be spent in the construction of new roads in Harvey, Cavendish, Galway, North Smith and Ennismore, represents conveniences to the people of these townships of no little value.

The procuring of legislation for the building of Chemong and Pigeon Creek bridges, and requiring their perpetual maintenance by the city and the Counties of Victoria and Peterborough, in the interests of the district, is another means of facilitating exchange of town and city trade.

The procuring of Government assistance to build the Kinmount bridge of stone and steel, was a means of settling the litigation between Peterborough and Victoria Counties, which had cost, and promised to cost, enough to build a bridge, and another benefit was the removal of a cause of constant friction between the two counties.

The construction of approaches and ferry, and later a permanent bridge, to span Gannon's Narrows, is a shortening of the distance to the city appreciated by the residents and farmers and land owners concerned.

I was fortunate enough to induce the Ontario Government to deed to the city—then town—of Peterborough, the Government reservation along the river front from the C.P.R. bridge to the Hunter street bridge, a great advantage, which has been made greater by being filled in by the dredgings of the river, at once beautifying the shore line and creating sites for manufactures, etc., etc., to be fronted with wharfage now under contemplation.

I will, I believe, be credited with having been instrumental in procuring the lease for Number Five dam, which made possible the establishment of the Otonabee Power Company, and led to the establishment of the Peterborough Cereal Works, and also led to the development of power at the dams further up the river for the use of the Lakefield Cement Works. For this I received at the time no little abuse and imputation of false motives in a course in which I had at heart only the good of the city, without the slightest personal advantage.

I may also fairly take credit for inducing the Ontario Government to consent to the transference of the waters of the northern part of this district to the jurisdiction of the Dominion Government, whose measures for conservation of water have created a steady flow the year round in the interests of canal navigation and power production, whose importance cannot be well over-estimated in relation to our manufacturing interests.

I may perhaps be permitted to suggest that the strong opposition to the legislation necessary to establish the Quaker Oats Cereal Company in Peterborough, with all the advantages and attendant benefits, would, I believe have been successful, if I had not used all my efforts and influence to secure the passage of the necessary legislation, which was bitterly opposed in Committee, and in the Assembly.

My interest in Peterborough, and West Peterborough, and the advance of their material welfare, has not been confined to my course in a representative capacity. In the interests of the city and of its working men I have fortunately been able to be instrumental in reorganizing the Peterborough Lock Works on a prosperous and permanent working basis, and to be of assistance in promoting the establishment of the Peterborough Shovel and Tool Company. As the publisher of the Examiner, I have made it the medium of advocating and aiding all public measures and private enterprises calculated to upbuild Peterborough city and county. In this enterprise, and in the publication of three creditable class journals, The Canadian Dairyman and Farming World, and The Canadian Horticulturist, employment is given to about 100 persons, and Peterborough is given the dignity of a publishing centre.

When the E[illegible] now Canadian General Electric Works, were being established in Peterborough, [illegible] the council was being criticized for the assistance the town gave. Owing to the assistance of the council and citizens, the works were established, and have grown and prospered, and I gave not only my moral support, but became financially interested to the extent of my ability.

I trust I may claim, as is the fact, that in the discharge of my representative duties, I have tried to represent the whole riding, irrespective of party affiliation, and that I have met and dealt with all conditions that arose during my several terms without regard to party feeling.

In all these things, if there be any merit, I have only done a duty to be expected of any representative, with the interests of his constituents at heart, and discharged the duties of a citizen; and if, through your support, I am given another opportunity, the assurance may be accepted that what little I have been able to do for West Peterborough, will be supplemented, to the best of my ability, and the extent of my influence, with the Government, and in the world of finance and affairs.

However, the benefits to West Peterborough, from Liberal representation and Government liberality, or rather justice, and deference to fair claims, are not all confined to the realm of the Provincial Government, but the Dominion representative and Government have contributed an important share.

To give prominence to the most prominent and most widely beneficial exercise of administrative function, the work of Trent Canal completion, by the Dominion, may be cited. When the Liberal Government took office in 1896, there were only 51 miles of navigable canal completed. Now there are 160 miles completed, embracing in this distance access to a thousand miles of shore line, and there are 28 miles under contract, leaving only 15 miles of unfinished canal between Georgian Bay and Trenton. During the 18 years of Conservative rule, and in all the years from Confederation, there was spent by that Government in canal construction work the sum of $1,250,030. During the 12 years of Liberal rule, there has been spent, including works under contract and construction, the sum of $4,891,708, out of the $6,121,117 spent since Confederation, or in other words in 12 years of Liberal administration, more than four times the amount spent in the preceding 30 years, has been expended, and, among other things, has given Peterborough steamer connection with the back lakes and northern waters.

Then, in the past twelve years large sums have been used in providing complementary works—to give the fullest benefits from canal construction—such as wharves, capable of enlargement, along the river and Trent waters, in dredging operations at various points. Particular reference might be made to the wharf at the street railway terminus, and the Wolfe street wharf, on which the work of construction will begin immediately.

Other measures in the interests of the riding due to energetic representation and fair government recognition of our claims may be cited.

A sitting of the Tariff Commission was secured for Peterborough, and the claims of Peterborough manufacturers heard and heeded. Representative influence met a ready response form the Post Office Department for the improvement of postal facilities; the interior accommodation of the building was enlarged and improved, city delivery provided, street letter boxes more than doubled in number, with more frequent collections, in addition to reduction of drop letter postage from two cents to one cent, not to speak of the opening of several new post offices, and the increased frequency of mail service.

The Peterborough Armouries represent not only an architectural ornament to the city and a large utility to the several forces of our militia, but a substantial advantage to the city in connection with the acquirement of a site for the Collegiate Institute.

The construction of a new $56,000 dam at Buckhorn, included the building of a new permanent county bridge, at a cost to the county of only $3,000 in lieu of $50,000, if as good a bridge had been built by the county.

The assumption by the Dominion Government of the county swing bridges, and their maintenance and operation, made a saving of about $2,500 per year to the county for all time.

The cold storage act of the Dominion Government intended to promote the construction of cold storage buildings, the Government giving as bonus a grant of a percentage of the cost, was instrumental in the establishment of a first-class cold storage warehouse in Peterborough, a great boon to dealers in dairy products, fruits and perishable articles, and, instead of Lindsay and Belleville, which had such warehouses, being the distributing centre, that advantage rests with Peterborough.

The replacing of the old wooden bridge that formerly spanned the locks at Young's Point, by a new steel bridge, placed so as not to impede wheel traffic while the lock is in use, the construction of a new pier, and the deepening of the lower waters of the lock and channel from five feet to nine feet, are obvious advantages.

The procuring of a parliamentary appropriation of $100,000 to meet claims for damages to lands flooded by the erection of dams in the course of Trent Canal construction, means the settlement of claims, some of them outstanding for nearly forty years, and is a measure of justice due to a Liberal Government, which appreciated the claims of the owners of drowned lands, which are being adjusted with all possible expedition.

All these things bear testimony to the importance and necessity of having a representative of West Peterborough alert and alive to the promotion of its interests.

I need not make any definite promises as to my course if elected. I will only say that I will do as I have done in the past, and serve West Peterborough to the best of my ability.

I think I am justified in saying that it will be to Peterborough's best interests to send a member in support of the present Liberal Government of the Dominion

Under this Government the country has grown and prospered as it has never done before. It found, on taking office twelve years ago, the tide of prosperity at a low ebb; trade was dull, industry languishing; employment scarce and fitful; the finances were in bad condition, with large yearly deficits. All these things were changed under the Liberal Government; the tide of prosperity began to rise. The revenue, under a lessened tariff rate, grew, and funds were available and used with wisdom and enterprise to provide the means of development we see reflected in an advance of Canadian trade from 230 millions in 1896 to 650 millions now. Much of this is due to the Government's masterly dealing with the transportation problem involving cheap and rapid transport of produce from farm and factory to market, and, to crown all, the conception and construction of the Transcontinental Railway, which will roll back the map of Canada a hundred miles northward and double the cultivated and peopled area of the country. The Government which has done so much to build up Canada in all its varied interests to the status of a nation, is sure to be returned to power as a result of the coming elections, and this will ensure another parliamentary term of nation-building, which will witness the completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific, of the Hudson Bay Railway, and of the Trent Waterway.

I respectfully ask the assistance of your vote and influence to secure my election. If by favour of your kind support I am elected, I shall give my best efforts to all measures that will promote the interests of the country at large, and especially those of Peterborough and West Peterborough.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

J. R. Stratton

HAVE SEIZED VICIOUS CARDS

Widespread Trade Exposed by the Toronto Police.

ELEVEN DEALERS ARRESTED

Raid on Central Depots in Toronto Results in Seizure of Stocks and Jailing of Dealers — Barrie Man Ordered a Thousand His Supply Was Confiscated—Cards Were Imported From Buffalo.

Toronto, Oct. 17.—That thousands of obscene picture cards are being circulated in Toronto, and from the city through the province, has impressed itself upon the public. As a result a "raid" was made yesterday, which landed five men behind the bars. Two of the men are said to be wholesale distributors of the nasty pictorial cards and of similar literature, and three have been retailing the goods.

That there is a lively demand for the stuff is evident in the order found from a Barrie dealer for a thousand better (or worse) than a previous shipment, and which was marked filled. The Barrie police were notified and the dealer's stock seized last evening, while he will be summoned before the magistrate.

The arrests are additional to the appearance in court yesterday morning on summonses of half a dozen dealers who appeared in the Police Court yesterday morning. Staff Inspector Stephen of the Morality Department was the prosecutor.

Athel George Robertson was arrested by Detectives Tipton and Twigg at 15 Wilton avenue. A decoy letter bearing a special delivery stamp was taken to him by a postman. It was addressed to the Rock Co. Robertson signed for it as manager. He was then arrested, admitting that he had also a box at the postoffice under the name of the Ontario News Co.

He admitted having sold a number of the postcards, several thousand of which were found on the premises. These were seized by the police and ranged all the way from a mild rariness to filth.

The second man, who has been supplying the retail trade with these bits of art and song, is William Renwick, who was taken by Detectives Verney and Wallace at room 15, 256 College street, last night. There 6,000 cards of the same vintage as those previously collected were seized. Renwick, too, admitted having secured his supply from Buffalo.

Louis Benson was got at his cigar store, 215 Chuch street. Samuel Beermbohm was arrested at 178 West King street, and Fred Maddock at 151 Brunswick avenue.

Those who appeared in the Police Court yesterday in answer to summonses were A. B. Wicket, 99 Church street; Henry C. Rymal, 370 Yonge street; A. L. Merrill, 304 1-2 Yonge street; Alb. Prouse, 304 1-2 Yonge street; P. B. Brown, 54 Yonge street; Henry Goldenthal, 627 West Queen street.

All save Brown, who pleaded guilty, were remanded till the 23rd without plea or election. Brown will then come up for sentence, he having pleaded guilty.

Robertson was also arraigned in the Police Court and remanded a week.

The penalty ranges up to two years' imprisonment, with heavy fines.

Race Fight Is Over.

Seoul, Oct. 17.—The trouble arising from the engagement of Chinese and Japanese troops at Kantao, Northern Korea, has been settled and no further difficulty is expected.

PROSPECTOR IN POLICE COURT

Man Who Killed Negro in Temagami Is Arraigned.

HE PLEADS SELF-DEFENCE

Edward Eaton, Who Shot Negro Named Ellar In Temagami Village Pool-room, Maintains That Victim Was a Dangerous Man and Had Threatened to Kill Him—Ellar Was Shot In the Back.

North Bay, Oct. 17.—Edward Eaton of Essex, a prospector, was placed on trial yesterday before Justice Britton and a jury charged with the murder of Frank Ellar, a colored man, in Temagami Village.

Eaton shot Ellar in a pool-room at midnight Sept. 14, firing two shots from a 32-calibre revolver. The defence, in the hands of J. W. Mahon, alleges that Ellar habitually carried a revolver and razor, was a dangerous character and on the night of the tragedy had threatened the accused and followed him into the pool-room with his hand in his hip pocket as if to draw a revolver; that Eaton backed into the room, followed by Ellar, who continued to advance in a threatening attitude until Eaton reached his revolver from a shelf and fired two shots and Ellar fell, fatally wounded.

The defence rests largely on the evidence of the prisoner, who alleges that Ellar threatened to kill him.

The crown combats the self-defence theory with medical evidence showing that the fatal wound was inflicted by a bullet in the back under the left shoulder blade.

Eaton is a slight, delicate man, while Ellar was of powerful physique and of a quarrelsome disposition.

Trouble In Somaliland.

Aden, Oct. 17.—It is reported that the Mad Mullah has informed the authorities of Berbera that he intends renewing hostilities at the conclusion of Ramadan, which ends Oct. 26.

The recent unrest among the natives appears to be developing into serious trouble.

Arrest Proves Fatal.

Lindsay, Oct. 17.—Percy Sloan, a young Englishman, is dead in the Ross Hospital, as the result of injuries sustained by falling down the lock-up steps on Wednesday night last, when he was arrested while intoxicated. His skull was fractured.

Haskell Sues Hearst.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 17.—After a dramatic scene on Union Pacific train No. 2 Thursday night at midnight, in which the door of his stateroom was burst open by a deputy sheriff, William Randolph Hearst was served with papers notifying him that suit for $600,000 had been brought against him for slander and libel by Governor Charles N. Haskell of Oklahama in the Douglass County, Nebraska, District Court.

Double Track C.P.R. to Coast.

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 17.—Sir Thos. Shaughnessy, president of the C.P.R., would now double track through to the coast. This, he said, was the cause of voting $50,000,000 of new stock last week. The company, he said, is preparing to operate trains over the mountains by electricity generated by water power for 700 miles, probably the biggest railway undertaking in the history of the continent.

C.P.R. Backing New Railway.

Montreal, Oct. 17.—It transpired yesterday that the C.P.R. is behind the company asking for a charter to build a line through the Peace Valley to the Yukon. The charter was before the last session of Parliament. Edmonton and Yukon capitalists are associated with the enterprise. The huge finds of rock salt and asphalt are among the attractions to the freight carrying road.

Roughmond Goes For Trial.

Stratford, Oct. 17.—Frank Roughmond was yesterday committed to stand trial at the spring Assizes for the murder of Mrs. Wm. Peake. Roughmond pleaded not guilty in a steady tone and still maintains dogged silence concerning the affair. He was unrepresented by counsel yesterday, but it is understood he will be defended by J. C. Makins.

Sir John Colby Shoots Moose.

Port Arthur, Oct. 17.—Sir John Colby of Pembrokeshire, Wales, returned to the city yesterday after a week up the line of the Duluth extension railway, hunting moose. He hunted under a special permit from the Ontario Government, the season being not opened, but had poor success, killing only one animal without horns of any value.

Fell Through Trap-Door.

Hamilton, Oct. 17.—Archibald Hill, a farmer who lived at Clappison's Corners, fell through a trap-door in his barn yesterday. He was brought to the City Hospital, where he died without regaining consciousness.

Rideau River Low.

Kingston, Oct. 17.—Owing to low water in the Rideau river, the steamer Rideau King has been taken off the Ottawa route. If the river continues to go down, the company will have to go out of business.

THE word "OXOL" does not mean one food or one preparation. No! "OXOL" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. and T. C. Windsor, of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

THE NORMAL SCHOOL STUDENTS AT ST. LUKE'S

Enjoyable Entertainment There Last Night—Social Time Spent

A most enjoyable and social evening was spent last night, under the auspices of the St. Luke's A.Y.P.A., who had invited the Anglican students of the Normal School to be their guests. About eighty young people were present, among them being a large number of St. John's A.Y.P.A.

Mr. H. C. M. Potter, president of the A. Y. P. A., was chairman. After the visitors had been welcomed and introduced the evening's entertainment began. The president gave a formal welcome to the Normalites, who, he hoped, would not let this be the only occasion of their visit. He invited them to avail themselves of any meetings or socials that were held at St. Luke's.

The Peterborough Mandolin Club then gave a selection, which was loudly encored and responded to.

Rev. Dr. Langfeldt then, as rector of St. Luke's, was called upon to say a few words. He did so by expressing his pleasure at seeing the Normal students present, and he hoped that they would feel perfectly at home. He was glad to have seen several of them present at the Sunday services, and especially welcomed Dr. Parks with his family, as parishioners of St. Luke's. He urged upon the members of St. Luke's to open their hospitable houses to the students, especially on Sundays, for no matter how nice boarding houses might be, there was nothing like being invited to church homes to have a meal with the family. He told them to remember that "in entertaining strangers they would entertain angels unawares."

Mr. J. Johns, who is always a much appreciated friend, gave several recitations, which gave rise to loud applause.

Miss Clara Adams had arranged a most interesting social game, called "An Observation Party," which proved to be the feature of the evening. Prizes for this were won by Miss Ethel Pakenham, Miss Jackson, Miss Gibson and Mr. A. Pakenham.

An interesting duet by Misses Katie Leary and Shearer was excellently rendered in fine technique and much appreciated.

Rev. J. C. Davidson, recor of St. John's Church, brought the kindly greetings on behalf of his young people.

Rev. Mr. Trumpour was unavoidably prevented from being present, but sent his regrets.

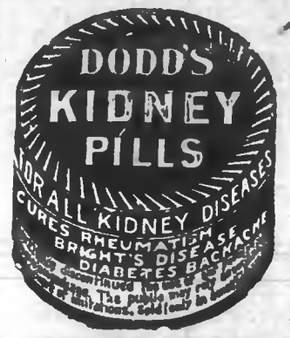
Mr. Browning, the church warden, gave a few words of welcome to the students on behalf of the congregation.

A vocal duet was finely rendered by Mrs. Seward and Miss Lancaster.

Mr. Jos. Mercier rendered a vocal solo in excellent voice.

A feature of the evening was an address from Dr. Parks, a member of the Normal School teaching staff, who, on behalf of the students, expressed his appreciation of the social evening.

Refreshments were then served and social hour spent. The evening was enjoyed by all present and the intention is to repeat it again in the near future.



DOMINION ELECTIONS

TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST PETERBOROUGH:

FELLOW ELECTORS:

The time is near for the election of a representative of this Riding to the Dominion Parliament.

Much as I would like to see you all personally, it may not be possible for me to do so before election day, so I adopt this method of presenting my appeal, especially to as many as possible of those I cannot see, for your support.

In convention assembled, my friends, unsolicited, conferred on me the honour of selecting me as a candidate, therefore, I am now before you in that character, soliciting your votes and influence for me at the coming election. Having had the honour of being before you previously in the same character, I flatter myself that I do not need any personal introduction to you. Although I was then defeated, I was not discredited. I conducted clean election campaigns and did nothing to be ashamed of. I have been with and among you all my life, have taken an active part in your public and local affairs, and, being a farmer myself, I have given much attention to such matters and questions as are of special interest to farmers. I have had the honour of representing the municipality in which I live as Reeve and Councillor for a number of years, and at all times I have endeavoured to perform my duties efficiently, fairly and honourably, and in such manner as to shew myself worthy of your good will and support. Therefore, I trust you have reason to judge favourably of my ability to perform the important duties of your representative advantageously to this Riding and creditably to myself. While in politics I am a Liberal-Conservative, I have never been a blind partizan. I shall never consider myself bound to support my party, except when I believe them to be right and acting in the best interests of our country, and can give you a reason for, and justify in my own conscience, at least, the course I shall think it my duty to take as your honoured representative.

In matters pertaining to our County, should you honour me with your confidence and elect me as your representative, I shall always consider my services at your command, and it will be my pleasure to consistently and properly render a good service to a political opponent as cheerfully as to a party associate. I have carefully studied the requirements of this Riding and district and am already familiar with the same, and you will ever find me ready and willing to do my utmost to advance the best interests of our own district, and especially those of East Peterborough, irrespective of local, personal or political considerations.

I trust my position, thus stated, which I consider is the proper one for a representative of the people to take, will have your approval and merit your most generous support irrespective of party.

I hope to have an opportunity during the campaign of addressing you at public meetings on some of the many political questions which are at present interesting and agitating the people. Meantime I appeal to all my friends, and those who desire honest and economical administration of public affairs and are in sympathy with the Liberal-Conservative platform, to rally to my support and promote an active and enthusiastic campaign in my behalf, and thus for better government, and to see the careless ones and invite them to the polls to cast their ballots for me and the cause of better Government. I trust those whom I will not be able to see personally will be no less active in my behalf on that account. It is time for a change at Ottawa.

I will never forget to be deeply grateful to all those who have so generously and kindly supported me in the past. I shall always be sincerely thankful for, and now again respectfully solicit your votes, influence and active support until the close of the elections on the 26th day of October. Promising you my very best efforts in your behalf, and in the cause of good government, if elected. I am,

Your obedient servant,
JOHN A. SMITH.

DVOCATES THE RADIAL RAILWAY TO EAST CITY

Accommodation for Residents Across the River Neglected Says Correspondent

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir—As your interest yourself in anything for the public good, please explain these in authority the injustice Ashburnham suffers through the city fathers not making some provision for a railway when handing over the franchise of streets that the old R. R. Co. undertook to use for their line. The condition of things in the Fifth Ward make a line more necessary than any other ward. There is a greater difficulty in attending market, opera, midweek service, Jackson Park, winter and summer, rinks, Cemetery, picnics, by water or rail and shopping. Nearly the whole population go west to labour daily; it is a great wrong on the people. On Thursday night after Mr. Stratton's meeting there were five cars to carry people to any part of the city, but to the east there were none.

Yours,

EAST CITY

The Eye is such a delicate organ that it should never be trifled with. This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

Many opticians take half a dozen or more correspondent courses costing from $7.50 to $25. With this limited knowledge it is little wonder that many are wearing glasses that do not suit them—others that do not require them.

If you have eye-trouble you should consult an optician who has a thorough knowledge of every branch of the optical business. Such a man is our Mr. Taylor.

"ALL THE COMFORTS OF A HOME"

The play of the above name, which will be put on in the Grand Opera House on the third and fourth nights of November, by a company of clever local amateurs, is a four act comedy by Wm. Gillette, which enjoyed long runs in London and New York, and it is spoken of by the leading critics of two continents, as the greatest comedy of modern times. There is not a dead moment in it; the situations and climaxes are a work of art. The dialogue is the wittiest and spiciest ever woven on the loom of language, and it compels attention from the rise of the first curtain until the final drop in the fourth act. The scene is laid in a drawing room in London, England, and Pettibone, who is the owner of this grand mansion, and is jealous of his second wife, takes the whole Pettibone family on a three months' visit to Venice, leaving his young nephew, Alfred Hastings, to take care of the house. Alfred is a young doctor and a hard luck artist who has most of his wordly goods in pawn, and shortly after his uncle's departure, in order to raise money, engages a partner, Tom MacDow, and turns his uncle's beautiful house into a lodging house, nails a large sign out in front announcing "Lodgings to Let," with a glaring foot note to the effect that lodgers will have "All the Comforts of a Home."

The Pettibone residence is situated in a residential quarter of London, and the sign is scarcely up before all kinds of people come looking for rooms. The first to appear is Dabney, a mad musician, who has an aversion to dogs; the second, "Langharne," an English dead beat; Fifi Aritanski, a charming actress of the Opera Comique, followed by Mr. and Mrs. Bender and their pretty daughter Evangeline and two more eccentric characters, named Struthers and McSnath. With such an agglomeration of individuals there are bound to be happenings, that happen all right enough, and as neither man nor master know anything about running a lodging house, the fun at once becomes fast and furious. An attachments springs up between old Bender and Fifi, the opera singer, which is viewed wwith alarm by Bender's wife. Hastings falls in love with Evangeline, Langharne's old landlady, is after him for her rent, MacDow is busy trying to keep two crazy men quiet, and just as the boys are getting the lodging house on a paying basis, the Pettibone family return from Venice. This is a scene never to be forgotten, and after that, well, you'll have to come and see for yourself on the third and fourth of November.

The cast for the coming production are capable and painstaking and Irving Beers, the director, who put the piece on with phenomenal success in all the Pacific coast cities, says that the Peterborough cast is a superior one. The following are the principals forming the cast: Messrs. Chas. Barber, Geo. Lynch, Mortimer Johnston, C. G. Graham, F. D. Craig, D. B. McRae, W. G. Ferguson, Jr., A. C. Yokome, Claude Brady, Irving Beers, and Misses L. L. Halliban, Nellie Halliban, Nell Graham, Agnes Pentland, Mona O'Shea, Miss Pearl Morgan, and Mers. J. N. Barber.

Many vocal selections will be introduced throughout the play and the settings and scenery will be the finest. [illegible]

Death of Ashburnham Man.

Belleville, Oct. 17.—That deceased John Amos Brant came to his death accidentally while under the influence of liquor was the verdict of the coroner's jury Thursday night on the death of the young married Indian of the Mohawk Reserve, who died Monday last.

On Sept. 25 last, while leaving the house of a relative, Wm. Brant, in a state of intoxication, fell from a rig, dislocating his neck and part of the vertibre.

Wm. Grange, on behalf of the Indian Department, was present, watching the case with a view to ascertain who furnished liquor to the Indians.

U.S. Battleship Fleet In Gale.

Tokio, Oct. 17.—(9 a.m.)—The delay of the United States battleship fleet in arriving at Yokohama was due to a tremendous storm off the north coast of the Island of Luzon, of the Philippine group. The storm began on the morning of Oct. 12, and continued until the afternoon of Oct. 13. One man was drowned and some damage resulted to the fleet. The fleet will arrive at Yokohama at 9 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 18.

Face to Face With Death.

New York, Oct. 17—Unable to move, or even utter a cry, although death by asphyxiation was surely approaching her, Miss Catharine Whalen, 32 years old, a helpless paralytic, was rescued Thursday at her home, No. 310 West 130th street, just in time to save her life.

The tube of the gas stove had become disconnected and fell away as she watched.

Papermakers Strike.

Montreal, Oct. 17.—A large number of employes of the Laurentide Paper Mills went on strike yesterday morning, in response to a call from the president of the International Union. This move is in sympathy with the strike of papermakers in the United States against the International Paper Co., and is not because of any local grievances.

BUSH FIRES RE-APPEAR IN ONTARIO

Flames Once More Destroying Property Throughout Ontario.

MANY DEATHS IN MICHIGAN

Conflagrations Around Orillia, Huntsville and Barrie Are Devastating Property Worth Thousands—The Wreck Victims Near Alpena Number 23 and Total Fatalities Nearly One Hundred.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—An army of men are fighting day and night the bush fires that have been raging for the past two or three days in the vicinity of Barrie, Orillia and Huntsville, and which have already destroyed thousands of dollars' worth of property and momentarily threaten to get beyond control.

Near Barrie, all the outbuildings on the farm of Mr. Waldie and those of Mr. Kearns are reported burned, while fences and buildings on other nearby farms are said to be in flames.

A swamp 20 miles in length, the southern border of which is but four miles out of Barrie, is in desultory fire, sending great clouds of smoke into the town, fairly choking the citizens at times.

At the Longford Chemical Works, five miles out of Huntsville, 500 cords of wood are reported burning.

Several buildings at Rainy Lake, near Huntsville, are said to have been destroyed by fires which spread from the bush and which last night threatened the destruction of more property.

Fires are raging north of Orillia and fragmentary reports tell of property damage running into the thousands in that vicinity.

All day long a heavy pall of smoke has hung over the entire northern district and drifting in clouds south to Lake Ontario, and fairly stifling people in northern communities.

Rain was being prayed for in many churches yesterday to clarify the atmosphere, as well as extinguish the fires.

At the Toronto Observatory last evening smoke and fog were reported general through the province.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 18.—It was reported here Saturday night that Gore Bay had been destroyed by fire. Immediately on the report reaching the Soo, points down the line as far as Sudbury were communicated with and all state that the town is safe. The report was brought to the Soo by a passing tug.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 19.—Despatches from Alpena, Mich., indicate that the number of deaths in the forest fires of Presque Isle and Alpena Counties will exceed 50, and may run well up towards 100.

In the vicinity of Metz, Bolton and Posen, the fires have burned sufficiently to leave several hundred women and children camping with comparative safety in the open fields, but near the city of Alpena Saturday night the fires were so threatening that Mayor McKnight called out a volunteer force of several hundred men with shovels to form a patrol and construct trenches to stem the progress of the flames in the direction of the city.

It is now estimated that 23 people lost their lives in the destruction of the ill-fated Metz relief train Thursday evening.

To Christen Hammonic.

Collingwood, Oct. 19.—The launching of the magnificent passenger steamer Hammonic, truly the queen of the Canadian inland lake marine, will take place between Nov. 4 and 12, at the yards of the Collingwood Shipbuilding Co. The date will depend upon the convenience of Miss Clara Hays, daughter of Mr. Chas. M. Hays of the Grand Trunk Railway, who will have the honor of breaking the bottle, which will christen the vessel as she slides down the ways to her element.

Gave His Life For Others.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—The captain of the steamer Scottish Hero has telegraphed that Malcolm McGregor, first mate of that steamer, was on Thursday evening drowned near Point Iroquois, Lake Superior, while endeavoring to render assistance to the keeper of the light station at that point from bush fires raging in that vicinity, and which were threatening the destruction of the lighthouse.

Mr. McGregor was about fifty years of age and unmarried. His home is in the vicinity of Owen Sound, Ont.

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 19.—The lighthouse keeper at Carmanah Point reported the portion of a small deckhouse, probably part of a fishing schooner, yesterday morning.

TURKEY IS NOT MOBILIZING

Reports of Gathering of Troops Prove to Be Unfounded and Resulted From Order For Army Manoeuvres—Czar Ferdinand Succeeds In Securing Conciliatory Attitude Among His Ministers.

Paris, Oct. 19.—Advices received from Sofia yesterday were more reassuring, indicating that Czar Ferdinand has succeeded in persuading the Cabinet and war party to adopt a more conciliatory attitude and yield to Turkey's demand for direct negotiations with regard to the Oriental Railroad.

On Saturday all sorts of wild reports of Turkish and Bulgarian mobilization were published.

Constantinople, Oct. 19.—The report that the mobilization of the Turkish troops had been ordered is unfounded.

Presumably it arose through the fact that certain battalions of the Anatolian reserves, attached to the Salonika and Adrianople army corps, were convoked for the manoeuvres in the native districts, and that three battalions were ordered to Constantinople from Macedonia for police service in the capital, these being replaced by an equal number of redifs from Smyrna.

Sofia, Oct. 19.—Sir George Buchanan, the British diplomatic agent, and Baron Von Romberg, the German consul-general, called upon M. Poprikoff, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, to give assurances that the military measures undertaken by Turkey were only precautionary in character, and that the porte had informed Great Britain and Germany that Turkey had no intention to disturb the peace.

M. Poprikoff, in reply, said that Bulgaria was willing to send the reservists to their homes if Great Britain and Germany would guarantee the preservation of peace.

This exchange of assurances had a tranquillizing effect, and the Minister of War countermanded the order calling out 45,000 additional reservists.

Bad Wreck Reported.

Winnipeg, Oct. 19.—A bad wreck is reported to have occurred west of Banff yesterday morning, in which three passengers were killed and several injured. No particulars have been received here yet.

Toronto Jews In Riot.

Toronto, Oct. 19.—Iron pokers, claw-hammers, clubs and chairs were brought into free and indiscriminate use in a perceptible Donnybrook melee which occurred between two warring Jewish factions in The House of Jacob Synagogue last night.

Many heads were broken and several warrants are likely to be issued to-day for the arrest of certain inhabitants of "the ward" who are alleged to have entered the sanctuary with weapons intent upon either electing their president or inflicting bodily harm, or both.

Good Times Are Here.

New York, Oct. 19.—The National Association of Manufacturers announced Saturday that every branch of industry is showing marked increases of business and that during the past three months trade conditions have taken on new activity.

In an exhaustive canvass among 3,000 members of the association, the returns bear out the prediction that practically every manufacturing business will be upon a normal basis of production during 1909.

Should Come and See.

London, Oct. 19.—(C.A.P.)—Apropos an article summarized on Saturday. The Times editorially admits that much fault can be found by an Englishman traveling in the oversea states, but says there is something to be said about the attitude of the man who is prone to assure one that everything in his country is the finest of its kind in the world. The Times advocates strongly the visits of British statesmen to the oversea dominions.

Heirs Take Up Mother's Fight.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 19.—The heirs of the late Mrs. Joan Dunsmuir are continuing their suit against her son, Lieutenant-Governor James Dunsmuir, and have retained E. P. Davis as leading counsel. The case involves property valued at millions. Davis was counsel for Dunsmuir when Edna Wallace Hopper sued him two years ago.

Roosevelt to Tour Britain.

London, Oct. 19.—With reference to the proposed visit of President Roosevelt, The Sunday Observer says that the President will make an automobile tour of England and Ireland.

HE CALLS IT PICAYUNE POLITICS

Sir Wilfrid Scores Tory Attacks on the Government.

OPENS OTTAWA CAMPAIGN

Premier Accompanied by Hon. Wm. Paterson, Hon. Chas. Murphy and H. B. McGiverin Gets Big Ovation From 10,000 Electors—Ohleitain Will Sit For Quebec East—Ottawa Is Disappointed.

Ottawa, Oct. 19.—There is keen disappointment in Liberal circles in the capital. It had been expected that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would announce his intention of sitting for Ottawa if elected. He did not make this announcement, and it is learned that he will continue to sit for Quebec East.

Sir Wilfrid got a good reception in Ottawa Saturday evening, when he made his first appearance before the electors as their candidate, along with H. B. McGiverin. There were probably 10,000 persons present in the skating arena.

Sir Wilfrid, who was supported by Hon. W. A. Paterson and Hon. Chas. Murphy, dealt principally with the charges of maladministration regarding the sale of timber limits, of which much has been made in Ottawa owing to the fact that W. A. Fraser, one of the former Liberal candidates, had been forced out of the candidature as a result of the notoriety his dealings with the Interior Department had brought him.

Hon. William Paterson said that if the Conservatives were returned to power very much the same old men would be there to manage the affairs of the country as there were in the last days of the Tory rule.

Hon. Chas. Murphy poked fun at the disappearance to their homes of the provincial leaders who had early in the campaign toured the country with Mr. Borden.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said this was the easiest campaign he had had to fight. The Opposition had made its sole issue that of scandal. It was small politics. These scandals did not hurt the Government, but seemed to please the Opposition. These stories were one after another exploded. The question of the Ross rifle had occupied many months of discussion in Parliament and the Conservatives had condemned the rifle, yet now it was proved that it was the best weapon within the British Empire.

He condemned the campaign waged by the Conservatives as "petty, picayune politics." If a charge were brought against a member of the Government he could understand it, but the charges were brought against subordinates only.

"We appeal to the people," said Sir Wilfrid, "because we have brought to the people an era of prosperity and have made of Canada a self-governing, autonomous nation within the British Empire."

Toronto to Loss Firm.

Woodstock, Ont., Oct. 19.—The announcement was officially made by Superintendent McBeath of the Canadian Furniture Manufacturers, that preparations are being made at the works here for the reception of the general offices of the company, which are now located in Toronto. Superintendent McBeath said yesterday that he had guaranteed to have office premises ready by Nov. 15, at which time the removal will be made. The establishment of the head office here is but the first step towards the concentration of the company's various factories in Woodstock which will mean much to this city.

Clements Drops Suit.

Chatham, Ont., Oct. 19.—As in the opinion of the legates concerned, Magistrate M. Houston has no jurisdiction to try the case of alleged scandal brought by H. S. Clements, Conservative candidate for West Kent, against Dr. Oliver of Merlin, and as it is realized that enquiry into the matter complained of could result in no judgment by the magistrate, that in any case would be binding on any of the parties, the complaint has been dismissed.

Two Perish In Fire.

Knightstown, Ind., Oct. 19.—Two persons perished and 25 buildings were destroyed Saturday in a fire at Shirley, a little town north of here.

Mr. and Mrs. I. V. M. Prier, who conducted a restaurant, were burned to death. Nearly all the houses destroyed were dwellings and many of the people who lost their homes narrowly escaped with their lives. Loss, $150,000, partly insured.

Two Aeronauts Perish.

Yarmouth, Eng., Oct. 18.—The German balloon Hergesell has been picked up in the North Sea. There was, however, no sign of the occupants, and the two aeronauts are believed to have perished.

The Hergesell was found floating half deflated 100 miles northwest of Heliogland by the Norwegian steamer Naddod and brought in here.

Binns Confesses Dynamiting.

St. Thomas, Ont., Oct. 19.—Allen Binns, formerly of this city, has written to the chief of police acknowledging responsibility for the attempt to wreck the home of W. McClellan, on the night of Aug. 8, with a dynamite cartridge. Binns is now in San Diego, Cal., held by the authorities there for investigation as to his sanity, being connected with similar work there. But for a botched job the explosion here would have wrecked the house and killed the inmates.

BOYS SHOT BY MANIAC.

Madman In Woods Near Montreal Shoots Two Lads.

Montreal, Oct. 19.—Two young boys from Montreal were fired upon, and one of them seriously wounded, by an unknown man in the woods at Longueuil yesterday.

Harold Patterson, aged 17, and Gordon West, aged 18, were shooting a mile east of Longueuil when a man, having the appearance of a maniac, approached them, and when within a few yards pulled a revolver and shot young Patterson in the back. He then turned his weapon upon West, shooting him in the hip, and then ran into the bushes.

Both boys were brought to the General Hospital, where little hope is entertained for Patterson. West was not seriously wounded.

The dying boy is a son of Lieut.-Col. H. T. Patterson. It is thought the man must be insane.

Father Identifies Dead Son.

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Oct. 19.—The youth who shot himself in a clump of bushes on Goat Island on Sept. 8 was yesterday identified by his father as Robert Weston Kirkland, Jr., a clerk 19 years of age, of 97 Weaver street, Philadelphia. He had been missing since Sept. 24. No reason is known for the suicide.

Fight on Streets.

Cobalt, Oct. 19.—A free-for-all fight took place on the street near the Catholic Church Saturday night, between some Pollacks. Knives were used and one man had his hand badly cut. Another is badly carved up and is not expected to live.

Causes Satisfaction.

London, Oct. 19.—(C.A.P.)—Much satisfaction is felt in Anglo-Canadian circles at the prospect of the proposed transfer of Hindus to Honduras.

THE COME AND SEE SIGN

PUBLIC INSPECTION INVITED FROM 8 A.M. 4 P.M. SATURDAYS EXCEPTED LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO

This sign is permanently attached to the front of the main building of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

What Does This Sign Mean?

It means that public inspection of the Laboratory and methods of doing business is honestly desired. It means that there is nothing about the business which is not "open and aboveboard."

It means that a permanent invitation is extended to anyone to come and verify any and all statements made in the advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Is it a purely vegetable compound made from roots and herbs — without drugs?

Come and See.

Do the women of America continually use as much of it as we are told?

Come and See.

Was there ever such a person as Lydia E. Pinkham, and is there any Mrs. Pinkham now to whom sick woman are asked to write?

Come and See.

Is the vast private correspondence with sick women conducted by women only, and are the letters kept strictly confidential?

Come and See.

Have they really got letters from over one million, one hundred thousand women correspondents?

Come and See.

Have they proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured thousands of these women?

Come and See.

This advertisement is only for doubters. The great army of women who know from their own personal experience that no medicine in the world equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female ills will still go on writing and being benefited by it; but the poor doubting, suffering woman must, for her own sake, be taught confidence, for she also might just as well regain her health.

When Sammy Turned Detective

By Mabel Herbert.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Raised upon a diet of Biblical literature until he had passed his eighth year, Sammy Temple took eagerly to the nickel novels when at last knowledge of their existence was communicated to him. First he liked the stories of men who sailed strange craft in the sky above, the earth below or in the waters under the earth.

Later these were as naught beside the bold detective who could arrest a band of counterfeiters single handed and who ran murderers to earth just to keep in practice for greater things.

Captain Beggs, the solitary town constable, at once became a more important figure than Ben Dwyer, who ran the single engine which constituted the motive force on the little branch line. Sammy had liked to dream of the day when he should be an engineer, too, and would have charge of the great iron steed.

He had planned to sneak past the switch at the junction some night and run down the main line clear out to California, or maybe to Mexico, or up to the goldfields of Alaska. A fellow could go anywhere on an engine like that.

But after "The Boys' Own" and the detective books the engine, tied to its iron roadbed, seemed tame. Dwyer was deposed from his pedestal, and Beggs was installed thereon, although he was only a constable, which is not at all like a real detective.

Detectives are people who tell constables when the latter have the right prisoner, and he looked forward to the day when he could show his badge and say to Captain Beggs: "Officer, there stands the man who killed Cyrus Blake. Arrest him!" He was ready to bet that old Beggs would be surprised, and how the other fellows would stare!

But meanwhile there were opportunities to do a little detective work about the farm, and Sammy became vastly interested in the movements of Dave Ryder, one of the summer boarders at Cassell's, who would stroll ostentatiously toward the village, only to be seen returning from the opposite direction an hour or so later.

This action was suspicious. Detective Samuel took the trail, and, like the human bloodhound that he was, he shadowed the suspect. It was rather disconcerting to have Ryder turn after a mile or more had been covered and rudely command him to be on his way. Ryder even called him "little boy." Sammy's heart rose hot within him, and he assured himself that Ryder must be a very desperate criminal.

But practice makes perfect, and the time came when Sammy learned to maintain a safer distance between himself and the object of his suspicions, and at last he tracked him to his lair.

The lair was disappointing. It was not at all secured through a cunningly hidden trapdoor. It was not even a rude shack such as the one in which Billy, the Silent Sleuth, found Pete Pomero, the head of the train wrecking band.

It was just a little nook in a bend of the creek, with a fallen log for a seat, and with his own sister Lucy sitting there apparently waiting for the arrival of the desperado.

It was rather disconcerting to find one's own family mixed up in such affairs, but duty is duty, and Sammy wriggled as close as he dared and listened to the low murmur of conversation.

It all seemed absurdly simple. Ryder was not planning a burglary. He was kissing Lucy many times, and between caresses they were discussing how best to approach her father on the matter of their marriage.

Judged by the stern, unyielding standards of Josiah Temple, Ryder was far too gay a young blade to be trusted with Lucy, who was destined to marry a minister when her father could find a minister of whom he could fully approve. Lucy feared to let Ryder speak to her father lest she be forbidden to see or speak to him. Ryder, on the other hand, was urging her to consent to a test of fate.

"I feel like a scoundrel meeting you in the woods this way," he urged. "If your father refuses to give his consent, then we will elope."

Lucy shook her head in dismay.

"I couldn't do that!" she cried. "It would break father's heart."

"Better his heart than yours," suggested Ryder selfishly. Then came more caresses and pleading, and Sammy, tired of such talk, wriggled softly through the brush and headed for home.

He had been wasting all his time on a pair of silly lovers when he might have been better occupied with his books.

As he turned into the yard his father called to him from the porch, "Did you read your chapter of Josephus?"

Sammy's face grew long with dismay. Josephus was dull reading for a ten-year-old, but it was a duty, like watering the stock and feeding the chickens. In his eagerness to trail Ryder he had forgotten all about it.

"What were you doing?" continued the old man.

"I was down by the creek," explained Sammy uncomfortably.

"And what were you doing down there?" came the prompt question.

Sammy was no George Washington, but the habit of truth was strong within him.

"I wanted to see what Dave Ryder was doing down to the creek," he explained.

"And what was he doing?" asked the elder.

"Kissing Lucy," was the startling response, and the old man sprang from his chair in sudden anger.

Bit by bit he forced the frightened lad to tell all he could remember of the conversation. He found relief in the statement that Dave wished to marry Lucy, but his lips tightened angrily as Sammy explained that they both feared to broach the subject to him.

He nodded approvingly over Dave's reluctance to do his courting clandestinely and again at Lucy's refusal to consider an elopement.

Sammy was startled when the inquisition was concluded at being released with only a mild reproof for not having read his Josephus. He scampered around the corner of the house in a spirit of thanksgiving at getting off so lightly.

When he had gone Josiah Temple resumed his seat and the contemplation of the dusty road that ran, a river of white, between the fields of grain.

It was Mrs. Temple's favorite observation that "you couldn't count on Josiah's moves no more'n you could on a hens'," and now this contrariness was working in Lucy's favor. Had Ryder boldly demanded Lucy's hand in marriage the refusal would have been prompt and emphatic.

It was because Ryder anticipated a refusal that Josiah called to him as the young man was plodding along the road, having made his appearance through a bit of woodland half a mile beyond the place of the tryst.

Ryder turned in at the Temple gate, wondering if perhaps, after all, Lucy had spoken in spite of their decision to let matters rest awhile. He stood at the foot of the steps and doffed his hat in respect to the other's age.

"When I was a lad," said Josiah, with a twinkle in his eye, "it was proper to call on a young lady at her folks' an' not go sneaking off into the woods. You c'n come over tonight if you want to. I'll tell her to expect ye."

Josiah watched Dave leave the yard after an unintelligible jumble of apology, thanks and explanation.

"I fooled ye!" he cried exultingly after the retreating figure.

And he laughed as though the joke was on Ryder and Lucy.

BRITAIN'S SMALLEST HOUSE.

Village of Sorbie Has Tiny Dwelling With Area of 48 Square Feet.

The distinction of possessing the smallest house in Great Britain belongs to the village of Sorbie, in Wigtonshire — thirteen miles from Newton Stewart. In proportion to its size, Sorbie has more one-apartment houses than any other village, town, or city in the United Kingdom. These houses, too, are not in tenements, but are each separate and complete in themselves.

One of them is occupied by Miss Jenny Davidson, and would be hard to beat for smallness. Its dimensions are: Length, 9 feet, breadth 6 feet, and height 6 feet 4 inches. The area is thus only 48 square feet, and its cubical content of 351 square feet.

The third house, occupied by Miss Jenny Mitchell, is slightly smaller, being 7 feet 8 inches, by 7 feet by 6 feet 4 inches high, giving an area of 53 2-3 square feet, while its cubical content works out at 339 8-9 cubic feet. Miss Mitchell is proud of her little abode, and often boasts jokingly that when she is "At Home" there is no room for anyone or anything else—not even the smoke. The rents of the houses vary from 20s. to 25s. per annum. Sorbie also has a 'tot' of a shop, occupied by Mr. Anthony McWilliam, general merchant, that would be in the running for smallest shops in Great Britain.

Conway has a curious little house on the quay of that town. This house has a frontage of only 72 inches, while the distance from the back to the front is exactly 100 inches. The house consists of two rooms only, each room being about 5 feet by 3 feet.

"It is so small," says Mr. Jones, "that a lady can shake hands from the bedroom window with a gentleman standing on the main street before it."

SEPTEMBER AT BRAEMAR.

Some Picturesque Ceremonies Take Place at Mar Lodge Every Autumn.

Undoubtedly the most important of the many "gatherings" which take place in Scotland during September is that of the Braemar Royal Highland Society, which was held recently, in the Princess Royal Park. The "gathering" is under the patronage of the King and Queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, the Princess Royal and the Duke of Fife; and though Their Majesties were not, of course, present, the other royalties were. Just as Braemar is the chief of the gatherings, so is Mar Lodge the chief of the many Scotch houses that are noted for their splendid hospitality during the autumn, though the Princess Royal does not entertain very largely. Dinner at Mar Lodge after a big day with the deer is always an impressive affair. To begin with, the Princess Royal always, by custom, precedes her guests to the heather and rowan decorated table. During dessert the Duke of Fife's pipers march round and round the table, playing Highland melodies, and later in the evening there is often a "deer-dance". The noble quarry are laid in a heap in front of the castle, whilst gillies, keepers, and other retainers carrying torches, dance round them to the accompaniment of bird pipe music. Scotland is nothing if not picturesque, and there is, perhaps, no part of the kingdom where more quaint customs survive.

Dogs as Anglers.

Feline fishers are by no means uncommon, but it is not often that we find dogs with a taste for fish so strongly developed that they must needs catch them alive. A ferryman at Dingwall, England, has a collie which appears to have studied the ways of the heron. It stands patiently knee-deep in the water at the confluence of the Conon and awaits the coming of small fish. As soon as one drifts within range the collie plunges its head in the water and snaps a victim. Another dog—a retriever, owned by a Cromarty gentleman—has made a speciality in hedgehog hunting. It has acquired the art of carrying the prickly animal in its mouth. Almost every evening it scents one out, but never attempts to devour it. With much gravity the dog carries it home alive.

The Oldest Field-Marshal.

This distinction is held by Sir Frederick Paul Haines, who has just entered on his ninetieth year. The veteran officer has held many important positions, including those of commander-in-chief of the Madras army, military secretary to the Commander-in-Chief in India, and finally commander-in-chief of the Indian army. He joined the army within two years of the late Queen Victoria's accession, and has served in the Sutlej, Crimean, and Afghanistan campaigns. Sir Frederick, who resides in Pall Mall, London, enjoys wonderfully good health despite his great age, and spends a great deal of his time at his club, the United Service.

Britain's Beef Bill.

The world's greatest animal-food producer is the ox, including, of course, the female of his species. It is impossible to get at exact figures for the whole world; but it is generally believed to be about 15,000,000 tons a year and of this more than half is beef. In Great Britain each person eats between forty and fifty pounds of beef a year, out of a total of, perhaps, 190 pounds of various kinds of meat and poultry per head.

Masculine Trials.

Harry is six years old. "Pa," he asked one day, "if I get married will I have a wife like ma?"

"Very likely," replied his father.

"And if I don't get married will I have to be an old bachelor like Uncle Tom?"

"Very likely."

"Well, pa," he said after a moment of deep thought, "it's a mighty tough world for us men, ain't it?"—Success.

GIVE THE CHILDREN PLENTY OF FRUIT

It Helps to Keep Them Well.

In a growing, active child the cells of which the body is composed are being worn out—and replaced — very rapidly. This dead tissue must be gotten rid of somehow, and the danger is that the eliminating organs—the Bowels, Kidneys and Skin—may not do their work well enough. Then the blood becomes poisoned and the child does not thrive.

Nothing has such an invigorating effect on these organs as ripe fruit juices. Apple juice increases the action of the kidneys; other fruit juices stimulate the liver to secrete more bile, and bile produces easy and regular movements of the bowels; others stir up the glands of the skin to throw off more waste matter.

The difficulty is that to get these effects a great deal of fruit must be eaten, and the excess of pulp and woody matter may upset the digestion. The better way is to give the children "Fruit-a-tives", which are tablets made of concentrated fruit juices with valuable tonics added.

"Fruit-a-tives" have the combined effect of the different fruit juices, helping all the eliminating organs to work properly, curing Constipation, toning up the system, and keeping the children plump and rosy. 25c. for a trial box. 50c. for regular size—6 boxes for $2.50. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

A HARD-UP CLUB THIS

SOMETHING ABOUT ONE OF LONDON'S SELECT INSTITUTIONS.

It Is Called the Red Club After Its Founder and Is Quite an Exclusive Organization Despite the Fact That Its Members Are Frequently Dead Broke—Most of the Members Were Once Wealthy.

In a bye-street in Mayfair is one of the most curious institutions in London. It is known among the members as the Red Club, called after its founder, the scion of a ducal house, whose nickname was "Reddy," on account of the color of his hair.

"Reddy," who died some few years ago, was once a well-known figure on the turf and in society. He kept racehorses, betted heavily, and in his time made and lost a couple of big fortunes on the Stock Exchange. Ultimately he was reduced to absolute penury, and was allowed three pounds a week by his elder brother. Reddy then founded the Red Club, which at the start consisted of three other members of the aristocracy in the same plight as the founder. There are now over sixty members on its books, including a number of barons and several members of the peerage, a sprinkling of generals, admirals, diplomatists, and a large number of officers of lesser ranks.

The club has moved its quarters on several occasions, and now has its abode in a couple of rooms in a house in the locality mentioned. The subscription is five shillings per annum. Revenue derived from this source would not, as a matter of fact, keep the club going, and there is no bar, no catering done on the premises, from which a profit might be derived. Funds are, therefore, from time to time raised by voluntary contributions from such members as are in a position to contribute anything. Nothing is expected from the member whose pockets are at the time quite empty, or contain only sufficient coin to meet his necessary current expenses; and it is left to the honor of the members to say whether this is the case or not.

Many strange tales might be heard in the club—true tales of the slings and arrows of outrageous fortunes. Near the fireplace is an old leather chair, reserved by common consent of the members for Sir ——, a distinguished officer once a member of her late Majesty's household, at whose house in Grosvenor Square His Majesty, as Prince of Wales, frequently dined. Sir —— lives now on an annuity of £180 per annum, having lost all his fortune in a few years through unfortunate speculation on the Stock Exchange. In one day he is said to have lost $27,000. He bears his reverses cheerfully, and is one of the most popular members of the Red.

Another member is understood to supplement an allowance he has from his sister, a wealthy dowager, by writing society notes for a provincial daily paper. He is a baronet, and lost all his money in big speculations in building land in New Zealand. His bosom chum, a member of one of the most distinguished families in the peerage, is one of the oldest members of the Red, being nearly ninety, yet he carries himself straightly, and his eye is nigh as keen as it was fifty years ago, when, without one exception, he was accounted the best shot in England. He came to grief during the treasure-hunting craze, with which so many members of the aristocracy were smitten some forty years ago.

He dropped over £150,000 in these expeditions. Then he got a post in the city, threw it up, went in search of employment abroad, started an hotel in Bloemfontein, ran some swimming-baths in Chicago, and was Master of the Ceremonies at an entertainment club in Calcutta. He lives now on a small allowance from a relation.

There is a saying among the members of the Red that they have lost everything except "honor," and no man who was known to have been guilty of any dishonorable act, such as would exclude him from any club of repute, would have the least chance of getting into it. Before election the past career of each prospective member is subjected to a searching investigation.

Visit Northern Islands.

The Attorney-General and Provincial Secretary of British Columbia have made a visit to Queen Charlotte Island, which indicates the growing importance of this group. This is the first occasion upon which Ministers of the Crown have felt it necessary to go to that part of the province.

A Neutral Zone.

A treaty has been entered into with the United States to arrange a neutral zone on either side of the international boundary line in order to prevent the erection of line houses for the illegal sale of liquor, and the evasion of customs duties.

BE A CHARMING WOMAN

You never saw a beautiful woman who didn't have beautiful hair. The charms of a beautiful woman lie in her hair. Many women do not realize the attractions they possess because they do not give proper attention to the care of the hair.

The women of the "409" are famed for their beauty, not because their facial features are superior to those of other women, but because they know how to keep young by supplying vigour, lustre, and strength to the hair.

Up to a few years ago Parisian sage coul dhardly be obtained in America. But now this delightful hair restorer can be had in every town in America. Wm. Madill sells it in Peterborough for 50 cents a bottle, and he guarantees it to grow beautiful, luxuriant hair; to turn dull, lifeless hair into lustrous hair; to stop falling hair; to stop itching scalp. Understand, Mr. Madill will give you your money back if it fails.

SUFFRAGETTE CAMPAIGN.

Some Clever Women Are Ardent In British Agitation.

The militant section of the women suffragists continues to carry on an active campaign. It also continues to sail in steam launches opposite the terrace of the Parliament building displaying large banners bearing the mottoes "Votes for Women" and other campaign slogans.

Five pretty and intellectual suffragists have lately made themselves conspicuous. Miss Dorothy Maloney, who will go down in the history of women's suffrage as the Dundee Bellringer, is, it may be said without offence, one of the beauties of the movement. As her name implies, Miss Maloney is of Irish extraction, and she has all your Irishwoman's feminine charm and nimble wit. It would be difficult to imagine a more feminine, refined-looking girl than the young lady who has quaintly earned immortality as the Bellringer of Dundee.

Miss Amber Reeves, who has been bracketed first in Part II. of the Cambridge Moral Science Tripos, is an ardent supporter of women's suffrage, and took part in a recent demonstration. This sweet girl graduate is a daughter of Greater Britain, for her father is the popular High Commissioner for the Dominion of New Zealand. Miss Reeves was educated at the Kensington High School, from where she went to Newnham, and is now going to enter the School of Economics; but in her spare time she will help the suffragist cause in any way in her power.

When Mr. Balfour Blushed.

The ex-Premier of Great Britain, who recently celebrated his sixtieth birthday, enjoys one distinction over his predecessors since the time of Pitt—he is unmarried, although rumor would have mated him on many occasions. This bachelorhood has led to several amusing scenes in the House and elsewhere. Once, when Mr. Balfour was staying in a Scotch hotel, a post-card was brought to him, saying, "Baby going on nicely; I really think she has grown since you left." He blushed, and then it was discovered that another A.J.B. was among the visitors. By the way, Mr. Balfour's lucky month is July. Not only was he born in July, but the month marks his succession to the Premiership. That great event in his life occurred in July, 1902, and it was also in that month in 1878 he was present in Berlin as private secretary to his uncle, Lord Salisbury, when the famous treaty bringing "Peace with Honor" was signed.

Eighth Wonder of the World.

To realize fully the wondrous beauty of the Zambesi Falls, Rhodesia, one must have time to linger and watch the ever-changing scene. The depths of the chasm below are veiled from sight by the rising columns of opalescent mist and above the yawning abyss the sun glints and sparkles weaving the drops into a magnificent rainbow. Three hundred feet below roars and boils the swirling flood, as it emerges from the Boiling Pot, rushing on down the zigzag gorge between towering cliffs of rock, narrow, fierce, and of unfathomable depth. One feels that Rhodesia is indeed thrice blessed to possess within her territories the Eighth Wonder of the World.

Indian Bridal Customs.

In India, with its teeming and poverty-stricken myriads, parents often find it no easy task to marry off their daughters, for a wife has to be bought by the suitor. Widows are cheap, and when a father finds his daughter getting on in years he makes a widow of her by the simple process of marrying her to a bunch of flowers. When the flowers are dead she is technically a widow, and can be offered at a bargain price.

Tallest Man in British Army.

Measuring 8 feet 10 inches in his stockings, Walter Findlay, who in his day was the tallest man in the British army, has just died at Stevenage, England.

Increasing Our Ills.

It is rather surprising to hear that a German doctor who has drawn up a list of all the diseases to which the human body is liable has returned the number of them as only 1,160. Any one among whose acquaintances there is an amateur invalid would have supposed that there were many more ways of being ill than that. Eleven hundred is a very poor figure for these times too. With all the advance made in medicine in the past century one expects something in six figures at least. Still, the number of diseases known is mounting steadily. There are already dozens of ailments, from sleeping sickness to tennis elbow, that our fathers never had.—London News.

Jews the Kings of Chess.

In 1904 Dr. Lasker became the world's champion chess player by defeating Steinitz by ten games to five. This was a remarkable event, because Steinitz had up to then been a world's champion for twenty-eight years. It follows that the world's championship in chess has been in Jewish hands for no less than forty-two years. Dr. Lasker attributes this predominance of the Jewish genius in chess to the fact that its rules are entirely based upon those of self defense in the struggle of life, and Jews are adepts in this art.—Jewish Chronicle.

Selections

PRICES IN BORDEAUX.

Plum Ninety Cents a Glass, and Ten Cents a Cupful.

"American women wouldn't complain about the prices of meats here if they once tried living in Bordeaux," said a New York woman who has just returned from a year of housekeeping in that French city. "The cheapest meat obtainable there is ham," she explained, "and that costs 60 cents a slice. Chickens are so expensive that every scrap of them, even to the head, is made use of by the Bordeaux cook. I remember my surprise when the first plate of chicken soup was placed before me at my own table to behold funny little red scraps floating through it. The waitress explained that these were the chicken's comb, chopped fine. To waste the comb of a chicken is considered an unheard of extravagance in Bordeaux.

"Meats are not only high in price there, but extremely poor. I soon adopted the custom of the wealthy families and sent my orders to Dax, the nearest large city, twice a week and had my meats expressed from there. The meats are no cheaper in Dax than in Bordeaux, but they are the best I have ever eaten anywhere. As if to make up for the exorbitant price of meat all vegetables cost a mere nothing, and the poor subsist entirely on vegetarian diet.

"One of my chief delights was the patisseries, where the most delicious cakes and tarts could be had for a penny or two each. They were of infinite variety and so delicious that after eating them it is easy to understand why the French say we Americans don't know what cake is. Every customer is given a plate and fork upon entering the patisserie and goes around the counters selecting her own. When you are leaving you are asked the amount of your bill, and your statement is never questioned. You pay what you say you owe.

"But how I did long for a plate of good American ice cream! It is unknown there, except perhaps at a formal dinner, when it is served in infinitesmal portions, frozen in some fancy shape or figure. Every one over there assures you that the French don't care for ice cream and can't be made to patronize a place which serves it. But when you buy ice you understand the real reason of its lack of popularity. A piece of ice which costs 10 cents will almost fit inside a coffee cup."—New York Press.

The Grand Vizier.

We have heard a great deal lately about the grand vizier as well as the sublime porte, but the former name is almost as little Turkish as the latter. The Turks, according to "Odysseus" (Sir Charles Eliot), seldom use it except to denote a rank as opposed to an office, and the grand vizier is always known as the Sadr Asam, Asam meaning greatest and Sadr literally breast, and so the seat of honor. Vizier signifies a bearer of burdens, the minister being regarded as taking over the burden of public affairs from his master. And a very burdensome office it has sometimes proved. "May you become the sultan's vizier" was a favorite curse in the time of Selim the Grim as a polite way of putting "May you be bowstrung."—London Chronicle.

Pure Nitrogen.

Chemically pure nitrogen, hitherto believed to be practically unobtainable, is now frozen out of liquid air in the new process of Professor H. Erdmann. When liquid air is evaporated at atmospheric pressure the nitrogen becomes gaseous at 195 degrees below zero and the oxygen at 182 degrees, and an intermediate temperature causes nitrogen to distill off in somewhat impure form. The nearly pure gas serves the purposes for which nitrogen is ordinarily required. The new process makes it possible to obtain the chemically pure, which is done by placing liquid air in a good vacuum, when the rapid vaporization of part of the liquid chills the remainder, solidifying the nitrogen in crystals that can be separated from the liquid oxygen left.

THE SECOND ADDRESS OF HON. J. R. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORS OF THE ELECTORAL DIVISION OF WEST PETERBOROUGH

To the Electors of West Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—In my first address to you, I aimed to point out what had been accomplished by the Liberal Governments of Ontario and of the Dominion in promoting what may be described as the local interests of West Peterborough, in the provision of local advantages to meet local needs, and serve public interests.

I now wish to suggest some of the many reasons why the present Government should be sustained, and given an opportunity of continuing the great work it has accomplished for Canada as a whole. There is not a city resident, nor dweller in the suburbs, not a labourer, nor an artizan, not a mechanic, not a manufacturer, nor anybody in any walk of life, that has not enjoyed more prosperity, had his welfare improved, his business benefitted, during the twelve years of rule of the present Liberal Government, which is now appealing for a renewal of its stewardship.

There is not a farmer in Peterborough county, who does not know that every farm, properly managed, has increased in value, and every farmer in prosperity, in the twelve years of Liberal rule. There is not a farmer who does not know that general conditions have been vastly improved; who does not know to what a general extent the clear deed for the farm has replaced the farm mortgage; new buildings replaced dilapidated structures; home comforts increased, and general conditions of well-being improved.

It is therefore incumbent upon me to present as concise a view as possible of the record of the Liberal Government, whose supporter I am, to set forth what it has done in the twelve years of its trusteeship to promote the general welfare of Canada.

To emphasize this record, the condition of the country previous to the Liberal Government assuming power, may be recalled. It is no exaggeration to say that at that time the country was practically at a standstill; that business was dormant; our industries languishing; manufacturers dissatisfied; the Conservative Government was fighting amongst themselves, and had ceased to effectively govern. Our finances were at low-water mark; expenditure was running ahead of receipts, deficits were almost annual, the national debt advancing, the country torn by dissensions and the outlook gloomy.

The first notable action of the Liberal Government, as a necessary preliminary to national progress, was to restore peace and harmony among the people—by the satisfactory and lasting settlement of a burning question. Peace having thus been restored, the Liberal Government was free to enter upon the work of nation-building.

The tariff, which, under previous administrations, was not giving satisfactory results, either to the people affected, or in the way of revenue, was readjusted with careful consideration of all interests, the consumer as well as the producer. The farmer was helped by having binder twine, barbed wire, Indian corn, cream separators, and articles of staple necessity, placed on the untaxed list of imports. Manufacturers, and through them the wage-earners, were helped by removal, or reduction, of duties on raw material used in manufacturing.

The result was an immediate improvement in the condition of all national interests prosperity resumed its reign, trade became active, employment plentiful, wages increased, and a rate of good growth taken on which can only be understood by recalling some of the records.

Under the revised tariff, our revenue, even under a tariff lowered on an average of $18.28 per $100, at the close of Conservative rule to an average of $15.66 per $100, under Liberal rule, increased from thirty-six millions a year, in 1896, to ninety-six millions in 1908.

The capital invested in manufacturing establishments increased from $446,916,487 in 1900, to $833,916,155 in 1905, or over seventy million dollars per year.

The wages paid to labour in factories, increased from $113,249,350 in 1900, to $162,155,578 in 1905, or nearlp ten million dollars per year.

The value of products of manufacturing establishments grew from $481,053,375, in 1900, to $706,446,578 in 1905, the increase in the manufactured output of the city of Peterborough in that period amounting to eleven millions odd, being far the greatest proportion of increase of any one place in the Dominion.

The total foreign trade—imports and exports—has in the past twelve years of Liberal administration amounted to the tremendous total of 5,152, millions of dollars.

The yearly growth of the total foreign trade of Canada is shown by the fact that it grew from $239,025,360 in 1896, to $650,738,200 in 1908.

In twelve years the farmers of Canada have received for the products of their farms sent abroad more than a thousand million dollars, and the exports of farm products have increased from $50,592,525 in 1896, to $121,171,199 in 1908.

The value of the exported products of our mines has increased from $8,059,650 in 1896, to$39,117,133 in 1908.

Forest products have increased in value of exports from $27,175,686, in 1906, to $44,170,470 in 1908.

In 1896, Canadian bank discounts the index of commercial and industrial activity, amounted to $224,507,.301; they had grown to $584,732,914 in 1908—more than doubled.

The people's deposits in chartered banks and savings banks, have grown from $245,029,143 in 1896, to $650,126,232 in 1908.

The increase in tonnage carried in 1908 by Canadian railways (another index of commercial and industrial activity) was more than fifteen millions greater than the total tonnage carried in 1896, which was 24,266,825 tons as against 68,866,183 tons in 1908.

There was an increase in the export value of bacon and hams from $18,827,928 in twelve Conservative years, to $135,156,311 in the twelve Liberal years; the increase for the same period in butter export values was from $10,513,348, to more than five times—$51,680,095; in cheese, from $127,611,428, to $247,790,332; in wheat, from $45,338,791 to $121,877,659, or nearly five-fold.

In the five years of Liberal rule—from 1901 to 1905—the population of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, increased from 419,512 to 808,863. In the last two years immigration and settlement have so rapidly advanced that the population of these provinces must be well beyond the million mark, for since January 1, 1907, immigrants to the number of 1,219,943 have come into Canada.

Not only have these immigrants the very great value of a million increase of population, but the effects they brought into Canada, exclusive of personal baggage and cash, amounted to $64,442,532, which is fourteen millions more than the total exports of farm products under Conservative rule in 1896.

In 1900 the number of farms worked in these provinces was 54,625; these had increased to 120,439 four years later—1906.

In eighteen years the Conservative Government voted 56 million acres of land to railway companies, or enough to supply 411,000 homesteads of 160 acres each, whereas, in contrast, in twelve years since coming into power the Liberal Government has not given away one acre of land to a railway. The land has been reserved for the settlers, who got 35 million acres in homesteads.

This work of western development, and the increase of population, have benefitted the east; every new household creates fresh demands upon the manufactured and commercial products of eastern Canada, giving increased work to factories and increased employment to working men.

The prosperity, the all-round quickened activity of national life in Canada attendant upon Liberal rule, has given employment to Canadians at home or found homes for them in the west. This is in strong contrast to the do-nothing immigration policy of the previous Government which could not retain the immigrants brought in nor present conditions attractive enough to keep native-born population at home, nor stop the exodus of the flower of Canadian youth to the United States by the million.

The British preference, or preferential tariff, extended to Great Britain, showed the Liberal Government to represent the party of real loyalty—practical loyalty—to the empire. The result of this gift was a splendid advertisement of Canada, and secured British good-will, with the direct results that it substantially favoured the Canadian consumer, increased imports from Great Britain—three-fold—from $32,894,505 in 1896, to $94,362,383, in 1908— and doubled Canadian exports to Great Britain—from $62,717,941 in 1896, to $126,194,124, in 1908.

This preference was extended to most of the British colonies and, in return, Canada secured a preference in New Zealand, South Africa and Barbadoes, with the result that British Columbia canneries captured nearly the whole trade of New Zealand, and shut out the canneries of the United States; and Canada's example has been followed by nearly all the British colonies.

The Liberal Government passed anti-combine legislation, to prevent trade combines from raising prices contrary to the public interests.

Such a record of achievement on the more material side, on the part of the Liberal Government, amply justifies my appeal for your support to aid in retaining it in a position to continue the splendid service that has been given.

It is not, however, only in material matters, but in matters redounding to the credit of Canada, both at home and abroad, and in providing conditions for the general advantage of the people, that the Liberal Government has done work worthy of the practical recognition involved in its being given another lease of power.

Under the Liberal Government, the French treaty was negotiated by Canadian statesmen, without the help of British statesmen, subject, however, to the approval of the Home Government—a long step forward in Canadian nation-building.

The reign of the Liberal Government has been marked by unprecedented development of transportation facilities—the keynote of Canadian development, progress and prosperity. As a general result, the great bulk of the grain trade of the interior west of the continent is passing through Canadian channels, and New York and other American ports are alarmed at the formidable competition of the Canadian St. Lawrence route.

This condition was brought about by the completion of the enlargement of the St. Lawrence and Welland canal systems to a depth of 14 feet, the equipment of grain shipping harbours on Lake Superior and Georgian Bay, Lake Huron and Lake Erie; the improvement of Montreal, St. John and Halifax harbours, the deepening of the ship channel from Montreal to the Gulf, the extension of telegraph systems down the coast, the abolition of canal tolls, and the making of the St. Lawrence a safe route for ocean ships by day or night.

These great works have not only made the St. Lawrence the grain route of the continent, but directly benefitted shippers and producers—general merchandise and farm products. Last year the saving on reduced insurance rates, caused by the improvements made in the St. Lawrence by the Government, amounted to nearly a million dollars—$922,000.

In the last twelve years, the Liberal Government has expended on transportation; in improving the facilities for marketting the products of factories and farms, the large sum of $121,215,115—on canals, twenty-six millions; on Government railways thirty-one millions; on Montreal harbour and St. Lawrence ship channel, seven millions; on the chief lake harbours, two millions; in aid of the construction and extension of railways, twenty-one millions; and, so far, twenty-seven millions on Transcontinental Railway construction, have been advanced for construction, and upon which, after seven years, the Grand Trnuk Pacific will pay the Dominion interest at the rate of three per cent.

In aiding railways to open up the country to development, the Liberal Government have simply invested money. The Conservative way was to give bonuses outright. The Liberal way is to make no gift, a condition of the Liberal grants being that the railways must regard them as a loan and pay in return, by the carrying of mails, an equivalent to a fair rate of interest.

The necessity of the Grand Trunk Pacific is emphasized by reasons of the conditions existing to-day. The movement of western wheat to the market is at this moment impeded by lack of cars, showing the need of more railway service. To meet conditions which will become more pressing as settlement and crop production will increase, through the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Government has decided upon building the Hudson Bay Railway, as another wheat outlet that in the open season will shorten the distance to Liverpool by thousands of miles. And the Government shows its wisdom by making the railway build itself—by providing for the cost by the sale of lands, now valueless, but made valuable by the building of the line itself.

Having regard to the future of this country, no calculation can estimate the tremendous benefits that are accruing, and will accrue to Canada, through the bold and business-like development of our transportation facilities, by the Liberal Government.

The Liberal Government conceived, and is constructing, the Grand Trunk Pacific, which will practically double the settled and cropped area of Canada, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, over a belt 200 miles wide through the heart of New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, and western Canada. It will open up millions upon millions of new territory for settlement and development; it will give development and competition in transportation to 1200 miles of grain-growing country in the west. The Transcontinental Railway, which will be completed in three or four years, will, at least, duplicate the tremendous development work accomplished by the Canadian Pacific in building up the resources and widening the sweep of Canada's commerce.

The Liberal Government's subsidy of $3,630,000 to the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, secured the speedy construction of a line that opened up the rich mineral Kootenay district, of British Columbia, covered it with thriving towns, villages and mining camps, diverted trade from the United States, and opened up a market for western farm produce. It did more. A condition of the subsidy was a reduction of freight rates by the Canadian Pacific, which built the Crow's Nest line; and this reduction, on wheat alone, saved the farmers in five years, $3,750,000, or $20,0000 more than the amount of the subsidy, not to speak of the vast indirect benefit, a saving and benefit that are to continue for all time.

The Liberal Government established the Railway Commission, whose work is to continually arbitrate between railways and customers, and to deal with and settle freight and other rates. Last session telegraph and telephone lines were brought under the Commission, and now there is assured to the public in respect of these public utilities, all the rights, privileges and advantages that could come from public ownership, and that, too, without incurring a tremendous financial liability for purchase and operation.

The Liberal Government, in its work for Agriculture, has given farming a vital organization, and made the farming interests of Canada one vast co-operative industry. Cold storage for transportation of perishable products and efficient supervision in transit, have resulted in placing Canadian farm, garden, dairy and orchard products upon the British markets in their prime original quality, with a splendid reputation and greatly increased prices.

An example of advanced legislation is the Liberal Government's old age pension act, which brings within the reach of every man and woman in Canada a means for making provision for old age.

The Liberal Government's interest in Labour is shown, not only in the broad conditions provided for creating prosperity and industrial activity, and opportunities for employment, but in providing more specific benefits. This is shown in the abolition of the sweating system, so far as concerns Government contracts; the adoption of a fair wage scale for Government contracts; the establishment of a Department of Labour to be placed in charge of a Minister of its own; the publication of the Labour Gazette; the passing of the Lemieux Act, which though only operative since March of last year, has up to August last, been instrumental in amicable settlement of nearly forty strikes, involving over 40,000 employees, and millions of capital, and satisfactory arrangements were made for the limitation and practical cessation of Oriental immigration.

The Liberal Government's adoption of a revenue tariff that produced revenue, made it financially possible to meet the pressing demands of the provinces for increased subsidies, amounting to nearly five million dollars a year of the people's money returned directly to the people for provincial purposes.

The Liberal Government's management of the Post Office is a triumph of business administration. With a reduction in postage rate of over one-third, and with a vastly increased and improved service, a deficit of $750,000 in 1896 was converted into a surplus which steadily increased year by year till this year it reached the large amount of $1,101,827. Such a fruit of good management permitted the Government to initiate another great postal reform—rural mail delivery—that is free mail delivery to farmers, and before the year is out it will be in operation.

The splendid financial administration of the Liberal Government may be summarized in a few words—we have paid our way, and spent large sums in great public works for the development of the country, without appreciably adding to the public debt, and wihout increasing—but actually reducing—the taxation of the people. Customs taxation was reduced from $18.28 per $100, in 1896, to $15.66 per $100 in 1907, not to mention over one-third reduction in postage rates. If the Conservative average of taxation had been in force since 1896, fifty millions more customs duties would have been paid. The Liberal period of rule has been a reign of surpluses—totalling over one hundred and thirteen millions, or about nine and a half million dollars per year. Conservative revenue averaged thirty six million dollars per year for twelve years ending with 1896. Liberal revenue showed an increase every year till the last fiscal year, when it reached $96,054,905. In the twelve years the expenditure had only grown from $36,049,142, in 1896, to $76,061,451, in 1908.

The expenditure has only kept pace with the progress of Canada, and the Liberal Government has made generous expenditure on public works, which will return to the people a thousand fold.

The financial condition of Canada is sound. Her securities list on a par with securities guaranteed by the British Government, and the confidence of British capitalists is shown by the fact that in the first seven months of this year, British money to aid Canadian development was sent in from England to the amount of 143 millions of dollars.

Among the acts of the Government to advance Canada, the Liberal Government has established an assay office in British Columbia, and the establishment of a Canadian mint, in which our gold and silver coins are produced, adds to our dignity as a nation, and is also a source of profit.

The Liberal Government has enacted legislation concerning the observance of the Lord's Day.

The Liberal Government has appointed civil service commissioners to provide for eliminating political influence in appointments to the civil service.

The Government, acting on the principle that if Canada maintains a Militia, it must be the best, has instituted a great many reforms. New branches of service have been established; the pay of the militia has been increased from 50 cents per day to a possible $1.00; a permanent training camp has been established at Petawawa rifle ranges, and armouries—including one in Peterborough—have been established and built, and the defence of the country amply provided for. The Government has established a rifle factory in Canada, and the "Ross Rifle," to arm the Canadian militia, and pronounced by British experts as the best arm of precision now made, is a "made in Canada" article.

In presenting the foregoing truly remarkable record of achievements, only the salient points of merit have been indicated. A book would be required to unfold it in detail. But enough is shown to amply justify an appeal to the people for a renewal of confidence in a Government which in the short space of twelve years, has brought Canada into a position of prominence in the eyes of the world, has conquered the favour of the Mother Land; has brought Canada from being a timorous dependency, over-awed by hostile tariff-makers in the United States, to the rank of a nation, making her own treaties, coining her own money, a nation full of self reliance and confidence in a future of magnificent realization, for which the foundations have been laid strong and deep by the Liberal Government of the Dominion, whose stewardship is now under review, with confidence that it will meet popular approval.

Such a Government, I have the honour of supporting, and soliciting you to support, in the person of the Liberal candidate. If I am honoured by your confidence, I can only promise that I will endeavour, to the best of my ability, to repeat the efforts to serve West Peterborough and the country, which I have exerted in the course of my past representative relations, with a single eye to serving and promoting the best interests of Peterborough—city and county.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

J. R. Stratton

CRIME IN AUSTRALIA.

Commonwealth Is Remarkably Free From Offenders.

It is not quite thirty years yet since the last of the bushrangers met the end he deserved on the scaffold in Melbourne Gaol. The first records we have of the work of bushrangers dates back to about a century ago, so that bushranging lasted for about seventy years in the Antipodes. Yet to-day statistics prove that Australia compares favorably with any country in the world in the matter of criminality. During the past quarter of a century many prisons in New South Wales and Victoria have been done away with, or converted into stores or factories. To those who know the history of Australia this is a wonderful record, and one that speaks volumes for the sterling character of our kinsmen "down under," as a people. It may be doubted if any one among the younger nations of the world has ever been so severely and systematically handicapped in the early stages of its development as Australia; and certainly none has come so finely through the ordeal. For many years we gave Australia the dregs and sweepings of our populace, and adopted methods for their control which were calculated to make beasts of saints, let alone weak and erring men. For long after that period England made a point of unloading its least desirable "remittance men" in the Antipodes. Yet, in what must be considered an incredibly short space of time, Australia succeeded in flinging off its burden and purging itself from the bad blood of early days. It is a truly wonderful record of moral and material progress that Australia has accomplished, and now, with a progressive settlement and immigration policy, and the complete realization of federation, the beautiful island continent bids fair to develop in prosperity and population at a pace which no other portion of the Empire will find it easy to exceed.

Whittier's Pot of Butter.

Once at the close of the midweek service held in the Friends' meeting house Mr. Whittier was inquiring where he could get some fresh made butter. The next morning he received a pot of the very best butter that Pond Hills could produce. The sender, Friend Ruth Challis, was rewarded by one of those spontaneous poems with which he was wont to "burden" his friends. The original copy of the poem hangs upon the wall of the home of Ruth Challis' granddaughter, who treasures the note, given in payment of her grandmother's pot of butter, as not redeemable in silver or gold:

"Words butter no parsnips," the old adage says,
And to fill up the trencher is better than praise.
So trust me, dear friend, that while eating thy butter
The thanks that I feel are far more than I utter.

Kind Providence grant thee a life without ills.
May the cows never dry up that feed on Pond hills.
May the cream never fail in thy cellar so cold
Nor thy hand lose its cunning to change it to gold.

Thrice welcome to him who, unblest with a wife,
Sits and bungles alone with the ripped seams of life,
Is the womanly kindness which pities his fate
And sews on his buttons or fills up his plate.

And So She "Didna."

Perhaps it was because he was Scotch that his temper was quick, but, whatever the reason, he lost it during a rush hour at the little country station where he was employed as porter, and he told one lady near by that she could go to—well, a place not down on the time table.

Quite naturally, she complained to the station master, and it was he who sent Sandy into the waiting room to apologize for his strong language. He found several ladies there, and, not being sure which was the she with whom his business lay, he asked them all around whether he had told her to go—there. The very last one answered yes.

"Weel," said Sandy, "ye needna."—Lippincott's.

When the Noise Let Up.

Two young women of stolid, common sense appearance were the sole feminine occupants of a subway car until there entered a flashily dressed girl, with face made up like a cosmetic advertisement and accompanied by a young man attired in the "extreme." The two young women eyed the newcomer with interest while they continued their conversation. The train slowed down at the next station, the rattle and bang of operation ceased and the voice of one of the young women became suddenly audible:

"If I had a face like that, do you know what I'd do? I'd hock it."

The girl with the makeup looked daggers, her escort looked foolish, the speaker looked out of the window and a dozen passengers looked as though they enjoyed it.

His Insignia.

The mayor of Z. is a self made man, and, as in the case of some others of that kind, not too much attention was paid to his early education. A little while ago a gentleman who was engaged in compiling a work on corporation regalia wrote to his worship requesting a photograph of his insignia. The mayor by return of post replied that he was only too pleased to accede to the other's wish. "But," he wrote, "instead of a mere photograph I beg to send you the genuine article." And there followed immediately underneath in good round copperplate the mayoral signature.—London Answers.

The Shipping Of Cheese To The Wholesale Dealers On The Other Side Of The Ocean

From The Canadian Dairyman.

That shipping cheese to the wholesale dealers in the old country can be done profitably and satisfactorily when dealing with a reliable firm on the other side has been proven by Mr. A. Patterson, owner of the Apsley cheese factory at Apsley, Ont. For three or four years now, Mr. Patterson has been shipping cheese made in his factory, direct to the firm of Leggatt Brothers, Glasgow, Scotland, (who read The Canadian Dairyman and Farming World that they may keep in touch with dairy conditions in Canada), and has found the returns entirely satisfactory. Mr. Patterson has a fine large factory in the little village of Apsley, Peterborough County, Ontario. Every two weeks, there is shipped to Scotland, a shipment containing from 60 to 70 boxes of cheese made at the Apsley factory.

The illustration above, which was taken especially for The Canadian Dairyman and Farming World shows the cheese being unloaded from the wagons, and piled on the wharf at Mt. Julian, shipping point 18 miles from Apsley, waiting shipment by boat to the old country. From Mt. Julian this cheese is taken to Montreal, and from there shipped abroad. The cheese in the shipment shown in the illustration were marked from 89 to 94 lbs. each, but the average weight of cheese shipped, are about 89 and 90 lbs. each. Mr. Patterson's man was asked if there was any complaint about broken boxes, after the cheese reached Scotland, and replied, that they had never had any trouble through shipping their cheese in the wooden boxes they used. These boxes appeared to be very strong, and were particularly well made.

When asked what his cheese would realize net this year, the driver of the load, replied: We will net about 12¾ cents for our cheese this year, which is more than we would get, should we sell it on the cheese board. We receive part payment for our cheese when it is shipped, and the balance on receipt of the cheese in the warehouse in Scotland. The firm we ship to deposits so much money with the Bank at Lakefield, and upon date of shipment from there, we go into the bank and get part payment for our cheese, and the balance reaches us about three weeks later.

"We find this method much more satisfactory than selling on the board. We never have any trouble in getting our money, when due, we get better prices for our cheese and always have a market for it. We keep most of our cheese a month or six weeks before it is shipped. We would not like to go back to selling our cheese on the board, after having sold it direct to the dealer in the old country."

While some factories have obtained satisfactory results by shipping direct it is a dangerous practice unless the firms dealt with on the other side are known to be reliable. Once the cheese leave Canada the shippers are largely at the mercy of the people who have bought them. If these people prove to be sharpers, and there are many such sharpers on the other side, there is practically no means of collecting the balance of the money due on the cheese. It is for this reason that most Canadian factorymen find it more satisfactory to sell their cheese to the Montreal exporters who have a reputation in Canada and who have been in business here for many years.

Unloading Cheese at the Wharf.

Cutting Corn By Harvester Is Found To Be More Practicable

From The Canadian Dairyman.

There still is doubt in the minds of many, as to the best method of cutting corn. That is whether by the corn harvester or by hand with the corn hook.

From experience I would say cut with a harvester wherever practicable. If the area in corn is not large enough to justify the purchase of a harvester, then rent one. If the crop is intended for dry fodder and shocked in the field to cure, it can be handled much easier when in bundles than when loose.

Cutting by hand has one advantage. The corn can be cut closer to the ground than with a harvester; which means quite a saving of valuable fodder. Cutting too high is a mistake made by a great many, who think that the bottom of the stalk is of no food value.

By keeping the knife of the harvester sharp a much neater job can be done and a shorter stubble will result. If the stubble is left too long it will interfere more or less with next year's seeding operations.

Put the crop into the silo if the full benefit and value is desired. When putting it into the silo, the first requisite is a low wagon for hauling; by having a low wagon much hard work is saved. Then also, one man less is required, as building the load is not necessary; except for a little on top.

A good sized gang means cheaper work. By keeping the harvester and cut-box going at the same time a much cheaper ensilage can be made. If the regular farm crew is not large enough to permit of this, co-operate with your neighbors. Keep the harvester about half a day's cutting ahead; or far enough so that if anything goes wrong with it, the hauling and cutting at the silo need not stop. It is well not to get too far ahead leaving the corn lying on the field, for should a heavy rain come on the corn would get full of earth making a very dirty ensilage and disagreeable handling. Make medium sized bundles or just what the cut-box will take in nicely The machine can be fed steadier in this way and more corn can be got through in a day.

If the crop is to be cured in the field for dry fodder the best plan is to put it into shocks about 15 feet long. For this method something in the form of a trestle is required as a support. A good trestle can be made by driving two fence pickets into the ground for each end, cross them to form a crotch and tie with wire. Then put up two small braces from each outer end to steady them. Place a pole across these and it is ready for the corn. One of the principal things in making a trestle is to get it low enough. If put too high the rain will get in between the two rows of corn and cause moulding. See that the corn lies well together at the top and well above the cross pole. Put from 15 to 18 inches of corn on each side of the trestle but leave the ends open to allow for circulation of air through the corn.

Place the shocks east and west, as they will not be so easily blown down When dry, if it is convenient, haul and put under cover to keep the corn from bleaching.

If the corn is left in the field until late in the fall, or as is done by some well on into the winter, it deteriorates a great deal in feeding value.

A POOR TIME TO SOW BUCKWHEAT

From The Canadian Dairyman.

Would buckwheat sown on my land at this season of the year benefit the soil?—J. M., York Co., Ont.

Buckwheat sown at the present time would not do your land any particular good only in so far as it would make use of any available plant food elements and prevent them from leaching during fall rains and in the drainage water the following spring. By sowing a crop of buckwheat, these elements would be made use of and held in the form of buckwheat plants. This plowed down late in the fall or next spring would add considerable humus to the soil.

To derive the most benefit from sowing a crop upon your land now, it would be better to sow one of the legumes, preferably the hairy vetch. Unfortunately this seed is very expensive and it is doubtful if the returns in the form of fertility to the land would pay you for the expense incurred in purchasing seed. Crimson clover, which is an annual, probably would be the best thing that you could sow for this purpose, unless you care to sow peas. Aside from fixing any available plant food, by sowing such a crop, you would tend to keep the land free from weeds, for where we do not provide a cover for the land, nature soon starts one in the shape of various kinds of weeds.

THE word "OXOL" does not mean one food or one preparation. No! "OXOL" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. and T. C. Windsor, of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and curing all animals, which to them means money.

Scientific Meetings will be organized by Messrs. Windsor and held through out the Dominion of Canada, when farmers desirous of improving their knowledge of stock will have an opportunity of doing so and to be instructed on the life of stock from birth to death, free of any charge.

A SUNLESS LAND.

Scottish Colonists Are Going to Try to Live on Kerguelen Island.

It is to be hoped that the sixty colonists who sailed from the Tyne the other day for Kerguelen Land, in the Indian Ocean, are sturdy, hardy folk, used to solitude and roughing it.

For of all places on earth, outside the Arctic and Antarctic regions, this is the most isolated and inhospitable. Indeed, it is generally known to mariners, not by its official title, but as Desolation Island.

Most nations have owned it by turns, but it has been sooner or later abandoned by them all as worthless, and this although it covers an area variously estimated at from 1,500 to 2,000 square miles. At present France is in nominal possession of it, she having annexed it in 1893.

There are no inhabitants, nor is it easy to see how those who are now on their way there are going to exist. The soil is utterly barren. Practically the whole of the interior is covered with snow-fields of unknown depth, whence glaciers flow down to the sea. Where there are no snow-fields, there are morasses, and hidden, treacherous mud-holes.

The climate is probably the worst in the world. Terrific tempests follow one another practically without ceasing, and are accompanied by torrents of ice-cold rain, hail, sleet, and snow. The Challenger expedition spent a month there, during which time there were only three fine days. And this was in December-January, when it is mid-summer in those latitudes.

Its discoverer, M. Kerguelen Tremarec, although at first he professed to be enraptured with it, lived to confess that it was unfit for human habitation. "Not even Eskimos," he exclaimed, "could exist there."

Yet the present expedition, we are told, intends taking there thirty negro laborers from Africa.

Poor, deluded children of the tropics!

AT POVERTY CORNER.

London Actor Got His Start at Time When He Most Needed It.

In his early youth Mr. James Welch, who has been amusing London in "When Knights Were Bold," experienced some hard times, and one day he was at his wits' end to furnish the wherewithal for the day's entertainment. The only course open to him was to pawn his watch. This he did, and, feeling reckless, at once made for a well-known restaurant, and, as he himself phrases it, "blued the lot" down to the last sixpence. "Now," said he, as he gave the ultimate coin to the waiter and once more walked into the street, "something must turn up, for I am 'broke.'" At that moment he felt a touch on his shoulder, and, looking round, recognized a professional friend, who apologized, but explained that on seeing Welch he was reminded that a small part that would suit him was then going at the Olympic. Then and there the direction of the walk was changed, and half an hour later Mr. Welch was engaged by Mr. Wilson Barrett (who remembered his Perkins in "The Golden Ladder" at the Globe) at a salary of £3 a week, an engagement which led to continued good fortune.

A Peer as Light Porter.

A good story is told of Lord Howard de Walden. At a seaside town, a short while ago, he was repairing his motor-boat close to the pier, when an old lady came along carrying a portmanteau, which was obviously too weighty for her. Turning to Lord Howard, she said, "Young man, would you be good enough to take this bag on board that vessel yonder? I want to cross to R——." "With pleasure," replied his lordship, and a few seconds later he was off in his dirty overalls, with the luggage on his shoulder. He deposited the bag on board, but after its departure he learned from a friend that this boat was not going to R——, but to France. The old lady's feelings are not recorded.

Irishman's Promise.

At Halifax (Eng.) Police Court recently the following dialogue took place: Irishman: I'm thirty-three years old, and I'll be 103 before I'm up again if you'll let me off. The Chairman: Will you keep away for another thirty-three years? Yes. The Chairman: Go. then.

THE SCOURING RUSH.

A Queer Plant That Can Be Changed Into a Mineral.

The scouring rush, Equisetum hiemale, is an interesting plant which has been put to practical use. In old times its hollow, flinty stems were in great repute for kitchen cleaning purposes. The stems are hollow and are easily separated at the joints. If one would satisfy himself as to the peculiar property that first suggested the use of this rush for scouring purposes he has only to draw a joint across the edge of his teeth to find it like a file.

A very pretty chemical experiment is frequently made with the rush. If one takes a small vial of nitric acid into which any ordinary lead is immersed he will quickly see it dissolve, literally eaten up by the acid. But what does the scouring rush do under such circumstances?

Immediately upon its introduction to the acid the sizzling process begins. The green pulp of the stem is gradually consumed, the tube, however, still retaining its shape, becoming paler and paler in color until after a few hours the specimen is transformed into a pure white alabaster-like column which defies any further attack from the acid.

On taking it from the vial and washing it carefully in running water the operator holds in his hands a beautiful tube of pure, glassy flint, or silex, an object of great microscopic beauty of construction. The scouring rush is no longer a vegetable, but a mineral, and in observing its skeleton of stone the secret of its utility as a scouring brush is easily understood.

DUTCH STREET CARS.

The Conductor Carries More Documents Than a Congressman.

Countries may be known by their street cars. The rush and jar of our big cities are exemplified in the rapid, rude transit of its inhabitants. So the character of orderly little Holland may be gathered from observation of her car service. Says J. U. Higinbotham in "Three Weeks in Holland and Belgium:"

Street car fare in Holland is 3 cents a trip, and for 4 cents you receive a return ticket. The conductor carries more documents than a congressman. For every fare he opens an aluminum box about 4 by 6 and hands out a receipt or a return ticket, as the case may be.

When the passengers pay their tickets he places the tickets in a leather pouch hung by a strap round his neck. It is important that you retain the receipt given you, for at uncertain intervals a "controleur" gets on the car and examines all receipts, puts his O. K. on them with a rubber stamp and compares the result with the manifest or log carried by the conductor. It is quite the correct thing to tip the conductor with a Dutch cent or two.

Each car has a card inside stating how many places there are, and on each platform is another saying how many people may stand thereon. When the seats and both platforms are full the sign "Vol" is put up and no more are permitted to get aboard. Our car probably had thirty people in it and on the platforms and was turning business away at every crossing.

Queen's Favorite Flower.

While Her Majesty has a penchant for sweet-peas, particularly those of delicate shades and tints, she more often than not wears carnations, both in and out of doors. The Malmaison carnation, in fact, is her favorite flower, although at a garden-party, for instance, she will sometimes be seen wearing sweet-peas, a flower which she has helped to attain its present popularity. Both King Edward and the Prince of Wales, too, have a partiality for carnations, but they have an equal liking for gardenias.

Dogs Killed by Bees.

Two valuable dogs have been killed by bees at Slough Hall, Theberton, England. A Clumber spaniel and a terrier, which were chained up, were attacked by a swarm of bees, and before aid could be rendered one had been stung to death. The other died shortly afterwards.

THREE SENTENCED.

North Bay Prisoners Go to Prison—Martin Decision Reserved.

North Bay, Ont., Oct. 19.—The high court, before Judge Britton, closed Saturday night, after a busy week with a long calendar of criminal and civil cases. Several criminal cases were adjourned to the November sessions, including the Cobalt "high grading" case.

Thomas S. Wright, found guilty of manslaughter, was sentenced to seven years in the Kingston Penitentiary. The jury in the case of Edward Eaton, charged with the murder of Frank Ellar at Temagami, brought in a verdict of manslaughter, after being out all night. Eaton was sentenced to nine months in the Central Prison.

Alex. Stevens, found guilty of a serious offence against a nine-year-old immigrant girl, will spend two years in the Kingston Penitentiary and receive 20 lashes.

William Martin, Jr., who pleaded guilty to retaining funds belonging to the Town of North Bay, to the extent of $24,000, while acting as tax collector, was again admitted to bail, Judge Britton announcing that he would take into consideration the request of his counsel for a suspended sentence, and reserve decision until the December Assizes.

FREIGHT TRAINS COLLIDE.

In Accident Near Stickney, N. B., Fireman Is Roasted Alive.

Woodstock, N.B., Oct. 19.—During a dense fog Saturday two C.P.R. freight trains collided head-on near Stickney. Robert Johnson, St. John, fireman, was burned to death, and Chas. Humphrey, Woodstock, engineer, was fatally injured and died a short time after.

Fireman Johnson was caught between the tender and the firebox, and roasted alive, while he piteously begged the train men to kill him, and put him out of his agony. One leg was burned off before he was extricated. Humphrey had both legs and his back broken. Conductor Taylor was injured about the head and face. The engineer and fireman on the other train jumped and saved their lives.

ARMENIANS SLAUGHTERED.

Reports From Wiranschehir Report Terrible Atrocities.

Berlin, Oct. 19.—There have been frightful massacres in Armenia, according to the Constantinople correspondent of The Berliner Tageblatt. This paper Saturday publishes a despatch from the Turkish capital which says:

"Armenians in Wiranschehir have been massacred by Turkish troops. The women and children have been subjected to fearful treatment. The troops were sent to Wiranschehir to overawe the mutinous townspeople, two-thirds of whom are Amenians, and they at once began murder and plunder. They are said to have completely overrun the city."

Elect Woman President.

Montreal, Oct. 19.—The Protestant Teachers' Association of Quebec closed its sessions on Saturday, after a somewhat stormy meeting.

For the first time in 44 years of its history a woman was elected to the presidency.

This movement was strongly opposed by the men, but as the women constitued 95 per cent. of the teachers of the province they outvoted the men. Miss Mary Ferguson of Montreal was elected president.

Lord Napier's Son Suicides.

New York, Oct. 19.—A cable despatch to The Herald from Shanghai, China, says: Cecil Scott Napier, commissioner of customs at Wenchow, and son of Lord Napier of Magdala, while temporarily insane from fever leaped from a window of the hospital in Wenchow and was killed.

Latest advices say the disturbance between the Chinese and Japanese at Kanto was exaggerated and that the trouble will be amicably settled.

Wyoming Warehouse Is Burned.

Wyoming, Ont., Oct. 19.—Fire Saturday night destroyed the grain warehouse of A. Laing. The blaze is supposed to have started from a spark from a passing engine. The building and contents were partially covered by insurance. Loss unknown.

Rumors Say Passage Near Prince Rupert Is Full of Reefs.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 19.—It is reported that last summer's surveys of H.M.S. Egeria have shown that Brown Passage, between Dundas and Stephen Islands, the most direct route from Prince Rupert, is studded with so many dangerous reefs as to render safe navigation impossible. If shipping bound to and from this port is forced to deviate to the northward of Upper Dundas Island and then make a southerly run down Chatham Sound, it will increase the distance between Prince Rupert and the open sea by fifty to seventy-five miles, and rob the northern port of much of its advantage of being nearer to the Orient than southern ports.

Wreck Victim Worse.

Barrie, Oct. 19.—The condition of Mrs. John Wilson, of Meaford, who was injured in the Grand Trunk wreck near here on Thursday, is regarded as very serious.

Mrs. Wilson sustained fractures of the arm and leg, and by reason of her advanced years, she has only been able to rally partially from the shock. Her recovery is considered doubtful by the hospital physicians.

Miss Hatson of Parkhill, whose arm had to be amputated, is doing splendidly. The other injured persons have been removed to their homes.

Judge Shoots Himself.

Newark, N.J., Oct. 19.—Judge Howell of the Criminal Court of this city shot himself on Saturday in the head in one of the city parks while his court was waiting for him to appear. He probably will not recover.

Judge Howell was criticized in the political campaign and Friday night challenged his accusers to reply to questions which he asked them.

Woman Killed at Muirkirk.

St. Thomas, Oct. 19.—Mrs. Althea Walker, aged 70 years, while on her way to the depot to take a train to St. Thomas, was struck and instantly killed by the M.C.R. freight train at Muirkirk Saturday morning. She tried to cross the tracks ahead of the train. She was a widow, and is survived by one son and two daughters. Mr. N. W. Ford of Toronto, formerly owner of The Chatham News, is a brother.

Largest Democratic Contribution.

New York, Oct. 19.—A check for $10,000, the contribution of the Tammany Society to the Democratic national campaign fund, was received by Herman Ridder, treasurer of the National Democratic Committee Saturday.

This is the largest contribution yet received by the national committee so far as made public.

Dull Mind Saves Forger.

Belleville, Oct. 19.—Joseph Godfrey, the 16-year-old Bancroft boy, who was charged with passing two forged checks, pleaded guilty and Judge Deroche suspended sentence because he thought the lad was not mentally bright.

Young Godfrey accidentally shot and killed his mother a couple of years ago.

Runaway Team Kills Farmer.

St. Thomas, Ont., Oct. 19.—Wm. A. Hill, townline, Yarmouth, a well-known farmer in western Ontario, was killed near his home Saturday afternoon. His team of horses ran away, and Mr. Hill, who was in front of them, attempted to stop them. The neckyoke struck his breast and he died three hours later.

WAS DROWNED IN TWENTY-FIVE FEET OF WATER ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON AFTER BEING UPSET FROM BOAT IN THE RIVER BELOW THE STREET RAILWAY WHARF

Arthur Hanning Went With Mr. W. Bailey for a Short Paddle That Resulted in the Accident When Only Sixteen Feet From Shore

HE SANK NEVER TO RISE

With a suddenness that was appalling, Arthur Hanning, a youth of 18 years was drowned in the Otonabee yesterday afternoon at 4.45 o'clock at a point below the Street Railway wharf, near Mr. John Holmes' property. The accident occurred so unexpectedly and the young man had sunk in the 25 feet of water without once re-appearing at the surface, that for the time being those who happened to be close at hand scarcely realized what had happened.

The unfortunate youth came from Toronto several weeks ago and was practically without funds and out of employment. On Friday he came to Mr. Jas. Skippen's residence on McGill street and the latter out of charity took him in and on Saturday got work for him with the Peterborough Light and Power Company. On Sunday afternoon with Mr. Skippen, young Hanning went for a walk down to the river and along the bank.

In Mr. Bailey's Boat

They met William Bailey who was sitting on the bank and his boat, a little 9 foot canvas affair, was pulled up on the shore. From the information received it seems that Hanning wanted to go out on the water to try the craft. Mr. Bailey was opposed to this, saying that he was slightly superstitious about going on the water on Sunday.

After many requests Mr. Bailey finally consented to take the lad out a short distance and after paddling about 50 or 60 feet from where they were returning and were only 16 feet from the water's edge. In some unaccountable manner the boat upset and Mr. Bailey and Hanning were struggling in the water.

Sank Never to Rise

The former is a good swimmer and did his utmost to get the boy to shore but Hanning struggled frantically, tearing Mr. Bailey's shirt off. He sank in about twenty-five feet of water and Mr. Bailey, thoroughly exhausted, managed to complete his swim to shore. Hanning never arose and although Mr Bailey and others dived after him they could not see his body.

P. C. Newhall shortly after got grappling irons from Mr. Collins, at the lock, and with Mr. Arthur Mitchell, E. Sanders and Emmet Stanfield, trawled until 7.30 o'clock, when the body was recovered by the latter two, almost where it sank.

Mr. Skippen and Mr. Bailey both feel distressed about the accident, particularly the latter, who is said to have remarked that he would rather it had been himself. His efforts to save the boy had proved unsuccessful, and he had utterly exhausted himself in the cold water trying to help him, and afterwards in diving for him.

Young Hannin's home is in Manchester, England. He has been in Canada three years, leaving on April 18th, 1906, for this country. He had excellent testimonials from prominent men, among them Rev. W. J. Canton, of Whalley Range, Manchester.

Lost his Clothes

Since coming out he has had many setbacks. His money from farmers around Toronto was not forthcoming in some cases, and when he arrived at Toronto his package of clothes disappeared. Coroner Gray on being informed of the circumstances decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

ADDRESS ON WOMEN'S WORK

To be Given by Rev. Canon Davidson on Tuesday Afternoon

An interesting event has been arranged in connection with the annual thankofferig meeting of St. Andrew's Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, which takes place on Tuesday afternoon, 20th inst., at three o'clock. The Rev. Canon Davidson, M. A., of St. John's Church, will give an address on the different phases of woman's work, presented at the Pan-Anglican Congress in London, England. This meeting will be open to everybody.

The Contest in West Peterborough

(From the Lakefield News.)

As the campaign in the West Riding draws to a close, each of the parties is putting forth every effort to secure a successful result for its candidate. The friends of Mr. Burnham are putting up a stiff fight for him, although some of the instrumentalities resorted to in his behalf, such as personal accusations against Mr. Stratton that are not only to be deprecated, but will not be believed, will rather hurt than aid his prospects. A candid review of the field seems to indicate that there is little doubt of Mr. Stratton's election. He has always held the riding by strong majorities, and it is fair to say that he has always been an active, energetic and influential advocate of everything that promised advantage to the city and county, and his activity in former years, on behalf of his constituents, and the success that attended most of his efforts, have given him such a strong hold upon the confidence and sympathy of the people, that he is a difficult candidate to overthrow. And aside from political considerations, while the majority will regard his election as a great advantage for Peterborough, his bitterest opponent will not, in his heart, regard it as a calamity. If the Hon. Mr. Stratton is elected, every man in Peterborough, no matter what his politics, will have a zealous and capable advocate of his interests at the Dominion capital.

Bush Fires Raging In The North Of Smith Township; Where The Smoke Came From

Mr. Dan Whetung, of the Chemong Indian village states that bush fires in North Smith are raging furiously. On the farm of Mr. Albert Whetung, his brother, the fire is doing considerable damage to the fences and forests. In the swamps the earth is burning two feet or more below, the surface and nothing but rain will alleviate the existing conditions. Hundreds of acres of bush are in the path of the flames.

RECOVERY OF SUNKEN OAK TIMBER WAS FOUND TO BE IMPRACTICABLE

Lindsay, Oct.. 19. — Investigations have been going on into the reported valuable find of oak timber in the bed of the Scugog River, and it has been found that the recovery of the oak is impracticable. About five feet of mud covers the timber, and the expense of raising it would not cover the money which would be realised from its sale. Local capitalists who were interested are disappointed at the foregoing discovery.

MRS. SUTHERLAND WAS RELEASED AFTER "NO-BILL" BY THE JURY

Examiner Special

Buffalo, Oct. 19.—Mrs. Anna Sutherland, who since early in August has been confined at the Erie County jail in connection with the shooting of her husband, Alexander Sutherland, at their home in Niagara street, has been released, after the September grand jury had in its final report given a no bill against her. Mrs. Sutherland was held on a charge of murder in the first degree.

Mrs. Sutherland, accompanied by five other prisoners against whom no bills had been returned, was taken to the office of Attorney Abbott immediately after Justice Lambert had received the report of the grand jury.

After some conversation with the district attorney she left the office.

The case against Mrs. Sutherland, it is understood, was found by the grand jury to be too uncertain to warrant an indictment. In her statement made to the police Mrs. Sutherland declared that her husband was accidentally shot.

WAS FINED $50.00 AND COSTS OF $28.80 FOR THE THEFT OF A HORSE AND BUGGY

A fine of $50 and costs amounting to $28.80, with the alternative of 90 days in gaol was the penalty handed out at police court this morning to John Carroll, the Cavan farmer charged with stealing a horse and buggy from John H Fowler, of this city. Carroll pleaded guilty to the charge, his counsel, Mr. G N Gordon, stating on his behalf that the man was intoxicated at the time and had no recollection of the occurrence at all.

The Magistrate held that whether he was drunk or not made no difference in law, and commented upon the annoyance and expense that the owner of the property was put to in order to recover it. Mr. Fowler stated that he had cost him $11.50.

Eleven witnesses had been subpoenaed by the Crown and Mr. Gordon commented upon the fact, saying that there were enough for murder case. Most of the witnesses held out for witness fees, but changed their minds later on and only three asked for the money.

The magistrate inflicted a fine of $50 and costs of $28.80; $30 of which was for compensation to the owner of the property.

Mysterious Mr. E Of The Peterborough Examiner Captured Saturday Night

Mr. Alex Robinson the Lucky Man—Smooth Faced One is Finally Landed After Defying All Peterborough for Five Days

BIG CROWD SEE HIM TAKEN INTO THE EXAMINER OFFICE BY HIS CAPTOR

The grand exciting chase after the Mysterious "Mr. E." of the Peterborough Examiner, the clever, smooth-faced man for whom all Peterborough had been hunting for days, ended on Saturday night when he was captured on Hunter street by Mr. A. Robinson at 7.50 p.m. In ten minutes more had he not been captured, it would have been compulsory for him to hand himself over to the first person he met on the street, but his lucky captor saved him the trouble and upheld the shrewdness of Peterboroughians. The Mysterious One was just making a final dash for George street to parade its sidewalks in the thick of the throng until someone was quick enough to spot him, when Mr. Robinson nailed him with the proper identification, produced his Examiner, and captive and captor proceeded to the Examiner office. The committee of identificaton was called together, "Mr. E." was identified, and Mr. Robinson awarded the prize. By this time a mighty throng had gathered in front of the Examiner office, spreading up and down George street for nearly a block, completely blocking traffic, all anxious to get a look at the smooth stranger, who had defied them all for a week. And it was an utter impossibility for even a small part of those present to see him, his managers, L. Hayden O'Connor and Geo. Felix Green at once decided to place him on exhibition in Hon. J. R. Stratton's Committee rooms. Mr. G. L. Stevens accordingly drove them, the winner and the mysterious one in his McLaughlin-Buick car to the committee rooms, followed by an immense throng, where "Mr. E" and his lucky captor, Mr. A. Robinson, were formally presented to those present. The winner was accorded a hearty cheer, everyone being pleased that Mr. Robinson was the lucky one to land him, as he is but convalescing from a recent siege in the hospital. His account of the capture is very interesting and is as follows:

"I had been on the lookout for this man all week. I had not been well, having just come out of the hospital, and thought possibly I would not have the same chance as some of the other fellows. On Saturday I was around the Oriental Hotel, and I heard it rumoured that "Mr. E" was inside the hotel. That was during the morning. I had worked around the Oriental some time ago, and knew the layout as good, I think, as any man in Peterborough. I approached one of the bell boys and he told me positively that "Mr. E" was in the house and in room 41 at that moment, because he had seen him by climbing a ladder and looking through the fanlight. I also heard others saying the same thing, so came to the conclusion there was no doubt about it. I knew where room 41 was, so decided that if he came out I would be in a good position to get him. I provided myself with a subscription to the Examiner and some other goods for which there was a reward. I then watched the main entrance and the yard gates. I saw about a dozen others at the rear of the yard, so it was impossible for "Mr. E" to get over the fence. I waited and waited, while I got about a quarter to eight when as I was standing near the yard gate, I heard a noise as though someone was kicking the fence around the hotel laundry yard. I looked and saw someone drop over the fence and run towards the gate. As soon as the man got on to Hunter street I grabbed him and said "You are the Mysterious Mr. E. of the Peterborough Examiner," I had a copy of the paper with me. He said he was and took me to the office."

Mr. E's. manager writes as follows:—As soon as the people got wind of the fact that our man was housed in the hotel, we knew we were foiled. The boys absolutely surrounded us during the afternoon and it was an impossibility to carry on our plans. We intended dropping Mr. E through the window; he would then have scaled the fence, made his way through the lane into Simcoe street and then walked right up George street through the crowd until he was discovered. But, unfortunately, this could not be done as we found the sleuths had secreted themselves in every conceivable spot and it was tully 7.40 before we finally decided the course we would take. Time was short and quick action was the word. Mr. Green left the hotel with Mr. Stevens in the automobile and drew some of the scouts away from the hotel, leaving Mr O'Connor to get our man away, and this is the course that was taken: "Mr. E." passed down the private staircase and dropped through a window into the laundry yard, sprang up on to the fence into the main yard and dashed for Hunter street, and he was nabbed as soon as he got so far. Had he got a good start on Hunter street he could have walked until 8 o'clock. We think Mr. A. Robertson deserves the prize well. We all met the committee this afternoon together with the local merchants who had so generously contributed to the reward, and after they had investigated the circumstances they decided Mr. Robertson was the winner, whereupon the total prize money was handed over to him just as freely as the givers had advertised they would give it. Following is the declaration of Mr. E.:

A Legitimate Capture

We the undersigned members of the committee who were appointed to identify the Mysterious "Mr. E." of the Peterborough Examiner, hereby state that on investigation we are firmly of the opinion that the contest was conducted fairly throughout, and the capture of "Mr. E" by Mr. Alex. Robinson was honest and legitimate.

J. Moloney, Clerk of the County Court; Geo. Linton, Peterborough Lumber Company; C. G. Graham; R. M. Glover. Mr. Gillespie was out of the city.

Peterborough, Ont.,
October 19th, 1908.

Mr. Robertson's Affidavit

I, Alex. Robertson, of the City of Peterborough, hereby swear on my solemn oath that I did not receive any information that was not legitimate, and that the only information I did receive was common property, that led me to effect the arrest of the Mysterious "Mr. E," of the Peterborough Examiner.

FAST IN THE MUD

Driver From Peterborough to Hall's Glen Has Exciting Time in Mill Pond at Warsaw—Has to Summon Assistance

DROVE INTO POND TO WATER HIS HORSE

Examiner Special

Warsaw, Oct. 19.—Fast in the mud in the bottom of the pond at midnight was the uninviting predicament in which an unknown man and his horse were placed Saturday night. He was driving from Peterborough to Hall's Glen, and going through the village here, stopped to water his horse in the millpond. He drove the steed into the water, thinking that he could easily turn around, but unfortunately the mud held him fast. The driver jumped into the pond and himself was soaked in mud and water. Finally, with assistance from Mr. W. Bell and other citizens, the stranger was extricated from the mud and sent on his journey towards the Glen.

TRENT CANAL

LINDSAY SECTION

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Trent Canal," will be received at this office until 16 o'clock on Tuesday, 17th November, 1908, for the works connected with the construction of the Lindsay Section of the canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after the 19th October 1908, at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $10,000.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

A WEEK OF WORK.

The time for argument in this election is largely past. This week must be a week of action. Mr. Stratton and his friends have waged a vigorous, clean fight, a fight of argument and appeal; not a fight of slander and mud-slinging. The arguments in support of the return of a live, energetic and resourceful Government to power for another five years have been fully and fairly presented, and now the time is come to gather up the strands into one strong rope of work, and devote the next five days to a strong pull and a pull altogether. Do this and the victory is won. It is won anyway; but make it decisive. Because Mr. Stratton is sure of election is no reason why our efforts should be relaxed; no reason why one favourable vote should be left unpolled. A fair majority may serve, but a majority of 800 or 1,000 will do no harm, but show the sentiments of Peterborough in no uncertain way. Mr. Stratton has been a good friend of Peterborough, let West Peterborough show its appreciation by a mammoth majority, a majority that will encourage him to put forth greater efforts to serve West Peterborough in all its interests as its representative in the Dominion Parliament. Let every worker in the interest of Mr. Stratton, and necessarily of Peterborough, put forth every effort to make his election on Monday next a sweeping victory.

THE FORCE OF PARTY ZEAL.

The Conservative candidate in this contest grasps at every straw that he thinks will keep his head above water. He has persistently vilified and abused his opponent, and seems determined to keep up his crusade. As reported in the Morning Times, Mr. Burnham said that local Grits had circulated a report that Mr. R. M. Dennistoun of Winnipeg was supporting Mr. Stratton's candidature, and to show that the report that he had falsely attributed to local Grits was itself false—to upset the man of straw he had set up—he read a telegram from Mr. Dennistoun to the effect that Mr. Dennistoun urged all his friends to support Mr. Burnham.

This may be true, and it is not surprising. Mr. Dennistoun is a Conservative of Conservatives, and, while he may be a warm personal friend of Mr. Stratton, has always been his strong and, at the same time, honourable political opponent, fighting him in a contest all the way from nomination to polling day. He never supported Mr. Stratton politically. The latter never expected him to do so; and neither Mr. Stratton nor his friends ever said or claimed that Mr. Dennistoun was supporting him. It is natural, when cornered in the hottest end of a political fight, and directly appealed to, as a Conservative, to come to the rescue of the sinking Conservative candidate, that Mr. Dennistoun should send such a telegram, as a politician. Even an honourable man like Mr. Dennistoun can't prevent the party man from coming to the top in the hour of stress and crisis. His party zeal makes him forgiving, or overlooking, and shows a magnanimity that will speak a good word for a party man in a tight place—a man whose hand, as a man, he would not take when leaving Peterborough.

It's all very well that a party man a thousand miles away, when begged by the party friends he has worked with all his life, should, as a party man, send a colourless telegram, asking his party friends to support as Conservative candidate a man he must hold in contempt; a man who treated Mr. Dennistoun as no honourable and universally respected man was ever treated on removing his home from Peterborough. Mr. Dennistoun, with his personal resentment modified by time and distance, may overlook the spiteful treatment, but many of his friends in Peterborough, on the spot, cannot be quite so forgiving.

Mr. Dennistoun sends his belated certificate of political character from Winnipeg in the dark. At his distance he cannot know that the candidate of his party in Peterborough has developed an impracticability and demonstrated his unfitness for the responsibilities of representative to an extent that his worst enemies would not have thought him capable of being guilty of before he came into the limelight of a contest. If Mr. Dennistoun could have seen Mr. Burnham, the Conservative candidate, as he is seen in Peterborough he would, perhaps, even in the face of an eleventh hour appeal, have hesitated before permitting himself to be carried away by his party zeal.

WHY IMPERIL PROSPERITY?

A despatch to the Mail and Empire from Montreal says: "What is considered to be the most important civic report of the year was completed at the City Hall to-day. It shows the financial growth of the city in the matter of increased real estate values for the present year. The report shows that the total increase in values in real estate for this year has been no less than $19,687,572. This is considered to be most remarkable, especially as the real estate increases in 1907 amounted to twenty-one millions over 1906."

Toronto has had a similar experience. The assessment of 1908 is nearly sixteen millions more than that of 1907, and of this increase, nine millions are for new buildings. The assessment for 1908 is $223,000,000. The assessment for 1900 was less than $125,000,000, so that there has been an increase of ninety-eight millions in eight years. In the eight years between 1890 and 1898 there was a decline of ten millions. Between 1900 and 1907 the bank clearings in Toronto were nearly doubled, the increase being from $625,000,000 to $1,228,905,000. The imports increased from $38,803,000 to $67,496,000. At the same time manufacturing industry grew apace as the following figures show:

	1900	1905
No. of establishments	847	935
Employees	37,653	44,841
Capital invested	$52,114,042	$66,520,098
Salaries and wages	15,505,466	21,550,793
Value of products	58,415,498	85,714,278

In most of the cities and towns of Canada similar evidence as to growth could be given. And it is a healthy growth. It is a growth based upon the development and progress of the country, and especially of Western Canada. In five years the number of farms in the three Western Provinces was increased from 54,625 to 120,439. That is to say, the solid foundation of the prosperity of Western Canada was doubled. The acreage under cultivation grows rapidly every year, and no matter how harvests may fluctuate, this steady and rapid growth of the basis is an assurance of continued prosperity for Canada.

In 1896 "the West" meant one Province, and a long stretch of unorganized territory, thinly populated, and cultivated in small districts, few and far between. To-day there are three Provinces, vying with each other in population, settlement, and cultivation, and each with splendid prospects. The Calgary and Edmonton of 1908 are hardly to be compared with the Calgary and Edmonton of 1896. There are thriving towns in Saskatchewan which had not even a name twelve years ago. There was one transcontinental railway in the West in 1896. There are three to-day, eagerly seeking for the privilege of sharing in the business of carrying the Western grain. The populated area is no longer a fringe along the southern border, served by one railway. It has gone northward four hundred miles, and still the movement is northward, so that the next great movement will be the peopling of the Peace River district. The railway to Hudson's Bay, long regarded as a dream of romance, is likely soon to be a realized fact. A new Canada has arisen between the lakes and the Rocky Mountains.

Probperity, however, might receive a serious check if there was not a stable and vigorous Government administering the affairs of the country. The weakness and dissension which marked the last few years of Conservative administration at Ottawa undoubtedly shook the confidence of business men and checked enterprise. The establishment of a new and vigorous Government put life and confidence into the business of the country. The choice to-day is between a vigorous Government, with the departments well manned by experienced administrators, and a state of uncertainty, if not of anarchy, a recurrence of the conditions which led up to the bolt of 1896. Mr. Borden's friends do not claim that he has any chance of obtaining a working majority in the coming election. As he cannot obtain the support necessary to govern the country, surely the wise course is not to weaken, but to strengthen, the hands of the present administrator.—Toronto Star.

KEEP CANADA GOING.

The Conservative candidate, Mr. Burnham, from a political point of view, reads like a back number. We in Canada are young and lusty; our blood runs swiftly and strong. We are alive, very much alive. We rejoice in a splendid feat of progress, but we only live in the present to prepare for the future. Our outlook is far ahead.

We see the future in the possibilities of our national resources. We have wheat lands, fruit lands, mining lands, fishing waters.

What shall we do with them? Let them lie fallow, as they have done since Creation's dawn? "Not if we know, ourselves."

A Provincial railway—the Temiscamingue and Northern—was built into New Ontario. In the building of it—silver, nickel and cobalt were uncovered,—disclosing the richest mining area in the world—producing, in the beginning, twenty millions a year. And the discoveries are still coming—these mines yield every year enough to build two such railways.

The Government-owned eastern section of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will sweep through the heart of New Brunswick, through the heart of Quebec, through the heart of Ontario, tapping regions hitherto untrodden by man. Might not the building of this railway open up similar mining riches? Or, if not these, there are other sources of wealth in timber and fisheries and farm soils.

The railway will roll back the map of Ontario and Quebec two hundred miles—and these great Provinces, instead of being, as they are now, mere water-side fringes of population and activity, will have breadth as well as length.

In a similar way, the Grand Trunk Pacific will open in the West millions of acres of the choicest wheat land on earth, and will repeat a thousand fold the wonderful story of progress accomplished by the C. P. R., which is, however, only in the beginning of its nation-building work.

Look at what it has done. This year the C.P.R. grew 125 million bushels of wheat and carried it to the distributing point on its way to the British market. Between sixty and seventy-five millions of dollars will come back to put Western farmers on their feet, leave them cash to make them customers of the factories and merchants of Ontario, creating demands upon our industries and giving work and wages to Ontario workingmen.

The C.P.R. has placed a million of population in the West, put millions of acres of savage lands under the plough. It has built villages, towns, cities, and doubled their population. Eight or ten towns and cities in the West more than doubled their population in five years. In ten towns the population in 1901 was 62,000. Five years later—in 1906—their population had grown to 145,000, and they have been growing since at a greater rate.

All these things that the C. P. R. has done will be done in enlarged degree by the Grand Trunk Pacific, while, at the same time, the C. P. R. and the Canadian Northern will be carrying on similar work.

The G.T.P. will create new Provinces in New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario, and a new empire in the West.

Yet the Conservative candidate, Mr. Burnham, with his Little Canadian views, would stand still. We can't afford to stand still. We want a representative who is alive, a doer, not a dreamer; a man who will keep up with the procession, and even spur on a live and progressive Government.

Let the electon size up the candidates. Let him ask himself which will make the better representative; which will be more alive to meet Peterborough's needs; which will exercise more influence in pressing home the need of these needs; in a word, which will be more likely to succeed. There is only one answer, and the answer is not Burnham but STRATTON.

VOTE FOR STRATTON AND PETERBOROUGH'S PROGRESS AND PROSPERITY.

THE SPECTATOR'S VIEW.

(From the New York Sun.)

Since 1900, when Sir Charles Tupper dropped out as an active factor in Canadian politics, the Opposition has been almost nominal. The reasons for this are chiefly personal, rather than partizan. While the Conservatives have laboured under the disadvantage of having no commanding personality among their leaders, the Liberals in Sir Wilfrid Laurier have a statesman who has won FIRST RANK AMONG CANADIAN STATESMEN AND COLONIAL PREMIERS, AND IS ADMITTEDLY A FIGURE IN WORLD POLITICS. The first French-Canadian to achieve the Premiership, he has succeeded in impressing his personality upon his Administration to a degree scarcely equalled, certainly not surpassed, even by Sir John Macdonald in his prime. He has also certain admirable qualities which eminently fit him for Canadian leadership in the days of the unexampled development of the Dominion. His schemes, such as the new Transcontinental Railway, the Hudson's Bay Railway, the development of Canadian waterways, the All-Red line, and British preferential trade, have touched the imagination of his countrymen and filled Canadians with optimism as to the splendid future Canada is entering upon. Erect, lithe and vigorous, despite his sixty-seven years, he is still buoyant and hopeful, and with abundant confidence in the final realization of his dreams of Canada's future.

With such a leader the Liberals face the coming general election in confidence. Their campaign slogan, "Let Laurier Finish His Work," fitly indicates that the Premier and his policies form the overshadowing issue of the present electoral campaign.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Lindsay Press says that "judging from the hot pace Mr. Stratton is setting his opponent in West Peterborough, it looks as if he would Burnham on election day."

A vote for Stratton is a vote for good live government—progress, push, enterprise, and the conditions that will give these effect—peace. A vote for the Conservative candidate is for a standstill or backward policy, Little Canadianism, and strife.

FRIENDLY BIBLE CLASS BANQUET A GREAT SUCCESS

The annual banquet and election of officers of the Friendly Bible Class of George street Methodist church was held Friday night in the church parlours and proved an enjoyable affair. About forty-five were gathered around the tastefully decorated tables which were laden with many good things. The officers elected for the present term were as follows:

Pres.—W. Armstrong.
Vice-Pres.—S. Wade.
Sec.—E. Elcome.
Treas.—J. Sanderson.

Conveners of Committees — Social, W. Metheral; Athletic, W. Pratt; Membership, W. Dartnell; Devotional, E. Sanderson.

After the banquet the following toasts were duly honoured: "The King, The Church," proposed by E. Sanderson, and responded to by Rev. E. A. Pearson.

"The Sunday School," proposed by Geo. Evans, responded to by Mr. S R Armstrong.

"The Friendly Bible Class," proposed by Dr. Middleton and responded to by Wallace Armstrong.

"The Ladies," proposed by W. Dartnell and responded to by Miss Ethel Miller.

A pleasing musical programme contributed largely to the success of the evening. The numbers were as follows:—

Vocal solo—Fred Miles.
Reading—R. J. Soden.
Piano duet—Misses Gumpricht and Sanderson.
Vocal solo—Rev. E. A. Pearson.

The Friendly Bible Class scored a distinct success by the manner in which the banquet was conducted.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S RALLY THE GREATEST OF GRAND WEEK END LIBERAL MEETINGS

A Splendid Forecast of a Splendid Victory---Rousing Speeches ---Solid Unanimity and Enthusiasm That Precedes and Presages a Magnificent Victory

The weekly "rally" of the friends of Hon. J. R. Stratton at the Hunter Street hall on Saturday night was an event in the history of the campaign. If the previous Saturday evening's gathering of the workers in the cause had assumed the proportions of a public meeting, that of last Saturday night was more of the character of a mass meeting of the Peterborough electors. The man who came late was lucky to get standing room and the eager friends of Mr. Stratton, anxious to evince their sincere interest in his cause, crowded the entrance and overflowed in the the street, those in the outskirts good naturedly accepting the post of disadvantage, and joining in the applause that punctuated the utterances of the speakers.

Mr. A. McFarlane took the chair at an early hour, and in a few earnest words voiced the satisfaction which Mr. Stratton's workers had reason to feel with the splendid work of the campaign and at the spirit of unquestionable victory that was in the air. It was really a people's fight and the voice of the people was being heard with no uncertain sound. When it received its full expression at the polls on October 26, it would proclaim the triumphant election of Hon. J. R. Stratton to represent them in the House of Commons at Ottawa. He introduced as the first speaker of the evening, who was the first speaker, said that he had known both the candidates for the past twenty years. He contrasted the progress that each had made in that period of time. He also remembered Peterborough as it was twenty years ago. It had grown into a large and prosperous city, and he knew that Mr. Stratton had contributed in no small degree to its growth and prosperity, whereas he did not think anyone could point to any instance where the Conservative candidate had done anything toward its advancement. He referred to the general growth of Peterborough during the past twelve years, and said that it was the duty of every elector to send a representative to support the Government that had caused its development in every direction. (Applause).

Mr. William Eyres,

Mr. F. D. Kerr.

Mr. Kerr received a hearty welcome and proceeded to express the satisfaction which he felt at the proofs of confidence which had everywhere in West Peterborough been manifested in their candidate, Mr. Stratton, and which presaged at the polls a splendid victory on October 26. He (Mr. Kerr) had just come from a visit to the East riding, and from what he had encountered there, and the evidence he had been able to gather of the sentiments of the people, he felt justified in predicting a majority of at least 200 for Mr. A. E. Tanner, and he felt sure that in the West Riding they would give a majority of over 1,000 for Hon. J. R. Stratton. (Applause). From the backward and discouraging conditions that had in past years hindered its progress, Peterborough had in the past twelve years developed into one of the most prominent manufacturing centres of the Dominion, and its population had grown, by the influence of those factories and owing to the policy of the Government, from 9,000 to 17,000 people. Where did the money come from to accomplish this progress? It came from the crops of the Great West that had been developed by the sagacious policy of the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier (cheers), and there was no doubt that if he were retained at the head of affairs, and Hon. Mr. Stratton sent to Ottawa to look after their interests there were greater things and greater prosperity awaiting their City and County of Peterborough. (Applause). He (the speaker) was a party man, earnestly believing in his party as the best instrument of the country's progress, but he was not so blinded by partisanship as not to be able to recognize merit and to do justice to a public man regardless of his politics. The history of the world taught them that in every great crisis of the advancement of a people, there had always arisen in such an emergency some great leader to lead them on safely out of difficulty and to blaze the way to a greater future. Moses was such a man apointed by providence for a great work for his people on the hour of their extremity. When the welfare of Great Britain seemed about to be overwhelmed with disaster, providence, or destiny, call it what you will, had raised up that great man, William Pitt the younger, to lead the British Empire to victory and progress. (Cheers). In the United States, when brother's hand had been raised against brother, in a strife that nothing but blood would wipe out, there had come forward to the rescue of his country that greatest of all the men of his generation, Abraham Lincoln. (Applause). And in the career of Canada when we were an aggregation of segregated provinces each going its own way, without cohesion or harmony, acting with the other statesmen of his time there had come on the scene Sir John A. Macdonald (applause) and looking back, now when we have outgrown the prejudice of the day and with full acknowledgment to all the public men who had co-operated with him in the early work of confederation, with all his faults and all his mistakes, by common consent Sir John Macdonald was recognized as the great leader of his day in directing and shaping the progress of Canada. (Applause). Sir John had passed away, and after a term, in the hands of weaker and less capable men, we had found a Government that should have been occupied in labouring for the advancement of the country consumed by internal strife among themselves, and the country given over to gloom and depression. Then destiny had raised up for them that great and patriotic pilot Sir Wilfrid Laurier and he had grasped the helm of state and carried them safely and proudly on to greatness and prosperity. (Loud applause). It was this leader, this prince among statesmen, whom they were now asked to overthrow, and he would say if such an unhappy event could be brought about, though he did not believe it was possible, or that it was going to happen, but if it should occur there would not be a man who had lent his vote to that end who would not afterward realize that that was an action that he did not want to remember. (Cheers). Sir Wilfrid Laurier by his incomparable statesmanship had given to Canada a recognized place among the nations, and was laying the foundations of a future prosperity that would ultimately place this country in the front rank of the great communities of the world. And duty and interest alike called upon them to see that the hand of this great statesman was kept upon the helm to uphold the welfare and direct the progress of our common country. (Cheers). He spoke a warm word of friendship for the immigrant from the Old Country, who had come out here to cast in his lot with Canada, and wanted to reach forth a welcoming and a helping hand from the Liberal party to welcome his co-operation in building up and making great this Canada of ours. (Cheers). He felt that in this election the slanders which had been uttered against their tried and trusted friend, Hon. J. R. Stratton would be repelled and repudiated by the people who knew him so well (cheers), and who on October 26, were going to demonstrate their confidence in and affection for him by rolling up a triumphant majority. (Continued applause). And they would administer to Mr. Burnham, and his friends, Roblin, Kendry, and Bradburn, such a rebuke as they would long remember. (Applause).

The chairman then introduced as a speaker, a gentleman who, he said, had been crowded out by the other speakers at their great meeting at the Opera House. (Laughter). They would now be glad to hear from

Mr. Geo. M. Roger.

Mr. Roger said that while he might have been "crowded out" at the Opera House, it had been really no great misfortune for him because the other fellows had had to bear the labours of the day, on the occasion. But he was glad of the splendid success of that demonstration of Peterborough citizens, who had shown unmistakably the sympathy and support which they had for Hon. Mr. Stratton, and their determination to avail themselves of his services in the House of Commons at Ottawa. (Applause). He had felt proud on that occasion to see that Mr. Stratton was able to meet and hold his own against all attacks without bringing in to his aid help from outside the county. Mr. Stratton was making his appeal to the people upon the public questions of the day, in a dignified way, and without resorting to any personal reflection upon his opponent. On the other hand the Opposition had not discussed a single public issue, but were making their fight upon the line of slander and scandal, which he felt the electors of Peterborough would resent and repudiate. (Applause). Mr. Stratton had been brought up in their midst. They all knew him. He had mixed with them in the business and, municipal life and progress of Peterborough, and had filled a large and important place in almost everything that concerned them. He was no obscure character. And in all his activity in their midst, during which all his actions had been open and above board, and known to them all, his opponents could not point to one single wrongful act, or to a single charge upon which he could be condemned. (Applause), and those who were now seeking to belittle him, had not been able to advance one word reflecting upon his business reputation, but resorted to vague imputations and invendo, that would not mislead the voters of Peterborough. In every project that was ever advanced to aid the welfare of city or county, who was the first man whose influence was sought? J. R. Stratton. If there was a subscription to be taken up for any worthy object, who was the first man to be approached? J. R. Stratton. If there was a business enterprise to be set on foot that promised to be of benefit to the community, who was the first man to come forward with his means to help it? J. R. Stratton. He had been one of our most energetic, enterprising and capable citizens, and his loyal public spirit was so known to the people of Peterborough, that it made no difference what misrepresentations were put forward by outside emissaries, or by any party, or paper, or individual, they were going to have J. R. Stratton for their next representative in the House of Commons. (Loud applause). In his whole career he had been in the front rank of our citizens. As our representative for many years in the Legislature of the province, he had rendered faithful and most important service to the constituency. He (Mr. Roger) did not believe in that kind of spirit that sought public position by endeavouring to destroy another man's character. (Applause). And where men were brought in here to attack the character of one of our foremost citizens, a man whom our people delighted to honour, such a course would recoil upon the men who resorted to it. (Applause). There was never a time when broad statesmanship was required in this country more than at the present. With the Great West filling in, and with the boundless opportunities that we enjoyed unfolding before us, he looked forward to see in this Canada of ours a Greater Britain, and perhaps the centre of population of the British Empire found in this Dominion, and we needed to retain the great leader who had brought this country of ours to the threshold of its future development, and who alone of all the public men was qualified to guide us safely to our great destiny. (Applause). No matter what our party, let us rather glory in the achievements of our public men than gloat over their mistakes. Let us stand by the man who in our local affairs has stood by us, and let us follow the lead of the great statesman who has been honoured in London and even in Europe as no other Canadian ever was before. (Applause). Are the Opposition able to offer us men who are capable or qualified to take the places of these men? They know they are not. Yet to qualify a pety spite or a personal ambition they had resorted to a campaign of unexampled scurrility. He had too much confidence in the people of Peterborough to believe that they would countenance that kind of a political campaign. They would show by their votes that that kind of thing must stop. And he would ask every man to do what he could to secure the return of the man who had so long and so well served them, Hon. J. R. Stratton. (Cheers). Mr. Burnham had claimed for himself that he was an honest man, but as had been pointed out by one of their speakers, there was a great majority of our 17,000 residents who possessed that qualification, but that did not render them capable to occupy public position with advantage to the people. Mr. Burnham had had no experience, no training for this mportant work. On the other hand, Mr. Stratton had raised himself from a small beginning among them to fill the highest positions in the province, and he had done so in a manner that was a source of pride to them all. (Cheers). He asked them to rally to Mr. Stratton's support and give him the largest majority he had ever yet received in West Peterborough. (Loud applause).

The chairman said the result would prove that the people of Peterborough would not stand for a campaign of dirt and slander. The microbe of scandal seemed to have bitten the whole Conservative party from Roblin right down to Burnham, and the people would leave them all on October 26, to the gutter to which they had resorted.

Mr. R. R. Hall.

who was warmly greeted, said Mr. Burnham had been this week in the township of Galway, where they were practically all Hon. Mr. Stratton's supporters, from appreciation of what he had done for that district, in the improvement of roads, the construction of bridges and other works, and in the fair and equitable distribution of public funds in their behalf. No man could go in there and say an unkind word of Mr. Stratton without having it vigorously resented. Mr. Burnham, at his opening meeting, where he had brought in his leader, Mr. Borden, had not presented his hearers with one single view upon any public question that he entertained, but had confined his effort to scurrilous slander against his opponent, and this had been enlarged upon in the Review of which he was the editor. But no sooner had he got into Galway than he changed his note and told them that he was not responsible for the personal attack of the Review on Mr. Stratton. He (Mr. Burnham) was no doubt beginning to realize the rising tide of victory, that would be completed by the triumphant election of Mr. Stratton on October 26 (applause), when this campaign of abuse and slander would recoil upon the heads of those who directed, and of those who sought to profit by it. (Cheers). He recounted some of the benefits that had accrued to the country and to the county under the administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Never had the people of this county received so much consideration at the hands of the Government as during the past twelve years, and never had there been more progressive work in their behalf than during the past four years. (Cheers). He quoted statistics proving the wonderful development of Canada, following the policy of enterprise in improvement of transportation facilities under Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He pointed to the million of settlers who had been sent into the Great West to produce the wealth that came back to our factories and gave employment to our labour. He recounted how a $750,000 annual deficit in the Post Office Department had been transformed into a million dollar surplus, by means of which a rural free mail delivery was to be given for the benefit of our neighbours in the townships. To advance the cause of labour they had put an embargo on Chinese labour, and had created a conciliation board that in fifty out of fifty-two strikes had effected a settlement to the benefit of both the mechanic and the manufacturers, and to the great advantage of the public, which always suffered from the effect of these difficulties. They had provided for the safty of life and limb on the railways, among the employees. The character of our Prime Minister was without reproach, and even his bitterest opponent could not deny that the name of Sir Wilfrid Laurier stood to represent and illustrate the highest principle of honour and fair fame. (Cheers.) The Conservative party had gone down into the gutter in pursuit of their policy of slander and defamation and the people of Canada in October 26 would leave them in the gutter. (Loud cheers). He could tell them on good information that their candidate, Mr. Stratton, would come down to Peterborough City on October 26 with at least 500 majority, the battle ground was in this city, and if they took off their coats and performed their duty faithfully, the triumphant election of Hon. Mr. Stratton would follow as surely as night follows day. (Great applause).

Mr. J. J. Hartley

said it needn't be wondered at that, their opponents had resorted to slander and defamation, because there was nothing else left for them to go upon. He referred to a Conservative friend who had told him before the Borden meeting at the Opera House that he would wait to see what was said there before making up his mind. After that meeting he had said that he would have to vote for Hon. Mr. Stratton. (Cheers). There had been complaint made that the Government had spent too much money. He was glad the wise administration of the Government had furnished them money to spend, and glad that they were willing to spend it for the benefit of the workingmen, to whom its outlay went mainly. They had secured $10,000 to be spent in this city, and he would like to see more. He recalled the days when the wages of labour was 20c a day and $1.20 was the highest wage. Bricklayers had worked for $2.00 a day, and their wages in the past twelve years had been increased to $3.00, $4.00, $5.00 and $6.00 a day. And labour in the past season had been paid $2.50 for a day of nine hours. This result following and arising from the policy of the Government of Sir Wilfred Laurier showed them who had their interests most at heart. (Applause). And the people of this city who had reaped the benefit, would show their appreciation of Sir Wilfrid Laurier's work and as surely as the 26th of October came around, they would see Hon. J. R. Stratton the member for West Peterborough. (Loud applause). Who did they offer to take Sir Wilfrid Laurier's place? Mr. Borden, who could not get a seat in Parliament from his own province, and Mr. Foster was also exiled from his province by the people who knew him best. Criticize as much as they pleased, and they could not put a finger upon a single wrong doing of the Government, and they knew, as well as we do, that the Government of Sir Wilfrid was the best that had yet ruled in this Canada of ours. (Applause). They had tried to create scandal about their friend, Mr. Stratton, but they could not put a finger on a single improper act of that gentleman (applause) because it was not there. And their malicious course would make Mr. Stratton more solid with the people he had so long and well represented than ever, and if they could not give him over 1,000 majority, they ought to go out of business. (Loud cheers).

S=end to Ottawa

I=he Ever

Hon. Mr. Stratton.

who next addressed them, was received with an outburst of cheers. He said the most successful meeting which they had held in the Opera House the other evening had amply demonstrated that in this campaign he had the approval of the best citizenship of Peterborough. And he had felt pride in the fact that they were able to present the issues of the day in a way that not anywhere been excelled without going outside our own citizens to find the ability to do it. He had always been opposed to the introduction of outsiders into a local campaign, and he felt more pleased than ever to recognize the ability that we are able to find among our neighbours at home for all the purposes of an election contest. (Applause). He (Mr. Stratton) had always condemned the resort to personalities in an election, and he and his friends in this election had carefully refrained from the introduction of such an unworthy element. He had always desired to conduct his contests so that after an election they could all meet together as good citizens having compon interests, and without hard feelings toward one another personally, on account of anything that might have been said or done during an election. (Applause). He had in this election failed to see where any discussion of a public issue had been presented to the consideration of the electors by his opponents since the contest opened. On our side we had endeavoured to show that as a result of a policy of prudent enterprise and liberal progress, great public works had been constructed without increasing the taxation of the people, and that $121,000,000 had gone to the mechanics and labouring men in the construction of these works. Better accommodation had been provided in the channels of commerce and in the great highways of the nation. The Grand Trunk Pacific railway enterprise was already opening up a new era of progress and development whose vast results it was hardly possible to foresee. People had, perhaps, not given sufficient thought to what had already been accomplished in national advancement and development by the Canadian Pacific, in the direct return given in the increase of employment, the wages of which went into direct and immediate circulation. And when all the railway work now under way, and the improvements that were arranged for in the great waterways of the country were brought to completion there would be an enormous expansion to the opportunities of labour that would be for the good of all. (Applause). And when these enterprises were completed, there would be created hundreds of thousands of new positions, for engineers, firemen, conductors, agents, clerks, and an infinite variety of occupations, all of which would open up a new era of prosperity for labour of all kinds. (Cheers). Referring to a number of local improvements that had benefited us he might say that our county was not by any means contented with what it had gotten. We had already received the benefit, through having a Liberal representative, of the Bensfort bridge, docks and wharf along the river front, wharf at Lock street and at Wolfe street, docks at Lakefield, the new steel bridge at Young's Point, replacing wooden structure which had so much interferred with traffic while boats were being locked through; the new wharf at Burleigh Falls, the new concrete dam and permanent cement bridge at Buckhorn; the bridge at Gannon's Narrow, making a shorter route by 18 or 20 miles for farmers of Harvey in reaching the business men of Peterborough; providing for the permanent maintenance of the Chemong, Pigeon Creek and Bobcaygen bridges, and other works of minor importance. And we should not forget the immense advantage to the business interests of Peterborough and to our manufacturers, and the convenience to the people, of the local mail delivery which we now enjoy, which has given us a speedy delivery of all local letters at the one cent rate. (Applause). We had here the armory that had been granted by the efforts of Mr. Hall and the friendly concern of the Government, by which $10,000 was being expended, but we wanted more than that. He wanted to see that, when completed, it was properly equipped for the use of our regiment. He wanted to see the river dredged, so that we might have wharves at the foot of Simcoe and Hunter streets, and he hoped to see the land built up by river improvements, occupied by new manufacturing establishments, and there were other advantages that an energetic member would be in a position to press upon the attention of the Government, and that would occupy his care when he went to Ottawa. (Cheers). They could not help but recognize that the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier had extended greater consideration to the interests of Peterborough county and city than all the Governments that had ever preceded it. Short-sighted and narrow-minded men complained that the Government spent money. As Josh Billings had said: "Money is like manure; its no use until it's spread." (Laughter and applause). What they wanted was to see as liberal expenditure of money as was practicable, so long as it was properly expended, upon public works that would be of benefit to the country. When the works now nearing completion, including the Trent Valley Canal, were in operation, we would be here in Peterborough placed in the same position of advantage that was now enjoyed by such manufacturing centres as Niagara Falls, Welland, Thorold and Hamilton, as concerned cheapness of material and facilities for distribution, and would be able to offer to manufacturing enterprise the same advantages as any other point in Ontario. We could not do it now, but it was coming in the near future as the result of the policy of the Government. He expected in the future that this county would obtain what it is fairly entitled to from the Government, as it had in a measure during the past twelve years, but that could only be ensured by the agency of an active and persistent member, who could bring to bear upon the departments at Ottawa some influence, personal or political. Did it not appeal to them that during the next four years, since there was no possible question that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would be continued in office, it would be better for their interests to be represented by a supporter of the Government? (Applause). The meetings which he had held throughout the consituency in the present contest were the largest and most successful he had ever held, and he could tell them that it was within the mark to ensure them that he would come to the City of Peterborough with more than 500 majority (cheers), and if they would give him 500 in the city he would appreciate it, but he would not feel contented with anything less. (Loud cheers). Let the Government be convinced that their liberality to this county had been appreciated by its citizens, and it would strengthen the efforts of their representative, if he were in harmony with the administration, to secure new benefits to help in promoting their prosperity. (Cheers). Let them put their shoulders to the wheel with more energy than than they had even used before; let them see that all the votes were got out, and if they were, he (Mr. Stratton), was willing to take his chances as to how they would mark their ballots. (Cheers). He hoped that on the evening of October 26, he would see the same faces that were before him, and those of many others of his friends, taking in the returns in the Dominion and in Peterborough and rejoicing in the victory of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and in the election of their humble servant. (Prolonged applause).

The meeting closed with three cheers for their candidate, and coming mimber for West Peterborough, and three loyal cheers for the King.

OLD VILLAGE LOCKUP.

Quaint Structures For Confinement of Rogues and Vagabonds.

Several villages in the midlands possess in more or less ruined state their old parish lockups, commonly known as roundhouses.

Breedon, a Leicestershire village, close to the South Derbyshire border, possesses its "lockup," a quaint stone building eighteen feet high and eight feet six inches diameter inside. The walls are fifteen inches thick. The door is of about oak, studded with many large-iron nails.

The lock is very strong, and the keyhole is covered with an iron plate, which itself has to be unlocked by a spanner before the door key can be inserted. Ventilation is afforded by small holes punched in an iron plate, six inches by seven, fixed in the center of the door. There is no window.

At Worthington, the next village to Breedon, the old lockup is a seven sided brick building, badly in need of restoration, an opportunity for archaeologists which it is hoped will not be missed. Both at Breedon and Worthington these diminutive disused prisons are on the roadside adjacent to the pound, or pinfold, so that the constable had conveniently side by side the strayed cattle and any human rogues or vagabonds he had charge of. There are similar old lockups at Smisby and Ticknall, two villages close to Leicestershire.—Sheffield (England) Telegraph.

BLUSH IF YOU CAN.

It Is a Sign of an Active Brain, Declares a Scientist.

Sir Arthur Mitchell, K. C. B., of Edinburgh, who knows much that is strange about dreams, laughter and other commonplace human characteristics, has advanced the consoling theory that blushing is an achievement of which every one who can blush should be proud.

He says it requires brains to blush. Idiots cannot blush; neither can animals. Sir Arthur calls attention to the fact that tiny infants do not blush, although they learn to at an early age—just as soon, in fact, as the brain begins to exercise its functions. In blushing, he says, the mind always must be affected. It is always and only a bodily expression of a mental state.

It is a natural thing for a blusher to say that he had tried not to blush. No individual blushes of his own free will. The blush arises without call instantaneously and vanishes almost as quickly. Neither for its coming nor its going is there any exercise of volition. It is controlled, Sir Arthur says, solely by the brain and is a positive sign that there is an active brain there.

Boissier's High Priced Autograph.

A good Boissier-Renan anecdote is told by a French paper. One day Boissier arrived at Renan's home with a beaming face, saying: "Now I'll tell you a piece of news that will humiliate you. My autograph has fetched a higher price than yours." "That does not surprise me," Renan said serenely. "And where did you hear this?" It then turned out that at an auction a day or two before a Renan autograph had been sold for 3 francs and a Boissier for 5. "Well," Renan went on, "now let me tell you the reason. There were three faults in the spelling of your letter, which is now lying here on my writing table. A friend of mine was at the auction and made a higher bid for the letter after noticing the artificial gems that adorned your press. He brought it to me in order that I might return it to you instead of reaching the public, which might get a bad impression of the accomplishments of members of the French academy."

Got Most It.

A primary teacher was preparing to her class selections from the story of Hiawatha preparatory to taking up the "Hiawatha Primer." The story was prefaced by a few remarks in regard to the poet and his love for children. In reviewing the lesson she asked:

"How many remember the name of the poet who wrote this story?"

Up went many hands.

"You may tell us, Sarah," added the teacher, noticing the little one wildly waving her hand in her intense eagerness to respond.

"Mr. Longlegs," said the child, with evident pride.—Lippincott's.

A Quaint Critic.

A noted woman teacher once spoke before a class of school children on literature. She had spent a week writing the speech. She read it to the little ones, as she hoped, with great success, but the next day she heard that a boy on being asked by his mother what had happened at the school replied carelessly:

"Oh, nothing much, except that a lady talked to herself on a piece of paper."

Very Clever.

They tell a story in London of a certain peer who had never before shown the slightest interest in horse racing that he surprised a young man of his acquaintance by asking him apropos of nothing which horse had won the Derby. The young man told him. "That was very clever of him," replied the peer. "Was it the first time he tried it?" The young man stared, but said "Yes." "Then I call it very clever of him," replied the noble but inconspicuous sportsman, "to win the Derby the first time he tried for it."

JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS.

The Way He Came to Write His "Uncle Remus" Stories.

Many great works of genius, as is well known, have been produced by accident, and an author is seldom the best judge of his own work. When Joel Chandler Harris wrote the first of his "Uncle Remus" stories and presented it for publication he did so with a hundred misgivings. He was not sure that his venture in negro folklore would prove successful. He could not know that they would bring him worldwide fame.

At the time described Mr. Harris was a young man of twenty-eight, employed on the Atlanta Constitution. Sam W. Small, afterward a revivalist, who had been writing for the same paper a popular column of negro story and dialect, had just resigned from the staff. The managing editor of the Constitution, wishing to continue the feature, said to Harris one day: "Joel, it seems to me you could do that sort of thing to a tee. See if you can't turn in something tonight."

The young writer's memory flitted back to his early days on a plantation. All the quaint settings of negro life—the little cabins, the fiddling darkies, the wrinkled story teller, the black "mammies," the noisy corn shuckings, the bobtailed rabbits disappearing along the road—came hurrying from the past. Late that afternoon he turned in his copy. The next day his reputation was made.—Current Literature.

TIPPING IN BOHEMIA.

Even the Street Car Conductor Expects His Gratuity.

In the city of Prague a tip to the tramway conductor is considered de rigueur. The orthodox tip consists of but 2 heller, or two-tenths of a penny, yet as "strap hanging" is allowed for in considering the carrying capacity of the car the conductors should have got a goodly pocketful of the minimum coin by each day's end.

Tipping, it was ascertained in another of Bohemia's larger towns, is so fully recognized that the head waiter at a cafe pays a rent for his post, supplies all the journals for the coffee room and looks after the other waiters and then makes an income larger than that of a university professor, all out of his tips.

After supper at one of the delightful open air cafes of the capital it was found that approximately one should give a half krone (fivepence) to the head waiter who took payment, twopence to the undervaiter who brought the viands and a halfpenny to the boy who brought—and even brought again as one glass was finished—the beer.—London Chronicle.

Don't Say Cologne.

She sprinkled eau de cologne liberally in the bath of pink marble. "It is this perfume," she said learnedly, "which makes us think that the town of Cologne must be scented. Johann Maria Farina invented 200 years ago in Cologne a perfume made of the oils of neroli, citron, bergamot, orange and rosemary. He called the perfume after his city, eau de Cologne—water of Cologne. By the same token, had he been a Londoner, he'd have called it eau de London. In that case the illiterate would now think London a scented city, and instead of saying correctly, 'Put a few drops of perfume on my handkerchief,' they would say, 'Put a few drops of London on it.' In fact, it is a very vulgar and silly error to call all perfumes cologne. You might as well call them Chicago or Denver."

No Satisfaction.

The Editor—Eh, what's wrong?

The Correspondent—In that letter of mine that you printed this morning several gross errors were permitted to appear. Look at this. I wrote "Nobody has any desire to impeach the rugged quality of Mr. Skimmerhorn's honesty," and you turned "honesty" into "hosiery." Look at it!

"I see it. And, what's more, I see nothing wrong about it. Anything else?"

"Yes, here's another. This is what I wrote: 'Mr. Skimmerhorn's ripe experience and his respect for honor must not be forgotten.' And you speak here of his 'tripe experience' and his 'respect for Homer.'"

"Yes, that's so. And they're both highly commendable virtues. Good morning, sir."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Hurry Fad.

"Mr. Cleveland," said a Princeton lecturer, "had little sympathy with the rush and hurry that the American business man so complacently affects—no sympathy with train and boat dictation, with the lunch table telephone, the letter phonograph and the other bluffs.

"'Don't rush so,' Mr. Cleveland once said to me. 'Lightning might do a great deal more if it wasn't always in such an awful hurry.'"

The More Notable.

"Which would you call more notable, the prima donna's debut or her farewell?"

"Her farewell. Wouldn't you?"

"Don't know that I would. She can make but one debut."

Hon. J. R. Stratton Lays Corner Stone Of New Park Street Baptist Church On Saturday Afternoon

Impressive Ceremony Witnessed by Large Gathering of People —An Epoch - Marking Event— Many Clergymen Present

ADDRESSES OF THE DAY

By the laying of the corner stone of the new Park Street Baptist Church on Saturday afternoon a record was surely established in the church history of this city. Only a week ago, on Saturday, October 10, a large gathering of people of almost all denominations witnessed the ceremony of the laying of the corner stone of the new St. James' (Methodist) church on the recently opened extension of Aylmer street. The similar function in connection with Park street Baptist Church was equally successful and was blessed by beautiful October weather. It was an ideal day for such an affair and resulted in a splendid attendance to witness and assist in the ceremony. The late summer sun shone with a gentle warmth that was refreshing and invigorating while the mellow redolence of autumn filled the air. A more delightful and suitable day could scarcely have been chosen.

The new Baptist church for the South Ward is being erected practically on the same ground as the former structure which has been moved across the street to make way for the edifice of which the foundation is now complete. The lot is at the junction of Stewart and Park streets and is practically the central point of the South Ward as it is at present.

The Opening Exercises

A platform had been erected for the occasion, adjacent to the corner where the stone was to be laid and there were assembled a large representation of the clergymen of the city; Hon. J R Stratton, and the members of the Building Committee of the Church. Rev. Mr. Riddiford, the pastor of Park street church, acted as Master of Ceremonies in a most acceptable manner. Rev. J G Potter opened the service by reading a passage from Scripture after which Rev. Mr. Bonner of Gilmour Memorial church offered up prayer.

Rev. Mr. Riddiford then addressed the people, stating that it was because we believe Jesus Christ to be the only solution of all the problems of this work-a-day world that we need His presence with us at all times and hence the erection of churches to propogate the work. He instituted.

History of Baptist Church

The work of the Baptist denomination in Peterborough was begun in 1846 with organization of the Murray street Baptist church. In 1858 a mission was opened on Dalhousie street and in 1895 the Park street Baptist church was organized and Rev. Mr. Riddiford remarked "It has always been self-supporting.' Some five years ago a movement was started to erect a new edifice but unforeseen impediments arose stopping its advance for the time being. Rev. A H Brace by a systematic canvas received the necessary encouragement to warrant the commencement of the work. On his departure for another field there was a momentary halt but new life has been put into the movement and the work is now well under way.

Reasons for New Church

Rev. Mr. Riddiford dwelt on the reasons for a new structure, enumerating them as follows: First, because God's work demands it; in the second place, because we need it to do better work for God, and thirdly, because this flourishing city of Peterborough needs it as an additional asset to her moral and spiritual welfare." One of the main duties of Christianity, he said, is to build up our cities that they may be like the Eternal City of God. To do this requires Christian men, and these we are to obtain from our cities.

Rev. Mr. Riddiford concluded by saying, "Our great reason for erecting this church is that we, as Baptists, in this southern portion of the city, do our share in moulding the spiritual life of it so that every man who ever lives within our borders shall have reason to say, 'The lines have fallen unto us in pleasant places, and we have a goodly heritage.'"

Corner Stone Laid

The pastor called upon the Hon. J. R. Stratton to perform the actual ceremony of guiding the corner stone into its allotted place and pronouncing it truly laid. Mr. Stratton was first presented with a beautifully engraved memorial trowel by little Wilton Tranter. The stone was lowered into its position and declared well and truly laid. Afterwards a collection was taken up, amounting to over $400.

Mr. Strattons Address

Rev. Mr. Riddiford then called upon Mr. Stratton to speak to the people, and as the latter advanced to the front of the platform he was presented with a handsome bouquet by Miss Reenie Johnston, who received in return the usual courtesy.

Mr. Stratton said that for several reasons it gave him much pleasure to be present, first, to join in an occasion which was calculated to promote the highest interests of a part of the city which had a warm place in his affections, where he had resided for a quarter of a century. The laying of a corner stone of a new church was taking part in the highest form of civilization because all the morality, all the progress, all the culture, and all the civil and religious liberty of the world were founded upon the corner stone of Christianity. He had been a symbolic Mason for many years. It was some thirty years since he had been engaged in practical masonry, such as they had witnessed to-day. When he lived first in Number One Ward, there was just one church then completed, the Charlotte Street Methodist Church. Since then several new churches had been dedicated, and at the present time three new churches were under construction and one (All Saints) in contemplation, and a contemplated enlargement of another.

The growth of Number One Ward had been very great. Although it had expanded largely materially, it was also a credit to the moral sense of the ward, that while they thrived in material matters theyy had not forgotten the higher things. He congratulated the Baptists upon their devotion and enterprise. They had forced this new church themselves. Their growth was forced growth in that sense. The Baptists were first established in Peterborough, it had been stated, in 1846. Half a century later, in 1895, they established a new church on Park street. It was always self-sustaining. It never was a mission, although it had a mission to perform and had nobly fulfilled it. The old church was built in 1896, and was afterwards enlarged. It had been enlarged until there was no more ground for enlargement. This new church, he hoped, would meet with the expectations of its founders and builders. He thanked the committee for the honour they had conferred upon him that day, and he hoped that they would find that the corner stone had been well and truly laid.

Other Speakers

Rev. Mr. Riddiford read letters of regret from Rev. Mr. Trumpour, of All Saints' Church, and Mayor Rush. Rev. Mr. Keith, president of the Ministerial Association, on being asked to give an address, said he was pleased to be able to convey to the congregation of Park Street Church the congratulations of Knox Church on the erection of the new church. Much of the credit was due to Rev. A. H. Brace, who had seen the needs and worked hard to provide a better building. However, it was reserved to Mr. Riddiford to witness the actual construction. Rev. Mr. Keith said he hoped the congregation would enjoy great blessings and that many temples of God would be erected in the new church. The other speakers were Rev. Mr. Manning, Rev. E. A. Pearson, Mr. Hazzard of the Y.M.C.A., Rev. J. G. Potter and Rev. J. R. Webb. Mr. Jones, of Lakefield, pronounced the benediction.

The members of the building committee, who have been instrumental in helping the work along, are Rev. W. C. Riddiford, Messrs. T. G. Gillespie, W. C. Barrie, Harold Jewitt, R. F. Bunting, D. Tranter, W. Kempt, Henry Cross, Geo. Sloan, Thos. Eakins, Jos. Johnston, Geo. Haywood, and Lorne Hicks. The trustees of Park Street Church are Mr. W. Kempt, T. G. Gillespie, R. F. Bunting, F. E. Hunt and Thos. Eakins.

BIBLE CLASS MAKES A PRESENTATION

Mr. A. C. Hawley Kindly Remembered by His Classmates of the Charlotte Street Methodist Church

On Sunday in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church, an interesting event took place in connection with Mr. Isaac Richardson's Bible Class. Mr. A. C. Hawley, who has been the assistant teacher of the class, was presented with the following address prior to his departure to the North-West. The class could not allow the occasion to pass without expressing their recognition of Mr. Hawley's devoted service which has been so faithfully rendered. The following is the address:—

Dear Brother Hawley,—It is with feelings of regret we learn that you are about to leave us for the great North-West, where you intend to make your future home. We, as a class, will miss you very much.

We have always found you to be of sterling worth as assistant class leader; your constant attendance, earnest and faithful exhortations, your watchful care and sympathy over every individual member, your life inside and outside of the class, coupled with a rich Christian experience, unwavering fidelity to the truth as it is in Jesus will long be remembered.

Also Sister Hawley's clear testimony of a hope which is the earnest of that "hope, blooming with immortality and eternal life," has frequently brought fresh inspiration to some discouraged souls, and stimulated the strong to greater endeavour.

Please accept this umbrella as a small token of our appreciation for service so faithfully and efficiently rendered. May you long be spared to testify to the brethren and sisters of the Methodist class meeting the efficacy of the blood of Christ to cleanse from all sin, and may the God of all grace guide you through life's journey and lead you safe to the great meeting above.

Signed on behalf of the class,
JOSEPH BATTEN,
JOHN ELLIOTT,
ISAAC RICHARDSON.

She will be pleased to receive pupils at the above address for instruction in any of the above branches. mws

MISERY IN STOMACH WILL VANISH

Your Stomach Trouble Will Be Cured Before You Realize It

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach, headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure the worst case of dyspepsia, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve a sour stomach or indigestion in five minutes. Get a case now and eat one Triangule after your next meal. They are harmless and taste like candy, though each contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a hearty, healthy appetite; but, what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach prescription, too, if you ever have indigestion or gastritis or any other stomach misery, and eat just one Triangule of Diapepsin.

Many Attended Mass Meetings In The Opera House Yesterday

Addresses by Rev. James Lynch, Mrs. Owen Hitchcock and Rev. Ben H. James – Splendid Musical Programme

INTERESTED IN TEMPERANCE

The Grand Opera House, perhaps, never before held such a crowd as assembled there on Sunday night to listen to the address by the Rev. Ben. Spence, of Toronto under the auspices of the City Temperance and Moral Reform League. The afternoon mass meeting at 4.15 was also very largely attended.

The Salvation Army Band discoursed Sacred music and a chorus choir under the direction of Mr. W J McCann, assisted by Mr. J C Miller as cornetist increased the interest in the musical service and Mr. Gordon Wright sang. A ladies' quartette consisting of Miss Reesor, Miss Chasty, Mrs. Rehill and Miss Lean was another splendid portion of the musical programme. The addresses were of a forceful and interesting character as all the speakers are expert platform workers.

In the evening there was a short musical programme. Mr. Percy Mulbern, the boy soprano, sang delightfully "Tell Mother I'll be There." Mr. Spence gave the address illustrated by new stereopticon views presented by Mr. Dyer, of Toronto. Mr. Spence gave statistics showing the advances made by the temperance workers in the United States in regard to local option and also the area in Ontario under the same law. His remarks were greeted with applause by the large audience on various occasions.

The pictures thrown on the canvas were cartoons illustrating the artist's views of the evils caused by the saloons. Mr. Spence explained each as they appeared on the screen.

Opening Meeting Of T.A.S. Ladies' Literary Society

Address by Rev. Dr. O'Brien on The Benefits of the Society

FINE MUSICAL PROGRAMME

The first regular meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S. was held on Friday in the Society's Assembly Hall, and a large and interested audience was present. Miss Fanny Holmes occupied the chair and presented the following programme:

Instrumental duet—Miss H. Pearce and Miss M. Gorman.
Vocal solo—Mr. Jos. Mercier.
Recitation—Miss Carrie White.
Address—Rev. Dr. O'Brien.
Recitation—Miss Maggie Derocher.
Instrumental duet—Misses K. O'Brien and B. Giroux.

The feature of the evening was Rev. Dr. O'Brien's address. He reviewed briefly the different departments of St. Peter's T. A. S., and their growth since the society's organization, and expressed his satisfaction and approval of the intense interest taken in this particular department, the Literary Society. It reflected great credit not only upon those who took part but also upon those who manifested a responsive spirit towards the efforts of the Literary Society.

The aims of the society were manifold, and the results which it tried to bring about were directly connected with the home. One aim was an educational one, and the speaker took up two subjects bearing upon the broad question of education — one was reading and the other was the correct use of the English language. Under the first heading he urged the members to read good literature, to be choice in their selection of books, and when they did read, to have some definite aim in view which they wished to acquire. He advised them not to read merely to pass away the time, and pointed out the influence which light literature had upon the home. The reading of such literature was a loss of time, and consequently an abuse of one of God's greatest gifts. One of the benefits to be derived from reading good literature was a knowledge of good English, and Rev. Dr. O'Brien pointed out the prevalency now-a-days among even educated classes to use slovenly English. The language used by anyone was a very fair index to his education and he urged the members to use every precaution to preserve a thoroughly choice standard of speech.

The speaker concluded by wishing the Literary Society every success, and said he thought the interest which has been manifested every year in this connection, and the very fact that the society was just beginning its ninth year, spoke volumes for their efforts in behalf of literature.

The next literary meeting will be held on Friday evening, October 30th, when a paper will be read by Miss Aileen Coughlin.

CONSULT OUR OPTICIAN

The Eye is such a delicate organ that it should never be trifled with. This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

Many opticians take half a dozen or more correspondent courses costing from $7.50 to $25. With this limited knowledge it is little wonder that many are wearing glasses that do not suit them—others that do not require them.

If you have eye-trouble you should consult an optician who has a thorough knowledge of every branch of the optical business. Such a man is our Mr. Taylor.

RESTORED TO HEALTH BY VINOL.

"I am very much pleased with what Vinol has done for my little girl. She had no appetite whatever. My druggist advised us to try Vinol and we did so. Her appetite has been good ever since taking Vinol, and it has built her up in every way." Mrs. W. H. Palmer, Madoc, Ont.

This is because Vinol is a genuine tonic and body-builder, which contains peptonate of iron together with every one of the body-building, medicinal elements of cod liver oil but without one drop of oil to upset the stomach and retard its work. Vinol acts directly on the stomach, creates a healthy appetite and enables the digestive organs to obtain the necessary elements from the food eaten to make rich, red blood, healthy flesh and muscle tissue and create strength.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—It is not fair not to give the name of the girl who has been stealing the candies. There are English girls in the town who would not do such things.

AN ENGLISH GIRL.

Peterborough, Oct. 17, 1908.

NOTE — The Examiner did not mention that the girl is of English descent and it is not known that she is.

The plan for Mr. John Griffith in "Othello" opened with a rush this morning. Those who have not yet marked their seats would do well to do so as early as possible, as a full house is expected.

YOU SHOULD SERIOUSLY CONSIDER

The Life Insurance proposition because it is of the utmost importance to everyone. Life is short and accidents are common. We may be for years without meeting danger, yet our turn is likely to come at any time. Best to be provided against mishaps and have one's family protected against poverty in case we should be suddenly snatched away. We have some very liberal propositions to offer you in gilt-edged policies, and our results on matured policies have seldom been equalled.

T.A.S. Athletic Club's Team Lost; Were Beaten In Toronto Saturday; Local Men Were Not In Shap

Were Defeated by 30 Points to 0 —Referee Wood Was Some Bad —Training and Condition Told in the Result

T.A.A.C. HAVE GOOD TEAM

Toronto, Oct. 17.—T.A.A.C., 30; Peterborough T.A.S.A.C., 0, gives the result, but scarcely the right impression of the first senior O.R.F.U. game played at Rosedale grounds this afternoon. True, the better conditioned and better trained Toronto team had it over the visitors all the way, but the game was never as one sided as the score would indicate. Two of the T.A.A.C.'s tries came as the result of forward passes, to which Referee Dr. Wood, the most prominent figure in the T.A.A.C., was apparently blind, and when Deanard, of the T.A.S., protested, he was penalized for ten minutes. Twice the T. A.A.C. wings broke through the line and batted the ball forward out of the hands of the Peterborough backs and a try followed on each occasion. Again Fitzpatrick was tackled outside his own line and cried "held," but two of the T.A.A.C. wings dragged him over and the referee awarded them a safety touch.

Peterborough's lack of practice was painfully in evidence, and further handicapped as they were by the fact that several of the team's players could not get away, the team was at a decided disadvantage. At that there were times when they had T.A.A.C. on the run, but a fumble always came when they were within scoring range and the opportunity was lost. Behind the line the T.A.S. had to depend on individuals efforts and kicking, and this was not good enough to run against a well trained, fairly fast team as are the T.A.A.C. The boys stuck at it until the last minute, however, and although they were not in condition, they held on to the end.

The T.A.A.C have a well balanced team, with a splendid wing line and a back division that is sure, at least, if they are not especially fast. They are not world beaters by any means, but they played the game for all that was in it, and are in grand shape, sleeping out at the grounds and practising every morning before going to work. It was no wonder that Peterborough, with some of their men out for the first time this season, could not hold them, although as has been said, they gave them a far better game—that is evident on the surface and given by the score.

There was a fair crowd present at the game and a good many Peterborough rooters were in the crowd, giving the boys every encouragement possible. Among those on hand were "Dick" Baker, Earle Weller, Gordon Cox, Herb Wood, Harry Halpin, John Mann, and R. L. Dobbin.

Allan Campbell, son of Mr. Peter Campbell, manager of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Toronto, played quarter for the victors and put up a fine game, bucking over for several tries and tackling and carrying the ball well. Len Morrison, at full back; played a splendid game, and Mara and Guy Clarkson shone on the wing line, the latter's tackling being especially noticeable.

There were no particular stars on the Peterborough team. No one was in condition, and the lack of practise resulted in a demoralized team, especially on the back division, where fumbles cost much ground. The wing line did good work, but their condition did not allow them to do much following up. The tackling of Lundy, Hal land Davidson were bright features.

The T.A.A.C. are a gentlemanly clean bunch of players, about the finest that the Petes have ever encountered, and they have nothing but words of praise to say of their treatment.

The teams lined up as follows:

Toronto A.A.C.	Peterborough
Back
Morrison	Crean
Halves
Clarke	Fitzpatrick
Jones	Quinlan
Grant	Cr
Quarter
Campbell	Lun
Scrimmage
Robertson	Deanard
Nasmith	Eccleston
Mack	Gr
Wings
Crooks	O'Br
Mara	Carm
G. Clarkson	O'Con
Holden	Dick
Sherriff	David
Sale	H

Referee—Dr. W. G. Wood. Umpire—W. J. Slee.

The Toronto Star describes the play as follows:

First Quarter

Peterborough won the toss and kicked with the sun at their back. After an exchange of punts, Morrison failed at a drop kick and Peterborough got the ball 30 yards out. Nasmith stole the ball in scrimmage and made a 15-yard gain, and Mack bucked through for five more, Lundy making a fine tackle. Morrison almost got over on an end run, and finally Campbell was rammed over for a buck for the first touchdown, which Jones failed to convert. Score—T.A.A.C. 5, Peterborough 0.

Quinlan and Morrison exchanged punts, the Toronto man gaining. Lundy was injured in a tackle and there was a delay. Clarke ran Quinlan's punt back 20 yards by a dodging run. Fitzpatrick lost the ball when Guy Clarkson nailed him in the legs. Mara picked it up and got away for a run, but was caught before he could get over the line. Quarter time was called with the ball on the Peterborough goal line, and the score was, T.A.A.C. 5, Peterborough 0.

Second Quarter

Clarke made a good catch of Quinlan's kick-off, and when Fitzpatrick made a muff of the return, Crooks, Mara and Sale got away for a long run. On the first down Quinlan broke away for a nice run. With

HURTUBISE LOST MATCH TO CONKLE'S "UNKNOWN" IN STRAIGHT FALLS ON SATURDAY

The result of Eugene Hurtubise's match in Hamilton on Saturday night proved to be a surprise to local fans, who figured that he would beat Conkle's man, whoever he might prove to be. The "unknown," however, who proved to be Charlie Kiser, of Auburn, N.Y. succeeded in turning the trick on the local boy and won the match in straight falls, getting the first in 28 minutes and the second in 8 minutes. Kiser is a well known wrestler on the other side, winning most of his laurels as a welter weight, although he is much heavier now, according to Peterborough men who saw the match, and who estimate his weight at 170 pounds. Kiser is a clever, fast wrestler, who uses his legs with lightning speed and who has the science of the game at his finger tips. Hurtubise was in fine shape, but as he remarked to the Examiner he could not seem to get going at all. Kiser got the first fall in 28 minutes with a scissors hold and arm hold, and the second in 8 minutes with a crotch and arm hold. The match was a fine exhibition and was greatly enjoyed by the crowd which was not large.

BOWLING TOURNAMENT TO BE CONTINUED TO-MORROW NIGHT

It has been decided to continue the Ten Pin Tournament at the P. B. C. alleys on Tuesday night, instead of this evening as originally intended. There are three teams still left in the running for first prize, viz: Munro's Colts, the General Electric Five, and Hemstead's United. Two of these will play off on Tuesday night, the team drawing the bye to meet the winner on Thursday evening in the finals. The team losing to-morrow night will meet Baker, McCarroll or Cairns on Wednesday night in the struggle for third money.

There is at present a movement afoot to organize a three man team league, and active steps will be taken in this direction as soon as the tournament is over. The teams in Toronto and other Canadian cities consist of five men, but it has been found in Chicago and other American cities that the three man variety obviates congestion and confusion on the alleys and the tendency to reduce the teams is becoming general. Peterborough, however, will be the first Canadian city to try the experiment, and it gives every indication of proving a success, the idea having already received the enthusiastic endorsement of a large number of the bowling fraternity.

Two Fast Junior League Games; P.C.I. And Rough Riders Victors

Two fine games were seen at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon when the Collegiate Institute defeated the Y.M.C.A. by 16—0, and the Rough Riders trimmed the T.A.S. A.C. 9—5in junior city league fixtures. The youngsters played fine Rugby and the crowd was delighted with the form shown. There is an abundance of material in sight for future senior teams in Peterborough.

The well trained Collegiate Institute team put it over the heavier "Y" team in a manner that was unexpected, except by those who have seen Dr. McPherson's protegés at work during the past week. They pulled off trick plays with a speed and sureness that dazzled their opponents by their methods. The "Y" had little or no team work and their tackling lacked the deadly accuracy of the grappling of the victors. Fortye dropped a beautiful goal, and the Collegiate also scored two tries, while their opponents were unable to score.

Following is the line-up:

Collegiate Institute.	Y.M.C.A.
Backs.
Fortye	Munro
Halves.
Gibson	Wade
Meldrum	Seymour
Rankin	Ray
Quarters.
Geale	Ackerman

Layfield	Haskill
Leahy	Reid
Quinlan	Turner
Wings.
Monorgan	Godfrey
Giroux	Elliott
Hall	Long
Anderson	Wilmot
	Hillier
	Latimer

The second game was a hard fought one, the Rough Riders managing to pull off a victory by the score of 9—5. The T.A.S. A.C. showed lack of practice and had no team play. Larkins at centre half punted well and the wing line followed up well but the team play of the Rough Riders was too much for them. The game was a good exhibition. The T.A.S. scored their five points just a few minutes before time was called, Denoon getting a touch down. They were short several players, Davidson who was with the seniors in Toronto and Craig who was unable to get away.

The teams were:

T.A.S. A.C.	Rough Riders.
Backs.
O'Donnell	Laing
Halves.
Larkins	Cahill

WORDS OF WISDOM

DISINTERESTED ADVICE FROM A GENTLEMAN WHOSE INTEREST IN THE WELFARE OF PETERBOROUGH WILL BE DOUBTED BY NONE

HON. SENATOR GEORGE A. COX, in a brief and earnest address to the electors in the Opera House on Thursday, October 15th, expressed the following sentiments which are well worthy of the serious consideration of every voter of Peterborough who feels a sincere interest in the welfare and progress of this city and county:

"I have simply come here as an old resident of the County of Peterborough, and I am very thankful to Mr. Stratton for inviting me to be present to-night. I am always proud to be recognized as a citizen of Peterborough, as for the last fifty years I have been doing what little I could to build up the town, and I am as anxious to-day as I ever was to assist in the advancement of Peterborough. It is because of this fact that I am here to ask you to send to Ottawa the very best man to assist in doing what would be best for the constituency. I have known Mr. Stratton all his life and I have known his opponent for the same time. If I had to select the editor of a monthly magazine I would think that Mr. Burnham would be a competent careful, man, but I do not think he would be a good representative for you in Ottawa. I am saying that to you as Conservatives as well as Reformers. What we want is a representative who will build up the community. I ask you if the town has not prospered to a greater extent under Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his associates than it ever had before. I am sure that you will all admit that the prosperity of the country is greater than it ever has been. Then why make a change? You would not want to change the present administration for the one that would succeed if the present opposition came into power. You take my advice and send to Ottawa the Hon. Mr. Stratton. I have no ulterior motive. I desire the prosperity of this county. I wish to see in power an administration of progress, an administration strong, able and successful in forwarding the interests of the county and of the Dominion, and I feel that it would be a very great mistake for the people of Canada to make a mistake at the present time. I have had very great opportunities of judging. I have been discussing matters of public import day in and day out in Ottawa. I know both sides of the House, and I know that there is no more comparison whatever between the party in power and the party who desire to take up the reins of office, than there is between Mr. Stratton and Mr. Burnham. I earnestly hope that you will do yourself the the honour and privilege of sending to Ottawa a man who you know will look after the interests of Peterborough. I am satisfied that Mr. Stratton will on this, as he has on every other occasion, receive a great independent Conservative vote of those who desire the prosperity and progress of their native city above their political leanings, and on that account I am sure that Mr. Stratton will be returned by a good large majority. But do not send him there with just enough to show West Peterborough approves of her favourite son, but give him a majority such as he used to receive when he represented your interests in the Provincial House. He was glad to contribute in any way that he could to the advancement of the City of Peterborough, and the surest way of attaining that end was to send Mr. Stratton as the representavive to Ottawa." (Cheers).

MYSTERIOUS MR. E. OF PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER CAPTURED SATURDAY NIGHT

ough, this 19th day of October, 1908.
JOHN MOLONEY,
A Commissioner.

Mr. E's Affidavit

I, Richard C. Smith, do hereby swear that I am the "Peterborough Examiner's Mr. E," having been engaged to personate that character by Messrs. O'Connor and Green, and that I have been in Peterborough continuously since Monday, 12th to Sunday, 18th inst., and have acted as announced in paper daily.

That I made no disclosure of my identity other than to the members of the Examiner Committee and that I never before in my life, to my knowledge, met Alex. Robertson, who effected my capture until the moment said capture was made, neither did I make any disclosure to any other person, or impart any information which would assist in my capture.

RICHARD C. SMITH.

Toronto, Ont., Sunday 19th October, 1908.

Reporter Wins.

Ottawa, Oct. 19.—Art Burn, the well-known Calgary distance runner, was badly beaten Saturday afternoon in an eight-mile matched race at Varsity oval by Hubert Tebo, a young Ottawa newspaper reporter, who only started running this year. Burn was 150 yards behind Tebo at the finish.

TROWEL USED AT NEW CHURCH WAS A FINE PIECE OF WORK

The silver trowel which was used by Hon. J. R. Stratton on Saturday afternoon in the ceremony of the laying of the corner stone of the Park St. Baptist Church was handsomely engraved by the Warne Bros., jewellers. The work was well done and made a beautiful memorial trowel.

Female "Highwayman."

A woman of forty-one, named Bridget Waterhouse, was committed for trial from Preston (Eng.) Police Court a short time ago on a charge of stealing a purse containing 6s. 9d. from John Cookson, a young man of eighteen.

Cookson told the magistrate that he was walking along the street at night when the woman suddenly struck him, knocked him down, jumped on him, and took his purse out of his pocket. She got away, but was arrested later.

Waterhouse admitted her guilt, and as she was being led to the cells she struck violently at Cookson, but was promptly seized by the police.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Standard Chemical Co. have had 25,000 cords of wood burned at Huntsville.

Mrs. John A. Blackburn was burned to death near her home while fighting forest fires in Virginia.

The bathing beaches at Coney Island and Brighton Beach, N.Y. have reopened during the warm spell.

An overheated stove set fire to a dwelling house at Summit, Pa., and four children lost their lives, while two other persons were painfully fatally injured.

Fires have broken out afresh in many parts of the Adirondacks. There are thousands of hunters in the woods, adding to the seriousness of the calamity.

A westbound Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe passenger train from Chicago collided with a freight train at Braddock, Kansas, and the engineer was killed and 23 passengers were injured.

R. L. Smith of Nevada, Mo., was killed and 15 passengers were hurt when three trolley cars collided in Kansas City. The air brake failed on one of the cars and it rushed back down a steep hill, crashing into two other cars.

The Gantlet And the Mitten.

By Martha Cobb Sanford.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Muriel stood by the steamer rail, smiling goodby to a group of summer frocked girls on the wharf. Suddenly the wind whipped one of the long white gloves out of her hand as she was waving a last farewell and carried it down to the deck below. There was a little ripple of laughter from the watching girls, and Muriel, in order to escape attention, hurried quickly into her stateroom.

It was an unlucky omen, she argued to herself, but quite in accordance with the losing game she had now been playing for three long, desolate months. She took off her hat, arranged her wind blown hair and studied herself critically in the little stateroom mirror.

"I ought to be pale and interesting looking," she said to the reflection that looked earnestly at her, "but I'm only disgustingly healthy."

She turned away with a sigh, and then with quick determination opened the door of her stateroom, placed a chair where she could look out on the restless water when she felt so inclined and began cutting the leaves of a new magazine.

But the story selected either did not interest her or else interested her so personally that she soon forgot the print before her eyes and was lost in introspection.

Up till now, the middle of August, she was sure she had presented a very brave and cheerful front and that none of the girls she had been visiting suspected for a moment the real state of her heart. Why had she broken it off? That was the question she had to answer everywhere. Varied as were the reasons she gave, they were also all more or less flippant.

"Why, you see," she explained to one of her most intimate friends, "Tom and I had known each other since we were children. It was almost prearranged by our families that we should marry. We were the end men, as it were, in a minstrel show that every one was watching. At last Tom popped the question. I answered it according to what was expected of me, and everybody saw the joke except Tom and myself. When it did dawn on us some time afterward we laughed and parted the best of friends."

Now, as Muriel recalled with what glibness she had rattled off this bit of fiction, even laughing to herself over the apparent humor of it, she blushed at her duplicity.

What had been the real reason, after all, for her falling out with Tom? A difference of opinion, so far as she could remember, over the relative advantages of spending one's summer in a house boat or camping out.

She was rather unpleasantly conscious that Tom had been willing to split the difference, but that she had argued that if they couldn't come to a perfectly harmonious agreement about spending their summer they very probably would be equally at swords' points over the other seasons of the year. And so at her request they had broken the engagement.

Muriel looked out at the billowy water and for a few moments was conscious of the speed with which the big steamer was plunging through it. By morning it would bring her to the Cliffside, where it all happened—the courting and the quarrel. Would she be able to be brave and cheerful under such conditions when everything reminded her of—

A peal of thunder startled her. They were speeding into the midst of a terrific storm. Tom had always been such a dear in a thunderstorm! Muriel tossed her magazine into the berth and hurried down to the dining room, where she would at least have the comfort of other people about her.

"No, not a seat by the window," she said to the head steward who ushered her in. "I prefer one in the center."

He placed her at a little round table with one other woman and two men. Muriel, absorbed in her own thoughts, absently took the seat offered and began to read the menu. In the tedious interval before her order was served two of the guests left the table, and she made a very startling and discomforting discovery.

Meanwhile the thunder and lightning increased in severity, and Muriel was not only very embarrassed, but very nervous.

It was a relief when dinner was finally served. Suddenly, glancing up, Muriel noticed the steward talking to the man across from her. He was evidently, by his gestures, talking about the bread in the center of the table. She overheard him say, "I thought you were together, so I brought the bread on one plate," to which the man smilingly replied: "It doesn't matter. It will be all right."

For some time neither Muriel nor the man opposite deigned to take any bread. Then suddenly, as if by one impulse, each reached for the same roll, and each as suddenly withdrew empty handed.

Immediately, with very flattering gallantry, the man passed the bread to Muriel, and she, not to be outdone in courtesy, took the "roll of combat," broke it and offered her table companion half.

An hour or so later in her stateroom Muriel lay crying her pretty eyes out, whether from an overflow of happiness or because of regret for her past silliness she could not for the life of her have told, when she heard a knock at the stateroom door.

"Who is it?" she called cautiously.

"Steward, miss. I have a message for you."

Muriel took the envelope and broke it open with haste, her heart thumping tumultuously as she read:

Dearest—I knew perfectly well why you wouldn't recognize me at the table. You did not want to excite public curiosity or criticism, and I admired you for it. But how I wanted to hold your hand tight whenever I saw you tremble at the lightning! But you were unspeakably sweet in the way you let me know that we are friends again and much, much more, dear girl, I hope!

Now that we have "broken bread" together can't we talk together too? It is full moon tonight, you know. In about fifteen minutes I shall be strolling around the upper deck and shall expect to find you tucked away in a corner there somewhere. Six weary months ago you gave me the mitten, little Muriel. Come and see now what I have to offer in return.

THE SAME OLD TOM.

P. S.—By the bye, I'm on my way to visit with your mother. She and I have always been good chums, you know. I heard you weren't to be at Cliffside this summer, so I thought perhaps your mother might be a bit lonesome. Queer she didn't tell me you were coming!

It was lucky that Tom had given Muriel fifteen full minutes of grace in which to obliterate somewhat the unbecoming traces of her tears. She had no sooner established herself comfortably in a deck chair on the lee side of the pilothouse that Tom appeared idly dangling by his side one long white glove.

Muriel caught it instantly.

"Silly boy!" was her greeting. "Where did you get it?"

Tom stood smiling down at her rapturously.

"Why, of course, I was watching you when you lost it. Several of us made a scramble for it, and I got it. I knew then my luck had changed."

"And I thought," Muriel told him, crushing the glove in her hand, "it was an omen of misfortune. Why, what's in it?" she exclaimed suddenly. "I feel something hard!"

And she began to investigate each finger. Tom sat down close beside her and watched her with absorbing admiration.

"Why, it's—it's my engagement ring!" gasped Muriel, shaking out the third finger of the glove. "Isn't that funny? I hadn't had it on at all because"—

Then as she realized the unpleasant truth she had stumbled upon and also how the ring had really come there she looked up at Tom and smiled her adoration.

"Won't you put it on again, Tom, dear?" she asked with very sweet humility.

More Bread in a Barrel.

That extra cost per barrel which your grocer asks you for doesn't go into anybody's pocket.

Ogilvie's Royal Household

It comes back to you.

It is the difference in money between flour you are sure of and flour you are not.

It covers the cost of inspecting the entire wheat crop of the country, and selecting the choicest grain.

It pays for advanced milling methods, for cleanliness, for purity and for scientific flour-making.

It comes back to you in the shape of light, wholesome, nourishing bread and pastry.

A barrel of Ogilvie's Royal Household Flour goes farther than a barrel of any other flour. It makes more bread and better bread.

You are not really spending that extra amount—you are investing it.

Do not let it stand between your family and good baking. Go to your grocer and say "Royal Household."

TRENT CANAL

LINDSAY SECTION

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Trent Canal," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock on Tuesday, 17th November, 1908, for the works connected with the construction of the Lindsay Section of the canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after the 19th October, 1908 at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $3,000.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

AFRICAN MARRIAGES.

Peculiar Customs of the Different Native Tribes.

The marriage customs of west and southwest Africa are in many cases peculiar. They differ, of course, in different tribes, but have broad lines in common.

A coastal tribe always considers itself superior to an inland tribe, and even its meanest member claims to rank higher than the most powerful man of an up-country tribe. A man may marry any woman he likes of any tribe, it being held that he gives her his own status, whatever that may be, but it is almost unheard of for a woman to marry "beneath" her. As a result some of the women of the most superior coast tribes, like the Mpongwes, look to marriage with white men and frequently attain to it.

The parents on both sides rule absolutely in the matter of marriage between natives. First, the would-be bridegroom goes empty handed to obtain the consent of the bride's father. Then he goes again with gifts, and the father calls in other members of the family to view the gifts. On the third visit he carries trade gin, a sufficiently poisonous compound, generally from Hamburg. In the old days it was palm toddy or wine.

On this occasion he pays over an installment of the dowry. On the fourth visit he takes his parents with him and is permitted to see the girl herself. When next he calls his prospective mother-in-law provides a feast for himself and his relatives, the host and hostess eating nothing, but taking a hand in the drinking. Finally the man goes with gifts and the balance of the dowry and takes the woman away. On arrival at his village she is welcomed with singing and a strenuous dance called "nkanja."

For three months the bride is not required to do any hard work, but after that she buckles to with his other wives at gardening and carrying burdens. Polygamy is general and the number of a man's wives limited only by his resources in the matter of paying dowries. The man may divorce his wife whenever he chooses, and for almost any reason. But it is rare for a woman to be able to obtain divorce at her own wish. Divorce entails the return of the dowry.

What He Called For.

"You advertised that you had found a pocketbook, I believe?" he asked the man who had come to the door in answer to his ring.

"I did."

"You say it contained a sum of money?"

"Yes."

"A very large sum of money, in fact?"

"Yes."

"And that the owner could have the same by naming the sum found and describing the pocketbook?"

"Yes. Go on."

"That is all I wished to ask."

"But you will have to give a description of the purse you lost before you can put in a claim."

"I lost no purse."

"You didn't?"

"No, sir."

"Then why have you called?"

"Merely to see what a man looks like who will find a very large sum of money and then advertise the fact in the papers instead of hiding it down cellar. Good day, sir."—Judge's Library.

A Critic's Evasion.

It is risky to give one's honest opinion about a man's horse or dog, a house designed by himself or a picture which he values highly. He who gives the opinion stands on a slippery place, and should the judgment be unfavorable he will slide far from the man's esteem.

Fuseli, the eccentric artist and professor of the Royal academy, was invited by a nobleman to see a painting of which he was the proud owner. Fuseli went, taking a pupil with him. The painting was shown by the nobleman himself. The artist examined it and exclaimed, "Extraordinary!" The nobleman, greatly pleased at the ejaculation, lauded the picture to the skies, pointed out its beauties, and Fuseli cried: "Extraordinary! Extraordinary!"

On their way home the pupil said: "Mr. Fuseli, I don't think much of that picture. What did you mean by 'extraordinary?'"

"Extraordinarily bad," was the reply of the artist, who had not cared to offend his host while things were open.

African National Anthem.

The suggestion of President Roosevelt that the United States adopt a new national anthem brings to mind how the Ameer of Afghanistan was able to take back to his land an anthem for his people. When he visited India last year it was questioned whether "God Save the King" was quite the proper tune to greet him with, and one after another of the high officials was referred to on the point. One genius at length suggested that as the Ameer would probably not know one tune from another, anything would be suitable. Although the idea was at first laughed at, the official persisted that his method was a simple way out of the difficulty, and he at length had his way. Even then the bandmaster was only instructed to play something, but he was equal to the occasion. Whenever a guard of honor turned out, the band played the first eight bars from the slow march of "Scipio." The Ameer was delighted, and Afghanistan says its new national anthem an enthusiastic welcome.

Piwarrie Forbidden.

In passing an ordinance to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors, to aboriginal Indians the Legislature of British Guiana has, like the Governments of Canada, New Zealand, and Natal, shown a wise consideration for the welfare of the native population. A curious exception, however, is made in the case of a native drink called "piwarrie," which is a production of the cassava plant. It is permissible under the ordinance for meetings to be held for the consumption of this beverage during the months of January, June, and December; but they can be attended only by aboriginal Indians. Any other person present is liable to a fine. There is nothing in the law to explain why this exemption has been made, but doubtless the native who craves for strong drink will appreciate the opportunities offered, and will "piwarrie" in haste, knowing that he will have full leisure, in which to repent.

Jacko Spoiled the Wedding.

Sir Harry Johnston, the famous explorer, who celebrated his fiftieth birthday a short time ago, has a weakness for keeping strange pets, and tells an amusing story of a monkey which he possessed when he lived at Zanzibar. There was a wedding at the house of a resident whose gardens Jacko had raided time after time, and against whom he seemed to have a particular grudge. A magnificent wedding breakfast had been prepared, but just as the party returned to partake of it Jacko hopped in through the French window, seized the corner of the tablecloth, and shook up the whole set-out till everything, from champagne to pickles, was inextricably mixed. Then he sat on the debris, and in monkey-language addressed the company till the gun of the infuriated bridegroom cut short his career.

Monument For Waterloo.

An English committee is to be formed in Brussels for the purpose of raising funds for the erection of a British national monument on the battlefield of Waterloo. The place selected for its erection is the farm of Hougoumont, at which Wellington had his headquarters, and it is proposed that it should be formally dedicated in June, 1915, on the centenary of the battle.

In an appeal published in the Belgian press it is stated that "it remains for the British people to take up the project and for King Edward to give his approval to the scheme."

He—No, but I know a man who lost a fortune that way.

Pleasant For the Leader.

"There," said Dubbs, adding up the column of figures, "a total of $25. I guess that's all. Oh, no; there's $10 I forgot! Gee! I wish somebody would lend me $35. One hundred dollars would help me!"

"What for?" asked Stubbs.

"Why, I want to go to the Philadelphia Press Club."

A Holdup.

De Roade—Mister, I thought you was your wife is advertising a reward of $5 for Mr. Jaw—Rewarded, eh? De Roade—Yes, and if you don't give me $10 I'll take it. Philadelphia Ledger.

"Well, young Dr. Ellery Fourthumb has made already, hasn't he?"

Must Cancel Stamps.

A COVETED STORY.

How Joe Chamberlain Robbed Veteran M.P. of His Favorite Anecdote.

Mr. Jesse Collings, the veteran English M.P., is shortly to celebrate his golden wedding. Mr. Collings is one of the most interesting of the older British politicians, and no one to look at him to-day would think that he was born six years before Queen Victoria came to the throne. Mr. Collings will go down to posterity as the mover of the amendment to the address in favor of Small Holdings, which caused the resignation of Lord Salisbury's Government in 1886, and he will also be greatly remembered for the service he has rendered to British agriculture.

There is an amusing story told of a trick that Mr. Chamberlain once played on Mr. Collings at an election meeting. Both gentlemen had an effective anecdote which they used to tell alternately at their campaign meetings, the understanding being that whoever spoke first should have first call on the yarn. At one meeting Mr. Collings arrived rather late, and the chairman immediately called upon him to address the audience. As he went on with his orations he began to lead up gradually to the famous anecdote, but before he had time to tell it he suddenly felt a gentle pull at his coat tails. Turning round, he beheld Mr. Chamberlain regarding him with an anxious face. "I have already told the story," he whispered warningly. So Mr. Collings, much disappointed, omitted it from his speech. A little later, Mr. Chamberlain rose to speak, and, to the surprise of Mr. Collings, he immediately proceeded to tell the coveted yarn.

MR. TREE'S TRAIN ACT.

Dressing In Train Almost Proved Disastrous to Great Actor.

In Mr. Tree's latest production of "Faust," his wonderful make-up as Mephistopheles is, as usual, a general subject of discussion and admiration. Indeed, Mr. Tree's marvellous skill in disguising his features is, it has been said, as fine as any part of his art; but once it nearly got him into serious difficulties.

The story runs to the effect that he had been giving a flying matinee at Oxford, and the lateness of his train on the return journey to London made him apprehensive of the patience of his audience in town. By making-up and dressing in the compartment, of which he was the only occupant, however, he calculated he might just manage to save an otherwise inevitable wait; and he commenced proceedings forthwith. At the next station the guard noted with suspicion that the traveler had grown a beard. The metamorphosis continued, and with each stoppage the official's suspicion increased.

When the time came for the tickets to be collected, a hawk-like and sinister visage appeared at the window. In addition to this, Mr. Tree had unfortunately lost his ticket in the confusion.

"Come out of it!" roared the guard, when the actor endeavored to make explanations. "We've met your sort before. None of your bounce. Come, turf with that nose!"

And it was not until the official conscience had been appeased by a full explanation and a substantial honorarium that Mr. Tree was allowed to proceed in peace.

Charming Evil Spirits.

Often on the lonely hillsides of Natal one hears a Kaffir singing as he fares on his way, and the reason for his song is the dispersion of any evil spirits that may be lurking in the grass. The Kaffir frequently attributes disaster to the influence of the Amatongo, and previous to embarking on any raid or forays the chief of the tribe usually offers a bullock to the spirit of his immediate ancestor. The idea of a Supreme Being in the skies is common to nearly all their traditions, and he is referred to as the Chief of Chiefs. If perchance cattle are destroyed by lightning in any kraal the report goes round that the Lord has taken the cattle from such a village; and when it thunders their comment is, "The Lord is playing." A very old Zulu woman, interviewed many years ago, gave the following picturesque information about the Amazulu: "Their ancient name is Amagebe, which means the shadow caused by the departing sun. They recline on the mountains. Amagebe is the Old-old-one of the Amazulu, and his great grandson was Chaka, the Tyrant Man, who was known to his subjects as The Great Elephant, from his immense size."

Demolished Buildings.

Every year, New York city thrusts into the junk heap enough buildings to accommodate a small city, or a population of 50,000. In the last ten years there have been torn down enough buildings to house 500,000 persons.

Oyster Growth.

The oyster grows from the inside by its throwing out every year rings or circles of a calcareous substance, and experts can tell you where the growth begins and ends for the year.

Fifty Cents a Month

A small bottle of Scott's Emulsion costing fifty cents will last a baby a month—a few drops in its bottle each time it is fed. That's a small outlay for so large a return of health and comfort. Babies that are given quickly respond to its helpful action. It seems to contain just the elements of nourishment a baby needs most. Ordinary food frequently lacks this nourishment; Scott's Emulsion always supplies it.

Stanfield's Underwear

(Chapter 4)

Spinning the Yarn.

The Stanfield mills are monuments to the value of good machinery. The wonderful spinning machines do an incredible amount of work, and do it better than even the best spinning wheels can do.

As the Maritime farmers send their best wool to the Stanfield mills, it is washed—carefully sorted—and shrunk. It then goes to the combing machines, which comb out all short lengths, weak strands, and leave only the toughest, springiest wool.

This goes to the Spinning Machines, where 18 machines do the work of 16,546 women with spinning wheels.

It is by using such improvements that Stanfield's Unshrinkable Underwear can be so good and yet cost so little.

The pure Nova Scotia wool—the best in the world for Underwear—insures warmth, comfort and wear. The Stanfield process of taking the shrink out of the wool, before the garments are woven, makes absolutely unshrinkable underwear.

The Stanfield way of combing, knitting, cutting and sewing (which will be described later) insures the completed garments being satisfactory in every way.

Stanfield's Underwear is made right here in Canada. There is no duty to pay on it. It is made by Canadians, who know what Canadians need in the way of protection for Canadian winters.

It is made in all sizes for men and women—from 22 to 70 inches.

RED label means light weight—BLUE label means medium weight—BLACK label means heavy weight. Your dealer has all sizes and weights, or can easily get them for you.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank made payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p. c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or if he fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
NAP. TRUDEL,
Secretary.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency, (or the district). Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of intending homesteader.

DUTIES—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior.

LIBERAL LABOUR LEGISLATION RECEIVES ATTENTION IN MR. STRATTON'S THIRD ADDRESS TO PETERBOROUGH ELECTORS

To the Electors of West Peterborough,—

In my addresses previously issued, I aimed to specify what had been accomplished by the Liberal Governments of Ontario and the Dominion in promoting the local interests of this riding, and what had been done to promote the progress and prosperity of Canada as a whole.

The records of the Liberal Governments in these two respects are closely connected with, and have a large bearing upon what the Government has done for the promotion of an interest which lies at the foundation of national development and progress—an interest which cannot be helped or injured, as a whole, without benefitting or impairing the general national condition—I refer to the interests of Labour.

The Liberal Government of the Dominion has, ever since it assumed the responsibility of administration, showed an earnest and practical interest in the cause of Labour.

This interest has been exhibited in both specific acts of legislation and administration, and by its general policy; the two combined having the effect of creating conditions eminently favourable to the welfare of the working man.

The Liberal Government has, while recognizing the rights of all classes of the community, done much in a direct way to benefit Labour without undue assumption of protection or patronage, feeling that the working classes as a body asked no favours above any other section of the community—that all they sought was fair play, and concession of their rights as citizens, and a due share of consideration in the legislative and administrative functions which Parliament and the Government are empowered to exercise.

Before referring to the direct acts and provisions in the interests of Labour, I might point out that the general administrative policy of the Liberal Government, while promoting the general welfare, has incidentally benefitted the wage earner.

The tariff adjustment made by the Liberal Government, by cheapening the raw material used in industrial operations, by removal or reduction of duties, directly benefitted the manufacturing industries of the country, and, through them, the working population. The interests of Capital and Labour, rightly adjusted, are so bound up together that what helps or hurts one helps or hurts the other.

When manufacturing industries are prosperous and busy, Labour is well employed at good wages; and under the Liberal policy of improving the condition of industry, the growth has, as everybody knows, been astonishing.

In 1896, the exports of Canadian manufactures amounted to only nine millions of dollars; the first full year of Liberal Government they increased a million and a half, and every year since there has been an increase of from two to three millions till last year, when there was a sharp advance of five and a half millions to a grand total of exported manufactures of $28,507,124, three times the figures of twelve years previous.

The capital invested in Canadian manufacturing establishments increased from 446 millions in 1900 to 833 millions in 1905—the latest census figures.

In the same period the wages paid to labour in manufacturing establishments, increased from 113 millions in 1900 to 162 millions in 1905, an increas of ten million dollars a year.

In the benefits of this great growth of manufacturing industry, Labour and its interests had its share.

In their tariff adjustment the Liberal Government, by lessening or removing tariff obstacles to the provision of supplies and machinery required by the miner and the farmer, stimulated these industries into greater activity, with the result of larger and more profitable and productive operations—an increased output swelling the traffic of shipping and railways; and in every step of these advances Labour had its share of activity and reward.

So the vigorous immigration policy of the Liberal Government, which has increased the population of the West to over a million, has increased our home market, and created new and enlarged demands upon the eastern manufacturer, with, of course, increased demands for the assistance of labour.

Every man who toils knows that in the past twelve years, the conditions of the labouring man and artizan has been splendid—employment plentiful and wages high.

Not only has the prosperity that has attended the application of the general policy of the Liberal Government conduced to the bettering of the condition of the wage-earner in pocket and property, but the specific Labour legislation of the Liberal Government has safeguarded his rights, protected his person, and promoted his health.

A brief reference to the specific provisions made in the interests of our working people, will show that the Liberal Government's policy in this regard has been of the most energetic, progressive and liberal character; and will also sustain the claim that practically all the legislation enacted—with the single exception of "Labour Day"—has been passed and applied by a Liberal Government of the Dominion within the past twelve years.

Prior to the elections of 1896, the Conservative Government appointed a commissioner to investigate the existence of an alleged sweating system. He reported that there was no such system.

When the Liberal Government came into power it looked into the matter and found that an odious sweating system, ten years old, existed in connection with government contracts for Mounted Police clothing, etc.—men, women and children forced to work long hours in foul, stuffy rooms, at starvation wages. Regulations to put a stop to this white slavery were adopted by the Liberal Government, and have since been carried out with successful results.

This condition of things led to the Liberal Government's fair wage policy, applied to all Government works. It required that every Government contractor must give a fair day's wage for a fair day's work—he must pay the "going" wages in the district where the work is being done.

In contracts for uniforms of soldiers, mounted police, and letter carriers and other uniformed officials, it is provided that work must be done under sanitary conditions, that current wages shall be paid for work done, in proper hours of labour, and a fair wage officer was appointed to see that these conditions are complied with.

In scores of cases where contractors have defaulted in payment, the Government has paid the workmen, thus saving them from loss, and deducted the amount from what was due the contractor.

In 1900 the Liberal Government did what the Conservatives had merely talked about for years—especially before the elections of 1889, 1891 and 1896—established the Department of Labour, directly identified with the interests of working men and working women, the greatest single factor in the building up of the Dominion of Canada.

In addition to all the benefits accruing to Labour through the working of this department, the greatest compliment ever paid to Labour consisted in erecting this Department into an independent Department under an independent Minister of Labour, as we have Ministers of Finance, of Railways, Trade and Commerce, the Premier Minister of Canada declaring that the Department has enough work, and is important enough to require, and have, the whole time, energy and attention of a Minister of the Crown.

The splendid record of the Department of Labour for the past eight years, is a foretaste of what will be accomplished under the added dignity and efficiency represented by a responsible Minister, and under a continuance of Liberal administration.

Under the Conciliation Act of 1900, for the settlement of Labour and Capital disputes, within only four or five years many threatened strikes, some of them of ominous character—like that of the Valleyfield cotton mills—were settled through the Act, and disastrous idleness prevented in the case of 15,000 or 20,000 employees. The saving in capital and wages amounted to thousands of dollars.

An expansion of this legislation was the Act known as the Lemieux Act, to aid in the prevention of strikes and lock outs in all industries connected with public utilities, which makes compulsory an investigation before a strike or lock out can be legally declared.

This extremely beneficial act together with the Conciliation Act of 1900, has been instrumental in saving, to both employers and employees, hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of dollars, in lost business and wages, and in saving immense sums of money, and great inconvenience to the public dependent upon the regular operation of public utilities.

Up till August of this year, the Lemieux Act has been invoked in over forty cases affecting 40,000 employees, and millions of capital, and in only two cases have strikes followed investigations. The Dominion Trades and Labour Congress held in Winnipeg in September last year, voted 59 to 22 in favour of bringing all trades under the Act.

The Railway Labour Disputes Act of 1903, provides for an inquiry under oath into the causes of disputes between railway companies and employees. The result is that railway strikes and the public inconvenience attendant upon tie-ups of large systems are rare, though conciliatory legislation to prevent all strikes; seems to be hardly possible.

The Liberal Government was the first in Canada to pass—in 1897—a law prohibiting the importation of Alien Labour under contract. By appeal to the Privy Council, the Department has proved the Act constitutional; and it has been the means of protecting Canadian Labour from alien competition. In the recent strike of the C. P. R. employees, but for this Act the strike-breakers would have had easy work—the railway shops would have been flooded with idle mechanics from the United States.

In 1905, the Liberal Government procured the passing of an Act making it a criminal offence for any one to induce workingmen to come to Canada on false pretences, and create formidable competition to home labour.

The danger of the invasion of Canada, by the cheap labour of the hordes of Oriental countries, to the detriment of white labour enlisted the interest and intervention of the Liberal Government. The head tax of $100 to exclude Chinese imposed in 1900, was advanced to the prohibitive figure of $500 per head, and additional measures of exclusion were adopted.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux, Minister of Labour, was sent to Japan, and made arrangements for a limitation of Japanese labour satisfactory to Canada, and Mr. Mackenzie King arranged with the British Government for practical cessation of immigration from India of cheap labour.

Acting on the report of a commission which investigated the terrible condition of workmen in railway construction camps on the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, the Liberal Government in 1898, procured legislation permitting the Government to make regulations, providing for the proper housing of workmen in railway construction camps, sanitary conditions, proper medical attendance, and hospitals for contagious diseases, and anything necessary for the comfort and well-being of the men.

Among the legislation enacted by the Liberal Government for the protection of the life and limb of workingmen, in response to the wishes of labour organizations, is an amendment to the Railway Act, requiring all trains to be equipped with appliances, such as automatic car couplers, outside car ladders, hand-grips, etc., so as to minimize the danger of accident, which according to statistics gathered by the Labour Department, amounts to 1000 deaths a year, and three times that number affected with disabling injuries.

A special officer was also appointed in connection with the Railway Commission to inquire into and report the causes of accidents on railways, and the best means for their prevention.

Further evidence of the solicitude of the Liberal Government for the interests of railway employees, is found in the fact that last session the Minister of Railways and Canals had rescinded the clause of the Railway Act, making railway men liable for prosecution for any accident that might be laid at their door, when under nervous strain of such a responsibility and fatigue from long hours without sleep.

The abolition of the sweating system by the Liberal Government, protected women and children, and the investigation made into the excessive hours of telephone girls in Toronto in 1907 brought shorter hours; and inquiry last summer into conditions in regard to the employment of children in cotton factories, will lead to legislation in keeping with the unremitting efforts of the Liberal Government, to protect the wage earner.

Such are the salient points of the record of the Liberal Government in the matter of Labour Legislation and Administration, and no elector, who has at heart the interests of this city and this country, bound up, as they are inseparably, with the interests of Labour in all its departments, can hesitate as to a choice between the government he should support upon this, as upon general questions.

There is no opportunity for comparison of records, for as far as I can recall, there was not a single act of legislation, passed by the Conservative Government in 18 years, in the interests of the Labour element of our population, except the Act setting apart Labour Day as a statutory holiday.

Contrast that with the splendid record of achievement of twelve years I have the honour of outlining above, and no one will doubt the far-reaching and effective nature of the Liberal policy of practical dealing with the interests of Canadian Labour.

I need only add that I am in hearty sympathy with that policy, and if you honour me with election, I shall use my best efforts to assist in promoting the work in this regard of a Government which has done as much in the way of effective legislation and administration in the cause of Labour as in the progressive and prosperity-producing administration of the general interests of all classes of the people of this great Dominion.

Personally, I may claim that I have not been wanting in interest in the welfare of Labour in Peterborough, and elsewhere. As a supporter and member of the Liberal Government of Ontario, which has placed so splendid a mass of legislation in the interests of Labour, on the statute books of the province, I have had my share in doing what has been done; and I have, to the best of my ability, endeavoured, on the more practical and material side, to bring both Labour and Capital into mutually profitable relations, and to contribute, in an humble way, to the material upbuilding of all the substantial interests of Peterborough.

If the electors think that I will be able, as their representative, to give them effective and energetic service, with, as I have striven to do in the past, no discrimination as to class, creed, or political persuasion, I invite, and expect, their support to secure my election as representative of West Peterborough in the Dominion Parliament.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

J. R. Stratton

COMING OF AGE IN AFRICA.

Elaborate Ceremonies Attend Important Event Among Blacks.

All the people in the world have been given to marking the coming-of-age of their young folk with some kind of ceremonial. In Central Africa this is quite a serious business. A few of the customs in use among certain tribes are horrible; but in the main they show a kind of good sense. Among the Yao people, the principal figure in all the initiation or coming-of-age mysteries is a man called the rattler of the tails. He makes play with a bunch of wild-cat tails, wild-cats being creatures which play a leading part in the witch-doctor's medicines. This official communicates all kinds of knowledge to the young ideas of his tribe during the couple of months devoted to their initiation ceremonies. He lectures on the customs of the tribe, and on morals. He teaches unselfishness, for instance, and among these tribes the man who refuses to share his food with another is jeered at as "uninitiated." During these ceremonies the boys receive new names, and if you want to insult them past all forgiveness you have merely to address them by their childhood's names after they have passed through the initiation ceremonies. The unyago, or period of initiation with girls, lasts only one month, and includes all kind of practical teaching as to agricultural and household work, the grinding of corn, and the like. Many of the ceremonies in use are purely symbolical; as when the girls are made to support a houseroof, to indicate that they are to be the pillars of their future homes. But there is also much practical teaching, including a full and blood-curdling recital of the penalties which attach to wilful infidelity, and particular instructions as to how best they may "feed the brute," and make pots and pans.

BOMB OUTRAGE.

Indian Agitators Seriously Injure Three Scotsmen.

Another bomb outrage, which was undoubtedly the work of native agitators, took place recently at Kankinara, on the Eastern Bengal State Railway, 20 miles from Calcutta, in which three Scottish mill assistants were seriously injured.

When the night mail train reached Kankinara, shortly after 12 o'clock, the engineer stopped in obedience to the station signal, which was set at "danger." A moment later a bomb was flung into the second class compartment in which the three Scotsmen were sleeping.

The man nearest the bomb, William Campsie, of Dundee, was thrown across the carriage by the force of the explosion. One arm was shattered, and he received terrible internal injuries, which will, it is feared, result fatally.

Charles Brown, also of Dundee, an engineer at a jute mill, was sitting beside Mr. Campsie, and was likewise badly injured by fragments of the bomb. The third man, whose name has not been ascertained, was more fortunate, and his wounds are of a less serious character.

There is no doubt that the bomb was intended to murder the occupants of the compartment, and that the train was stopped by the assassins in order to give them a better opportunity.

Messrs. Brown and Campsie were recently concerned in a disturbance at a jute mill with some natives.

Brothers as Political Opponents.

The sympathy which Mr. Cameron Corbett, the Unionist member for the Tradeston Division of Glasgow in the British House of Commons, has for certain measures of the present Government recalls the fact that his brother, Mr. T. L. Corbett, who sits for North Down, is a strong Unionist. Amongst other brothers in the House who are political opponents might be mentioned Viscount Morpeth, who sits for South Birmingham, and who is a Unionist, while his brother, the Hon. G. Howard, member for the Eskdale Division of Cumberland, is an active Liberal. Mr. G. P. Gooch, one of the two Liberal members for Bath, has now a brother in the House in Mr. Gooch, the Unionist member for Peckham.

Lady Arthur Grosvenor In Caravan.

Lady Arthur Grosvenor has just returned to her home, Croxton Old Hall, Cheshire, England, after enjoying a caravan tour, which is her favorite way of spending a holiday. During the past few weeks Lady Arthur, accompanied by a companion, has been making a leisurely journey through some of the leafy lanes of old England, and to all outward appearances she has been merely a licensed hawker. It is neither the first nor the second occasion on which this adventurous lady of Cheshire has elected to spend her holiday in this unconventional fashion, and she thoroughly enjoys the simple life of the road.

Twelve-Toed Guardian.

When the medical officer to the Hartismere, Suffolk, (Eng.) Union applied to the guardians recently for sanction for the employment of an additional medical man to administer chloroform to a boy who had six toes on one foot, one of which he proposed to remove, one of the guardians said he himself had six toes on each foot and felt no inconvenience. Consent was refused.

Waste Paper For Wrapping.

It was stated at the meeting of the Chelmsford (Eng.) Rural District Council that waste paper collected by women and children from the house refuse deposited at Widford by the Chelmsford Corporation was sold to shopkeepers and used for wrapping up articles of food.

Trawlers Must Keep Out.

An order-in-council has been passed prohibiting the use of steam trawlers within the three mile limit or within the bays and harbors of Canada.

This is the result of the introduction into Canadian waters of the steam trawlers.

Why "Labby" Was Popular.

Mr. Labouchere has been telling yet another capital story to add to the hundreds he has already told concerning people he has met during his eventful career. He was at Frankfort on one occasion, and at his first ball supper found himself at a table next to a grandee, gorgeous in stars and ribbons. The servant came to pour out champagne. "Now I detest this wine," says "Labby," "so I shook my head. The grandee nudged me, and said, 'Let him pour it out.' This I did, and he explained to me that the potentate whose hospitality we were enjoying never gave his guests more than one glass, 'So, you see, if I drink yours I shall have two'; and he suited the action to the word. After this there used to be quite a struggle to sit near me at court suppers."

Shark Caught.

A Scarboro, Eng., sea angler, John Owston, Jr., recently landed a species of shark five and a half feet long.

The man was fishing for whiting at the time, and had his hooks, bait, and line carried away at first. He procured a stronger line, with large hooks baited with mackerel. The bait was soon seized, and after three-quarters of an hour's struggling the capture was hauled on board.

Herring shoals off the coast account for the presence of these fish, which follow them.

Crab Apples as Buttonholes.

Some novel and attractive "buttonholes" are seen in London—bunches of bright-colored crab-apples, about the size of cherries, with their own leaves.

THE WINDOW SMASHER.

Criminal With Strange Mania Is Operating In London.

The exploits of a mysterious criminal, who has already received the name of "Jack, the Window Smasher," have caused a sensation among the householder of West London. Every night for more than a week the window smasher, who appears to be a monomaniac with a passion for breaking glass, came on the scene at Acton or Bedford Park, Eng., recently. His presence was signalized about midnight by the bursting in of a window and a shower of splinters and shattered panes. When the householder rushed out the offender had fled, or was just discerned in the distance making off silently on a bicycle. He is believed to carry a cargo of heavy stones and half-bricks with him, and his depredations have caused a miniature reign of terror in the morning. His breakages have been incessant since early in September, and on one night alone he smashed the plate-glass windows of a dairy and a chemist's shop, in addition to the sitting-room windows of one or two private houses and several street lamps. Extra police have been placed on duty in the district, but no capture has been effected. The householders have organised private vigilance committees and are stopping cyclists who ride through the roads after dark.

THE TRAINING OF THE DRUM-HORSE.

"Old Bob" Is Dean of His Class in Britain's Army.

The horse selected for the honor of carrying the big drum in the British army has to go through a special training before it is allowed to fill that office. In the first place the drum-horse is usually piebald, but the particular coloring is not essential to the position; the animal may be pure white. At any rate, its appearance must be consistent with the showpiece it is in the band and must carry the handsome trapping in a dignified and graceful manner. Its nerves are severely tried by the booming of the enormous guns he is destined to bear, until in time he becomes as indifferent to the noise as do his brothers to the singing of bullets.

He is then taught to parade. In the parade his rider has his hands full in the use of the sticks. He controls the steed by means of the reins, which are fastened to the stirrup strap near the foot.

The fame of the drum-horse is often won on the field of battle. His duty classes him with the war-horse, and on similar lines lies his path to glory and renown. The horse that wins laurels on the battle-fields, and carries himself with becoming dignity in the parades of peace, will sometimes find himself in the line of promotion to the proud position of drum-horse in the regimental band.

The best-known drum-horse in the British army is Old Bob, who for over twenty years has faithfully served in the military hosts of the King. During service in India in 1897 he received wounds which are visible in the scars he bears to-day. Old Bob was severely cut in rushing upon the foe during a charge of his regiment. When the Dragoons returned to England his services were transferred to the Prince of Wales's Own Regiment, and to this command he is at present attached, and can frequently be seen at Whitehall.

KING AND LORD MAYOR.

London Has Never Had an Overlord and May Bar Out His Majesty.

It is, perhaps, not generally known that the King, as King, has no right of entry into the City of London. The Lord Mayor reigns there supreme, but when the King enters the City on state occasions, the Lord Mayor gives up his sword in token of submission. Of course, the King immediately returns the sword to his loyal and dutiful subject.

The fact is, London has never known an overlord. Other cities have been subject to archbishop, or bishop, abbot or baron, but London has always enjoyed great civic freedom, and to this its supremacy is largely due. The first of the Norman kings had a very qualified trust in its citizens, and his successors had no reason for greater faith. Many bold and vigorous men held the office of mayor. There was FitzThomas, who had the courage to tell Henry III. to his face in St. Paul's Cathedral that the citizens would be faithful and dutious as long as he was a good lord and king. There was Richard Whittet, who fitted out a squadron for the pursuit of the pirates harrying the south coast. There was Walworth; there was Whittington, whose exploits are well-known.

A Thoughtful Conductor.

Ignorance often saves much disquietude. Many have heard the story of the woman whose first experience in a railway train ended with an accident. Thrown from her seat and shaken up generally, she nevertheless retained her equanimity. When asked if she were frightened she replied: "Frightened! No. I didn't know but that was the way they always stopped." It is to be hoped that the trolley passenger in Mr. Howell's anecdote, introduced into "Confessions of a Summer Colonist," was possessed of the same trust in the event. The conductor, at least, preserved his presence of mind. Says Mr. Howells:

"I had long expected to see some one thrown out of the open trolley car at some of the short curves. One day a woman was actually hurled from her seat into the road. Luckily she alighted on her feet and stood looking about as if in a daze.

"'Oh, oh!' exclaimed a passenger. 'She's lost her umbrella!'

"The conductor promptly threw it out.

"'Why, did that lady wish to get out?' I asked.

"The conductor pondered a moment before he answered:

"'Well, she'll want her umbrella anyway.'"

Ruby Glass.

In his book on "The World of the Infinitely Small," Professor Gruner of Berne gives an interesting account of ruby glass. Genuine ruby glass is expensive, because it is prepared with gold. It owes its color to the presence throughout its mass of particles of gold too small to be seen with the microscope. Only the ultra microscope, which renders visible objects perceptible by means of their diffusion of light, is able to show the existence of these minute particles. With the ordinary microscope the glass appears as a uniform transparent mass, but the ultra microscope shows that it is filled with points of light resembling stars on a black background. These points indicate the presence of the particles of gold to which the color of the glass is due.

A TURBULENT GHOST.

Noisy Nocturnal Rounds of an Invisible Visitor.

QUEER DEATH OF OLD JABEZ.

The Uncanny Incident That Disturbed the Quiet of an Old Virginia Home. A Nightly Tramp That Never Ceased Until the House Was Demolished.

"I am not exactly prepared to say that I believe in ghosts," said the old gentleman from Virginia, "but at the same time, in view of certain things that have been told me by persons whose reputations for veracity do not admit of a doubt, I cannot allow myself to ridicule the ideas of others who do believe in an occasional return to earth of the dead.

"There is one case in particular that I know of personally and that can be vouched for by a number of citizens in the upper counties of my state, and that is the case of old Uncle Jabez Martin, who knew a number of well to do farmers in Fauquier as well as in Spottsylvania, Rappahannock and other counties in the northern part of the state. 'Uncle Jabe,' as most every one who knew the old fellow called him, had considerable of the nomad in his disposition and led a wandering, pastoral life. He was always willing to work when any one needed his services and did a good deal of rough carpentering in return for a 'meal o' wittles and a shakedown,' as he expressed it, and as he was pretty well known in the land of his pilgrimages it was a rare occurrence when he was not given a welcome.

"If old Uncle Jabe thought more of one family in the state than he did of another it was the Greens. Virginia, as all know, is full of Greens. An estimable crowd they are, and nearly all of them consider themselves as related in some degree of consanguinity to the others of that name. The Greens of Virginia is the finest tribe of that name in seven states,' was the constant boast of Uncle Jabe, and above and beyond any other Green anywhere he placed Marse Dickie Green of Fauquier, and that is where my ghost story, if you will please to consider it as such, begins.

"One wild night in the month of October not very long before the war the old wanderer made his appearance at Squire Green's. Mr. Green was called squire by virtue of being a justice of the peace. Jabe wanted his usual 'meal o' wittles and shakedown,' and it was at his service, as usual, and after a good supper he sat on the back steps of the house, smoked his old pipe for awhile and then went to bed.

"Squire Green was engaged in some work that kept him up until midnight, and as the clock struck 12 he heard a heavy sound on the stairway. It seemed as if some one was coming down the steps with heavy irons on the legs. The sound was carried to the door, which was opened noisily and then closed with a terrific crash.

"Thinking it strange that old Jabez Martin would be guilty of making such unnecessary noise, the squire rushed to the door and opened it. The moon was shining in all its beauty, and everything was perfectly calm and nobody in sight. Back again went the surprised squire and up into the attic chamber, where Martin always slept when he made his calls. He found everything calm and quiet there. It was the quiet of death, for old Uncle Jabe was lying supine on his back, with his glassy eyes staring right up to the ceiling, where the squire left him until the morning.

"When he related the circumstances in the morning it seemed that every other one of the house had been disturbed by the uncanny noises. The strange part of it is that next night the same sounds were heard again, even to the slamming of the door, and an investigation proved that there was no person to make them. There were no cowards in Squire Green's family, but the noises disturbed them, and when they were heard, as they were frequently at midnight they became so used to them they would simply remark that, 'Uncle Jabe was tramping again' and go to sleep again.

"Friends and neighbors who knew of the ghostly exercises were averse to staying all night in the house, and the darkies couldn't be bribed to come near the place after nightfall. The sounds never ceased until after the house was torn down, and even its demolition, which it was hoped might reveal the source of its strange and grewsome sound, failed to present any explanation. There are folks living today in Fauquier county," said the relater of the ghost story, "who can, and I have no doubt readily will, testify to the truth of what I have made mention of."

Those Men!

"I went into the office looking like a fright," said the woman. "I didn't have a chance to straighten my hat or pat my hair or anything. I had intended to primp going up in the elevator, but there was a man standing before each mirror twirling his mustache, and I couldn't even get a peep at myself."
—New York Times.

A Sound Reason.

Robert, aged five, was irritated by the crying of Clara, aged two.

"Sister," he said, with great seriousness, "why don't you stop crying? You must be sick. You don't look well, and you don't sound well."

Circumstances are beyond the control of man, but his conduct is in his own power.—Beaumont.

Great Scott!

Despatch is certainly one of the watchwords of Sir Percy Scott, under whose command lies the special squadron now on its way to visit the South African coast. He may be termed one of the "scientific" men of the navy, and it was he who invented the system of night signalling now in use. The story of the Ladysmith four-point-sevens gives one an admirable idea of Sir Percy's methods. The Terrible was lying in Simon's Bay when Gen. White's telegram asking for guns arrived. "What can you do?" asked Admiral Harris. "Give me the night to think it over," said Sir Percy, "and I will see." Next morning he petitioned for the loan of the dockyard for twenty-four hours. It was granted. During the passage of that single night he had invented a new gun-carriage, and before the twenty-four hours asked for had expired the famous four-point-sevens were on their way to Durban.

A Duke's Appetite.

The different important state documents are sealed with different varieties of wax. The wax used for the Great Seal of England is whitish in color, and is compounded of oils and balsams from a recipe kept in the Lord Chancellor's office. The wax of the Great Seal and Privy Seal of Scotland, manufactured by an Edinburgh firm, is composed of resin and beeswax, colored with vermilion. The Exchequer Seal is made of green wax, and is considerably softer than ordinary sealing-wax.

A Tip.

"Look as if you was feelin' pretty good today, James," said the first waiter.

"Yes, tiptop," replied the other.

"Some streak o' luck maybe?"

"Yes; tiptop tip."—Kansas City Independent.

Just the Contrary.

Bessie was just finishing her breakfast as papa stooped to kiss her before going downtown. The little one gravely took up her napkin and wiped her cheek.

"What, Bessie," said her father, "wiping away papa's kiss?"

"Oh, no," said she, looking up, with a sweet smile; "I'a wubbing it in."

A Bad Spell.

"Poor Jack! He never could spell, and it ruined him."

"How?"

"He wrote a verse to an heiress he was in love with and he wrote honey for honey."

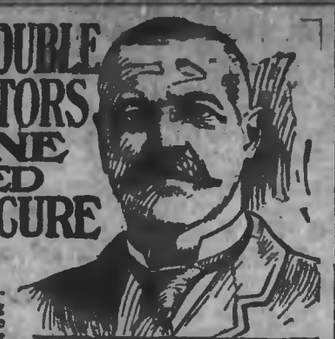
BRONCHIAL TROUBLE BAFFLED DOCTORS PSYCHINE EFFECTED PERMANENT CURE



W. CULLIS, BRUCE MINES.

12 YEARS' TEST.

That the Psychine cures are permanent, is proved by the following remarkable statement received by the proprietors, as recently as August 10th, 1908. Mr. Wm. Cullis, of Bruce Mines, Ont., says: "When I first wrote you ten or twelve years ago, I had Bronchial trouble and a rattling in the chest and a troublesome cough at night. My Doctor could not do anything for me. Finally I decided to try PSYCHINE and have much pleasure saying that before I had taken all of the third bottle I was as well as ever, and am grateful to say I have been well ever since. I weigh 186 pounds and would earnestly recommend PSYCHINE to anyone with the same trouble that I had."

BRONCHITIS SYMPTOMS.—Bronchitis is an inflammatory disease of the bronchia or air passages leading to the lungs. It commences with a common chilly feeling, aching pains in the limbs, the patient is thirsty and feverish, with langour, headache, loss of appetite, and restlessness, soreness in the chest increased on taking a long breath or going out into the cold air, wheezing sound in air passages, difficult breathing. A few doses of PSYCHINE will eradicate the trouble. Sample sent on application. Send coupon attached. All druggists and stores sell Psychine. 50c and $1.00.

THE VILLAGE IN DANGER FROM FIRE

Brownhill, Ont., Is Threatened With Destruction by Fire.

OUTLYING HOUSES BURNED

Forest Fires Sweep Down on Little Community and at Last Reports Its Safety Was In Doubt—Two Women Are Rescued by Members of County Engineer—Every Man Is Out Fighting the Flames.

Brownhill, Ont., Oct. 20.—Bush fires which have been smouldering for a month in this vicinity, Sunday burst into flames and rapidly spread to the village, destroying several houses on the outskirts before they could be checked. Late yesterday the community was threatened and every available man is working to extinguish the fires.

A gang of Toronto boys working on a steel bridge at this place started for their camp with a team of horses, but were soon compelled to send the horses back, on account of the heat and smoke. They resumed their journey on foot, and reached the house just in time to save the contents. They then started for two small cabins in a thickly foliaged swamp. On the way Teddy Tatemer, one of the party, was overcome by smoke and had to be carried back to the headquarters. The cabins were subsequently saved from destruction by great effort.

Two women, occupants of one of the cabins, were rescued after heroic endeavors on the part of N. P. Bell, county engineer, and the band of fire fighters. After a long struggle the men succeeded in controlling the flames for the time being.

WOMAN IS KIDNAPPED.

Young Wife Kept Prisoner by Two Men in Woods.

Huntington, L.I., Oct. 20.—Twice kidnapped from her home and kept a prisoner in the woods by two men for several days, Mrs. Abbie Meeriongola of this place, is believed to have been crazed and wandered to her death in a swamp, or is roaming through the woods, while posses, of which her husband is a member, are searching for her. Two men are under arrest.

Mrs. Meeriongola is 17 years old, the daughter of a well-to-do farmer, and the wife of a contractor, to whom she was married six years ago. She was first dragged from her home, Oct. 1 between two armed men. Three days later she staggered into her father's home and said she had been kept a prisoner in a swamp. A few days later another attempt to kidnap her was frustrated.

Again last Saturday afternoon the two kidnappers raided her father's home and frightening her mother with a revolver shot, again dragged the young wife away.

Guard Kills Italian Convict.

Plattsburg, Pa., Oct. 20.—Marcatullio Remiggio, an Italian convict at the Dannemora State Hospital, was killed yesterday by an attendant. It is stated that Remiggio, who had been in solitary confinement, attacked the attendant with an iron spike and was struck by the latter in self-defence.

Steamer Seguin Is Safe.

Port Arthur, Ont., Oct. 20.—The overdue steamer Seguin arrived Sunday night. The delay was caused by heavy weather, which forced the boat to take shelter.

Declined to Strike.

Berlin, N.H., Oct. 20.—The paper makers employed at the Berlin Mills Co., were at their work as usual yesterday. The men refused to obey an order to strike.

HOW TO MAKE THE BEST REMEDY

Fine Recipe For Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble Gives Prompt Relief.

FIX THIS FOR YOURSELF

The following prescription for the cure of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles has no doubt been filled millions of times, viz.: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy at little cost and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime, drinking a full tumblerful of water after each dose. It is stated that this prescription is a positive remedy for kidney trouble and lame back, weak bladder and urinary difficulties, especially of the elderly people, and one of the best things to be used in rheumatic afflictions, relieving the pains and aches and reducing swellings.

A well-known authority states that this mixture acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys, cleanses these spongelike organs and gives them power to sift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood which is the cause of rheumatism.

If your back or sides ache and you suspect kidney trouble, it would be wise to try this for a few days.

How McGregor Lost His Life.

Port Arthur, Oct. 20.—The steamer Scottish Hero, from Owen Sound, brings news of the drowning of Malcolm McGregor, the first mate. In charge of four men, McGregor put out from the Scottish Hero, just off Iroquois Point, in a yawl to assist some persons in danger of fire on shore. The sea was too heavy and so with the yawl half-filled with water and the men almost perished with cold and exhaustion, they fought they way back to the ship's side. A rope ladder was lowered and four of the men clambered up to safety. McGregor waited until they were safe and then commenced the ascent. When half way up his strength gave out.

Refused Holy Communion.

London, Oct. 20.—(C. A.-P.)—Alan Banister, who some time ago married his deceased wife's sister in Montreal, was again refused Holy Communion at the Eaton Parish Church Sunday. Banister recently brought the matter before the Ecclesiastical Arches Court with the result that Connor Thompson, the vicar of Eaton, was admonished not to repel Banister again from communion.

Clothes Caught Fire.

Montreal, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Boucher, residing at 18 Hagg street, Mile End, was burned to death yesterday morning, her clothes catching fire while she was starting a fire in the stove. She was 21 years of age.

Killed by Horse's Kick.

Whitby, Oct. 20.—William, the 17-year-old son of Joseph Evans of Claremont, was kicked over the heart by a horse yesterday morning and instantly killed.

"The Amazing Elkins."

Sir Lord Elphinstone, who has just entered upon his 40th year, is known in India, where his prowess as a big game hunter has endeared him to the hearts of the sporting natives. The family of Elphinstone has produced many notable men, among them being the thirteenth baron, who governed Bombay in the troubled days of the Mutiny, and who left in that city many fine memorials of his rule. Some of the Elphinstones have distinguished themselves more as sportsmen than the present holder of the title, who stalked deer as a boy in the forest rented by his father, and who, when he was sixteen, accompanied James Anthony Froude on his voyage round the world. Lord Elphinstone is still a bachelor, though not, possibly, for so romantic a reason as that which actuated the aforementioned thirteenth baron, who in his early days at court fell in love with Queen Victoria, and remained a lifelong celibate for her sake.

Marble Columns For Airships.

Mr. Spencer has met some curious-minded people in his time who possessed extraordinary ideas on the subject of aerial navigation, but he thinks the most remarkable of them all was an otherwise intelligent inventor who proposed to construct an airship, obtaining its levity from a small gas vessel, but which was to be furnished with marble columns, couches, and arm-chairs. When it was pointed out to this inventor that his airship would not rise, he replied, "But instead of using horsehair for stuffing the chairs, I will fill them with hydrogen. Then the marble columns, too, I will make hollow and fill them with gas. And if this does not give the airship sufficient lifting power, I will pump into them more and more hydrogen under pressure until I do get sufficient lifting power." The humor and absurdity of which suggestion are pretty obvious, as, of course, the more gas is compressed the heavier it becomes.

Cost of English Prisons.

The Home Secretary says that the total cost of the prisons of England and Wales, including state inebriate reformatories, for the year ended March 31 last, for salaries and maintenance, is £728,398 8s. 9d., of the reformatories and industrial schools £436,868, of the case of lunatics in England and Wales £3,551,955, and of the police in England and Wales (including the Metropolitan Police) £5,864,151. The total cost of poor relief and all purposes wholly connected therewith in England and Wales is put at £12,967,000.

Austrians and Montenegro Engage in Desultory Skirmish

BRITISH VESSEL IS SEIZED

Austrian Torpedo Boat Captures English Steamer Laden With Arms For Montenegro War Cutters—Threats Against Austrian Consul Result In Brush Between the Naval Guard and Mob For Hours.

Berlin, Oct. 20.—According to the Vienna correspondent of The Tageblatt there has been a skirmish between an Austrian naval guard and a mob of Montenegrins at Antivari. The correspondent says in his despatch: "It is reported here from Antivari that a crowd of Montenegrins threatened the Austrian consul. A guard for the protection of the consul was sent ashore from the Austrian squadron. The guard had a desultory skirmish with the mob, which lasted several hours."

The Tageblatt's Budapest correspondent says: "An Austrian torpedo boat has arrested a British steamer near Cattaro, on the Bay of Antivari, laden with arms and ammunition, destined for Montenegro."

War Cloud Dispersed.

London, Oct. 20.—The cloud which lowered over the near eastern situation on Saturday has been dispersed. The belief in the best-informed quarters still is that peace will be unbroken.

A despatch from Sofia to The Times says that it is understood that Bulgaria is willing to negotiate for the purchase of the Oriental Railroad, either with Turkey or with the company for a sum to cover the company's rights and Turkish proprietary rights.

READ DIME NOVELS.

Four Montreal Boys Steal to Buy Firearms.

Montreal, Oct. 20.—Four boys, all under 15 years of age, appeared before Judge Basin yesterday on a charge of theft. The boys had read dime novels until they determined to lead lives of crime. Between them they stole $220, and with the money purchased a new suit and winter overcoat each, a plentiful supply of cigarettes, hunting knives, seven revolvers and a Winchester rifle and a liberal supply of ammunition. When captured they were about to leave for the wild west. Yesterday they all pleaded guilty to charges of theft, and will be sentenced on the 22nd.

Millionaire Kills Girl and Self.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 20.—Sewell Situman, reputed to be worth half a million dollars, and well-known throughout the west as a broker, Sunday night shot and killed Eva Hart, whose company he has been keeping for some time, and then took his own life.

The shooting occurred at the home of Miss Hart in Burdett street, whither the two had driven in an automobile.

Will Sex Women Vote.

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 20.—It was announced yesterday that Ray Costello and Eleanor Randall, English suffragists, attending the convention, will at its close, accompany Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, to Denver, where they will remain until after the election for the purpose of watching the women vote.

Attempt to Shoot Priest.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—An attempt to assassinate Rev. J. K. Fielding, pastor of the Corpus Christi Roman Catholic Church, was made Sunday. After twice shooting at the priest in the Sunday school hallway of the church, the would-be assassin, knocking down several children that stood in his way, ran into the street and escaped.

KIDD'S STORE ROBBED

Twenty Dollars Worth of Goods Disappear From Indian River Departmental Store---Warrant Out For Arrest of One of The Suspects.

SUPPOSED TO HAVE BEEN ALARMED BY THE DOG

Examiner Special

Indian River, Oct. 20.—Burglars, who are still at large, visited this community last Friday night and, breaking into the department store of Mr. Walter H. Kidd, made their escape with some $20 worth of goods. It is supposed by Mr. Kidd, whose residence is not more than a hundred yards distant, that the robbers arrived on the scene about midnight, as at that time he had heard the dog barking. Not thinking that his store was being burglarised he ordered the dog to be down, in order that he might get some sleep.

Upon investigation the following morning Mr. Kidd discovered that there were missing six or seven pounds of tobacco, one and a half boxes of cigars, three pairs of fine shoes, some underwear, a dozen and a half towels, a couple of pairs of trousers and two black fedora hats.

Evidently the men became alarmed by the barking of the dog and did not reach the post office. The only money they secured was twenty-three cents in coppers.

On the previous day Mr. Kidd had a call from a man, presumably a tramp, who is supposed to be the guilty party. He was rather tall, wore a mustache and his left hand lacked four fingers. He wore long pointed shoes and the footprints of one of the parties who entered the store showed that he wore a similar shoe. The marks were seen in the sand. Mr. Kidd went to Peterborough to-day to visit Constable Cochrane, and a warrant is out for the arrest of the suspect.

A meeting of the Oriental Order of Humility and Perfection will be held on Friday night at 8 o'clock in the Oddfellow's Hall and all members are urged to be present as important business will be transacted.

SHEFFIELD CHOIR WILL BE HEARD IN THE OPERA HOUSE

The committee in charge of the Sheffield Choir Concert on November 12th, have decided to have the concert take place in the Opera House instead of the rink, as previously announced. As the seating accommodation of the Opera House is limited and will likely be taxed to its utmost, those intending to hear the choir will need to speak for seats at once.

Shakespeare's Inspiring Love Tragedy "Othello" comes to the Grand tomorrow, Wednesday night, Mr. John Griffith in the leading role. Lovers of Shakespeare should not miss this chance of seeing one of the finest productions that has yet visited Peterborough. Box Office open tonight until 9 p. m.

IDYL WYLD HOTEL IS STILL OPEN FOR SPORTING SEASON

Mr. Thos. Parker, of Idyl Wyld, expects to close up the house for the season in the near future. There is not a great deal of business around the lake at present, as the weather is making itself felt. The fishing is excellent and the shooting down the lake is splendid. When the sports then go down to the lake a little later this season, Mr. Parker will open up the hotel when notified beforehand.

WOMEN'S INFLUENCE IN RELATION TO THE TEMPERANCE PROBLEM

The large crowd of ladies who gathered in the Y. M. C. A. Parlours to listen to an address by Mrs. Owen Hitchcox, testified to the interest that is being taken in the temperance movement in this city.

Mrs. Hitchcox took as her subject "The Power of Woman's Influence," and based her remarks upon the following text: "Let your light so shine before men, that others seeing your good works, may glorify your Father in heaven." The address was full of interest.

AN UNGENEROUS ACTION STILL LOCALLY AND WARMLY RESENTED

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I notice in the Peterborough Review that on the front page is printed in big, bold type what purports to be a telegram from Mr. R. M. Dennistoun, practically contradicting a statement which, by the way, I have not heard, that "Stratton claims my support. Deny publicly. I urge all my friends to support you."

Mr. Dennistoun may have been in some way led into sending such a telegram. He may overlook Mr. Burnham's perfidy (he is big-minded enough), but I am one of his friends here who will not overlook Mr. Burnham's treatment of my friend. I, and several other of my Conservative friends, remember, and will long remember with shame and resentment, the attitude of Mr. J. H. Burnham (unfortunately nominated to-day as the Conservative candidate) in conspiring with Mr. Jas. Kendry to prevent as far as he possibly could, the citizens of Peterborough from doing Mr. Dennistoun honour, in the form of a complimentary citizens' banquet, on his taking his departure from our city to make a new home for himself in the West. The treatment meted out to Mr. Dennistoun by these two men and the tactics adopted to prevent his addressing the Young Conservative Club, after he had been invited to do so, though overlooked by the latter, should not be forgotten by the representative Conservatives of Peterborough. I need not point out the fact, known to all, that for years Mr. Dennistoun was regarded as perhaps the most able, unselfish, conscientious and influential Conservative leader in Peterborough. His services to his party had been greater than those of any other man, like those of his father before him, and the action of members of that party, with questionable standing, in putting unmerited contumely, not to say insult, upon so worthy and high-minded a gentleman, merely to gratify their personal spleen, shows them to be wanting in fidelity to the best interests of the party to which they insist on belonging. I think it may be taken for granted that very few self-respecting Conservatives will be found to approve the conduct of these men who, to gratify their personal spite, were found ready to wantonly wound and seek to humiliate one of their own leaders, than whom none stood higher either in party or in public respect. It is a well-known fact that while taking leave of his old friends and fellow-citizens, who parted from him with sincere regret and mutual esteem Mr. J. H. Burnham was not numbered among those to whom Mr. Dennistoun gave his honest hand at parting. If we had more men like R. M. Dennistoun and fewer of the stamp of Mr. J. H. Burnham in the front ranks of our party, we might be able to present a better claim to the confidence and respect of the electorate than we are able to do in the current campaign. Though Mr. Dennistoun may have overlooked for party reasons the conduct of Mr. Burnham, I am sure that if he had been in Peterborough Mr. Burnham would, with the former's consent, never have been the candidate. A gentleman who on more than one occasion could have honourably accepted the proffered nomination would never have been a party to intriguing for the honour and gaining it by what I consider dishonourable means, by a convention of manipulated delegates, to the disgust of myself and other Conservatives, some of whom, like myself (and, I believe, Mr. Dennistoun, if he were here and knew the attendant and subsequent circumstances,) will not support Mr. Burnham. Knowing what I know and feeling what I feel, though a staunch Conservative, I cannot vote for a candidate who represents, in the means by which he reached his present position, only a section of the Conservative party. If I vote at all, I shall vote for Mr. Stratton. Grit, though he is, he got his nomination fairly and honourably, and looking beyond mere party, I could very well justify my action. Mr. Burnham, by his course of action, as I have indicated, has forfeited all claims on my party allegiance: and I can judge the two candidates as men and there is no comparison. Mr. Stratton's past services to the city and the county; his unfailing spirit of fair play to those of the opposite party; his recognized fidelity to all our interests; his experience and capacity for continuing a work of benefit to all classes of citizens, and to sum up, his vastly superior ability to give this riding good representation, convince me that as a good citizen and a Conservative, which should always, though it does not, mean the same thing, I would, in voting for Mr. Stratton, commit no offence, that even Mr. Dennistoun (after overlooking Mr. Burnham's offence) could not forgive.

I am, Sir, yours very truly,

Peterborough, Oct. 19. A CONSERVATIVE.

Body Of A New Born Babe Expressed In A Cardboard Box To Ottawa For Burial

Examiner Special

Ottawa, October 20. —A parcel that the Canadian Pacific Express Company delivered at the Misericordia, a maternity hospital at 42 Cambridge street here, from Pembroke, has developed sensational facts. The superintendent paid 45 cents express, gave a receipt for the parcel, and opened what was in a cardboard box to find it was the body of a newly-born child. It was wrapped in oilcloth. There were three camphor balls in the box, and a letter with a two dollar bill and this note: "Enclosed find $2: please bury the baby and oblige." There was no signature and nothing to indicate where the child came from or where its mother is. The Crown Attorney and detectives working backwards have discovered that a young woman went into the Canadian Express office at Pembroke and sent the parcel here, just a second before the Ottawa train left. Then of course she disappeared and nothing further was known until the horrified superintendent at the hospital opened the parcel. A coroner's jury has viewed the body but as yet not one of them know anything about the remarkable details. Witnesses will be heard at the police station tomorrow night.

Excellent Time Made In Fire Drills At Public Schools To-day

A highly satisfactory showing was made this morning in the public schools of the city on the occasion of a visit of the following body of men: Mayor Bush, Ald. Johnston of the Fire, Water and Light committee, Chairman R. Fair of the Board of Education, Chief Howard of the Fire Department and Mr. B. Van Winkle, an electrical expert representing the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association. In each school, the drill was held in the following periods of time:

South Central (450 pupils), 57 sec.
Central (400 pupils), 48 sec.
Old Collegiate, 45 sec.
East City (225 pupils), 35 sec.
Queen Alexandra(250 pupils), 38 sec.
Park St. (180 pupils), 45 sec.
King Edward (295 pupils), 60 sec.

To an Examiner reporter Chief Howard said that he was delighted with the proficiency shown in the drills. It was better than he had seen in either London, Windsor, Berlin, or Owen Sound. The time made was better by several seconds than he had seen in those places. The best time made in those towns was 50 seconds for 300 pupils, and it often extended to 60 and 70 seconds.

All those who witnessed the inspections were satisfied that the public schools are well drilled in leaving the schools rapidly and in an orderly manner.

RAGING BUSH FIRES

In Monaghan and Smith, In Fact on All Sides of the City, Woods and Swamps Are Ablaze.

FARMERS HAVE TURNED OUT TO FIGHT THEM

From reports received this morning the country on every side is being ravaged by bush fires. Close to the city, Mr. J. J. McBain's property in Monaghan is reported burning, the ground being rather mucky even it is on fire. It was learned that this was started by a small brush pile which was being burned after the wood was cleared off. Seven or eight men this afternoon were fighting its advance with water, and by other usual means. About seven miles down the river road in Otonabee on the farm formerly belonging to Mr. W. J. Hall, but now owned by a farmer named Hogg, another fire is raging. It is understood that this fire, which is in a swamp on this property, is being vigorously fought. Up in Smith between Young's Point and Lakefield there is a big fire in a marsh near the 18th concession.

These are only a few of the fires which are raging on all sides of the city.

A carload of scenery and effects is carried by the John Griffith Co., for the presentation of "Othello". Book your seats at the box office to-night.

THE PRESBYTERY IS MEETING TO-DAY IN CAMPBELLFORD

The Presbytery of Peterborough will meet this afternoon in Campbellford for the purpose of considering the call from the Presbyterian church at Moosejaw to the Rev. A. C. Reeves, B.A., of Campbellford. The western congregation has retained Rev. H. J. Keith, M.A., of this city, to represent their interests in having Mr. Reeves transferred to Moosejaw.

LARGE FLOCK OF WILD GEESE SEEN LATELY AT JUBILEE POINT

Mr. J. J. Gilman, who has closed the hotel at Jubilee Point, states that the duck season is not yet at its best. There are some around the island but they are not as plentiful as they are expected to be a little later. The other day Mr. Gilman saw a flock of wild geese which he estimated numbered 100.

Lindsay Section Of The Trent Valley Canal Now Ready To Be Tendered Upon

Tenders are advertised for the contract for the construction of the Lindsay section on the Trent Canal which marks another advance in the completion of this important waterway. The Lindsay section includes the stretch of canal on Sturgeon River from Sturgeon Lake to Scugog Lake, the rise being six feet between the two.

The chief work on this section is the construction of a new concrete guide piers and abutments let immediately. The estimated cost on Wellington street where a new is $65,000.

bridge will be erected. The present lock and dam at this point is a wooden structure which has stood for many years and which is on the point of decay. They were taken over from the Ontario Government recently by the Dominion Government.

The estimated cost of the Lindsay section is $70,000, and the estimates for its construction were put through during the last session.

Some time ago it was announced that tenders were being invited for section No. 7 from Rice Lake to Healam and lock on Lindsay street and by Fells. The contract for it will be Interesting Report Of Convention Of Brotherhood At Hamilton

Mr. Herbert Spring, who was the representative of the Junior Brotherhood of St. John's Church, to the annual convention of the Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew, held in Hamilton from October 9th to 11th, has prepared an interesting report of the proceedings, which he will submit to the Brotherhood shortly.

The annual meeting commenced on Friday morning, Oct. 9th, when Rev. Mr. Johnston, of Edinburgh, Scotland, gave an address. Rev. Mr. Davidson dwelt upon the influence of the brotherhood. W. G. Davis, of Stony Creek; Mr. Curtiss, P. M. Hemingham also took part in the discussion.

Ont. Oct. 10th, Rev. Mr. Hewitt, of Vancouver, and Rev. A. P. Stafford gave inspiring addresses, and on the day following Rev. Mr. Ilferson also delivered an address.

Board of Health Discusses Some Routine Business This Morning

At the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Health postponed from last week, some discussion took place over the gathering of night soil in city. The chairman thought that the carts were out on the street at an hour that was too early and was in favour of doing something to put a stop to the practice. Sanitary Inspector Roszel remarked that the by-law allowed night soil to be moved after 10 o'clock at night. He thought that if the council were to provide air tight barrels that the trouble would be obliterated. The board had no power in itself to affect the changes but it was decided to ask the council to change the law to 11 o'clock and to provide air-tight barrels.

Mr. J. Thompson, Dublin St., waited upon the board to urge that a sewer be constructed on that street, east of Water St. The city engineer stated that a sewer that would fill Mr. Thompson's requirements would be practicable and accordingly the board passed a motion asking the council to build the sewer as a local improvement.

A request from Miss Crawley for a sewer on Inverlea St. was discussed and it was decided to ask Miss Crowley to get a petition signed.

The members present were Dr. Burnham, chairman, Messrs. White, Parker and Edgar, Sanitary Inspector Roszel and Medical Health Officer Dr. Bingham.

BRINGING OUT SERVANTS

Montreal Firm Offers to Provide Families With Carefully Selected Servants for Housework.

LOCAL PEOPLE MAY MAKE APPLICATION

Mr. George H. Howson has received a letter from Mrs. E. F. Francis, of the Women's Domestic Guild of Canada, 71 Drummond street, Montreal, relative to the domestic servant problem. This Guild is bringing out carefully selected servants every two weeks, and they ask for names of persons who are willing to comply with the fixed rules. A cheque must be sent in advance for all expenses and railway fare. The girls go on trial for a month and if not satisfactory they are returned at the end of that time, employers paying no wages, as this amount is deducted from the cheque, the balance being returned when the girl is sent back. No fee is charged unless the girl proves satisfactory. The next party will arrive by the end of the month and applications and cheques must be in before that time. Anyone interested can receive application forms from Mr. Howson.

Mr. John Griffith supported by Miss Edyth Totten and an all star cast appear at the Grand tomorrow night in Shakespeare's inspiring love tragedy "Othello" Box office open to-night.

VAGRANT IS SENT TO CENTRAL PRISON FOR SIX MONTHS TO-DAY

Rich. McGregor, an old gentleman who has apparently seen better days, appeared before City Clerk Armstrong at police court to-day on a charge of vagrancy. He admitted the justice of the charge, and when asked how long a term he wanted, replied "just as long as you like." The acting magistrate was willing to accommodate him and imposed a sentence of six months in the county jail.

Book your seats to-night for John Griffith in "Othello" at the Grand tomorrow, Wednesday night.

Music and Drama

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN

(Winnipeg Free Press.)

Downie's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was presented at the Walker theatre last Saturday afternoon and evening, and if the slightest doubt as to the popularity of this sterling old production lingered in the minds of the theatre goers it would have been completely dispelled had they peeped in at either the matinee or evening performance and seen the big theatre packed from pit to dome with happy, interested men, women and children. Many of those present were not regular play goers, but they would not have missed "Uncle Tom's Cabin" for anything, and the children simply had to see it. As for the performance, well, it was very much better than the usual interpretation of this piece. There was only one "Marks" and only one "Topsy," but the interpreters of these characters were equal to two people. Dot. Williams was particularly clever as "Topsy," and kept the audience roaring with laughter. Baby Hazel is a pretty child, and pleased as "Little Eva." Another bright youngster is Baby Edna, who played little Harry Harris, and later, as her own self, did a catchy specialty. Vernon Skinner, in the title role, was impressive and effective, and all the other roles were nicely played. During the action of the play, and between the acts, numerous clever specialties were introduced which elicited hearty encores. The hoop rolling and singing of the coloured people were particularly good. It delighted the children present to see "Little Eva," make her first entrance in a dear little carriage drawn by two tiny ponies. Also to see "Marks" come on later, riding a donkey. The stage settings were pretty, especially the transformation scene showing "Little Eva" in heaven. Taken altogether the performance was most satisfactory.

The above company will appear in the Grand Opera House, Saturday, matinee and night, Oct. 24th.

POLL THE LAST VOTE.

Whatever may be the political outlook in your township, there is only one possible course open to every citizen who desires to see a continuance of the present honest administration, under which the country has enjoyed twelve years of unprecedented prosperity. That one course is to look after every vote favourable to the Government, and see that it is actually polled as early as possible on election day. By voting early the elector insures himself against being defrauded by possible impersonation, and also leaves himself free to hunt up more dilatory electors. Keep at it till the clock strikes five, never mind if the election of your candidate is a sure thing or a forlorn hope. If he goes in with a thumping majority with your help you will have a right to a share in the rejoicings; if he has been beaten you will have the supreme satisfaction of knowing that you at least did your best to get there.

NOTE THE DIFFERENCE.

Some of the calamity howlers and clamourers for a "tariff as high as the clouds," which Mr. Burnham advocates, assert that the little whiff of business depression in Canada — just passing away—would be cured by a high tariff, the panacea for all national ills. Let us compare. The United States has one of the highest protective tariffs in the world. Has that saved them from hard times? The Democratic candidate for the vice-presidency of the United States addressing the Commercial Travellers' League in New York, on Oct. 19th, said this:

"With two millions of our people out of employment, with five hundred thousand empty freight cars on the railway sidings, with a panic without cause in a time of peace, with the standard of American living reduced because it cannot be supported further, with poverty and idleness among millions of honest and deserving men, with paternalism on the one hand and socialism on the other, what shall we do?"

This is a glowing picture to be painted on the high tariff canvas. It was not over-drawn, for the facts asserted were presented to a company of hard-headed business men, who from the nature of their calling would have personal knowledge of the conditions recalled to their attention.

What a contrast to conditions in Canada! We have of course had a whiff of depression, but nothing like that set forth above. We can't get cars enough to move our crops fast enough to meet the demand. Our railway business is picking up. Our custom revenue, which showed a temporary decline, is stiffening and this is a reliable index of improving commercial conditions. What would we do with a "tariff as high as the clouds," which Mr. Burnham advocates? We had such a tariff in the days before 1896, and we all remember what the conditions were then. It was Egyptian darkness "that might be felt"—in every pocket, in every home, in every factory.

We have similar conditions in the United States under "a tariff as high as the clouds." What do we want with a tariff that creates or permits such conditions?

We don't want any such thing. We want to let well enough alone, in fact very good, alone. We have a rationally adjusted tariff that is fair to everybody; helps the manufacturer and necessarily the working man; does not lay heavy burdens on the consumer and produces an abounding revenue.

Do the politicians take the people for fools? Do they think that the electors do not think? Do they think the electors don't know which side of their bread is buttered? Do they think that the electors don't know the difference it will make to their interests by having a working, practical and experienced business representative, and a dreamer who may be an ornament to society but would be a load as a representative public man?

The people of Peterborough and West Peterborough are, by no means, fools. They can see, they can weigh, the contrast all the way down between the conditions under a high tariff and a rational business tariff, and between a live business representative and a would-be representative who lacks the essential qualifications of experience, business instinct and business energy, which should mark the representative of a live, bustling, growing and ambitious city, a great manufacturing and commercial centre like Peterborough.

In regard to Government, let well enough alone.

In regard to a representative choose the man whose ability has been proven, whose good will has been for a score of years in evidence. In a word, choose as representative the man who will make the best member for West Peterborough.

CAMPAIGN COMMENTS.

Work wins the day.

Let there be no let up till 5 o'clock Oct. 26th.

Burnham's name will come first on the ballot paper, Stratton's last. See that the Scripture is fulfilled.

Then shall the first be last—in the ducking.

Just five days more before West Peterborough has another live representative.

In the language of the prize ring, it won't hurt the Conservative candidate to "put him asleep" next Monday—politically; he won't notice the change.

Burnham is a good natured fellow —did you see that extensive smile on his picture? Don't cross him—mark your cross opposite the name Stratton.

Liberals work till 5 o'clock, Oct. 26.- You can rest then and take a smoke, lighting your pipes at a bon fire celebrating a Liberal victory.

Stratton or Burnham—doing or dreaming—which do you prefer?

The Conservative party has too many leaders—and not enough voters.

Liberal voters in town and county—you have done nobly. Now buckle down to work for four days more. See that your own vote is polled early and every other vote you can bring in.

Mr. Burnham's supporters will make business hum—there will be a great run on flannels on Oct. 26th—a very cold day.

Will Mr. Burnham kindly tell us whether he is a Borden or a Foster Conservative?

What working man would like to return to the conditions of 1896?

Vote for Stratton.

The Conservative commercial traveller who always prophesies a sweeping Conservative victory has at last turned up in Nova Scotia. He will turn down next Monday.

After all, don't you think you had better vote for Stratton and be doubly on the winning side — win your vote—and win a first-class representative for West Peterborough?

Canada needs statesmen, not wire pullers.

VOTE FOR STRATTON.

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE.

The area of Canada is about equal to that of the United States. In extent of natural resources the two countries are on an even footing. In population and development the proportion stands as fourteen to one against us.

Such being the conditions the most imperative need of the Dominion is statesmen of great constructive ability, stupendous energy and undaunted courage at the head of the Government; men with foresight required to build for the future and the capacity and courage to carry into effect the vast enterprises which the situation calls for.

It is important, in a country situated as Canada is, to have men who will do well the things of to-day—who will see that the ordinary services are efficiently carried on; it is doubly important to have men capable of planning and carrying to completion the equipment needed to aid in serving a nation which, ere death closes the eyes of children already born, will furnish homes for 50,000,000 people.

Judged by this standard, how have those now at the helm performed their duty? How does their record compare with that of their predecessors in this particular?

There is nothing in the way of national equipment that is calculated to give more immediate and valuable aid in the development of our latent resources than the improvement of our waterways.

The United States owes its world's primacy in the iron industry to the fact that great freighters are able to carry ore from Lake Superior almost to the city of Pittsburg at nominal cost. The stupendous increase in wheat and corn production of the Western States has been rendered possible by the facilities rendered for the shipment of this produce by water from Chicago.

It is equally essential to the peopling of our West that we shall have a deep, well-lighted waterway from the head of Lake Superior to the ocean. This has been clearly realized by the Laurier Government. In order to provide what was needed, the present Government spent twenty-five million dollars on canals in the eleven years ending 1907, as compared with something over eighteen millions spent by their predecessors in the previous eleven years; it has spent nearly five and a half millions on ocean and river service as compared with a little over two and a quarter millions spent by previous Governments in the same length of time, and it has paid out in eleven years upwards of twelve and a half millions in lighthouse and coastal service, as compared with less than five and a quarter million dollars by Conservative Administrations in the eleven-year period ending with 1896, on the same service.

And with what result? The rate of marine insurance on grain carried by the St. Lawrence route has in seven years been reduced from 90c to 38c per $100, and that route is to-day carrying more grain to the seaboard than is carried by the three principal rival American routes combined.

While the improvement of our waterways was a vital necessity, the building of railways as supplemental to our canal system was also imperative. Under the Liberal Government, railways—public and private — have been built. The railway mileage of the country has been increased by 40 per cent. in eleven years. On extensions and betterments of the Intercolonial and connected railways over twenty-seven millions was spent in the eleven years ending with 1907, as compared with less than eleven and one-quarter millions in the previous eleven. As a result, the Intercolonial has been extended to Montreal, thus making it, with water connection, part of a great trunk system extending from Halifax to Port Arthur. Work has also been well advanced on a second great transcontinental line, of which about one-half will be owned by the people. The Winnipeg-to-Edmonton section of that line is already in operation, and the remainder is being rapidly pushed to completion.

The end is not yet, but vast strides have already been taken in providing transportation equipment commensurate with the needs of a people occupying half a continent.

THE LIBERAL GOVERNMENT OF CANADA HAS BEEN BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE. IT IS A GOVERNMENT WITH THE CAPACITY TO SEE THE NEEDS OF A GREAT NATION, AND THE COURAGE TO MEET THESE NEEDS. AND IN THE CARRYING OUT OF THE FAR-REACHING IMPROVEMENTS UNDERTAKEN IT ADDED ONLY FIVE MILLIONS TO THE PUBLIC DEBT IN THE ELEVEN YEARS ENDING WITH 1907, AS AGAINST SIXTY-TWO MILLIONS ADDED IN THE ELEVEN YEARS PRIOR TO 1896.

A WEAK-BACKED ROOR-BACK.

The latest Conservative roorback is so weak that it will likely lose its job very soon. It is to the effect that the Liberal Government has been guilty of paying wages on contracts at less than the current rate.

This roorback is weak because it is self-evidently false. All through this campaign there has never been a charge that the Liberal Government has been false to labour. There couldn't be such a charge—it would be laughed out of court as this roorback is soon to be. Every intelligent workingman, and the workingmen are not fools, knows that a Conservative Government has never done a thing—outside of Labour Day—to help the interests of labour.

Every intelligent workingman knows that all the beneficent legislation that covers our statute books on hundreds of pages, was passed by the Liberal Government of the day.

Let us briefly recall the chief facts:

It was under the present Government that sweating in Government contracts was abolished and forbidden.

It was under the present Government that the payment of fair wages was made compulsory, not only upon Government works, but upon railways subsidized with public money. It is therefore foolish to expect workingmen to believe that the Government has suddenly reversed the policy inaugurated by itself and enforced by a staff of vigilant officers strongly in sympathy with the cause of labour. The gentlemen in charge of the roorback department of the Conservative campaign ought to have selected some falsehood which bore upon its face an air of probability, or at least possibility.

In the present case the roorback is falsified by the record of the Government, by its present attitude, and by its announced intentions in regard to the treatment of labour questions.

Before the Government came into power the establishment of a bureau of labour was talked of just as there was talk of a preferential tariff and of a policy that would people the Canadian West.

Under the Liberal Government these things were not only talked of, but done.

A labour department was organized and placed under the charge of Mr. King, whose zeal and energy the most rabid partisan would not deny. Mr. King is now the Liberal candidate in North Waterloo. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has announced that the work will not only be carried on, but extended, by placing the department under the control of a Minister of Labour.

The labour roorback is so weak in the back that one feels almost sorry for it.

Which party will do most for the cause of labour—the party that prates and has done all that has been done, and it is a great deal; or the party that preaches at election time and does nothing by stretches of eighteen years.

CANADAS COMMANDING POSITION.

Every Canadian who has a loyal libre in his heart will feel the exultant thrill of patriotic pride upon reviewing these simple facts as set forth by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in his address to the people of Ottawa on Saturday. And it is all important to every man who loves his country, who takes pride in its progress, and who is willing to give grateful recognition to the forces that have accomplished the great advancement that in the past decade we have attained, to listen to the trumpet sound of confident ambition for a great Canadian destiny set forth from the lips of a Premier who believes in his country, in reviewing the progress we have made. The peanut politicains of Peterborough may well hang their heads in shame to be confronted with these magnificent results that have been reached by the expenditures for immigration, against which they have so loudly declaimed. Speaking on Saturday, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said: "The tide of immigration had been turned toward Canada, and in place of a steady flow of emigration to the south there was now a growing influx of American farmers to the Canadian West. The total immigration of over one million people to Canada during the last decade meant AN ECONOMIC INCREASE IN THE COUNTRY'S WEALTH OF OVER ONE BILLION DOLLARS. The American settlers in the West alone, the very best class of settlers, brought to Canada with them in cash and settlers' effects fifty millions in the last twelve years, and their investments in lands, clothing, etc., totalled nothing short of $350,000,000. LAST YEAR ALONE THE VALUE OF MANUFACTURED GOODS SENT TO THE WEST FROM EASTERN CANADA TOTALLED OVER SIXTY MILLIONS. That was one answer to Mr. Borden's challenge. A second answer lay in the adoption of the preferential tariff, and the success which had followed the revisions of the general tariff in 1897 and 1907. Trade had grown by leaps and bounds, increasing from $230,000,000 in 1896 to $650,000,000 in 1908. Canada and the electors at large, including the electors of West Peterborough, cannot be blind to the advance this country has made under twelve years of large-minded, statesmanlike government. If we wish to continue in the like path of progress we must retain the Administration that has achieved such results.

CANADA SELF GOVERNING.

"Twelve years ago," said Sir Wilfrid Laurier at Ottawa on Saturday, "Canada's place in the Empire was vaguely understood. We did not wish to separate from the Old Land, but we were not content with a mere colonial status. Now we know where we are, an autonomous nation within the British Empire, with CANADA FIRST AMONG THE GREAT GALAXY OF NATIONS SURROUNDING THE CENTRAL POWER. When this Government goes out of office, which will not be this time, above the din of all this petty politics will stand THIS GREAT FACT, THAT WE HAVE SOLVED THIS PROBLEM, THE UNITY OF THE EMPIRE, BASED ON LOCAL AUTONOMY."

All patriotic citizens will rejoice that the obscure Canada of a dozen years ago has emerged into the very front rank in the Empire of young nations, and not only that, but she has attracted the regard of other nations, who view with surprise and admiration or concern—as their interests are affected—the rise of a new empire in the West. Statesmanship has done it, and this statesmanship is represented by the Liberal Government of Canada, which, in the brief space of twelve years, have worked such a grand revolution in our national standing, and have only begun a work which, seeing how well qualified they are, they should be allowed to finish—not finish, but continue to carry on. The impulse thus given to Canada's growth will not be finished till the whole of our millions of unteanted acres are peopled and subjected to the forces of development. The work of Canada's progress will not be finished — unless the world should fall into unworthy hands. The Liberal Government, which has done the work, should be given a further opportunity to continue.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Wonders will not cease. The Toronto World elects a Liberal in Centre Toronto.

Election forecasts give the Liberal Government a majority, certain—its size from 40 to 80. Election certainties declare the election of Stratton by a majority of from 500 to 1,000.

A hot fight all over the Dominion —only two candidates out of 200 were elected yesterday by acclamation — Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Rouville, P.Q., and W. F. Maclean, South York.

In eighteen years the Conservative Government increased the public debt by 118 millions of dollars. In twelve years the Liberals increased the public debt by only 5 millions of dollars.

The sportiest Conservative sympathiser won't bet at any odds on a simple majority for Stratton. He wants cent per cent odds on 500, and won't look at even money on a 1,000. He might think of giving odds on 2,000.

His city lady, who takes an interest in politics, is opposed to Mr. Burnham's election. It would be a pity, she thinks to send the only honest man in West Peterborough—according to himself and his friends—to be spoilt among the temptations of Ottawa.

In eighteen years the Conservative Government increased the public debt by 118 millions, and only spent 65 millions on public improvements; that is, had to borrow over 50 millions to meet current expenses. Do the electors want to return to things like that?

Mr. Borden in a manifesto—a sort of high-grade roorback—professes to go into the work of creation. He promises "if returned to power a Cabinet worthy of the high ideals of the people of Canada." Where will he get the material to meet this condition unless he creates it—it doesn't exist in his following.

The contract for the construction of new carshops, etc., for the Winnipeg terminals of the National Transcontinental Railway has been awarded to Thomas Kelly & Sons of Winnipeg. The tender calls for the expenditure of about $500,000, and the work will be started at once, thus giving employment to several hundreds of men during the coming winter.

The C. P. R. is double tracked from Fort William to Winnipeg, and is now to be double tracked from Winnipeg to the coast. Here's a chance for a knock from Mr. Burnham, the Conservative candidate, who declares the C. P. R. is not justified as a business enterprise. How would Peterborough like being represented by a man like that in Parliament? And he talks just as good sense about everything else in the way of politics.

Two Enthusiastic Stratton Meetings Held In Galway Township Yesterday

Large Gatherings of Electors at Silver Lake and Union Creek Proclaim Hon. J. R. Stratton as Our Next Representative in Tye House of Commons---Ernest Speech by Galway Pioneer Reminds Settlers of What Liberal Candidate Has Done For Their Welfare.

At three o'clock on Monday there was a large gathering of the farmers of the district at Silver Lake hall, in Galway. Not before in the history of the township had there been so large and representative a gathering.

Mr. John Coulter

Mr. John Coulter, who was unanimously elected chairman of the meeting, said that fifty years ago he had come as a settler to Galway. Shortly after they had had Mr. Conger, who gave the glad hand to the electors whose votes he wanted, but after he was elected they saw him no more. They had then Col. Haultain, who had made great promises of what was to be done for the welfare of the district, and they had given him their confidence, and he also had disappeared from the view of the people of Galway. But, as they had learned, each of these gentlemen had landed in profitable government positions. But in 1896 there came before them James R. Stratton, to whom also they had given their confidence. He had entered into the needs of the community, he had seen where roads required improvements, and where new roads could be constructed to the advantage of the settlers, and he had not only noted these needs of the settlers, but as soon as he was elected, he had set about to help the condition of the northern settlers. Mr. Stratton had recognized where there was a road to be built, or some old road to be rebuilt, or some highway to be repaired, upon which the interests of the farmers hinged, and they soon had those things done. He had seen that a school house was provided at Silver Lake, and by his personal attention had also seen that they had a deed for the property. As they knew, Silver Lake had been dependent on the poor school grant, and in one year Mr. Stratton had caused this grant to be doubled; he had seen that means were provided for the outbuildings of the school, and later had presented the school with a splendid and valuable globe-chart. (Applause). This work that Mr. Stratton had done for the small portion of the riding was only characteristic of what he had done for other portions of the county, and he only brought forward these facts to show the practical and sincere interest that Mr. Stratton had taken in their affairs, when he was given influence as their member to help them. In the expenditure of the colonization roads money, Mr. Stratton had not only been careful to see that it was wisely expended for their welfare, but had placed it at the disposal of every man without regard to his politics. He had treated Grit and Tory alike, and he thought they could not do better than to send to the House of Commons at Ottawa, the man, J. R. Stratton, who had shown such close attention to their affairs. (Applause).

Mr. R. R. Hall

said it was most important that a thoroughly capable business man should represent West Peterborough which has so many important varied interests. The manufacturers, mechanics and workingmen of Peterborough are interested in having changes made in the tariff from time to time to meet the ever changing business conditions. It takes a man of varied business experience to appreciate the highly complicated nature of the tariff where part of the goods are admitted free of duty and where one manufacturer's raw material is another manufacturer's finished product. Many important public works have been constructed for the benefit of Peterborough during these last four years, such as building of docks and wharves and improvement of the completed portion of the canal, the building of armouries, the improvement of our rural mail service and the establishment of mail delivery throughout the City of Peterborough, much to the advantage and convenience of every resident of Peterborough. The maintenance of the swing bridges over the Trent Canal formerly paid for by the county has been taken over by the Government and they have been maintained and operated by the Government at a cost of about $2,500 per year, which is a saving of that much money every year to the County of Peterborough for all time to come. Now, coming to the Young's Point improvements, he reminded them that the old wooden bridge at Young's Point was built over the locks so that while boats were being locked through traffic had been suspended. When the attention of the Government had been called to this inconvenience, the authorities of the Public Works Department was energetically appealed to and as a result a new steel bridge has been built across the canal so that traffic is not now delayed. (Applause). In addition to this one of the most important works that has been undertaken by the Dominion Government in recent years has been to take steps to conserve the waters of the Kawartha Lakes so as to preserve high water in the rivers and lakes of the Trent Waterway system. If it had not been for the conservation dams that have been repaired and rebuilt within this last few years he believed it would have been simply impossible to have operated boats on the Otonabee River today, owing to the last three months of continuous drought. It is certain that there would not have been enough surplus water beyond that required for navigation purposes to operate half of the factories in Peterborough. It therefore must be apparent to every one how important it is in the riding to have a thoroughly capable business man like Mr. Stratton, a man who knew all the details of their requirements, to see that the scheme for conservation of these waters is carried out and perfected in a business-like way. (Applause). If our factories run half time by reason of low water it means that a large number of people in the City of Peterborough would be out of employment. If our boats were unable to operate on the Trent Canal waterway during low water it would mean that our farmers in the northern portion of the riding could not market their wood in Peterborough during the fall of the year, which would be much to the disadvantage of the farmers in the northern portion of the riding and more to the disadvantage of the workingmen in Peterborough, who would have to pay higher prices for wood and coal which they could not afford to do. Alluding to the Trent Canal project, he said it was a well known fact that in so far as the railway companies in Canada are concerned, so long as the town or city has not the facilities to get water connection, it is taxed to the utmost limit that a business will stand through having to pay higher freight rates than towns and cities fronting upon the Great Lakes. Peterborough has been handicapped in the past as a manufacturing centre on account of its high freight rates. The completion of the Trent Canal will place Peterborough in a more advantageous position, and lead to its great development, so that we might look forward to seeing at their doors a great manufacturing centre, that by the requirement of its industrial forces, would create an enlarged field for the marketing of their produce. In all parts of the county that he had visited there seemed to be an unanimous determination to return Hon. Mr. Stratton, who had long and well served them, and it was clear that the people of Galway were in accord with that feeling. (Cheers).

Mr. W. H. Meldrum

was next called upon and presented an interesting review of how the advancement of the city and county of Peterborough, had been conducted by the wise, prudent and enterprising policy of the government along the road of progress. He pointed to the greatly increased values of all kinds of property that had been created, to the comfortable homes by which they were surrounded, and the profitable markets by which they were now benefited, right at their own doors, as strong and convincing reasons why the present government should be sustained, and an able, capable, tried and trusted man, of whose good work in their behalf they had all around them the proofs, sent to Ottawa, to represent the people of West Peterborough. (Applause.) From the numbers present, and the spirit they evinced, there was no doubt that this quarter of the county would do yeoman's service in the cause of national progress, and of the Hon. J. R. Stratton as the most available instrument at their command. He was loudly applauded as he concluded with an earnest appeal to leave no stone unturned that might aid, not in Mr. Stratton's election, which might be regarded as a certainty, but of his return by a majority that would be a source of pride to all the friends of good government, of the candidate and of the great Canadian future to which we look forward, in the achievement of which Hon. J. R. Stratton was recognized as one of the master builders. (Applause.)

Hon. J. R. Stratton

was received with a demonstration of affectionate regard that must have touched even that old campaigner, by its evident spontaneity and sincerity. Referring to what had been said by their chairman of his attention to the public works of the district, and the good results of which they had had the substantial evidence in their everyday experience, he claimed to have done no more than the duty which to his mind devolved upon their representative. He felt that he had received a great reward for his efforts, not only in the knowledge that their welfare and comfort and happiness had been through his means in some measure advanced, but also in that kind expression of confidence and sympathy which they extended to him to-day, as they had always done in the past. (Loud applause.) When he went to Ottawa, where they were going to send him (great applause), they might be sure that no effort that it would be within his power to exert would be unemployed, no energy relaxed, in the endeavour to see that so far as the fair appropriation of public money was concerned, West Peterborough would get its just share, or he would know the reason why. He was proud and gratified to believe that the electors of the riding knew that they could rely upon his fidelity to their interests, and it would be the care of his life that they should never have reason to regret it. (Loud applause.)

The meeting was concluded with enthusiastic cheers for the candidate and the King.

MEETING AT UNION CREEK

At the Union Creek school house on Monday evening the largest gathering of the residents of the district that has ever been assembled, greeted Hon. J. R. Stratton as the future member for West Peterborough. The meeting was organized by the selection for chairman of Mr. Christopher Grainer. Mr. Grainer in taking the chair, said that he had no need to introduce to their favourable notice such a man as their old and tried friend, Hon. J. R. Stratton. (Loud cheers.) The practical benefits which the people here had received at the hands of Mr. Stratton, or resulting out of his diligent and faithful labours in their cause, were as well known to the audience as to him, and the monuments of which were all about them in their highways and other public improvements by which they had benefited. Mr. Stratton, as they would agree, had looked after their interests in a way that no other representative ever had done. (Applause.)

Mr. W. H. Meldrum

was then introduced, and in an energetic and eloquent speech dwelt upon what the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier had accomplished in the past twelve years to bring happiness into the homes and prosperity into the financial standing of the farmers of West Peterborough. Referring to the candidate, Hon. Mr. Stratton, he said that gentleman needed no recommendation to their good will. Mr. Stratton had made an enduring place for himself in their hearts, by means of what he had done to promote their interests. He (Mr. Stratton) was not a man of loud promise but he was a man of faithful performance. (Loud applause.) What he had done for them in the past they all well knew; and they might have good faith that in a larger field of influence his experience and his ability would assure for them great results. (Applause.)

R. R. Hall, ex-M.P.

Mr. R. R. Hall made an eloquent and practical speech showing how well the administration of Sir Wilfrid had served the people of Canada, and how important it was for them to have at Ottawa a representative who had the experience, the ability, the public influence, and the devotion to their welfare that they all knew were centered in Hon. J. R. Stratton, who was to be their next representative in the House of Commons.

Hon. J. R. Stratton,

on coming forward received a greeting that must have cheered him, and given him an abiding assurance of where the heart of Galway lay. He dwelt for a time upon the local works that had been secured for the benefit of the people of that district, and in which he felt it a peculiar pride to know that he had been the leading instrument. But they were not to be satisfied with that. There were other improvements that were still wanting to build up the northern part of Peterborough county, and which he was going to Ottawa to secure. (Cheers.) One of the resources of this county was the unrivalled advantages with which nature had endowed the district in scenic beauty that yearly brought among them the tourist world, that was a great source of income and advantage. Much might be done to make these advantages still more attractive by a judicious and liberal expenditure upon local public works; and he believed that it was the duty of the Government, and he would urge that matter upon them when sent to Parliament, to provide for the restocking of the streams, which brought so many thousands yearly from abroad to spend their holidays, and their means as well, among them, with the fish that had made the district famous. Fish hatcheries should be established along our waters by whose means there would be afforded not only an unlimited field for the sportsman, but also a supply for the breakfast tables of the people of the district. (Cheers.) Mr. Stratton went on to recount how the policy of the present government had advanced their interests in providing a local market that grew out of the progress of manufacturing industries in Peterborough, and dwelt in glowing terms upon the great future that was before Canada, in which the people of this county would have no small share, if the grand march of progress which was being led by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, were unimpeded. (Cheers.) They all knew how well he had endeavoured to serve them in the past by means of his influence in the Legislature of Ontario, and he took pride in the belief that his efforts had not been without results for their benefit, and still more pride in the fact that he was accorded some credit for what had been done, (applause), and he could promise them that when he was sent to Ottawa on Monday next by their votes, and the votes of the other progressive and loyal citizens of West Peterborough, it would be the ambition of his life to do all in his power, by the exercise of every faculty, of every ability, and of every influence that he could put forth, to strengthen the confidence that had been so generously extended to him. (Loud applause.)

Cheers for the candidate and the King closed a most successful meeting.

ART CLASS TO BE OPENED

Lucila W. Thorton, honour graduate in Fine Arts in the Gold Medal standing of Albert College, Belleville, will open a class of instruction at the well-known institution, the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, in Oil, Water Colour and China Painting, also miniatures on ivory; crayon, pencil, charcoal drawing and designing. She will be pleased to receive pupils at the above address for instruction in any of the above branches.

Work In Wm. Hamilton Foundry To Begin Soon

Company of Local Capitalists Being Organized — Welcome News For The Working Men.

IS STRONG FINANCIALLY

From one end of Canada to the other among the vast lumbering industries there is no machinery better known and more appreciated than that manufactured by the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company, of Peterborough. All the large saw mills in the Dominion have been equipped with their machinery and the greatest satisfaction with it has always been expressed.

The new company which has been recently formed to continue the business, is receiving letters from old customers from all parts of the country expressing the utmost pleasure and satisfaction that the plant is to be continued. These customers, one and all, say that it is a veritable hardship to keep their machinery in repair without the help of the William Hamilton Company.

For years back the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company has turned out new machinery to the extent of upwards of $200,000 a year. As the company has all the patterns and drawings of the parts of each machine, it is only natural that there is the only place the customers can secure repairs at a reasonable cost. To keep in repair the millions of dollars' worth of machinery they have manufactured in the past, which is distributed far and wide, is one of the chief sources of profit to the company. This work alone keeps the plant busy for several months in the course of each year.

About four months ago, Mr. Baker, a large lumber merchant of New Zealand, came to Canada to study the conditions of the lumbering industry here. He naturally went to British Columbia and there found most of the saw mills equipped with William Hamilton machinery and heard nothing but praise and satisfaction expressed for it. He came to Ontario and spent six weeks between Toronto and Peterborough trying to get the works here to take an order for over $30,000 worth of machinery for his mills in New Zealand. As the new company was not then organized he had to place his order elsewhere. But this illustrates how easy it is for the plant here to secure all the work and business they can handle.

Requests every day are coming in for quotations on saw-mill machinery, waterwheels, boilers and engines, now that it is known the plant is about to resume operation. There are also a large number of repair jobs waiting.

Every indication points to the passing away of the hard times the country has experienced during the last two years and the new company is ready to start with the new era of prosperity. There is plenty of work ahead for it and when it starts nothing can retard its progress but lack of capital. Capital, however, will be supplied by Peterborough people.

In a few days there will be given to everybody an opportunity to invest in this company. The entire plant has been purchased at an extremely low figure—at an immense bargain in fact, and everyone can share in the bargain if they accept it in time.

WHAT NEGLECT DID FOR HIM

Jas. E. Brant Suffered Torments From Kidney Diseases.

Then He Used Dodd's Kidney Pills and Became a Well Man—His Experience a Lesson for You.

Athabasca Landing, Alta., Oct. 19.—Special.—That Kidney Disease, neglected in its earlier stages, leads to the most terrible suffering, if not death itself, and that the one sure cure for it in all stages is Dodd's Kidney Pills, is the experience of Mr. James E. Brant, a farmer residing near here.

Mr. Brant contracted Kidney Disease when a young man, from a strain, and, like hosts of others, neglected it, expecting it to go away itself.

But he kept gradually growing worse till after thirty years of increasing suffering the climax came, and he found himself so crippled that at times he could not turn in bed, and for two weeks at a time it was impossible for him to rise from a chair without putting his hands on his knees.

He could not button his clothes. He was troubled with Lumbago, Gravel and Backache, and tried medicines for each and all of them without getting relief till good luck turned him to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Dodd's Kidney Pills started at the cause of his troubles and cured his Kidneys. With cured Kidneys his other troubles speedily disappeared, and to-day he is a well man.

If you cure your Kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills you will never have Lumbago, Rheumatism, Heart Disease, Dropsy, or Bright's Disease.

DOMINION ELECTIONS

TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST PETERBOROUGH:

FELLOW ELECTORS:

The time is near for the election of a representative of this Riding to the Dominion Parliament.

Much as I would like to see you all personally, it may not be possible for me to do so before election day, so I adopt this method of presenting my appeal, especially to as many as possible of those I cannot see, for your support.

In convention assembled, my friends, unsolicited, conferred on me the honour of selecting me as a candidate, therefore, I am now before you in that character, soliciting your votes and influence for me at the coming election. Having had the honour of being before you previously in the same character, I flatter myself that I do not need any personal introduction to you. Although I was then defeated, I was not discredited. I conducted clean election campaigns and did nothing to be ashamed of. I have been with and among you all my life, have taken an active part in your public and local affairs, and, being a farmer myself, I have given much attention to such matters and questions as are of special interest to farmers. I have had the honour of representing the municipality in which I live as Reeve and Councillor for a number of years, and at all times I have endeavoured to perform my duties efficiently, fairly and honourably, and in such manner as to shew myself worthy of your good will and support. Therefore, I trust you have reason to judge favourably of my ability to perform the important duties of your representative advantageously to the Riding and creditably to myself. While in politics I am a Liberal-Conservative, I have never been a blind partizan. I shall never consider myself bound to support my party, except when I believe them to be right and acting in the best interests of our country, and can give you a reason for, and justify in my own conscience, at least, the course I shall think it my duty to take as your honoured representative.

In matters pertaining to our County, should you honour me with your confidence and elect me as your representative, I shall always consider my services at your command, and it will be my pleasure to consistently and properly render a good service to a political opponent as cheerfully as to a party associate. I have carefully studied the requirements of this Riding and district and am already familiar with the same, and you will ever find me ready and willing to do my utmost to advance the best interests of our own district, and especially those of East Peterborough, irrespective of local, personal or political considerations.

I trust my position, thus stated, which I consider is the proper one for a representative of the people to take, will have your approval and merit your most generous support irrespective of party.

I hope to have an opportunity during the campaign of addressing you at public meetings on some of the many political questions which are at present interesting and agitating the people. Meantime I appeal to all my friends, and those who desire honest and economical administration of public affairs and are in sympathy with the Liberal-Conservative platform, to rally to my support and promote an active and enthusiastic campaign in my behalf, and thus for better government, and to see the careless ones and invite them to the polls to cast their ballots for me and the cause of better Government. I trust those whom I will not be able to see personally will be no less active in my behalf on that account. It is time for a change at Ottawa.

I will never forget to be deeply grateful to all those who have so generously and kindly supported me in the past. I shall always be sincerely thankful for, and now again respectfully solicit your votes, influence and active support until the close of the elections on the 26th day of October. Promising you my very best efforts in your behalf, and in the cause of good government, if elected. I am,

Your obedient servant,

JOHN A. McSWEATH.

DAYS OF DIZZINESS

Come to Many Peterboro' People

There are days of dizziness, spells of drowsiness, headache, sideache, backache.

Sometimes rheumatic pain after urinary trouble.

You are plainly told that the Kidneys are sick.

Booth's Kidney Pills cure all Kidney ills.

Mrs. A. Graham, 547 Water street, Peterborough, Ont., says: "My back was so weak and tender that I could not turn in my bed. A heavy dull pain had settled across the small of it and caused me almost constant suffering. I became weak and languid. I was run down generally and had little ambition to move around. Headaches were frequent and often accompanied by spells of dizziness. Spots would dazzle before my eyes and I would be unable to see. I had tried numerous remedies without getting results. Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at McDermid & Jury's Pharmacy. I tried them and soon found relief. The kidneys were quickly regulated, and each and every symptom of kidney trouble was quickly cured. I am glad to recommend Booth's Kidney Pills, as I believe them to be the best and most reliable of all kidney remedies." Sold by dealers. Price, 50 cents. The R. T. THE INTHON BIBLE CLASS

Splendid Meeting Held on Sunday Afternoon—Address by Mr. W. E. Dyer—Have Class Artist

LITERARY ENTERTAINMENT

The Inthon Bible Class of the George Street Methodist Church had a full house on Sunday afternoon. Fifty members and nine visitors, and Mr. Robertson's class, who kindly paid the Inthons a visit, were present.

Mr. W E Dyer, secretary-treasurer the Adult Department of the Toronto Sunday School Association, was present and gave a splendid address on the methods of Bible class work, in place of the regular lesson discussion. Mr. Dyer is an able speaker on Bible class work and is earnestly interested in the welfare of young men. That crowd of fellows you saw going down George street Sunday afternoon were not looking for the Mysterious "Mr. E.," but were members of the Inthon Class going to the Grand to hear the temperance meeting. Fifty-one members marched down, headed by "Col. Bobs," chairman of the Membership Committee. Mr. F A Sisson, the class artist, knows how to handle the crayons all right, by the manner in which he decorated the class blackboard.

The class are both sorry and glad for Mr. G. Deprose, chairman of the Visiting Committee and his assistants. Sorry that he and his workers haven't anything to do. Glad that none of the class are sick to keep him busy. However, he will be right "on the job" when any sickness turns up.

Mr. E G Clark, chairman of the Devotional Committee, thinks that a few of the members should volunteer to take charge of a class in the Sunday school in the absence of any of the regular teachers.

All are no doubt anxious to hear more about that literary entertainment that is going to take place on Friday night next, under the supervision of Mr. R J Soden, chairman of the Literary Committee. Particulars will be found in another column.

A splendid feature of the Inthon Bible Class is the friendly hand-shake at the close of the discussion. It makes a fellow forget that lonely feeling and want to come back.

All the men residents and visitors to Peterborough who come to the class will be given the glad hand and made to feel as much at home as possible.—Com.

GETTING ON FAMILIAR TERMS

("My friends, if you knew the boys who build the newspapers as I know them; if you but knew their warm familiarity, your evening paper would be a treasure to you."—Dr. Goodwin Rice. Precisely so, doctor. Hence this introduction:)

This way, our friend; see yonder scribe?
He guides the fortunes of the sheet.
Tread lightly, please, around his throne;
Our readers, we would have you meet
"The Old Man."

Disturb him not but come with us;
That fellow yonder digs the pith
From all the news that happens in
This teeming town; shake flippers with
"The City Desk."

And here's another who contrives
To liven up your Daily Wheeze
By toiling at the linotype—
Our friend, shake hands — your RIGHT one please—
With "Slug One."

We hope you're not so awfully good
That it would shock you through and through
And make you think we're pagan folks,
If we should introduce you to
"The Devil!"

Now since you know us and observe
Our warm familiarite-e-e-
We hope your paper every night
A treasure, rare indeed, will be—
Come in again!

NOVEL IDEA TO HELP TOBOGGANING

Toronto Man Has Suggestion to Install Gas Engine to Pull Them Up Hills

IT WOULD ADD PLEASURE

There is a proposal in Toronto to use a gas engine this winter to make tobogganing more enjoyable by eliminating the tedious work of dragging the toboggans up the hill to the top of the slide. Mr. R. MacGowan has asked for permission to install an engine to do the work mentioned.

Those who use the slides do not need to be informed that all the fun is confined to the going-down part of the performance, and the hauling of toboggan or sleigh up the long grade again does not add any pleasure to the game.

This is the fact that has suggested to Mr. MacGowan the possibility of doing business on his own account and at the same time helping the people to enjoy themselves better.

He asks permission to install a two horse power gasoline engine, with pulleys and an endless wire rope for the purpose of drawing up the empty toboggans and sleighs from the bottom of the hill to the starting point.

IMPORTANT SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY

A Clinical Preparation That Positively Kills the Dandruff Germ

A most important discovery has been made after a year's patient laboratory work aimed in a certain direction. It is Newbro's Herpicide, a preparation that prevents falling hair, and speedily and permanently eradicates dandruff. These evils are caused by a germ or parasite that burrows into the scalp, throwing up dandruff as it seeks to sap the life of the hair at the root. There's no baldness without falling or thin hair, no thin hair without dandruff, and no dandruff if the germ is destroyed. Newbro's Herpicide is the only preparation that will do the work. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes, 50c and $1. McDermid & Jury, corner George and Charlotte streets, and Payne Drug Store, corner Simcoe and George streets, Special Agents.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE YERKES TELESCOPE

Observatory Cost $50,000 and the Telescope $125,000.

Mr. Warner of the firm of Warner nd Swazey, Cleveland, O., comes to Peterborough to lecture before the Royal Astronomical Society. The firm of Warner & Swazey is the one which built the structural iron work of the mounting of the Yerkes telescope, after the plan of Sir Howard Grubbe, Dublin, Ireland. This, as all astronomers know, is located in the Yerkes Observatory, on the shore of Williams Bay, Lake Geneva, Wisconsin.

The Yerkes Observatory was five years in building and cost $50,000, the gift of Charles T. Yerkes. The telescope cost $125,000. It has a 40-inch objective, and is 65 feet in focal length. The glass was manufactured by Mantays, and the objective by Alvin Clark & Sons of Cambridgeport, Mass. The weight of the telescope is fifteen tons, and of the objective, half a ton. It is managed by one man.

Canada's Growing Demand For Men TO Spread The Gospel

Subject of Address at Epworth League Convention at Methodist Church Yesterday—New Officers Elected—Address by Rev. Mr. Rogers.

VERY LARGE ATTENDANCE

One of the special addresses delivered at the 17th Annual Convention of the Peterborough District Epworth Leagues, which was held in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church yesterday, was that in which Rev. W. P. Rogers, B.A., made an appeal to young men. It was at the evening session and a large attendance graced the meeting, showing the interest which is being taken in Epworth League work.

Rev. Mr. Rogers in his introductory remarks stated that greater attention was being paid to the young men of to-day than in ages of the past. The custom of the Golden Age of Greece has suffered a complete reversal. Then the old men conducted the affairs of the State. The principle followed was the elders for council and the young men for war. A prominent man of to-day has stated, Mr. Rogers said, that a man must make his mark before he reaches thirty, and his life work must be well on to completion at 40.

Powers of Youth

We are spending the best part of our lives in youth. Then our steps are steady, our heart beats strong, our sight is keen and our muscles firm. Our powers of observation and reflection are healthy and strong, and our memories the most retentive.

This is the age of peculiar educational advantages. The world has never seen such opportunities as are now afforded to acquire thorough educational development. It therefore behooves every young man to grasp those facilities for improving himself.

Rev. Mr. Rogers dwelt upon the great call there is to-day for men of sterling character. Vast fields are waiting enlightenment and coming home to our land the Canadian West is demanding hundreds of men, but there is but little response. Dealing with the Methodist Church alone, there was a vast work to be done, he said, and appealed to them to give their lives to the work of the church. By serving God and the Church there was scarcely a better way of serving the country, for on the spiritual status of the people depends the material progress. The need of men to preach the Gospel of Christ in the West was strongly emphasized and the present small supply is impressive of what has to be done.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITIONS

—All cities over the Province are preparing for their exhibition, and Peterborough is no exception to the rule. It is the time we meet our old and new friends, and those who are not our friends. It is also the best time for the introduction of the newest and smartest cuts in fall suits and where they can be shown to the greatest advantage. The New York Ladies' Tailoring establishment have removed their parlours and workshop from 658 George street to 397 Reid street, opposite St. Peter's Cathedral, for the better accommodation of their patrons, and are prepared to take orders in any line of ladies' garments. CONSULT OUR OPTICIAN

The Eye is such a delicate organ that it should never be trifled with. This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

Many opticians take half a dozen or more correspondent courses costing from $7.50 to $25. With this limited knowledge it is little wonder that many are wearing glasses that do not suit them—others that do not require them.

If you have eye-trouble you should consult an optician who has a thorough knowledge of every branch of the optical business. Such a man is our Mr. Taylor.

A WORKINGMAN'S WORD FOR WORKINGMAN'S FRIEND

An Intelligent Workingman's Sensible Sizing-up of the Situation.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—For the third time I address you in regard to the coming election, and it is gratifying to me to know that my efforts in the past were considered practical and fair, even by the Conservative candidate. I am not enough of a politician to believe, or try to make others believe, that all my conclusions are correct. I would regret very much if I were classed amongst those unprincipled correspondents of the Review who so far forget the first rule of common decency as to insult a fellow man over a nom de plume. I say forget for I believe that in the case of one signing himself "A Victoria County Liberal," when he shows such a lack of business tact in writing such an article it is forgetfulness. Those who are intimate with him do not believe he is responsible. To some of us his style of argument is so familiar that we recognized him at once. He was always considered a lightweight. So much so that he is entitled to our sympathy rather than our condemnation. There is another class of the same cowardly character and he is the scandalmonger who has the secret information that will, if listened to, destroy the good work of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in trying to make us a united people. I feel sure that on the 26th of this month this monster of national destruction will get such a setback that he will pass into oblivion as far as politics is concerned. It is a well-known fact that the West Riding of Peterborough contains a great many independent and silent voters, and they have shown in the past that they have used their franchise intelligently, and I believe they are going to do so again on this occasion by supporting Hon. J. R. Stratton. One has only to look over the names of those on Mr. Burnham's nomination paper and he will see at a glance that those supporting him are "dyed-in-the-wool" Tories, and that they are such partizans that they would sacrifice the interests of our city and county in order to help the party to win. Partyism, in my opinion, is the curse of this Canada of ours. Let us once again show to the people of Ontario that if some of our towns and cities like Toronto, Lindsay and Belleville are blind to their best interests, we know a good thing when we see it. Mr. Burnham must have a poor opinion of the intelligence of the people when he tries to influence them with his dramatic nonsense and socialistic ideas. We must look at these ideas the same as Goldwin Smith, not worth consideration until they are shown to be practical.

A few years ago we showed that we appreciated Mr. Stratton's worth, and he is worth more to-day to the business interests of our city than he was at that time. Now, it is not on account of a fickle mind that Mr. Burnham changed his opinion of him. It was a matter of business. It was time for a change with him, after the way he wiggled in Galway and denied that he was responsible for what appears in his own paper as news. I have known for some time that he was not the whole thing, but did not expect he would acknowledge it before the 26th.

The argument of the woollen mill men has been worked to such an extent that I have given it some consideration, and for fear I may be wrong, I will give you some facts and let you draw your own conclusions. Some years ago there came to this country a number of woollen goods manufacturers from England and began business. Their dividends were so great that they were able to live in idleness and educate their sons and daughters abroad. How was this accomplished? Not by high tariff. It was done by the low wages they paid those whom they employed, and if the woollen industries are not paying the dividends to-day that they did a few years ago, it is not because the toilers are getting a larger share of the profits. Manufacturers of woollens are allowed to import their raw material at an almost nominal rate, while they have a very high protection for their finished goods. Five million pounds of shoddy was imported by them last year at 7 1-2 per cent. duty. They imported over a million dollars worth of yarns at 12 1-2 per cent. On the finished blankets made by them they have a protection of 22 1-2 per cent. on socks, 25 per cent. on stockings, and on tweeds 30 per cent. This is the measure of protection against British competition, while against German goods it runs as high as 50 per cent. Would the Government be justified in making the conditions so favourable as to allow them to create a monopoly? Let the workingman think for himself and he cannot help but see how false some of the arguments of the Opposition are. It would be a waste of time to deal at any length with most of them—the hard times argument, for instance. Do we not know that times would be slack, no matter what Government was in power? The Liberal Government is not responsible for the shortage of money all over the world, but this is a sample of their ridiculous arguments.

Let us show that we are still awake to our own interests on the 26th of October by casting our vote for the workingman's friend, Hon. J. R. Stratton.

WORKINGMAN.

STEREOPTICON VIEWS ON THE LIFE OF CHRIST

A large number gathered at St. Andrew's school room last night, to see the stereopticon views of the Life of Christ, which were shown by Mr. W. E. Dwyer of Toronto, who is the Canadian manager and lecturer for the world famous Tissot society. The entertainment was under the auspices of the Young People's Society and it was most successful. The views included many scenes from the Old Testament as well as those beautiful pictures of Tissot, the inspired painter of the life of Christ. The chair was taken by Rev. J. G. Potter and Rev. Riddiford of Park street Baptist Church, led in prayer.

GAME POSTPONED FOR A WEEK

T. A. A. C. Will Not be Here Until a Week From To-morrow

The T. A. S. Athletic Club's team will not have to meet the Toronto A. A. C. in the return game here on Saturday, as was expected. A telephone message received from the Toronto bunch last night asked to have the game postponed for a week, and as the locals were willing the transfer was arranged. It will give the Peterborough bunch a chance to get into shape, and they will practice industriously in the interval. A full practice is called for to-morrow night, when Dr. A. W. McPherson will be out to coach the team.

YANKEE ROGERS TO MEET YOUNG HACKENSCMIDT HERE NEXT MONTH

After considerable correspondence Yankee Rogers and Young Hackenschmidt have been matched to wrestle here on Friday October the 30th. The bout will be for a guaranteed purse, the winner to get 75 per cent. and the loser 25 per cent.. Hack has been after Rogers for some time and when asked if he would meet the big Yank in Peterborough, he jumped at the chance. He is a cousin of the great George Hackenschmidt and has a record, having won from all the top notchers in the country. He is right at home in the catch-as-catch-can game and is considered one of the greatest leg wrestlers in the world and will certainly make Rogers go his fastest to win. Hack weighs 198 pounds so there is only a few pounds difference in the weights of the two men.

Manager Naylor wired to say that Yankee would be tickled to get on the mat with Hack, so a real warm time is expected in this bout. The bout will take place under the management of the Crescent Athletic Club, which has been organized recently, and of which Chris. Graham is president. They intend putting on wrestling and boxing tournaments, and the public can rest assured that they will get a good run for their money, and see high class matches.

HOAGLAND AND HARRISON MAY GET TOGETHER IN MATCHED RACE

Chris. Graham has received a letter from W. A. Hoagland, the champion walker, that he was willing to meet Jim Harrison, the local heel and toe performer, in a match either in Peterborough, or Albany, N. Y.

Harrison is willing to meet Hoagland in a handicap match and says if the Yankee will allow him two miles in a ten-hour race he will get backing to the extent of $250. Hoagland has been wired asking if he would give such handicap to the local man, but he does not seem anxious to go up against the proposition as the following letter will explain.

Albany, N. Y., October, 16th, 1908.
Mr. Chris. Graham,
Peterborough, Ont.
Dear Sir:—I am in receipt of a Peterborough paper of recent date containing a challenge from Mr. James Harrison of your city, wherein he says he will take a two-mile start in a ten-hour race against me.

In reply would say that I have great respect as to the ability of Mr. Harrison as a walker and think the handicap too large. However, if he is anxious for a long race, I will allow him one mile in a nine-hour race for $250 a side, race to take place in Peterborough, or Albany, N. Y., any time before the 15th of November.

I will send my money to you if you will act as stakeholder. Please notify me if anything can be done.

Yours truly,
W. A. HOAGLAND,
Champion Walker of the World.

PROBLEM OF YOUNG MEN DISCUSSED

Morning Session

At the Morning Session the first duty was the appointing of a Nominating Committee, which was selected as follows:

Prof. McCann; Rev. W. P. Rogers, B.A., of Millbrook; Miss N. Sherin, of Lakefield; Mrs. J. George, Peterboro, and Rev. C. H. Coon.

Rev. Mr. Rogers acted as chairman during the afternoon, as the president, Mr. John Tisdall, was unable to be present, owing to illness.

The reports of the various officers and delegates were received, showing in the majority of cases most encouraging conditions.

The New Officers

The result of the Nominating Committee was as follows:

Hon. President: Rev. N. M. Manning.
President: Mr. John Tisdall.
1st Vice Pres.: Mr. Harold Payne, Warsaw.
2nd Vice Pres.: Rev. H. Latimer, Solwyn.
3rd Vice Pres.: Miss N. Sherin, Lakefield.
4th Vice Pres.: Mr. G. F. Horsley, Peterborough.
5th Vice Pres.: Mrs. M. D. Lewis, Peterborough.
Secretary: Prof. McCann.
Treasurer: Mr. Smith Kelly, Bridgenorth.
Representative to the Conference Executive: Rev. C. H. Coon.

There were also added to the Executive, the following:

Miss Stella Mothersington, of Millbrook; Miss Ida Fallis, Millbrook, and Mr. Downey, Peterborough.

Rev. Mr. Henderson presided at the evening session. Rev. H. J. Keith gave an address after Rev. Mr. Rogers. He dealt with the young man problem taking up phases that were untouched by the preceding speaker. He referred to the right which young men have of investing in their existence all the powers with which they are equipped. There are great possibilities, he said, for those young men who first put themselves in right relation with God, and in that way keep themselves steady along the paths of our material existence.

During the afternoon Mr. Pratt sang a solo very acceptably and in the evening the choir's music was of a special nature.

WHAT THE LIBERAL GOVERNMENT HAS DONE FOR AGRICULTURE

No national interest deserves more, and has received more, attention at the hands of the Liberal Government. A splendid series of acts in the interests of farmers, has contributed to a series of splendid results, representing additional prosperity to farmers, during the past 10 or 12 years, and the creation of conditions that promise permanancy of advantage.

When the Liberal Government took office it selected for minister of agriculture a practical farmer thoroughly skilled in the best principles of farming and familiar with its needs for securing the best results.

The tariff was readjusted so as to give the farmer advantages in the purchase of articles used in his calling. The removal or reduction of the duties on the raw material of manufactures has stimulated this industry, increased employment of working men and provided them with means of purchasing farm supplies thus increasing the demand and the farmer's profit.

The improvement of transportation facilities at an expenditure of over one hundred and twenty millions of dollars has benefited farmers by reducing freight rates and thus increasing the profit of the farmers on shipped products has had a far-reaching and general effect, small perhaps in detail but totalling a benefit amounting in the course of years to millions.

The Liberal Government's policy of developing the west---the addition to the home market of millions of consumers demanding the products of eastern factories has helped the local market and the farmer.

One of the first acts of the present Liberal Minister of Agriculture was to open the United States Market to Canadian cattle by the removal of quarantine regulations. Every Peterborough stock grower that had a previously closed market has become more prosperous and many millions of dollars worth of stock have been sold where thousands were not previously sold.

The establishment of a complete system of cold storage transportation for the more perishable farm dairy and orchard products, has put extra millions into the pockets of the farmers. This has been helped by a thorough inspection and supervision while on the voyage. These provisions for helping the farmer while perhaps not costing extravantly have been money makers for the farmer. The improvement in the making and shihping of cheese, representing a turn-over of about twenty-five millions, if it only increased prices by one or two cents per pound is a great gain in the aggregate. Note the fact that since these provisions came into force the shipment of Canadian farm stuffs has increased by about fifty-five million dollars a year. For the years from 1901 to 1906, the gain was two hundred and eighty million dollars.

In butter, cheese and bacon the increase was twenty-five million dollars a year from 1901 to 1905.

These matters cover the great main features of farming and it is only by comparison with the conditions before Fisher's time, that the great benefits to farming conferred by the Liberal Government can be appreciated.

Many minor natters were looked after. Among these things was the live stock commission, the reorganization of the veterinary department; the stamping out of the hog cholera in western Ontario; establishment of pure bred stock sales; the Fruit marks act; improvement of usefulness of experimental farms; the establishment of a seed branch; the developement of the poultry trade.

What thinking farmer can fail to note that the Liberal Government has had an honest and practical interest in building up the farming industry? And no thinking farmer who contrasts the conditions in all branches of farming prior to 1896---the prosperity then and the prosperity now, due to controllable causes, can deny the great difference.

In the last 12 years of Conservative administration there was spent on agriculture $2,453,274.00. In 12 years Liberal rule there was spent four times as much for the same purpose---$5,441,-607, and it is no exageration to say that good value has been given for the extra expenditure, for the farmers as a class are four times as prosperous as they were 12 years ago.

JUDGED BY THE RESULTS, THE LIBERAL GOVERNMENT IN ITS ADMINISTRATION OF THE AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS, CERTAINLY DESERVES A RENEWAL OF ITS TRUST.

OBITUARY.

CHAS. F. GLOVER.

The death took place, in Gloverville, N. Y., on Monday, October 19th, of Mr. Charles F. Glover of that city, son of Mr. Peter Glover, East City. The deceased, who was 46 years of age, left Peterborough some years ago and located in Elmira, N. Y., where he lived for some time. A little over two years ago he moved to Gloverville, where he has since resided.

The deceased was twice married and leaves behind him a widow and son, Charles, and daughter, Florence. Interment will take place in Elmira, N. Y., on Wednesday. He visited Peterborough at intervals, the last occasion being two summers ago, when he had great pleasure in looking up many old Ashburnham acquaintances. He was a very open-hearted man, well liked and will be greatly missed by many friends.

His sister, Miss Jessie Glover, of Rochester, was with him the past week.

LEO O'DONNELL.

The death occurred on Monday night of Leo, the three months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. O'Donnell, Smith street. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock to St. Peters' cemetery.

WEDDING BELLS

McCABE—ARMSTRONG

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. W. J. Armstrong, Perth, on Saturday evening at five o'clock, when his daughter, Minnie Elma, was united in marriage to Harold Ernest McCabe, of Peterborough, by the Rev. Mr. Fisher, rector of St. James' Church, Port Elmsley. The bride, who was given away by her father, was prettily attired in a cream silk dress trimmed with lace and insertion. She was unattended. After the ceremony was performed the guests sat down to a dainty supper. The bride and groom left on the midnight train on Sunday for Peterborough, where they will in future reside. The bride wore a navy blue travelling suit with hat to match. They received many handsome and costly presents among them being cheques from her sisters, Mrs. Clarke, Moncton, and Mrs. Woodcock, Hamilton. All join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. McCabe a happy and prosperous married life. The wedding was quiet, owing to the recent death of the bride's brother.

SERVIA GREATLY EXCITED

Gendarmes Drag Gen. Vukotsch Out of Car and Rob Him of Private Despatches to King Peter — Bitter Feeling Toward Austro-Hungary Is Again Aroused—Russia Is Keenly Watching Balkans.

Belgrade, Oct. 21.—Gen. Vukotsch, an official of the Montenegro Government, who left Cettinje three days ago for this city on a special mission to the Servian Government, arrived here yesterday at noon after an extraordinary experience at Agram, where he was arrested by Austro-Hungarian officials. The general said:

"On my arrival at Agram gendarmes entered my car, dragged me out, and took me to the prefecture of police. I was then searched, and my purse, papers, in fact everything I had, was taken from me. I gave the gendarmerie officer my name and explained my status as a special envoy to King Peter. I showed also the passport and safe conduct given me at the Austro-Hungarian legation at Cettinje, but all to no avail.

"Ultimately I was permitted to send a telegram to Baron Von Aehrenthal, the Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, complaining of the treatment accorded me. After considerable delay an order arrived from Vienna instructing the police to release me, and this was done. My journey was delayed altogether fourteen hours."

This occurrence has aroused again a bitter feeling toward Austria-Hungary on the part of the Servians, and the people are greatly excited.

Berlin, Oct. 21.—The Prussian Parliament was opened by Emperor William yesterday. In his address His Majesty indicated the intention of the Government to introduce a modification of the existing antiquated three-class electoral system, which has been the object of much agitation of recent years.

Alluding to the Balkans the Emperor said that Germany was less interested there than the other powers, but that the country worked with the others for a peaceful and satisfactory solution of the present difficulty.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 21.—Russia has been given to understand from a Bulgarian source that Bulgaria, although doing everything possible for the preservation of peace, cannot look with indifference on the military preparations of Turkey. If mobilization is ordered in Turkey, Bulgaria will be forced to inaugurate military operations herself without loss of time.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The Democratic campaign has so far cost about $250,000.

Two sharp earthquakes were felt at Manila, followed by a third, which was less severe.

Two prominent Tennesseeans were killed on Reel Foot Lake, it is alleged, by night raiders.

From nearly every mountainous section of Pennsylvania come reports of forest and bush fires.

Judge Young of Pittsburg has dismissed the writ of habeas corpus in the Thaw case. This means Thaw will not be taken there just now.

Children gathering nuts found the body of John Eady on the farm of Wm. Stomley, near Granton, Ont. He had been missing for three weeks.

The Montreal Cotton and Wool Waste Co., Limited, suffered a loss of $50,000 through a fire which almost destroyed one of their warehouses.

A train leaving Glace Bay, N.S., station struck and killed Dan McIntosh, a native of Garden of Eden, Pictou County. He was about 35 years of age.

At a point near Mondgere, Morocco, a French detachment was attacked by a band of Moors. The enemy was driven back with a loss of 14 men killed. The French had four killed.

Miss Pearl Collins, 23 years old, was shot and instantly killed at Warren, Pa., and James Lynch of Lakewood, N.Y., a fireman on the Erie Railroad, her alleged slayer, committed suicide. She had refused to marry him.

Freak of Gale.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 21.—As the result of an unprecedented accident on the Union Pacific at Lone Creek, 30 miles west of Cheyenne, Monday night, six laborers are known to be dead and several others probably met death, while 25 or 30 others were injured, many seriously. A terrific gale picked up the caboose of a work train, tore it away from its coupling and carried it over the edge of a fill. It dropped thirty feet with its forty occupants.

ITS PRISON FOR THE CROZIERS

Counterfeiters Get Prison Terms in Milton Police Court.

SPECTATORS SHED TEARS

Father Gets Nine Years in Kingston and Son Two Years in Central Prison For Making Bogus Money—Were Respected Family and Well Known in Halton County —Crozier, Sr., Breaks Down.

Milton, Oct. 21.—With everyone in the crowded court room deeply affected, many shedding tears, Magistrate Shields yesterday afternoon sentenced Thomas Crozier to nine years in Kingston Penitentiary and his 18-year-old son, Milton, to two years in the Central Prison, for the crime of counterfeiting.

"May God bless you and bring you out a better man," were the magistrate's concluding words to the young fellow.

Crozier, during the address of counsel, sobbed bitterly, and when sentence was passed he exclaimed in his agony, "Good God!"

Both had pleaded guilty, the father to making and disposing of the counterfeit bank notes, the son to the making of the illegal currency. In addition Crozier prepared a confession.

Crozier, Sr., was arrested at Oakville, having been detected in passing a bogus bill at the theatre on the night of the recent fall fair. Search of his home on Gerrard street, Toronto, revealed evidences of wholesale operations, and Inspector Parkinson of the Dominion police, continuing his investigations, was able to dig up on a farm owned by Crozier, near Buffalo, N.Y., plates and $3,500 bogus money, and later, on the Crozier farm, near Milton, more plates and $7,000 additional in counterfeit bills.

MILTON CROZIER,
Who Goes to the Central For Two Years.

Well-known throughout Halton County, the Croziers were generally respected until the elder man's arrest on Oct. 2. And yesterday, though penalized by the court, they seemingly were not disgraced in the sight of friends and acquaintances, for after sentence was passed, there was a veritable crush to bid the two good-bye. It was a farewell to friends leaving on a long journey.

The court room was crowded to the doors, and it seemed that the streets of the town were deserted during the trial, while many had driven in from the surrounding country.

Crozier broke down completely when sentence was delivered, but the son bore himself throughout with an air of bravado, though his eyes were wet and he chewed viciously at the gum which he has had with him at every appearance in court.

The court was opened at 2.30. The charges were read twice to each prisoner, and the elder man was first asked to plead. "I'm guilty, sir," he said brokenly, and then collapsed. He was given a chair and sat with bowed head while the charge was read to his boy, who carelessly replied "guilty."

Eleven Hundred Drown.

Amoy, Oct. 21.—The damage done in Thursday's typhoon was much greater than at first reported.

In Chang-Chow 3,000 houses, including the prefects Yamen were destroyed, and 1,100 persons killed. In Lam-Cheng, 15 miles west of Chang-Chow, 600 houses were destroyed and 1,200 persons killed.

Five years ago Lam-Cheng was flooded, and 3,000 persons were drowned. Fifteen miles north of Chang-Chow three villages were entirely destroyed in Thursday's storm, 400 persons being killed.

Sophomores Paint the Freshmen.

Kingston, Oct. 21.—There was a rush at Queen's Medical School yesterday. The sophomores overcame the freshmen, who had their boots and headgear taken and thrown into a pile in the centre of the field.

Then the man with the paint came along and every freshman was branded with a big red "F" on his forehead and black streaks down his face.

The carters' wagons were waiting and the defeated first year men were piled into these, and headed by the happy "sophs," were driven around the city.

Ready to Issue Scrip.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—The Department of the Interior is ready to issue South African veterans' warrants for lands or cash scrip.

This applies to the one thousand veterans whose applications have been endorsed by the Militia Department.

EXPECTS MAJORITY OF SIXTY

Premier Makes Forecast at Big Montreal Demonstration.

RECEPTION A HUGE AFFAIR

City's Greeting to the Chieftain Is Carried Out on Magnificent Scale—"Laurier, the Uncrowned King," Is One of the Mottoes Borne Through the Streets — Speaks at Two Big Meetings.

Montreal, Oct. 21.—Last night's demonstration to Sir Wilfrid Laurier was undoubtedly the greatest tribute ever paid by Montreal city to a great national leader. For five miles the streets were packed with 250,000 cheering citizens, who shouted themselves hoarse in their welcome to Sir Wilfrid. The welcome was perhaps the most spontaneous and wonderful ever afforded a public man in this city, and was a striking evidence of the place Sir Wilfrid Laurier holds in the hearts of the citizens of Montreal. The procession started from the Windsor Hotel after an informal reception in the rotunda. In front of the hotel the great Dominion square was packed with a seething mass of humanity, who cheered again and again as Sir Wilfrid appeared in the doorway and entered his carriage.

Trains were run from all the surrounding country.

The Premier addressed two meetings, one at the Monument Nationale, and the other at Sohmer Park. Both buildings were packed, and here it was that the greatest enthusiasm was shown. The speeches of the Premier contained little new, but he severely criticized the entrance into the political arena of retired judges and men drawing pensions from the country.

At Sohmer Park the Prime Minister said the Government would come back with 60 of a majority. He said they would get a majority from Nova Scotia, if not all the seats, would hold their own in New Brunswick, and, perhaps, get a majority from Ontario. As for Quebec, Sir Wilfrid declared that the heart of the people was sound, and they would do their duty on the 26th.

One of the mottoes bore the words "Laurier, the Uncrowned King," and another the illuminated sign bearing the words, "Dear doctor, please turn on the tap—Foster."

Three boys were seriously injured and five horses suffocated as a result of the demonstration.

The boys were injured by the explosion of a box of fireworks in Papineau square while the Liberal chief was passing on his way to Sohmer Park. The horses were suffocated in a blaze which gutted the stable of F. X. St. Charles in St. Dominique street, just as Sir Wilfrid was leaving the Monument Nationale. The fire is thought to have been started from a spark from fireworks.

Runaway Boy His Heir.

Boston, Oct. 21.—A quarter of a million dollars is waiting for a runaway who left home in 1826 and has never been heard from since.

Daniel Russell, Jr., was 14 years old when, after quarreling with his father, a Boston merchant, he left home saying he would never return. His father died some time ago and the will was probated yesterday. After expressing his regret for any action on his part that might have led the son to think he was not wanted at home, is father leaves him $250,000, "as partial atonement for sufferings he may have endured."

$600,000 Suit Said to Be Invalid.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 21.—The $600,000 suit for damages which Governor Haskell of Oklahoma filed here last week against W. R. Hearst is regarded as invalid by prominent attorneys who have examined the petition. They point out that the Nebraska laws allow no punitive damages in a libel suit and $500,000 of the amount asked in the present case is punitive. The petition is not accompanied by an affidavit as required by the laws of this state.

OFFERS TO MAKE TEST.

Member of Anti-Vaccination Society Challenges Health Officer.

Philadelphia, Oct. 21.—An unusual challenge to test the effectiveness of vaccination was issued yesterday at the opening meeting of the National Anti-Vaccination Conference, which will remain in session three days with representatives present from state and national organizations opposed to compulsory medical practices.

Dr. Rudolph Straube of Philadelphia in an address challenged Dr. Samuel Dixon, head of the Pennsylvania health department, to spend a night in bed with him with a small-pox patient between them in order to prove his assertion that vaccination is of no benefit in preventing the spread of that disease. Dr. Dixon, Dr. Straube says, has been vaccinated several times, while he has never been innoculated. In the event of Dr. Dixon's refusal to accept the offer, Dr. Straube said the challenge would be open to Dr. Joseph Neff, of the health department of Philadelphia.

Infant's Body by Express.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—The body of an infant child, carefully wrapped in a paper parcel, has been received through the Canadian Express Co. from Pembroke, where it was shipped by a young woman unknown at present. The child had lived, but evidently bled to death. It was addressed to a local Catholic institution with a request for burial and 50 cents enclosed.

A Genuine Air Line.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 21.—The signing of a contract for a dirigible airship to cost about $7,000 to Capt. Thos. S. Baldwin, inventor and builder of the dirigible balloon, recently sold the United States Government, marks the first step taken by the Aerial Navigation Co., of which Charles J. Glidden is the leading spirit, since the company was incorporated some months ago for the purpose of operating an aerial freight and passenger line to New York.

Man Killed When Roof Collapsed.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 21.—One man was killed and two others were seriously injured yesterday afternoon by the collapsing of the roundhouse roof of the Lehigh Valley Railroad in this city. Rescuers were promptly on the scene and after half an hour's hard work dug from the ruins Peter Mullin, aged 45, and two Italians. Mullin was dead and the Italians seriously injured. Twenty other employes on the turntables escaped injury.

Times Is Complimentary.

London, Oct. 21.—(C. A. P.)—The Times editorially quotes with evident approval B. E. Walker's suggestions on American banking at the annual convention of the American Bankers' Association, remarking that Dr. Walker is judiciously careful not to go too far in holding Canada as a model to be copied by her great neighbor, even when addressing so enlightened a body as the convention.

Germany In Grip of Frost.

Berlin, Oct. 21.—Central Europe is at present in the grip of the coldest weather that has been experienced in any month of October since 1858.

The thermometer ranges from 7 to 15 degrees below the freezing point, and there has been a heavy fall of snow in Silesia.

LATEST NEW YORK NOVELTIES AT NEW YORK PRICES

A visit to New York to get the newest ideas in Jewellery is altogether unnecessary. Our buyer just returned from that American city with the correct touches for this season. A large shipment arrived to-day which will interest every woman in Peterborough. Our windows will be resplendent with some of the following—just take note:—

HAT PINS

"Merry Widow" and "Soul Kiss," the newest kink, also the new "Rhine Stone."

FOR THE HAIR

"Bull" Hair Pins and "Silvian Russel" Cards and Barrettes.

PURSES AND BAGS

More proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures female ills.

Mrs. John Scott, 489 Grand Trunk St., Montreal, writes Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was very much run down in health from a female trouble, was thin, nervous, and very weak, and suffered from bearing down pains. Indeed I did not care whether I lived or died, I felt so badly sometimes.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me of all my troubles. I gained in flesh, and am free from backache, female trouble, sick headaches, and nervousness.

"I heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all women's ailments, knowing what it has done for me."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Pensioned For Life.

By JENNIE LEE.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"If you pull my hair again, Louise, I'll discharge you without a moment's notice!" snapped the lovely Sibyl Stevenson to her French maid, who was dressing her mistress' head.

"Miss Sibyl is very cross," suggested the maid in meek reply as she went on with her thankless task.

"Well, you'd be cross, too, if"—

"Shall I dress the hair high or low this morning, miss?" interrupted Louise.

"The ugliest way possible," said Sibyl sharply. "Make me the ugliest woman on the beach. Make me so ugly that no man will ever look at me. Do you understand?" she continued. "I hate men."

Louise went on making puffs and curls regardless of her mistress' directions. For a time nothing was said. Sibyl was decidedly moody, and it was the maid who again started the conversation.

"Miss Sibyl, what is a good looking glass?"

"Why, Louise, you are stupid not to know that. A good looking glass is a mirror which tells no lies. Now, with the men—they are not so responsible—they do not always tell the truth, but you can depend on a good looking glass to be brutally frank. But why do you ask?" inquired Sibyl.

"Well, I have here a letter from a mysterious stranger, who asks me to meet him at the Pine grove. He says that I am a good looking glass. What does he mean, Miss Sibyl?"

"IS THAT YOU, LOUISE?" HE WHISPERED.

"He doubtless says you are a good looking lass—that is, a girl," Sibyl explained. "But let me see the letter."

From the pocket of her dainty apron Louise drew forth the note. Sibyl read it through, hesitated a moment and then turned to her maid.

"Louise, I'll meet this man in your place. I don't want you to be deceived, as I have been. Mr. Judson has proved false, and"— A tiny tear found its way on Sibyl's cheek.

So it was arranged, and the season's belle, Sibyl Stevenson, strolled down toward the clump of tall pine trees near the edge of the lake in the early evening to meet the man who had paid court to her maid. The trees, shaken by the breezes, cast freakish shadows on the ground, and Sibyl was not altogether comfortable.

She was eager to meet this youth who was trifling with the affections of her maid and give him a piece of her mind. She had not long to wait, however, before the tall figure of a man came down the winding path.

With long, swinging strides he approached, stopped a moment as if to make quite sure of—something, she knew not what. Then, to her great surprise, he turned quickly and disappeared.

Sibyl waited until she felt it was no longer safe for her to be out alone and returned to the hotel to tell her maid of the strange occurrence. They discussed the problem, and both decided that the gorgeous gown worn by Miss Stevenson did not look like the simple grooming of her maid. This fact had probably frightened the man away.

The next evening Sibyl, dressed in a plain black frock, with white collar and cuffs and a drooping hat, awaited the mysterious Romeo whom Louise had notified by note to be there at a certain hour.

Again the tall figure swung down the road, a slouch hat pulled down well over his eyes.

"Is that you, Louise?" he whispered.

Sibyl started to scream; then she leaned against a friendly pine tree and in a weak voice claimed the identity.

"Is she wise?" asked the man.

"Is who wise?" reiterated Sibyl, her voice still trembling.

"Why, Miss Stevenson, your mistress," stammered her companion. "Don't stand there like a mummy, you stupid bit of French humanity! Speak up and tell me has she forgiven me and have you arranged a"—

He got no further in his inquiries. Sibyl picked up her little black skirt and ran for home. Once she was safely closeted with Louise she felt vaguely that the echo of a man's hearty laughter had followed her flight.

"Louise," began Sibyl in a most matron-like tone, "what do you mean by flirting with Mr. Judson? Now, do not interrupt me, for it was Mr. Judson who met me."

"Mr. Judson! Impossible!" cried the astonished Louise.

"No other," emphatically assured Sibyl. "Those things may be all right in France, Louise, but no nice American girl will"—

A knock at the door interrupted the end of this sentence. A gentleman was waiting to see Miss Stevenson. The hallboy did not know his name. Sibyl had changed her somber black frock to one of her Paris creations and went to meet her caller.

She glanced into the public parlor, but he was not in sight. Upon inquiry she learned that her guest was waiting on the corner of the piazza for her. She went to meet him, and Harry Judson put forth his hand as she came toward him in the dim light.

"Sibyl, you must hear me," Judson began.

"My dear Mr. Judson," said Sibyl, with stinging sarcasm, "that is just the trouble. I've heard too much from you already."

"Now, please listen. The train was late night before last, we were derailed just the other side of the draw, and I couldn't very well swim all the way here, could I?"

"Is that all you have to say?" inquired Sibyl, but the tone of her voice was a bit softer.

"Except that I love you and"—

"And my maid as well, I suppose," finished Sibyl.

"Don't be a foolish girl, dear. You have a prize in Louise. If you'll promise not to discharge her, I'll tell you a secret. It was Louise who arranged this campaign; it was she who suggested my writing her a letter that would reach you. She's a brick, all right, is Louise."

Sibyl opened her eyes wide and stared at Judson for a moment.

"You mean to tell me that stupid French girl planned all this to give you a chance to explain," mused Sibyl. "But why?"

"I hunted her up and told her you were angry with me because I kept you waiting nearly two hours. She understood it was not my fault, if you would not."

"But how can you explain about being with Miss Lawton?" suggested Sibyl.

"Easily," assured Judson. "She was on the same train with me, and it was late and dark, and she was afraid, and I offered to see that she landed safely under her parental roof. Surely no decent American could do less, could he?"

"Well—but"— Sybil felt that she was caught in a closely woven net and was trying, though not very hard, to find an opening. Harry looked very penitent, and Sibyl knew that she loved him as much as he loved her.

"Well, will you promise"—

"Anything, dear—anything!" cried Harry without waiting to know what it might be.

"Will you promise to give Louise a pension for life?" asked Sibyl.

And as he took her in his arms he promised that and many other more important things.

PACK DRIVING.

Freighters In B. C Are Daring Men and Expert With Horses.

The skilled pack freighter in the Cariboo district of British Columbia disdains the use of reins. His charge is piloted with a jerk line, operated from the back of the "nigh wheeler" saddled for his accommodation. To prevent the awkward predicament of two big freight outfits meeting, in precarious places, on the mountain roads, loud tinkling bells are worn on the lead horses, in the musical accompaniment of which there is perpetual augury of their passage. Serious accidents are not common in the records, although incidents might be cited where grievous misfortune has befallen the freighting outfits. It is customary for the freighter to carry his "kitchen" along with him. He camps by the wayside, in summer, and turns his horses to the bunch grass.

Owing to its well-established trails and equipment for transport Ashcroft, B.C., is a common rendezvous of exploratory excursions into the northern country. All the types given to lonely adventure and organized expedition sojourn in the little frontier town—landseeker and surveyor, prospector and woodsman, the envoy of capital, the gold hunter with the pack on his back. In such picturesque and cosmopolitan humanity is found Ashcroft's predominant sociological cast. The well-worn highways of old Cariboo are convenient to this northern migration, which scatters thence into the obscurities and hazards of the wilds. Supplies are transported by pack train from Ashcroft for the Hudson Bay Co. at Fort George, and to points in the Nechaco, Chilcotin, and other territories of the north. For this service the hardy and sure-footed mule is commonly used. Long trains of these little animals, each bearing its apportioned weight, may be seen traveling north from Ashcroft in the early spring. Packing is done on contract, by experienced men. Supplies for the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway are transported over the Ashcroft route. They are freighted to Soda Creek and transferred to steamers there for shipment, 200 miles up the Fraser, to Fort George. A large increase in this business is anticipated with the development of construction work in British Columbia.

The Why of the Slate

WHEN you see a Slate mark
Like this ——
On a Shoe sole or Shoe lining,
Just sit up and take notice—
Because——
This Slate mark certifies that
You are then looking at a genuine
Old-time "1869" Slater Shoe.

There be other Shoes sold aplenty
By the taking-in-vain of the mere Name "Slater."
Just as "Baker's Cocoa"
With risk
Be sold by any man named Baker.
But, it is not the name alone
That makes a Shoe worth money.
It is what that name stands for
In Workmanship, Fit, Quality, And Wear.

Ergo——
The mere name "Slater"
Has no significance in Shoe Annals
Unless—
That Name be coupled with
The "Slate" Trade-mark which Gives it meaning.

"The Shoe with the Slate" therefore
Is the Shoe you mean when
You ask the shrewd
Shoe Merchant for
"A pair of Slater Shoes."

These Slate marked
"Slater Shoes"
Are made in a factory which
For Ten years has not Made a Shoe
Of lower grade than $3.50 to $5.00.

They are made by Specialists,
Trained and developed
Through long
Years of Practice and Perfecting
In the niceties of Fit, Finish,
Style and Workmanship,
Which constitute
The vital differences between
A regular "Hand-me-down" and
A High-grade "Custom-made."

A Blacksmith might try hard to Make Watches in his smithy,
But——
His good intentions could not Compensate for lack of Training,
Material or Equipment.

So,——
Shoe Factories that make Shoes "of all Kinds and Descriptions"
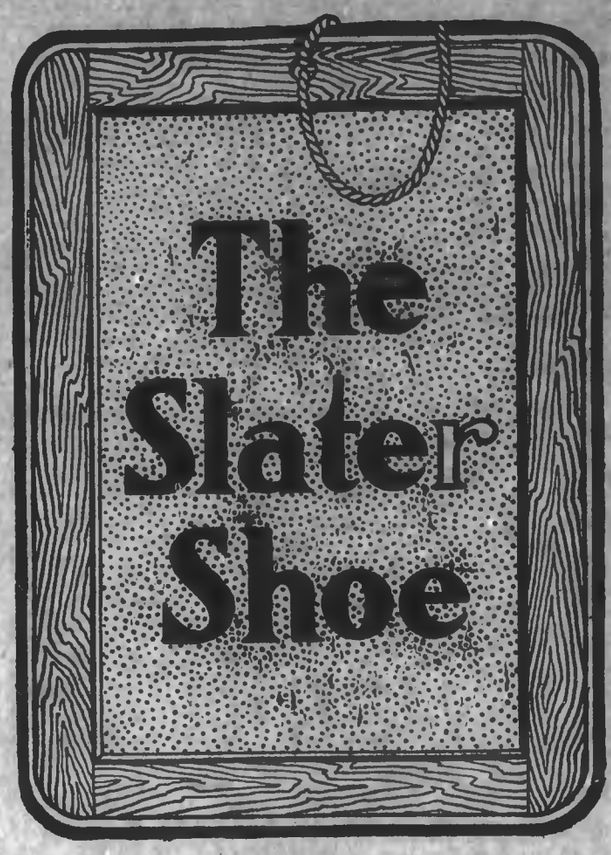
Can't make Fine Shoes



Everything that enters the making of Slater Shoes is carefully selected. Only the best is used. They are made by that wonderful manufacturing process—the Goodyear Welt, insuring comfort and durability.

Sold only at:

The Slater Shoe Store
R. NEILL, - PETERBOROUGH, ONT.

Well enough,
Nor poor Shoes cheaply enough
To meet the Specialist
In either grade.

This is why
The Slate-mark "Slater Shoe"
Is a Shoe worth watching-out for.
Because, it is——
The only brand of Shoe made in
A Canadian Shoe Factory
Which makes
No other than $4 to $6 grades.

It is the only Shoe which is Stamped-on-the-Soles or Linings,
By the Makers,——
With the Retail price at which
These Slate-marked Shoes must Be sold to Shoe Wearers.

That Price protects Consumers
Against possible or probable
Overcharge, and
It guarantees to them
Full measure of value—
Up-to-the-Makers'-price
Stamped on each Shoe in A Slate frame.

When, therefore——
Any Shoe Dealer, or Shoe Salesman,
Answers your inquiry for
"A pair of Slater Shoes" with
A pair without a Slate mark
Stamped clearly on them——
Just look him in the Eye and Watch him lest he take
Your watch.

Because,——
A Dealer cannot be trustworthy
Who intends to trick you into Buying something he has Ready-cooked
And tied up in an evasive,
Incidental and misleading way
With the mere name of "Slater."

Remember——
It is not the Slater name, alone—
But the Slate brand, which stands
For what you seek,
And are entitled to secure,
When you ask a Merchant for
"The Slater Shoe."

TOWN WITH A FUTURE.

Col. Turnbull Discusses Prospects of Fort Churchill.

Lieut.-Col. T. T. Turnbull of Montreal, who a few years ago went over the proposed route of the Hudson Bay Railway, has been in Montreal recently. His trip north was taken for the purpose of examining the route and he went into the matter very carefully, traveling about 2,000 miles and getting a solid business idea of the project.

"I am satisfied," says Col. Turnbull, "that Fort Churchill is bound to be a great factor in the shipping trade of this country, and I am pleased to see, after many years, that the work of getting a line in is being undertaken. There is a great future ahead of the country which will be opened up by the line, as there are agricultural possibilities there which are not generally appreciated. North of Norway House I saw some of the finest flowers which I have ever seen in my life. Perfect vegetables are grown at points north of there, while the country in its natural state produces berries, wild fruits and other vegetation, which indicates that vegetables and cereals can be grown there successfully. What is really wanted is a two or four track line, capable of being fed by all of the existing railways which run through the wheat belt of the west, not only in Canada, but in the western States. Such a line would handle a vast amount of traffic from Washington, Montana, Wyoming, Nebraska, Oregon, the Dakotas, Iowa and Idaho and some from as remote a state as Wisconsin. Cereals and cattle could be handled cheaper over such a line than at present by any known route. The temperature of the country is much in favor of cattle and live stock shipping."

Dreamed of Accident.

Ten-year-old Myrtle Cooper of Toronto recently experienced partial realisation of a dream that she had her left arm and leg broken. The dream came several nights ago.

As she was playing in front of the Dovercourt school she was struck and knocked down by a rig. No bones were broken, but her left arm and leg were severely bruised, at the exact spots where she had dreamed that they were broken.

FRUIT JUICES CLEAR THE SKIN

The skin mirrors faithfully the state of the blood, and the blood shows how well—or how badly—the liver, bowels, kidneys and the millions of tiny glands in the skin are doing their work. If these organs are not properly clearing out the waste matter, the blood will be poisoned and the skin sallow, "muddy" and sprinkled with pimples.

Plenty of ripe fruit helps more than any other food to cure this condition, but even more effective, as well as less expensive, are "Fruit-a-tives." These are little tablets of concentrated fruit juices, combined in such a way as to many times increase their action on these organs that eliminate impurities. One or two "Fruit-a-tives" a day will keep the blood pure and give the skin the clear glow of health. 25c for trial size box—50c for regular size—6 for $2.50. Dealers everywhere should have both sizes. If you are unable to obtain "Fruit-a-tives" in your neighborhood, they will be sent on receipt of price. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

Every assignment of the right of a South African Volunteer entitled to a land grant must be by way of appointment of a substitute and must be in the form provided by the Act.

Special attention is called to Sub-section 3 of Section 5 of the Volunteer Bounty Act, 1908, which provides that no assignment of the right of a Volunteer by thee appointment of a substitute shall be accepted or recognized by the Department of the Interior which is Not Executed and Dated After the Date of the Warrant for the Land Grant issued by the Minister of Militia and Defence in favor of the Volunteer.

J. W. GREENWAY,
Commissioner of Dominion Lands,
Ottawa.

28th September, 1908. 3563

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS

ANY PERSON who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions, by father, mother, son, daughter, brother, or sister of intending homesteader.

DUTIES—Six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required to earn homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead right and cannot obtain a pre-emption may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $300.00.

TRENT CANAL

LINDSAY SECTION

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed Tenders addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Trent Canal," will be received at this office until 16 o'clock on Tuesday, 17th November, 1908, for the works connected with the construction of the Lindsay Section of the canal.

Plans, specifications, and the form of the contract to be entered into, can be seen on and after the 19th October 1908, at the office of the Chief Engineer of the Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, and at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterborough, Ont., at which places forms of tender may be obtained.

Parties tendering will be required to accept the fair wages Schedule prepared or to be prepared by the Department of Labour, which Schedule will form part of the contract.

Contractors are requested to bear in mind that tenders will not be considered, unless made strictly in accordance with the printed forms, and in the case of firms unless there are attached the actual signatures, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm.

An accepted bank cheque for the sum of $10,000.00 must accompany each tender, which sum will be forfeited, if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work, at the rates stated in the offer submitted.

The cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective contractors whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

By Order,
L. K. JONES,
Secretary.

OCEAN LINER'S CARGO.

Four Hundred Husky Longshoremen to Load One Ship.

Down on the wharf the rush was at its height. Under the sputtering bluish arc lights, amid endless clang and rumble, the produce of America came in. From the prairies, the mines and the mills, from the forests, the cotton plantations, tobacco fields, orchards and vineyards, from the oil fields and meat packing houses, from the grimy factories, large and small, ponderous engines of steel, harvesters, reapers, automobiles, bars of silver and yellow bricks of gold, bales of cotton and wool and hides and tobacco, meats, barrels of flour and boxes of fruit, hogshead of oil and casks of wine—tens of thousands of things and machines to make things—piled up on the wharf by the acre. And still all night the teams clattered in and the tugs puffed up with the barges, and from hundreds of miles away the trains were rushing hither, bringing more boxes and barrels and bags to be packed in at the last moment.

In gangs at every hatchway the 400 men were trundling, heaving, straining, a rough crowd, cursing and joking at the hoarse shouts of the foremen, while from the darkness outside heavy black rope nets dropped down to gather gigantic handfuls of cargo, swing them back up to the deck of the ship and then down into her hold. So all through the night and right up to the hour of sailing the rush went on, for the great ocean liner's work is worth hundreds of thousands of dollars a month. And the ship must sail on time.—Everybody's.

HUNTING WILD HORSES.

How Brumbies in New South Wales Are Trapped and Broken.

Hunting "brumbies," as the wild horses are called there, is a favorite sport in New South Wales. Districts like the Clarence and Stephens and Munning river watersheds are still the home of numerous droves of brumbies, and hunting them is declared to be a very exhilarating pastime. The first step taken is to stake out a corral and make all secure except a narrow entrance, which can subsequently be gated. On either side of the entrance and projecting from it funnelwise a "booby fence" is prepared.

To the simple minded brumby it presumably looks like a stockade, and pieces of fluttering cotton make it look impregnable. When this is ready, the young bloods, well mounted, gallop out and round up the wild horses, driving them with shouts and much loud snapping of stock whips toward the mouth of the funnel.

In a group of brumbies there is always a leader, and when once the hunters have got the leader heading for the corral they are pretty certain of the rest of the drove. The fluttering cotton rags of the sham fence are sufficient to deter the brumbies from breaking through the flimsy barriers, and in less time than it takes to tell the wild horses are safely corralled and the big gate shut on them.

Then they are left for four and twenty hours without food and water to reflect on the situation, and after that they can be broken in without much difficulty.—London Standard.

Hearn as a Creative Artist.

Hearn's creative faculty began where creation is commonly held to end, with the material given. Of the creative gift in the sense in which the phrase is applied to the poet he had not a particle. He was not a maker, but a shaper. Dr. Gould puts the matter bluntly when he says, "He had no original thing to say, for he was entirely without creative power and had always to borrow theme and plot." And again: "Clearly and patently it was a mind without creative ability, spring or the desire for it. It was a mind improcreant by inheritance and by education, by necessity and by training, by poverty internal and external." The truth in these words becomes evident when one recalls the failure as fiction of every one of Hearn's attempts in this field and the fact that his greatest successes were won in reclothing the ideas of other men.—Forum.

Color.

Of the light rays that fall upon an object some are taken up by the object and others are reflected. It is to the reflected rays that we are to turn for the explanation of color. For instance, a sheet of white paper is "white" because all the seven kinds of light are reflected from its surface, while the sunflower is "yellow" because when light falls on it the violet, indigo, blue and green rays are selected for absorption, and yellow principally is reflected. The reflective rays, received by the eye, produce the sensation of color. This is an explanation of nearly all the colors that exist.

Poison Hemlock.

Water hemlock is a deadly plant common in most country neighborhoods. Its roots are eaten often in spring by mistake for some edible root, and death frequently results. Cattle are often poisoned by drinking water in marshes where it grows. The poison hemlock from which the Greeks made poisons is a near relative to the water hemlock. It stands from two to seven feet high and has clusters of small white flowers and large, parsleylike leaves. The stalk, being hollow, is often made into whistles by country boys, and many children are poisoned in this fashion.

CORNS CURED IN 24 HOURS

You can painlessly remove any corn, either hard, soft or bleeding, by applying Putnam's Corn Extractor. It never burns, leaves no scar, contains no acids; is harmless because composed only of healing gums and balms. Fifty years in use. Cure guaranteed. Sold by all druggists 25c. bottles. Refuse substitutes.

PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

BREATHE HELP FOR CATARRH

Druggist Wm. Madill Having Splendid Reports From Hyomei Users.

It's the poison germs in the air you breathe that creates and feeds catarrh. Hyomei simply catches these germs on their way to work and destroys them. The first breath of Hyomei air kills all catarrhal poison.

This makes the air you are breathing inward helpful, it goes on its way through the air passages, bronchial tubes and lungs charged with germ destroying power that cannot be resisted, it soothes and heals the wounded and inflamed membrane.

That is why Hyomei is so instantly helpful for any distress of the breathing organs, colds, croup, bronchitis, asthma or dreaded pneumonia, they are the germ life that Hyomei kills.

THE TENTH LIEUT.-GOVERNOR.

Hon. J. M. Gibson Has Had Brilliant and Varied Career.

Hon. J. M. Gibson, recently sworn in as Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, is the tenth to hold the office. His predecessors have been: Major-General H. W. Stisted, July 1, 1867; Hon. W. P. Howland, P.C., C.B., July 14, 1868; Hon John W. Crawford, Nov. 5, 1873; Hon. D. A. Macdonald, P.C., May 18, 1875; Hon. John Beverley Robinson, June 30, 1880; Hon. Sir Alexander Campbell, K.C.M.G., P.C., Feb. 8, 1887; Hon. Sir George A. Kirkpatrick, P.C., May 30, 1892; Hon. Sir Oliver Mowat, G.C.M.G., Nov. 18, 1897; Hon. Sir W. Mortimer Clark, April 21, 1903.

Mr. Gibson had a distinguished career at Toronto University, carrying off the Prince of Wales' prize and the silver medal in classics and moderns, and the prize in oriental languages. He took the law course and his LL.B., with gold medal in 1869. He organized the Hamilton Art School, and has always taken an interest in educational matters as member of the school board and the university senate.

He was an active volunteer in 1860, and was a lieutenant at Ridgeway in 1866. He commanded the 13th Battalion for several years, and is a recognized authority on rifle shooting. He was a member of the Wimbledon team in 1874, 1875, and 1879, and won the Prince of Wales badge and £100 in the last year. In 1881 he commanded the Canadian team at Wimbledon, which defeated the British team and won the Kolapore Cup. He was on the Creedmoor teams in 1876 and 1880, and has several times been president of the Ontario Rifle Association. As honorary president of the Veterans' '66 Association, president St. Andrew's Society, Hamilton, Grand Master Masonic Grand Lodge of Canada, and in other offices he has been widely known.

His political record is with the Liberal party. He fell with the Ross Government.

Mr. Gibson was born on Jan. 1, 1842, and is therefore in his 66th year. He has been married three times and his present wife, a daughter of the late Judge Mallock of Brockville, is very popular in society.

HORSE RUSTLERS.

Bad Gang Has Been Rounded Up In West After Stiff Chase.

The arrest and conviction recently at Moosejaw of Joseph Convery for horse-stealing, the arrest of Kid Royals and Josh Birch in Montana, and the sentencing of a fourth man named Hofferson to the North Dakota penitentiary, breaks up a bad gang of horse-rustlers, who have been operating in southern Saskatchewan and the States adjoining to the south for some time. These were the leaders. Convery admitted working with a gang which stole a large number of horses in the ranching country near the boundary, south of Moosejaw, but claimed that he was forced by the gang to be with it. He had horses in his possession, for the stealing of which he was found guilty. "Kid" Royals was a notorious outlaw, and was shot by a sheriff in Montana recently. He was car-jumping desperado and horse-thief, and the residents all along the Yellowstone and in North Dakota are breathing easier. He is the most notorious horse-thief that ever operated in Montana, but was finally captured near Manhattan, a little town near Bozeman, and is now in Deer Lodge penitentiary. Royals was serving a ten-year sentence. He was needed at Bozeman as a witness, as he was to turn state's evidence. On his way to Bozeman, he jumped through the window of the train and made his way to hiding-places known to him. Hundreds of horses were stolen between the time of his escape and his capture, and everyone traces the thefts to Royals. The desperado was seen on the streets of Manhattan and recognized. The sheriff hurried from Bozeman, surprised the man, who is celebrated for his quick gun play, and put him under arrest.

Welcomed His Namesake.

After Sir Wilfrid Laurier's meeting at Clinton recently the private secretary to the Premier received the following quaint little note:

Clinton, Sept. 23.

Welcome!

Sir Wilfrid Laurier,—I feel it my duty to make known to you I was given my name in your honor twelve years ago by my parents.

We are proud to welcome you to our town. Three cheers for Sir Wilfrid Laurier!

Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!

(Signed) Wilfrid Laurier Dickinson.

Master Wilfrid Laurier Dickinson received two days later the following reply:

Berlin, Ont., Sept. 24, 1908.

My dear young friend,—I have your very kind favor of yesterday, welcoming me to Clinton. I would have been very glad to offer you my thanks in person, and it is a pleasure which I shall give myself at the first opportunity. Yours very sincerely,

Wilfrid Laurier.

COFFIN GOING CHEAP.

Hitch In Aged Villager's Preparations For Death.

Village wags, in equivocal taste, appear to have taken advantage of the preparations for death made by an old hurdle-maker named Joshua Gooday, at Norton Heath. This is the only explanation of an adventure Gooday, who is 91, has experienced. It seems that Gooday determined upon making himself a coffin, and called in a neighbor to help him to complete the task. The coffin was duly made, but although built to measurements carefully taken, Gooday found, on "trying the fit," that it was too short. His assistant was seized with faintness on learning the inexplicable fact. Pending alteration the coffin was stored by its owner on trestles in an outhouse, which was fastened with a padlock. But in the morning it had disappeared. P. C. Vale, of Blackmore, was called in. He failed to find any evidence of tampering with the lock or of forcible entry. Villagers joined the police in a search for the coffin. The heath was scoured and the ponds dragged, but the search was unavailing. Gooday thereupon went to Chelmsford and purchased planks for a new coffin. Immediately he had done so the news was carried to him that his lost coffin had been found in a field of maize. Before steps were taken to recover it it had again vanished, and was next seen standing on end in the middle of the village. How it got there no one knew, but there it was, and it was superstitiously shunned by the passers-by. Eventually a policeman, with assistance (for it weighed 1 1-4 cwt.), carried the coffin back to the shed, where it now rests on the trestles, once more under lock and key. As it does not fit him Gooday offers to present it to any friend who wants a coffin, but no one has yet accepted the offer. Gooday has made all preparations for his funeral. He has deposited five shillings for each bearer, five shillings for a woman to "lay him out," and has provided a trolley to convey him to the churchyard to a spot where he has chosen his grave.

Twice a Duchess.

Louise, Duchess of Devonshire, who has recently vacated her home at Eastbourne to make place for the present peer, was a noted beauty in her day. When Duchess of Manchester, she was fond of giving large house-parties at Kimbolton Castle, the seat of the Dukes of Manchester in Huntingdonshire, and the King—then Prince of Wales—was a frequent visitor there.

On one occasion the duchess, who is extremely fond of acting, disguised herself as a gipsy, and effected an entrance to the South Terrace, where most of the house-party were assembled. Here she offered to read fortunes by palmistry, and so complete was her disguise, that amongst others she took in her husband, the duke, who handed her a shilling as fee for telling his fortune. But she was ultimately discovered by the man whom she later on married—the late Duke of Devonshire, then Lord Harrington—who suspected the identity of the gipsy, and, knowing the duchess' hatred of wine, asked for some, and, as a test, handed her the glass. She took it, and drank it off; but, even so, Lord Harrington was still suspicious, and the duchess was obliged to own up to her identity at last.

Turning Silver Into Gold.

"Whatever you do, don't make the lad a chemist. There are too many blanks and too few prizes in the profession." Thus Prof. Anderson, then professor of Chemistry at Glasgow University, advised Mr. Ramsay, the father of Sir William Ramsay, who startled the world the other day by suggesting the possibility of turning silver into gold, when they were talking over the boy's future one day. But Sir William has proved himself quite capable of drawing some of the prizes, and good ones into the bargain. He it was who, together with Lord Rayleigh, discovered the new element, "argon," the two scientists sharing the prize of $10,000 awarded by the Smithsonian Institute for the discovery. It was really through reading some works on chemistry in the library of his uncle while a youngster that Sir William became a chemist. They so stirred him that he made up his mind there and then to enter the profession, and the advice of Prof. Anderson in no way damped his ardor.

Wax Used For Great Seal.

Though the Duke of Connaught is said to have an almost Gargantuan appetite, he never seems to require a course of waters. By his bedside each night are placed a pint of claret and a cold chicken, which are decidedly punished before he is called in the morning. In addition to ordinary meals, the duke invariably has a substantial "relish" at eleven in the morning, and with him afternoon tea is quite a solid affair.

One of Two Reasons.

"Do women kiss their husbands because they love them?" queried the young person.

"Either that or because they have designs on their pocketbooks," replied the man with the missing hair, who had evidently been up against the game.—Detroit Tribune.

Reconstructed.

"Has the man you married made a good husband?" asked the spinster.

"No," replied the woman with the square chin. "He merely furnished the material for a good husband. I did the making."—Chicago News.

Mistaken.

"I saw the major's wife at her window early this morning. She looked forty years old!"

"You must be mistaken, your highness. No woman is as old as she looks in the morning!"—Fliegende Blatter.

PE-RU-NA PROMPTLY RELIEVES

A Case of Dreadful Suffering Which Had Continued For Months.

An Account of a Remarkable Recovery Given By Mr. Alfred Wood, Teacher of a Private School at Launceston, Tasmania.

MR. AND MRS. ALFRED WOOD.

Mr. Alfred Wood, who has a private school at 28 Frederick street, Launceston, Tasmania (Australia), has been a teacher for 37 years under the Educational Department of Tasmania. He writes, concerning his wife's case, as follows:

"My wife was suffering for months from gastro-enteritis, and was given up by her medical attendant.

"By good fortune I was induced to try Peruna in her case, and I can truthfully state that from the first dose her dreadful suffering ceased; and after taking five bottles she is permanently cured."

HOW does Peruna make such extraordinary cures as above recited?

By simply arousing the forces of Nature to throw off the diseased action.

Peruna contains no magic and does not operate in any mysterious way, but it does help Nature to combat disease, and thus many times comes to the rescue of the patient in some important crisis.

There is always a time in the course of any disease when a little help goes a great way.

Just as the scales are beginning to descend, when one ounce more would determine the fate of the patient, a little lift will turn the scales in favor of the patient.

Peruna is a handy medicine to have in the household.

It helps many diseases by imparting a natural vigor to the whole system.

As a tonic or catarrh remedy, its reputation is well established all over the world.

As a remedy for stomach and bowel disease, the fame of Peruna is undoubtedly destined to become greater than that of any other medicine in the world.

A great many cases like that above referred to have found Peruna of untold value when no other help seemed of any avail.

Pe-ru-na For Indigestion.

Mr. Donald Robb, Jr., 16 Wrights Ave., Halifax, Nova Scotia, member Independent Order of Forresters, writes:

"While on a visit to Boston, I must have eaten something that did not agree with my stomach, as a terrible case of indigestion followed.

"Peruna was recommended to me and after using three bottles I was entirely cured.

"I therefore recommend Peruna to any one suffering with stomach trouble."

Mr. Chas. Brown, Rogersville, Tenn., writes:

"A friend advised me to take Peruna for indigestion and it cured me in a short time."

VARICOCELE CURED

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skilful. I wrote them and got THEIR NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $31 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

CORKS HAVE DISEASES.

Caused by a Small Worm Which Spoils the Flavor of the Best Wines.

"To the average person a cork is a cork," said a well known restaurant man the other day. "But smell this cordial. Would you believe it?" And he held up a bottle supposed to have the bouquet of cherries all the way from the blossom to the pit. The odor was musty and altogether unpleasant—in fact, it was decidedly bad. He continued:

"Now, the man paying 20 cents for his tiny glass of cordial after dinner is entitled to have it free from imperfections. If he bought a bottle of vine with that flavor, he would say the wine was bad, for ninety men out of a hundred know nothing about bad corks. He would want another bottle of wine or his money refunded, and he would be right.

"The defect is in a tiny worm in the cork that is often invisible to the man cutting corks and sometimes cannot be seen after the cork is drawn. A customer will taste the wine and say, 'Bad wine.' You explain about the cork, and he will say: 'Impossible. That was a beautiful cork—beautiful!' And yet we know that the contents of the bottle never could have that flavor under other conditions.

"I tell you there are millions of dollars waiting for the man who can invent a perfect cork that will stand the test of years for flavor and preserving qualities. If it could be proved that his invention was perfect, he would make millions in a month."

MRS. ANDREW JOHNSON.

The Life in Washington Was Not a Happy Time For Her.

Mrs. Johnson was so much of an invalid that outside of intimate family friends very few knew her. She appeared only twice in public during her husband's administration. Still, her influence was a strong one, and it was exerted in the direction of toleration and gentleness. A slight movement of her hands, a touch on her husband's arm, a "Now, Andrew," made it easy to see that the woman who had helped him through his struggling youth and given her health to his service, who had taught him to write and had read to him through long winter evenings in the little tailor shop that his active mind might be fed while he was practicing his trade still held her place in his life. She was a sweet faced woman who showed traces of beauty through the sharpened lines caused by the old fashioned consumption which was wearing her out. Her face was not unlike that of the late Mrs. McKinley. The death of her eldest son was a blow from which she never fully recovered. The life in Washington was not a happy time for her. She told me herself that she was far more content when her husband was an industrious young tailor.—William H. Crook, in Century.

Nubar Pasha and the Pipes.

Soon after the occupation of Cairo by the British troops the late Nubar Pasha took a prodigious fancy to the music of the Black Watch and had the idea of having a servant taught the use of the bagpipes. Nubar dispatched a French friend, who spoke English very well, to interview a piper on the subject.

Donald replied: "Weel, he micht learn or he micht no'. Bit, let me tell ye, it needs wind an' mickle strength tae fill the bags o' the pipes an' keep blawin'. See if yin o' thae Egyptian chaps took the job on he'd need tae be bandaged a' ow're like yin o' thae auld mummies, or maybe he'd burst himsel'."

This conversation was reported to Nubar, who took the piper's remarks seriously. So he gave up the idea of having a skirler attached to his household, as the use of the bagpipes was attended with the prospect of such danger to the performer.—Westminster Gazette.

Depth of Cyclones.

From the study of clouds an official of the United States weather bureau concludes that ordinary cyclones which traverse our country from west to east are not more than two or three miles in depth, although their diameter is many hundreds of miles. In other words, their motion does not affect the upper regions of the atmosphere. In the case of hurricanes this authority finds that the depth is greater, amounting to as much as five or six miles. But higher currents blow directly across the cyclonic and anticyclonic areas which produce storms and fair weather at the surface of the earth.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Easy Money.

Theodore Hook was one of the Garrick club's most famous members. He generally arrived at the club late in the afternoon and "never went home till morning." He had been told by the doctors, he said, to avoid the night air. A member of the club in Hook's time predicted the advent of the millennium at the end of three years. "All right," cried Hook. "Give me a five pound note now, and I will repay you £50 at the millennium."

Dangerous.

Giles—How's your son gettin' on up in Lunnon? Garge—Very well. He tells me he's got a job partly behind the counter and partly out o' doors. Giles—And what 'appens when the door slams?—London Telegraph.

Makes Cowards of Us All.

There is nothing from which even the bravest man shrinks so pitifully as the lancet of the surgeon, even when it is wielded by the most skillful of his craft.—London Sketch.

Animal Patients.

As many as 10,973 cases were treated last year at Our Dumb Friends' League's Animal Hospital, Pimlico, England. These included 864 horses, 235 donkeys, 4,400 dogs, 3,895 cats and 739 birds.

STRATTON'S ADDRESS TO THE ELECTORS OF THE RIDING OF WEST PETERBOROUGH

To the Electors of West Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—I have been unanimously selected as candidate, in the Liberal interest, for the representation of West Peterborough, at the elections to be held on October 26th, and I hereby solicit your influence and vote, feeling that, as a supporter of the Liberal Government of the Dominion, I can render the city and riding at large, good, faithful and fruitful service.

All who know me, and after nearly twenty years of representation of the riding, that should include the majority of the electors, know in what manner I have discharged my duty to West Peterborough.

Aside from the policy of the Government on whose behalf a candidate is appealing for support, the determining factor in deciding an elector's support, should be the fitness of the candidate to give efficient representation. The elector should, therefore, choose the man whose known qualifications and record assure the exercise of effort and influence on behalf of the advancement of the interests of the riding, and to procure to it that measure of Government attention to which it is fairly entitled.

Therefore, in setting forth below what has been done under the Liberal representatives of West Peterborough in enlisting the good will of governments in securing substantial benefits, an adequate idea can be formed of how greatly to the advantage of this constituency will be the election of a candidate in sympathy with the Government, which has the power to vouchsafe advantages that may be faithfully presented.

I may, therefore, be permitted to point out a little of what has been accomplished for West Peterborough, through its representatives, by Liberal Governments. First, as my own share:

The work of procuring the construction of the Bensfort bridge, south of the city, is the equivalent of securing distinct benefits to residents of South Monaghan, through shortened distance to reach the market in Peterborough, and to the latter by facilitating the visits of the township people to the city. The building of a road through the township of North Monaghan north also served to lessen the distance the people of South Monaghan had to traverse to reach the city.

The procuring of a grant to assist in digging the Cavan drain, meant a much shortened way of access for the residents of northern Cavan to the Peterborough market, to the mutual advantage of themselves and Peterborough merchants and the reclamation of some thousands of acres of previously valueless swamp lands.

The procuring of large sums to be spent in the construction of new roads in Harvey, Cavendish, Galway, North Smith and Ennismore, represents conveniences to the people of these townships of no little value.

The procuring of legislation for the building of Chemong and Pigeon Creek bridges, and requiring their perpetual maintenance by the city and the Counties of Victoria and Peterborough, in the interests of the district, is another means of facilitating exchange of town and city trade.

The procuring of Government assistance to build the Kinmount bridge of stone and steel, was a means of settling the litigation between Peterborough and Victoria Counties, which had cost, and promised to cost, enough to build a bridge, and another benefit was the removal of a cause of constant friction between the two counties.

The construction of approaches and ferry, and later a permanent bridge, to span Gannon's Narrows, is a shortening of the distance to the city appreciated by the residents and farmers and land owners concerned.

I was fortunate enough to induce the Ontario Government to deed to the city—then town—of Peterborough, the Government reservation along the river front from the C.P.R. bridge to the Hunter street bridge, a great advantage, which has been made greater by being filled in by the dredgings of the river, at once beautifying the shore line and creating sites for manufactures, etc., etc., to be fronted with wharfage now under contemplation.

I will, I believe, be credited with having been instrumental in procuring the lease for Number Five dam, which made possible the establishment of the Otonabee Power Company, and led to the establishment of the Peterborough Cereal Works, and also led to the development of power at the dams further up the river for the use of the Lakefield Cement Works. For this I received at the time no little abuse and imputation of false motives in a course in which I had at heart only the good of the city, without the slightest personal advantage.

I may also fairly take credit for inducing the Ontario Government to consent to the transference of the waters of the northern part of this district to the jurisdiction of the Dominion Government, whose measures for conservation of water have created a steady flow the year round in the interests of canal navigation and power production, whose importance cannot be well over-estimated in relation to our manufacturing interests.

I may perhaps be permitted to suggest that the strong opposition to the legislation necessary to establish the Quaker Oats Cereal Company in Peterborough, with all the advantages and attendant benefits, would, I believe have been successful, if I had not used all my efforts and influence to secure the passage of the necessary legislation, which was bitterly opposed in Committee, and in the Assembly.

My interest in Peterborough, and West Peterborough, and the advance of their material welfare, has not been confined to my course in a representative capacity. In the interests of the city and of its working men I have fortunately been able to be instrumental in reorganizing the Peterborough Lock Works on a prosperous and permanent working basis, and to be of assistance in promoting the establishment of the Peterborough Shovel and Tool Company. As the publisher of the Examiner, I have made it the medium of advocating and aiding all public measures and private enterprises calculated to upbuild Peterborough city and county. In this enterprise, and in the publication of three creditable class journals, The Canadian Dairyman and Farming World, and The Canadian Horticulturist, employment is given to about 100 persons, and Peterborough is given the dignity of a publishing centre.

When the Edison, now Canadian General Electric Works, were being established in Peterborough, the council was being criticized for the assistance the town gave. Owing to the assistance of the council and citizens, the works were established, and have grown and prospered, and I gave not only my moral support, but became financially interested to the extent of my ability.

I trust I may claim, as is the fact, that in the discharge of my representative duties, I have tried to represent the whole riding, irrespective of party affiliation, and that I have met and dealt with all conditions that arose during my several terms without regard to party feeling.

In all these things, if there be any merit, I have only done a duty to be expected of any representative, with the interests of his constituents at heart, and discharged the duties of a citizen; and if, through your support, I am given another opportunity, the assurance may be accepted that what little I have been able to do for West Peterborough, will be supplemented, to the best of my ability, and the extent of my influence, with the Government, and in the world of finance and affairs.

However, the benefits to West Peterborough, from Liberal representation and Government liberality, or rather justice, and deference to fair claims, are not all confined to the realm of the Provincial Government, but the Dominion representative and Government have contributed an important share.

To give prominence to the most prominent and most widely beneficial exercise of administrative function, the work of Trent Canal completion, by the Dominion, may be cited. When the Liberal Government took office in 1896, there were only 51 miles of navigable canal completed. Now there are 160 miles completed, embracing in this distance access to a thousand miles of shore line, and there are 28 miles under contract, leaving only 15 miles of unfinished canal between Georgian Bay and Trenton. During the 18 years of Conservative rule, and in all the years from Confederation, there was spent by that Government in canal construction work the sum of $1,230,030. During the 12 years of Liberal rule, there has been spent, including works under contract and construction, the sum of $4,891,708, out of the $6,121,117 spent since Confederation, or in other words in 12 years of Liberal administration, more than four times the amount spent in the preceding 30 years, has been expended, and, among other things, has given Peterborough steamer connection with the back lakes and northern waters.

Then, in the past twelve years large sums have been used in providing complementary works—to give the fullest benefits from canal construction—such as wharves, capable of enlargement, along the river and Trent waters, in dredging operations at various points. Particular reference might be made to the wharf at the street railway terminus, and the Wolfe street wharf, on which the work of construction will begin immediately.

Other measures in the interests of the riding due to energetic representation and fair government recognition of our claims may be cited.

A sitting of the Tariff Commission was secured for Peterborough, and the claims of Peterborough manufacturers heard and heeded. Representative influence met a ready response form the Post Office Department for the improvement of postal facilities; the interior accommodation of the building was enlarged and improved, city delivery provided, street letter boxes more than doubled in number, with more frequent collections, in addition to reduction of drop letter postage from two cents to one cent, not to speak of the opening of several new post offices, and the increased frequency of mail service.

The Peterborough Armouries represent not only an architectural ornament to the city and a large utility to the several forces of our militia, but a substantial advantage to the city in connection with the acquirement of a site for the Collegiate Institute.

The construction of a new $56,000 dam at Buckhorn, included the building of a new permanent county bridge, at a cost to the county of only $3,000 in lieu of $50,000, if as good a bridge had been built by the county.

The assumption by the Dominion Government of the county swing bridges, and their maintenance and operation, made a saving of about $2,500 per year to the county for all time.

The cold storage act of the Dominion Government intended to promote the construction of cold storage buildings, the Government giving as bonus a grant of a percentage of the cost, was instrumental in the establishment of a first-class cold storage warehouse in Peterborough, a great boon to dealers in dairy products, fruits and perishable articles, and, instead of Lindsay and Belleville, which had such warehouses, being the distributing centre, that advantage rests with Peterborough.

The replacing of the old wooden bridge that formerly spanned the locks at Young's Point, by a new steel bridge, placed so as not to impede wheel traffic while the lock is in use, the construction of a new pier, and the deepening of the lower waters of the lock and channel from five feet to nine feet, are obvious advantages.

The procuring of a parliamentary appropriation of $100,000 to meet claims for damages to lands flooded by the erection of dams in the course of Trent Canal construction, means the settlement of claims, some of them outstanding for nearly forty years, and is a measure of justice due to a Liberal Government, which appreciated the claims of the owners of drowned lands, which are being adjusted with all possible expedition.

All these things bear testimony to the importance and necessity of having a representative of West Peterborough alert and alive to the promotion of its interests.

I need not make any definite promises as to my course if elected. I will only say that I will do as I have done in the past, and serve West Peterborough to the best of my ability.

I think I am justified in saying that it will be to Peterborough's best interests to send a member in support of the present Liberal Government of the Dominion.

Under this Government the country has grown and prospered as it has never done before. It found, on taking office twelve years ago, the tide of prosperity at a low ebb; trade was dull, industry languishing; employment scarce and fitful; the finances were in bad condition, with large yearly deficits. All these things were changed under the Liberal Government; the tide of prosperity began to rise. The revenue, under a lessened tariff rate, grew, and funds were available and used with wisdom and enterprise to provide the means of development we see reflected in an advance of Canadian trade from 230 millions in 1896 to 650 millions now. Much of this is due to the Government's masterly dealing with the transportation problem involving cheap and rapid transport of produce from farm and factory to market, and, to crown all, the conception and construction of the Transcontinental Railway, which will roll back the map of Canada a hundred miles northward and double the cultivated and peopled area of the country. The Government which has done so much to build up Canada in all its varied interests to the status of a nation, is sure to be returned to power as a result of the coming elections, and this will ensure another parliamentary term of nation-building, which will witness the completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific, of the Hudson Bay Railway, and of the Trent Waterway.

I respectfully ask the assistance of your vote and influence to secure my election. If by favour of your kind support I am elected, I shall give my best efforts to all measures that will promote the interests of the country at large, and especially those of Peterborough and West Peterborough.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

J. R. Stratton

RHODESIAN ELEPHANT HUNT.

Removal of Restrictions Makes Huge Bags a Possibility.

To secure a bag of 51 elephants in these prosaic days will seem like a dream to most sportsmen, but the feat has just been accomplished by J. W. Viljoen and eight other Dutch farmers in the Lomagundi district of Rhodesia. The Government has just thrown the district open for the destruction of elephants, and this enormous bag was made within sixty miles of the capital of Rhodesia, and near the railway.

Viljoen and his party pitched their camp at Marquadale, the centre of the elephant district, and divided up into pairs—a fact which nearly led to a fatality, for going through the bush Viljoen encountered his first elephant, which he shot. As this fell another one crashed through the trees at the back of the hunter, and pursued him, once striking the horse with his trunk, until Viljoen succeeded in reaching clearer ground, where he found himself thirty yards ahead of his pursuer. Slipping off his horse, he fired at the elephant, and killed it.

One incident marred the sport, and that was the accidental shooting of a member of the party named Eloff. Eloff and three companions paired off and walked at a distance of about 20 yards apart, when Eloff and his friend suddenly saw two elephants. They fired, but only succeeded in shooting off a tusk of one of the animals, who promptly charged them. Eloff made in the direction of the man in front of him, and they, seeing the beast crashing through the bush behind them, and ignorant of Eloff's whereabouts, fired at the elephant, and while one bullet despatched the elephant, the other found a bullet in Eloff's neck, killing him instantly.

The party came back to the Transvaal the richer for 2,000 pounds of ivory and seven young elephants. The first one was captured when half grown. It was feeding with four grown elephants, all of which were shot, and then the little one, instead of running away, made for the hunters, two of whom seized its tail, while the two others hung on to each ear, and there was a tussle for half an hour, after which the elephant was rolled on its back and its feet tied with the horses' reins. It was then fastened to a tree, and the next day driven into camp. After a day or two it became so docile that its attentions were rather a nuisance, for it tried to tread on the hunters' toes, helped itself to all the available food, and would put its trunk into the cooking pots, and take out anything it fancied, while it would follow the natives down to the stream for a drink.

On the record day twenty elephants were shot, and two little ones captured; Viljoen's unaided efforts accounted for eighteen of the twenty slain. These two elephants speedily became docile, and now that all the captives are in a proper kraal they have become quite acclimatised to their new surroundings, and are both playful and friendly.

"Puir Jamie."

So the villagers of Thrums have been known to call Mr. J. M. Barrie, who has secured another brilliant success with his new play at the Duke of York's Theatre, London, Eng. They call him "Puir Jamie" because, in their opinion, he does not assert himself sufficiently; but he gets there all the same. The novelist is so shy that until you have known him for some time he will scarcely speak to you. He is probably the most modest author living, and no manager has yet succeeded in persuading him to make a bow before an audience. Knowing Mr. Barrie's fear of hero-worshippers, an admirer took up a position outside the stage-door while a rehearsal of his new play was in progress, determined to get a sight of the author. He stayed there for an unconscionable time; and eventually an acquaintance at the theatre walked across the road and asked him if his curiosity had been gratified. The hero-worshipper declined to believe that Mr. Barrie had gone. "I've watched the door carefully," he added, "and only one of the stage hands, a little man in a shabby brown suit and an old straw hat, has left the building. The "shabby little man" was Barrie.

Sovereigns of the Isle of Man.

Any man may have an army of workmen or an army of servants if he can afford to pay their wages; but there is only one private individual in Great Britain who has the right to maintain an army of soldiers—real soldiers, that is—not tin ones. That man is the Duke of Atholl, who is one of the richest peers, owning 200,000 acres of land and deer forests. He keeps up almost regal state at Blair Castle, in Perthshire, and he has an army of 200 men—kilted, armed, regularly drilled, and ready for war at any moment! The late Queen Victoria presented the army with its colors. At one time the ancestors of the duke—who, by the way, celebrated his 69th birthday recently—were sovereigns of the Isle of Man, but gave up their kingly rights to the British Government for a "consideration" of £70,000.

They Kept It Dark

Tories Only Tell the People One Side of the Story---Slanders Repeated on the Public Platform Have Been Withdrawn and Apologized For in House of Commons.

SLANDERS THAT WERE BURIED

Foster, Reid, Borden and Others Keep From the People Very Important Episodes Which Would Discredit Them if Generally Known.

How few people who listen to Mr. Foster and Mr. Ames, know that these gentlemen made somewhat similar statements in the House, and were immediately confronted by the gentlemen whose names they were indiscreet enough to mention, and the result was instant retraction and ample apology.

Mr. Foster said that Mr. Turriff, then commissioner of Dominion Lands, now an M. P., had retired to a dark and secluded room, having an iron-bound door, after locking the door he opened the timber tenders in secret.

Mr. Turriff at once gave Mr. Foster the flat contradiction, said there was no dark room in the building, no room having an iron-bound door, that he never opened the tenders in secret, but always in public, and he concluded by describing Mr. Foster's statement as a malicious lie, and demanded that it be taken back. Foster promptly took it back. Foster does not tell this part of the story.

Mr. Ames stated in the House that Mr. Sifton was interested in certain lands under discussion. Mr. Sifton denied it and compelled Mr. Ames to take back what he had said word for word. Mr. Ames does not tell this part of the story.

While Hon. Mr. Aylesworth was denouncing Mr. Foster for taking rake-off and commission from the Foresters' money, while manager of the Union Trust Company, Foster presented a pitiable spectacle to the House, tears rolled down his cheeks, and the plea he made was evidence of the craven character of the man who had been found out. Mr. Foster does not tell this part of the story.

When Mr. Turriff presented himself time and again before the Public Accounts Committee to be examined, Mr. Ames and Mr. Foster both declined to examine him or put him in the witness box. The only witness who could throw light on the subject. These gentlemen don't tell this part of the story.

While the timber investigation was in progress, and after it became evident that everything was open and above board, Mr. Ames moved to stop the investigation, and this he did in the absence of Mr. E. M. Macdonald from the committee room. Mr. Ames does not tell this part of the story.

When Mr. Turriff told Mr. Foster that the only time he came near being gold-bricked it was when being asked to take stock in a wildcat mining scheme of which Mr. Foster was president. Mr. Foster smiled a sickly smile. This part of the records of the House he says nothing about.

When member after member on the Tory side of the House answered to his name as Mr. Turriff read from Tory orders in council where they had received timber limits free, even Mr. Foster repeated his sickly smile when his name was mentioned. This part of the story he finds it convenient to forget.

Mr. Foster, the session before the last, notified the Government that he would criticize the financial policy of the Government. Shortly afterwards the Government voted a pension of $3,500 a year to ex-Cabinet Ministers. Mr. Foster enjoyed this pension for doing nothing, and promptly dropped his attack upon the Government. He does not tell this part of the story.

When Mr. Bennett tells the people of Simcoe that he objected to the Government selling islands in the Georgian Bay at a price below what he regards as their value, he fails to tell how he once applied to purchase an island from the Government and asked that it be given "upon easy terms."

When Dr. Reid of Grenville tells what he calls the story of the Arctic scandal, he forgets to add that after Sir Wilfrid Laurier gave him a committee he failed to prove his case, and the committee upon which were a number of Conservative members, brought in a report against him.

When Mr. Borden talks of the "Moncton land scandal" he forgets to explain that the land was purchased upon the valuation of Mr. Sumner, a Conservative candidate in this campaign.

The more the light is turned on the better insight one has into the doings of Tory members in the House. Sir Wilfrid Laurier and members of his Government welcome the fullest investigation into every department of the administration.

IS THIS GOOD BUSINESS.

Last year settlers brought in with them from the United States duty free $9,000,000 of settlers' effects. They also brought in $10,000,000 of dutiable effects upon which they paid into the treasury the sum of $2,000,000 in cash. This is double the amount spent by the Government on immigration last year.

Slander Exposed

Attempt to Injure the Reputation of Hon. Mr. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, by Reading a Lying Affidavit---Man Who Made the Affidavit Writes Dr. Pugsley That Same Is Untrue.

HAZEN ALSO A SLANDERER

Desperate Extremities to Which the Tory Party Is Driven In Their Attempts to Gain Control of the Public Chest.

To win power the Conservative party will not hesitate to commit crime, for it is crime of the blackest kind to attempt to blast the reputation of an honorable man.

Mr. Hazen, Premier of New Brunswick is the last of the provincial supporters carried around the country by Mr. Borden, to discredit himself. This person, who quickly dropped out of the Ontario campaign, returned to his native province, and in a barefaced attempt to injure Hon. Dr. Pugsley in the eyes of the people, reads what purports to be an affidavit from a man named Mayes, to the effect that in 1907 when Minister of Public Works, Dr. Pugsley asked Mayes for money.

Immediately Dr. Pugsley's attention was called to the matter he characterized Mayes "as an infernal, miserable scoundrel and a miserable liar." This estimate of Mayes is endorsed by Mayes himself, for he writes a letter denying the whole story although he had previously sworn to it in an affidavit. Mayes writes:

St. John, N.B., Oct. 13, 1908.

"Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works:

"Dear Sir,—I notice by this evening's papers that you comment on my affidavit stating that you obtained $2,000 from me on 16 October, 1907. The date should be 16 October, 1905, and the error is entirely a typographical one which I regret, and have taken the proper steps to have corrected.

"I remain, yours etc.,
(Signed) "G. S. Mayes,

The date makes all the difference in the world. In 1907 Dr. Pugsley was a Minister of the Crown, and in 1906 he was acting as solicitor for Mayes, who owed him large sums of money. A transaction which was quite innocent in 1906, might have been a questionable one in 1907.

It appears that this man Mayes had a contract from the Government for dredging, and tried in vain to sell to the Department over which Dr. Pugsley presides, a dredge for $150,000 which the superintendent of dredges said was only worth $101,000. Failing to perpetrate this fraud on the Government, Mayes signed a lying affidavit which he now explains away as a typographical error.

It transpires further that this rascal Mayes offered to Dr. Pugsley that he would add $20,000 to the price of the dredge, which amount he would give back to Dr. Pugsley to use for campaign purposes. At this dishonorable and criminal suggestion, Dr. Pugsley ordered Mayes out of his office. Had he ordered him to be kicked off the premises, he would have done nothing that would not have met with universal approval.

To destroy the reputation appears to be a favorite game of Conservatives. The press at this very time is full of the famous Hepburn case at East Elgin, and now comes this dastardly piece of business at St. John.

A man like Mayes, who made the iniquitous suggestion to Dr. Pugsley, that they agree together and rob the country of a large sum of money, can easily be classed among those persons who have no sense of moral responsibility, and he may be dismissed with the character given him by Dr. Pugsley, as a miserable scoundrel, and a liar; but for Mr. Hazen, the Premier of a province, to read before a public meeting an affidavit calculated, if true, to ruin forever a prominent man, there is nothing left but contempt, because it was open to Mr. Hazen to verify or disprove the truth of the affidavit.

The very last thing Mr. Hazen desired to do was to disprove the affidavit. He would rather have known it to be true, and this probably explains why he hastened to read it at a public meeting without making any enquiries as to its truth.

The Conservative party has sunk very low. Slanders they have circulated in abundance and now, as the time to vote draws near, and they are conscious of their lack of policy, and their utter failure to convince the people that wrong-doing has taken place, they resort to the use of false affidavits. Such despicable methods will meet with their proper reward at the polls on October 26th. Let the Conservatives continue their work a little longer, and Laurier will literally sweep the country. Turn on the light.

A vote for a Liberal is a vote against Geo. E. Foster, whose reckless methods placed in jeopardy the only means of livelihood of thousands of widows and orphans of the I.O.F.

Boomerang For Tories

If Any of the Following Tory Scandals Are True Then the Guilty Men in Each Case Are Tories.

The men who were members of the Quebec Bridge Co. were swindlers, say the Tories. One of them is a Conservative candidate in this election.

The Robins Irrigation Co. was a swindle, say the Tories. One of its strongest supporters at Medicine Hat is a Conservative candidate in this election.

The Moncton land deal was a scandal, say the Tories. The man who made the valuation of the land is a Conservative candidate in this election.

The Halifax land deal was a scandal, say the Tories. The man who valued the land is one of the most prominent Conservatives in the city of Halifax.

The owners of 250,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands are selling them by auction before the elections fearing restitution will be demanded. "Who are the owners?" shouts the Tory press in chorus. The reply is, E. B. Osler, Tory M.P. for West Toronto, who got them for nothing from a Conservative Government in 1890.

ANSWER IS OBVIOUS.

It is admitted upon every side that the Laurier Government will be returned to power. The Conservatives have now adopted the changed attitude of declaring that the majority of Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be reduced, a few days ago it was to be wiped out altogether.

There are two points only to be considered. The one is, shall Sir Wilfrid Laurier be returned to power to continue his good work for the progress and advancement of the country?

The other is: Has Sir Wilfrid Laurier given to the people such an administration as to entitle him to a renewed term of power?

The answer in both cases seems to be a very decided "Yes!"

The Liberals have cut down the postal rates one-third, and increased the pay of postmasters, and came out at the end of the year with a surplus of $1,100,000. Let Laurier go on with his work.

"Turn on the tap, we need the surplus of the I.O.F.," said Geo. E. Foster. Who needed it? Why Foster, Fowler, Lefurgey, Bennett and Pope; also Roblin, Montague and Campbell.

Geo. Foster told the House of Commons that there was no money of the Foresters invested in Northwest lands, but that it was the money of the Union Trust Company.

Mr. Bowser was the man who drew the agreement between the C. P. R. and the agent of the Japanese to bring the latter into British Columbia via Honolulu.

Insults Resented

English Voters Will Show Their Disapproval of Mr. Hanna's Insults When They Vote. on October 26th.

Mr. Hanna is going about the country insulting the English immigrants. He says that they are filling the jails and asylums and costing the province of Ontario $1,900,000 a year to maintain them.

The statistics prove Mr. Hanna to be making false statements. His insults in this connection will not be overlooked by the English voters on Oct. 26th.

Mr. Hanna also makes false statements about Mr. Sifton, statements he would not dare make in his presence. Mr. Foster and Mr. Ames both were compelled by Mr. Sifton to apologize to him on the floor of the House for saying much less. What a sorry figure Mr. Hanna would present should Mr. Sifton suddenly confront him in a meeting. Mr. Sifton's name was not connected in the slightest form with any of the matters referred to in the House, or brought before the public accounts committee, and it remains for an obscure person to make such foundationless charges against the integrity of an eminent ex-Minister of the Crown.

Mr. Hanna will find that the friends of Mr. Sifton, and the thousands of English voters will resent his insults in a manner not to be mistaken on Oct. 26th.

Think of Canada having a Cabinet composed of Foster, Fowler, Pope, Lefurgey, Bennett and Roblin of Manitoba. It only requires the man Bowser who illustrated his speech with blasphemous stories. The people of Canada would never consent to be governed by men of this stripe.

Turn on the light and let us see how many other things were done by leading men of the Conservative party which unfits them to hold any public position of trust.

Geo. E. Foster wanted to get his hands on the "reserves" of the Foresters to bolster up his speculations in northwest lands.

Can hign standards in political life be maintained by men with a public record suit as that possessed by Geo. E. Foster?

Not one scandal has been proved by the Tory party, although the grossest kind of misrepresentation has been made.

As you know "the Foresters have $500,000 of their money in the Northwest land deal," said Mr. Foster to Dr. Orronhyatekha, when asking for more money to bolster up his gambling operations.

EXPLAINS EARTHQUAKE.

Canadian Scientist Has Made Big Discovery.

Seekers after information in the starry regions above, and in the earth beneath us, and the general public as well, will be interested to know that at last a man has been found who has discovered the reasons why this old earth is shaken up by earthquakes, and by depressions in its land surface. This man is F. N. Denison, a Canadian, who is a careful, earnest, plodding scientist of Victoria, B.C., and who is in the employ of the Government observatory there.

Two years ago Mr. Denison addressed a meeting of the British Association of Advanced Science at Belfast on "The effects of atmospheric pressure on the earth's surface," but at that time he could do no more than interest his colleagues, because he had not the necessary data to lay before them to prove his theories. Sir George Darwin, who is now the president of the great British Association, became deeply interested, however, and advised Mr. Denison to procure another instrument and carry his ideas further. The Government supplied the instrument, and the observatory man settled down to work.

His instruments are barometers and seismographs. The territory he covered totals 2,000 square miles, from California to the Yukon. He kept records for the past year, and came down to the meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada recently armed with much information.

His findings in brief were that the earth's surface is periodically depressed and elevated, and that these movements are brought about by the variations of atmospheric pressure as well as to changes of temperature. In the winter time, and during the cold weather the movements were south and east, and during the hot weather west and north. That is to say, he found that the elevations and depressions were governed largely by weather conditions, over a vast extent of territory.

His findings will be of great practical service in helping out the work of forecasting the weather. His barometers will tell him just what the temperature will be in his own district and his instruments will tell him what it will be over a large district, thus doing away with all the trouble of calling up different centres to compare notes.

H. J. MacKinder, director of the London School of Economic and Political Science, delivered an address on the foreign policy of the British Empire before the Ottawa Canadian Club recently. He advocated development of her own nationality by Canada.

He deprecated delay in taking up her duties as part of the Empire. Great Britain for years has stood in opposition to the despotic union of European nations through her fleet and with support from other parts of the Empire. This might be lost and then the British Empire and its ideals and influence would go.

Canada was directly interested in this, for without the power of the Empire behind it, possibly it would not have secured Japan's consent to waive her treaty rights for the immigrants here. The Monroe Doctrine would not protect Canadian trade from foreign attack in case a powerful nation went to war with Great Britain.

Ladies Kept Their Hats On.

An amusing story is published of the failure of Inspector James L. Hughes of Toronto to get Croydon ladies to remove their hats at a lecture. As Mr. Hughes' hints became broader the ladies became more obdurate. They declined to remove their headgear to allow him "to see the faces of the handsome young men." When he asked if he should have to tell the people across the Atlantic that Englishwomen cannot or dare not remove their hats they thought it "positively rude." Eventually Mr. Hughes lectured eloquently on cause of millinery.

STILL FAMILY SAFE.

Chatham People Whose Boat Was Found Had Perilous Adventure.

Chatham, Oct. 21.—Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Still, with their four-year-old son, Roscoe, whose motorboat was found beached and abandoned on the shore of a little island near Tecumseh, after they had left Chatham for Detroit, have returned home safely, but after a harrowing experience. While returning the heavy smoke from the northern forest fires settled about them like a pall. Then the gasoline gave out and the craft drifted helplessly on Lake St. Clair. A high sea was running. After a while the craft grounded. The land was welcome, but it was found that the waves threatened to wash over the island. A passing trolley car on the mainland in the distance gave the first inkling of their whereabouts. Mrs. Still, lashing her son to the back of his father with her wrap, then accompanied the husband on a hazardous wade toward the mainland, which they reached in safety.

TWO BURN TO DEATH.

Fire Near Uxbridge Kills Old Man and Little Girl.

Uxbridge, Ont., Oct. 21.—The house of Charles Jackson of "Jackson Hill," about a mile and a half south of the town, was discovered to be on fire Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, who are very old, were alone except for the presence of two little granddaughters, both about three and a half years old. Mrs. Jackson got the children out, but one of them went back into the house again. She again took it out and called to her husband, who was sick in bed, to get up, as the house was on fire. He arose, but the fire seemed to have cut off his escape, for despite the best efforts of his wife, both he and one of the little twin granddaughters perished in the flames.

Two Prospectors Disappear.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 21.—Harry Phipps and Mathew Tummon, Englishmen, left Edmonton March 28 for Igenica river, gold placer diggings, well outfitted. They arrived at Fort Graham, Findlay river, June 4 and were last heard of in camp 60 miles north of Fort Graham. There Indians noted their horses and empty camp, but thinking the men were prospecting and would return to the outfit, touched nothing, although they wondered that no provision was made to secure feed for the horses. Finally they reported to the Hudson Bay agent at Fort Graham. The men's fate is a mystery, but it is presumed they are drowned.

Big Steamer Osler Damaged.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 21.—After lightering about 1,000 tons of coal the steamer Osler was released from gravel island. Her bottom forward is badly damaged, and compartments are full of water.

There is no drydock in Canada large enough to accommodate the Osler, and she will have to be repaired at a United States port. There will be no duty on her repairs, however, as a saving clause covers just such a case as this.

All Doors Shut to Indians.

London, Oct. 21.—(C. A. P.)—The Jam of Nawanger, Ranjitsinghi, speaking at a farewell dinner at Cambridge, said unfortunately the doors had been shut to Indians by Australia and Canada, and now by South Africa. He felt that those Governments should try to devise a scheme whereby Indians could employ their labor and skill in British colonies.

Arrested For Criminal Libel.

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 21.—Walter Carruthers was arrested at Kentville, King's County, yesterday, charged with libeling Sir Frederick Borden by distributing copies of The Calgary Eye-Opener.

Soldier Takes His Own Life.

Halifax, N.S., Oct. 21.—Clarence Boyce of the Canadian Artillery was found dead early yesterday morning in front of the house of the woman to whom he had been paying attention. There was a bullet hole in his left temple.

A Love Affair Adjusted.

Montreal, Oct. 21.—Dora Pelman, an English girl, came out to Canada in 1907, following her lover, Israel Lake, who had preceded her by three years. Lake found that he did not want to marry, said that he could not afford to do so, and in August last Miss Pelman had him arrested for breach of promise, asking $2,000 damages. Lake offered $50, which was refused, but finally $150 has settled it.

Buffalo Suffers $400,000 Fire.

Buffalo, Oct. 21.—Three alarms were sent in for a fire in a block of buildings facing on Main street between North and South Division streets and running through to Washington street late Monday night.

From present indications the loss will be between $300,000 and $400,000.

Detective Is Law Violator.

London, Oct. 21.—H. A. Judge, a detective employed by the Government to secure convictions against certain parties suspected of selling liquor to Indians was yesterday found guilty himself of carrying liquor upon an Onedien Indian reserve and fined $150.

Suicides to Avoid Arrest.

New York, Oct. 21.—To escape punishment for stabbing one of his fellow passengers of the steamer Kroonland, H. Muller, a steerage passenger, jumped overboard from that steamer as she was passing out through the English Channel.

BURN IN MANITOULIN.

Terrible Devastation by Forest Fires Is Reported.

Detroit, Oct. 21.—A despatch from Sault Ste. Marie last night says that the forest fires after being dormant for two days have started up afresh under the influence of a 50-mile gale, and with greater fury than ever. Homesteaders are abandoning their log cabins and are fleeing for their lives. The whole southeastern part of the country is ablaze, and the farmers coming to the Soo to-day say that bears and other animals are running before the flames searching for places of safety. The country is again enveloped in a pall of smoke and navigation is once more hindered.

Thousands of acres in Ontario on the shore of Lake Huron, where American lumbermen have large holdings, are burning. Almost the whole of Manitoulin Island is in flames. Relief measures on a large scale for Michigan fire sufferers are now under way all through the state. The city of Detroit alone will contribute $100,000 to the fund.

ANOTHER PRAIRIE ROAD.

G.T.P. Said to Be Planning Second Trans-Prairie Line.

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—It is stated on excellent authority that the Grand Trunk Pacific proposes to construct what will be practically a second line of railway stretching right across the prairie provinces. It is the company's intention to place itself on an equal footing with the C. P. R. in the west, and to build lines tapping the great wheat country south of its main line from Winnipeg to Edmonton. The result will be to open up another large stretch of agricultural land and give a great stimulus to settlement in the west. The line will start at a point near Brandon and run into the Alberta coal fields.

Jail Breaker Gets Added Sentence.

Belleville, Oct. 21.—William Brightcliffe, the young Englishman who a few days ago escaped from the county jail here and was recaptured, was yesterday brought up before Judge Fralick and pleaded guilty to three charges, namely, housebreaking, theft and escaping from prison. For the former offences he was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary and three months for escaping. This with his former conviction makes his sentence three years and three months in the penitentiary.

Unemployed Assault.

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 21.—(C.A.P.)—The unemployed attempted yesterday to rush into the Federal Parliament, but after a fierce struggle the police ejected them.

At Wellington, N.Z., at the opening of the electoral campaign, Premier Ward said it was not time to rest from legislation.

Druggist May Become Sheriff.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 21.—J. E. Davignon, a veteran druggist of this city, has disposed of his business to T. B. Welsh of Strathroy, and will retire. His name is prominently mentioned as a likely successor to J. O. Iler, who is forced to relinquish his office as sheriff on account of ill-health.

Empty Graft Point to Tragedy.

Boston, Oct. 21.—The discovery of a 35-foot auxiliary gasoline boat almost submerged, off Brockport, Mass., yesterday, disclosed the probable loss of Charles W. Johnson and Henry Lee of Beachmont, who left Beachmont Monday night, bound for Portland, Me.

Shocked to Death.

Welland, Oct. 21.—A young Italian named Arneodo was instantly killed at the Electro Metals, Limited, yesterday afternoon, by receiving 12,000 volts of electricity.

C.P.R. Brakeman Is Killed.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 21.—Alex. McLennan, a C.P.R. brakeman, aged 23, was crushed between cars at Steamous Monday night, dying later.

Fugitive Collector Captured.

Havana, Oct. 21.—Miguel de Latorre, collector of internal revenue for the Province of Havana, was arrested last night, charged with the embezzlement of the funds of his department.

Shoe Men Strike, Factory Close.

Boston, Oct. 21.—The factory of the G. A. Walton Shoe Co. of Chelsea was shut down and 1,800 hands became idle as the result of a strike of 200 workmen begun last week. The strikers demand the same wages as are paid in Lynn factories.

Forest Fires About Sherbrooke.

Montreal, Oct. 21.—Forest fires are again raging in the vicinity of Sherbrooke, and timber limits of the Canada Paper Co. and Bissell are threatened. The fire is spreading with great rapidity.

CANADIAN HONORED.

Professor A. B. Macallum of Toronto Has International Reputation.

During the meeting of the British Association at Dublin, the Senate of Dublin University conferred honorary degrees on some of the association's most distinguished members. Among those to receive the degree of Doctor of Science was Dr. A. B. Macallum, F.R.S., of the University of Toronto. In presenting Dr. Macallum, the public orator said:

"Now I bring forward to you a man of science who is especially distinguished by his micro-chemical investigations into the structures of the animal cell—in whom Canada rightly boasts herself—the Professor of Physiology and Physiological Chemistry in the famous University of Toronto—Archibald Byron Macallum. He has minutely examined the structure of that cell which he was aware was not wholly composed of organic parts, and has brilliantly tracked out in what way inorganic elements such as iron, phosphorus, potassium, and others exist therein; and not merely this, but he has also contrived ingenious methods whereby these elements when they, so to speak, lurk under a mask, may be detected, and, as it were, by the back of the neck be dragged out into the light. Though an ardent lover of science, he does not devote his whole life to her service; for this distinguished scientist remembers that he is also a man among men, and so thinks the general interests of his fellows to be of concern to himself. Thus, when eleven years ago the British Association met in Toronto, many of you recollect his indefatigable efforts as local secretary, and how successful they were in ensuring that everything should go smoothly. Inasmuch as he possesses so many claims to admiration, we cordially invite him to receive our highest honors; and let your voices see that these honors be heightened by the gracious omen of your applause."

Canada In London.

London Oct. 21.—(C.A.P.)—As a result of the visit to Toronto of Montagu Norman, director of the Bank of England, and a member of Brown, Shipley & Co., it is anticipated the latter firm will take a very active interest in Canadian investments in London.

Handicapped.

"What profession do you think our boy Joe had better adopt?" asked Mrs. Brown.

"I dunno," answered her husband. "Joe is rather handicapped by circumstances. The only profession he's naturally adapted to is that of a capitalist, and I don't quite see where he's goin' to get the money."

PETERBOROUGH WEDNESDAY OCTOBER 21 1908

EAST CITY RESIDENCE ENTERED, GOODS DISAPPEAR AND ROBBER ENJOYS AN IMPROMPTU LUNCH

When the robber or robbers stole about $40.00 worth of goods from the residence of Mr. David Dennie, Concession street, they added insult to injury when they tossed around the articles they did not want, and before decamping with their loot, refreshed themselves with a light luncheon It happened a few nights ago and although the police have been diligently at work nothing as yet has been discovered to establish a clue to the guilty party.

The robbery was committed during the night and owing to the goods being in a room at the rear of the house the thief was enabled to work uninterruptedly and even enjoyed a repast from the larder which during the day had been well stored. Among the articles were boots, clothes, and wearing apparel especially winter wear which had not been taken from the trunks in which they had been stored during summer.

Jars of preserved fruit and other eatables disappeared from the cellar and evidences were not wanting of the impromtu meat that had been eaten.

Mr. John Henthorne is reported to have lost quite a number of fowl and a young man cannot find his bicycle. All of these points to the fact that there has been "some" thieving done among the East City people who are anxious to have the thieves cleared up.

Young Man Who Was Drowned Given Respectable Burial

The funeral of the late Arthur Running, the young man who was drowned on Sunday last, was held yesterday afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetry from the residence of Mr. Jas. Skippen, McGill street. Rev Canon Davidson conducted the obsequies and made reference to the extremely sad nature of the accident. The young man was alone in the country, only eighteen years of age, and without friends or money, and his relatives in England have not yet received the letters containing the sad intelligence.

The Sons of England showed their sympathy in the case by purchasing a lot in the cemetry. Among the floral offerings was a wreath from Mr. William Taylor, and a spray from a friend. Mr. Jas. Skeppin, who met young Running only last Friday and procured work the next day has shown a very praiseworthy spirit throughout the whole affair. He accepted the responsibility of the funeral and to the young stranger had been a good friend.

Mr. Wm. Bailey, has offered to purchase a stone for the grave and have it suitably inscribed.

The Sons of England have also contributed largely towards the funeral expenses, which were also met by other generous citizens. Mr. Skippen desires to thank all those who assisted him in carrying out the funeral arrangements. He, himself, deserves no little credit for the manner in which he stood by his unfortunate countryman, although an entire stranger. The Sons of England, too, showed that fraternal spirit which has won for this society a golden name.

Mr. W. C. Pennington Will Be Superintendent Of The Company

The Peterborough Lubricator Co. is making rapid progress with its new factory and expects to have the plant in working order in a short time.

The company has been very fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Wm. C. Pennington of Goderich as superintendent. Mr. Pennington has had a long and successful experience that should make him eminently suited to his new position, and the fact that he is an old Peterborough boy with many friends in this city makes his choice a particularly happy one. Mr. Pennington was with the Canadian General Electric Co. here fifteen years ago, and afterwards with the Carbon Porcelain Co. Later he was in charge of the tool room of the Henderson Bicycle Co. at Goderich, and from that firm went to the Raymond Co. in Guelph in whose employ he served six years. He then returned to Goderich where, since that time, he has been in charge of the erecting department. He is recognized as an expert in his line and will no doubt prove capable in his important position with the Lubricator Co.

While here Mr. Pennington was the leader of the Sons of England Band, and was connected with several orchestras in the city, so that his coming will be a gain to Peterborough, musically as well as in other ways.

Mr. Cyril Currier, who comes to the company after years of experience with the Bank of Ottawa, has severed his connection with the Ontario Coal Co. to take charge of the office management for the Peterborough Lubricator Co. He, with Mr. Pennington, the superintendent, is in Philadelphia at present looking over the plant in that city, Mr. Pennington with a view to picking up all the information in regard to what machinery will be needed here in turning out the grease cups in the shortest possible time, and Mr. Currier getting a line on the office end of the work. On their return the machinery will be installed.

Harrier Club Of Port Hope To Hold Athletic Meet

Port Hope, Oct. 21st, special—The K. M. C. A. Harrier Club will hold a big indoor meet in the Covered Rink on the evening of November 6th. All the great runners from Toronto, Hamilton, Kingston, Belleville Peterborough, and all the large towns of the Province have been invited and a big field is expected.

"Bobby" Kerr Canada's greatest sprinter and now holding the championship of the world, for 220 yards will take part in the events.

The club is sparing no pains to make this a success and a great treat is in store for Port Hopers. Keep the date open and watch for particulars.

Building Permits For The Week; Improvements To The Beehive

During the past week a number of permits have been issued at the city clerk's office. Among them was one to Mr. T. C. Elliott, who is enlarging the "Bee-Hive" establishment by taking in the premises next door, formerly occupied by McDermid & Jury. A fifteen foot arch will be made between the two stores, and other improvements accomplished. Following is the list of permits for the week:

T. C. Elliott, alterations at 392-390 George street; estimated cost, $1,000.

Wm. Davidson, butcher, Dickson street; cost $250.

R. Westcott, shed, 74 McDonel street; cost $15.

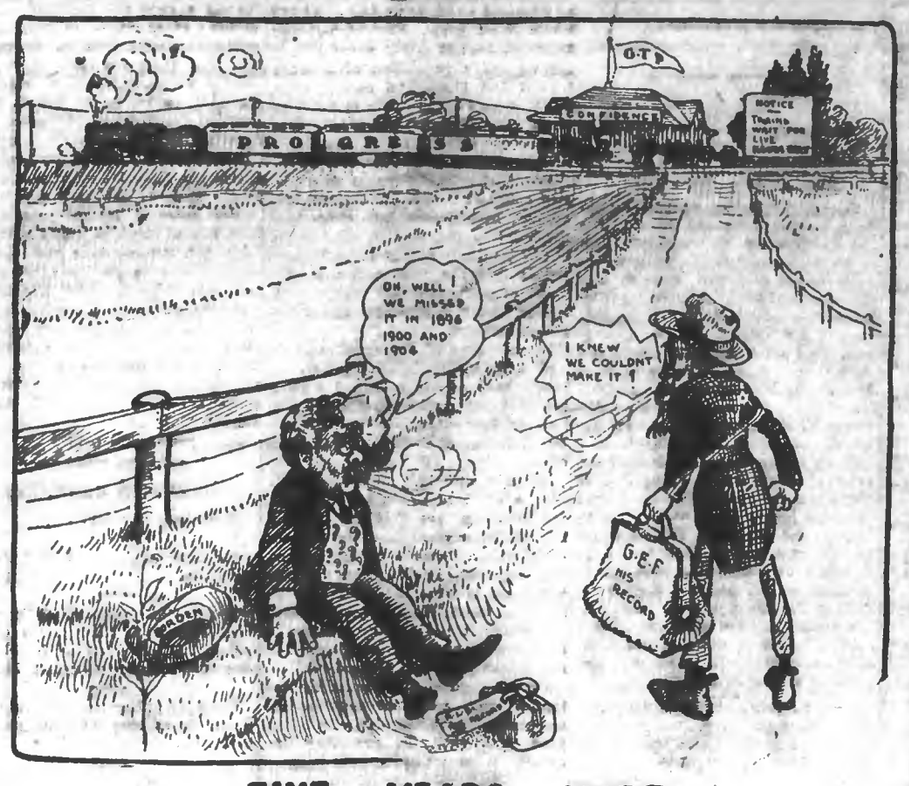
J. W. Bennett, porch, 558 Gilmour street; cost $80.

P. J. Doris, dwelling, Sophia street; cost $2,200.

Col. J. Z. Rogers, three dwellings, on Sherbrooke street; cost of each $1,000.

Horse That Ran At Local Fair Made Good In Montreal Races

Or Cowan, V. S., of Lindsay, passed through the city on Monday on his way home from Montreal where he is said to have cleaned up $500.00 in three races in wheih he entered his horse "Harry K". The doctor has had a surprisingly good season since he went out with the horse, which ran its second race at the Peterborough fair, taking first money in the 2.50 class, and second in the 2.25 class Before that he was a green horse so report says and his showing here was so good that Dr. Cowan, finally worked down to Montreal where he was entered in three races and made good. Harry K has now a mark of 2.16 1-4. He was being taken back to Lindsay and Dr. Cowan paid a short visit to friends here, while the car was being transferred from the C. P. R. to the G. T. R. line.



FIVE YEARS MORE

SMITH FARMER LOSES HOUSE, BARN, STOCK AND SEASON'S CROP IN A MOST DISASTROUS FIRE; OWNER BURNED IN ATTEMPTING TO SAVE HORSES

One of the most disastrous fires that ever visited Smith Township occurred yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock, on the farm of Mr. Wm. John Young, destroying his barns, season's crop, straw, hay, house and a portion of his stock. Mr. Young himself in attempting to get the horses from the stable, was enveloped by the flames and his clothing and flesh burned.

The fire started about 2 o'clock in the straw stack, from some origin unknown to Mr. Young. About a week ago the annual threshing took place and it may be that a spark from the engine found its way to the straw stack, and smouldered away from one straw to another until it secured enough air to burn. If this was not the origin, it is then believed to be from an incendiary cause.

Efforts were made to save the two driving horses in the stable. Mr. Young went in and was successful in getting one as far as the door, but as is characteristic of the horse, it refused to go further. By this time the stable door had caught fire and burned Mr. Young's clothing as he was passing through.

The house, which was of brick, was also destroyed, but most of the furniture was rescued. Therefore, in addition to the barns and strawstack, the house, two horses, the season's grain and two hogs were burned. It is yet impossible to estimate the loss, but it will, at least be $5,000, partly covered by insurance in the Farmers' Mutual and another company.

The fire last night was creeping along the fence towards Mr. Tindall's property, and it is feared it will enter his swamp.

THE CONTEST IN WEST PETERBOROUGH

(Port Hope Guide)

Across our borders in West Peterborough the contest is being keenly waged, but as far as we can judge from the evidence so far presented of the temper of the electors, it is a good deal like the handle of a teapot—all on one side. If there were ever any doubt of Hon. Mr. Stratton's election, which we do not believe any well-informed person has at all entertained, the conduct of the Conservative candidate and his aids, in resorting to slanders which have disgusted the better element of the Conservative party, has effectively removed it, and placed Mr. Stratton's return outside the realm of uncertainty. From sources competent to judge we learn that Mr. Stratton's return by a majority of four figures is a reasonable certainty.

We congratulate the electors of Peterboro upon the prospect of having in the House of Commons a representative who is a recognized man of affairs, of large experience, both of a political and a business character, and who possesses the ability and the influence to give his constituency the highest type of public service. Mr. Stratton has the qualities of a statesman, and we look to see him taking a high place in the councils of the Dominion.

Mrs. Whetung's Brother Drowned By Upsetting Of His Canoe

Mrs. Joseph Whetung, of Chemong, wife of Chief Whetung of the Chemong Reserve, received the sad intelligence last night that her brother George Sandy, who belonged to the Rama Reserve, had been drowned near there on Monday last, and left this morning for the reserve where the funeral will be held. No particulars are as yet at hand as to how the accident happened, although it is known that the deceased was drowned as the result of having his canoe upset. The intelligence was received with much regret in Chemong, where the deceased is well and favourably known.

DEATH BEFORE HANGING

J. P. Creighton, Owen Sound, The Murderer of His Wife and Daughters, Dies In Cell---May Be From Poison

WAS CONDEMNED TO BE HANGED ON DECEMBER 3

Examiner Special

Owen Sound, Oct. 21.—J. Parish Creighton, condemned to be hanged on Dec. 3rd for the murder of his wife and two daughters, died this morning about five o'clock in the county jail. Creighton had been ill the last three days. He was unable to leave his bed yesterday. He vomited considerable blood all day yesterday and his condition became acute last night. Physicians say the symptoms are those of phosphorus poisoning. An inquest will be held to-night.

INSPECTOR IS LOOKING OVER THE WIRING CONDITIONS

Mr. Van Winkle, inspector for the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, is in the city and on behalf of the association will make a thorough inspection of the electric wiring in the city, especially in the mercantile and business quarters. It is said that the wiring here is not of the best and that it will have to be put in first class condition at once. Mr. Van Winkle will be in the city for some weeks. Yesterday he accompanied Chief Howard on a tour of inspection of the public schools and today they are visiting the Separate schools, after which Mr. Van Winkle will commence his work.

HUNTER ST. PHOTOGRAPHER HAS MADE A VIOLIN OF EXCELLENT TONE AND FINE WORKMANSHIP

A violin made by Mr. W A Elliott, photographer, Hunter street, was shown the Examiner this morning. The last varnish had just dried and the instrument is as new as could possibly be, and yet its tone is clear and robust. One might well imagine it had been in use for years. The sweet bell-like notes produced convince one that Mr. Elliott has succeeded in making an instrument that, with time, will develop qualities of the best violins. It is modelled from a Stradwarius, which has been carefully followed. The wood in the back has been in use 110 years. It is a piece of maple from an old table that known to date back that period to be time of its manufacture. The belly is of Swiss spruce and has been in use from 40 to 50 years. This guarantees the perfect dryness of the material used. It was strung up for the first time yesterday and the result was a most encouraging success. The manufacture of the instrument required considerable careful measurements and delicate work had to be done throughout. Anyone interested may see the violin and examine it by calling at Mr. Elliott's studio on Hunter street.

Eyes Of Canadian Potato Grow In Fertile English Soil

Mr. James Skippen, McGill street, tells how potato seed may be changed to advantage, by an actual experience. Some time ago Mr. Skippen was given a big potato which was on exhibition at the City Hotel. He sent it across the ocean to his old home in Norfolk, England, where the family after cutting out the eyes of the potato had their dinner from it.

The eyes were planted on English fertile soil and the owners this year secured 18 1-2 lbs. seed potatoes. The crop, although small, was exceptionally good, and much better than the average potato crop in the Old Country.

FISHERMEN RETURN FROM THEIR CAMP AT KETCHECUM LAKE

The Ketchecum Lake Hunt Club returned from the wilds of the north country last night, after a pleasant outing. Those who returned were Messrs. R. J. Munro, E. A. Peck, J H. Larmonth and T. J. Lundy. They report the weather as ideal for camping but was unusually warm, too warm in fact for good fishing, although they were successful in catching quite a number.

NORTH MONAGHAN MAN IS CHARGED WITH ILL USING A COW

Mrs. Gifford, of North Monaghan, is the complainant, and John Campbell, of the same township, the defendant in a county police court case that is being heard before Magistrate Edmison this afternoon. Mrs. Gifford alleges that the defendant cruelly ill used and abused a cow belonging to her. It is stated that the cow got its horns caught in a barb fence around Mr. Campbell's property, and that the defendant beat the animal while in that position.

CUTTING MACHINE FROM PETERBORO' WATER WORKS

The cutting machine from the Peterboro water works arrived this morning, and is being used at the local pump house by the superintendent, Mr. Hammond. It is learned that an eight inch connection with the mechanical filter and the town mains is to be made, and this necessitates the use of the cutter. Several other pipes will have to be cut before the ozone purification plant will be able to perform its work. —Lindsay Free Press.

ST. ANDREW'S GUILD ELECT OFFICERS

Meeting Held Last Night—E. F. Reid the President.

St. Andrew's Young Men's Guild held its regular monthly meeting last night in the Guild Room, when the election of officers and other important business was transacted. Among this was the arranging of a very interesting debate for the next meeting. The following officers were installed by W. J. Campbell:—

President — E. F. Reid.
Vice-President — W. H. McCullough.
Rec. Secretary — J. R. Patterson.
Cor. Secretary — T. D. Donaldson.
Treasurer — W. A. Richardson.
Councillors — W. Flanagan, D. Hall, Wm. Langford and C. Curry.

The debate arranged for the next meeting is being looked forward to with considerable interest by the members of the guild.

TEMPERANCE MEETING LAST NIGHT

One Who Was Present Gives His Views On The Resolution Passed.

Editor Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The meeting held last night in the interest of temperance agitation was not by any means a representative gathering, and therefore some comment on it might be profitable.

I am strongly in favour of the reform that all good citizens desire along the line of lessening or suppressing the evils of intemperance. I have watched with interest the steps taken by the City Temperance League in the hope that when a pronouncement would be made it would be in the strongest possible way.

The meeting last night was attended by 51 males and about 200 females. It can scarcely be considered a representative meeting of a population of about 16,000. Five Protestant ministers were present and seven were absent, which fact does not show any unanimity on the part of the clergy with regard to the means about to be adopted by the Temperance League. The resolution urging a local option campaign in 1910 was moved by a minister and seconded by a minister on the suggestion of Mr. Spence of the Dominion Alliance. It is therefore not the people of Peterborough that bring on this campaign, but the paid agents of the Dominion Alliance.

Had the meeting been attended by a large number of men, who themselves would have introduced the resolution, the movement might have some claims to it being the pronouncement of public opinion. But as it is, it appears to be a weak measure brought on by a few who assume to represent a public opinion they do not represent.

ONE WHO WAS PRESENT.

THE GREASY PIG CAUGHT AT THE ROLLER RINK

There was some fun last night at the roller rink after the skating had been concluded, in the chasing and the capture of the greasy pig. Manager Canno let it loose on half of the floor and with some dozen youths in chase there was not much chance for the escape of the pig. It was captured by a small boy and suspended in the air by the tail for one minute. The boy's name was Geo. Godfrey and he received the pig as a reward for the capture.

THE RECORD IN BRIEF.

The nominations are made, the campaign is nearly over, and the record of the Government has been placed before the people. The tariff legislation has occupied an important place. The Conservative party in days gone by claimed that the tariff was intimately connected with prosperity or depression. They condemned the Mackenzie Government because the times were bad, and they claimed that the good times of the early eighties were due to the N. P. Sir John Macdonald declared that under that policy "almost as if by magic the whole face of the country underwent a change," that stagnation and apathy gloom and want and misery, gave place to activity, enterprise and prosperity, that manufactures revived and multiplied, that the artisan found abundant employment at good wages, and the farmer a market for his products, that the age of deficits gave place to an overflowing treasury, and that "all Canada rejoiced under the quickening impulse of a new-found life."

The new tariff was essentially different from the N. P. We have this on the word of Sir John Macdonald's chief lieutenant, Sir Charles Tupper, who declared that the tariff was so changed that he could already hear the sorrowful wail of the ruined manufacturers. As a matter of fact, the results were similar to those so vividly described by Sir John Macdonald. Manufacturing industries revived and multiplied, artisans found employment at good wages, the farmers' market both in Canada and in Great Britain was immensely enlarged, deficits gave way to surpluses, and all Canada rejoiced underneath the quickening impulse of a new-found life.

In five years the output of Canadian factories was increased by the enormous sum of 225 millions. In twelve years the total trade of the country was increased by 411 millions. In the same period the total trade of Canada with Great Britain was increased by 135 millions. The exports of manufactures were trebled, and the exports of farm products were doubled.

The story of industrial progress would be incomplete without the story of legislation for the protection of the interests of labour. The best test of individual prosperity and of national progress is the condition of the toilers in the cities and on the farm. The establishment of a Labour Department, the abolition of sweating on Government contracts, the insistence upon fair wages on public works and subsidized railways, the providing of machinery for the settlement of industrial disputes, are achievements which stand to the credit of the Laurier Government. The appointment of a Minister of Labour is the next step in this progress. By voting for such candidates as Mr. Mackenzie King in North Waterloo, and Mr. J. G. O'Donoghue in South Toronto, the electors will encourage and stimulate the Government in such legislation and administration as will promote this vital part of the industrial progress of the country.

If manufacturing industry helps the farmer by giving him a home market, it is equally true that manufacturing industry cannot thrive unless the farmer prospers. The preferential tariff has helped the Canadian farmer by giving him a better position in the British market. He has a preference there, not by law, but by good will. The shipping of farm products is promoted by the refrigerator service, and by the maintenance of a body of commercial agents abroad. Information of great value to the farmers is disseminated by means of the experimental farms and otherwise. The Railway Commission established by the present Government has given the farmers better rates for the transportation of their products.

The basis of agricultural prosperity and national prosperity has been extended by the development of the Canadian West. Figures alone can give no adequate notion of the progress of the last decade. It might be expressed by saying that we now have three Manitobas instead of one, as we have three transcontinental railways instead of one. A new Canada has arisen between the Red River and the Rocky Mountains. Instead of a fringe of population along the border there is a population extending northward four hundred miles, and still marching northward for new fields to conquer. New towns are springing up, old towns and cities have doubled, trebled, or quadrupled their population. No fair-minded man denies that at least a share of this marvellous progress is due to the energetic policy of immigration, settlement and railway extension introduced by the present Government.—Toronto Star.

KEEP A GOOD GOVERNMENT.

Canada's present Minister of the Interior represents Edmonton. In the days of Conservative rule he could have been called Minister of the Exterior, for, in Conservative days, Edmonton was a tepee-tufted village of a few hundred people. When the Liberal Government came into power it began to fill up the West, an era of unexampled expansion set in, and the whole West grew, Edmonton began to grow, too; it strode ahead, till in 1901 it had a population of 2,000; in 1905 it had 11,000, and to-day it has 25,000, with all the urban conveniences of the highest civilization. Just think of this; and it is only a sample of the great growth of the West. Under the vigorous immigration policy of the Liberal Government, villages have grown into cities in a dozen years, and all Canada benefits. The West feeds on the manufactured products of the East, and lands the thrill of its growth all over the Dominion. That is true statesmanship—nation-building.

In the years of Conservative rule, with a flabby immigration policy, one would have as easily fancied a Cabinet Minister representing the North Pole as Edmonton. He would have been Minister of the Exterior in those days.

Anybody with half an eye, anybody with a mind to think, by only half thinking, can see that the present Liberal Government is a Government of growth, a Government of progress, a Government of development; and development is what Canada needs. To meet this need; it needs population in the West; it needs transportation to meet the demands that population and new wheat areas will demand.

We must go on. We must use the means, and we must continue the Government that has shown its enterprise and skill in providing the means. What we have, we'll hold.

VOTE FOR STRATTON.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY.

The present Liberal Government of Canada has always had the interests of the farmers deeply at heart. From the first day of its assumption of office, twelve years ago, it has steadily, consistently, intelligently and successfully looked after the welfare of the farmer.

It has been busy all these years, and at this moment it is giving the farmers of Canada the big boon of rural mail delivery—the delivery of letters, newspapers and other mail matter to the farmers' homes. Rural mail delivery was discussed for a long time. The lion in the path was the great expense in a country of scattered population like Canada. But the Liberal Postmaster-General hit upon the idea of introducing it cheaply by combining the existing mail carrying routes with delivery of mail matter. In a box provided for the purpose, the mail carrier, with little additional expense, and with little extra trouble, deposits mail matter at the farmer's gate, and collects mailed matter. For those living off mail routes, common boxes are placed at the intersection of side lines and concession lines.

No sooner had the Postmaster-General hit upon the idea, than, with the energy that marks the Liberal Government, he proceeded to carry it into effect. As fast as the boxes can be manufactured—and they are "made in Canada," at Newmarket — they are placed, and rural mail delivery begins. It is now in operation in Many parts of Canada, from Halifax to Vancouver, and in forty or fifty counties the work of installation is being pushed as rapidly as possible. The work will go on till all the mail routes are covered.

The boon of rural mail delivery shows that the Liberal Government is the Government of the people. Peterborough has had free delivery of mails, and the country places should have equal privileges. City mail delivery was given because it was comparatively cheap. Rural mail delivery was delayed on account of the expense. But the happy idea of combining it with mail routes made the cost comparatively low, and the million-dollar surplus under Liberal Administration provides the means. There could not have been rural mail delivery under Conservative rule. The postoffice administration was so mingled that there was a deficit of three-quarters of a million a year. A Liberal Government reduced the postage one-third and rolled up big surpluses. Their general policy had brought prosperity and a quickened national activity, increased correspondence and revenue—and a surplus big enough to warrant the introduction of rural mail delivery in the interests of the farmers. That's the kind of Government a live country like Canada needs. Let us keep it; help keep it by polling a

VOTE FOR TANNER AND STRATTON.

DON'T YOU SEE THE POINT?

The Conservatives take credit for projecting and building the C. P. R. Admit this, but also notice that Conservative administrative incapacity and misgovernment blocked the wheels and kept the brakes turned on. After twelve years of full-line operation, from 1884 to 1896, national resources were so undeveloped, national business so stagnant, that in 1896 the earnings and standing of the C.P.R. were such as to give its stock a value, on June 23, 1896, of only 62. Under twelve years of live Liberal government, which had wakened the country from its commercial and industrial sleep, C.P.R. stock commanded, on June 23, 1908, the figure of 359. To-day C. P. R. is quoted at 274 1-2.

The Conservatives in the early eighties did a good thing—something deserving of credit — in helping to build—practically building — the C. P. R. But there the credit ends. Under the Conservative Government, in the first twelve years, the C. P. R. was side-tracked and sat-on—a dollar's face of stock was worth only 62 almost the Mexican dollar standard. Under the Liberal Government the C. P. R. woke to new life, and after twelve years of Liberal rule, a dollar's face of stock is worth nearly $2 -1.74 1-2. Of course, a great deal of credit is due to the enterprise of the company, but if, under the Liberal government, national growth had not set in; if business had not been created, the C.P.R. wouldn't have had the business which, conjoined with managerial genius, has made it the greatest railway corporation in the world.

Don't you see the point?

CAMPAIGN COMMENTS.

Work wins the day.

Let there be no let up till 5 o'clock, Oct. 26th.

Mr. Borden's manifesto talks about "restitution" to the people of the pillaged public domain, is election clap-trap of the tawdriest kind.

The Liberal Government's return to power is as sure as polling day is Oct. 26th.

Oct. 26 is Opposition Blue Monday in the political calendar.

The Ross rifle not only scores bulls eyes for the marksmen who use it, but it scores bulls' eyes for Sir Frederick Borden, who arms Canadian militia with a first class rifle "made in Canada," by Canadian workmen.

Mr. Borden's public ownership platform plank is out of sight—under the mud slung by his campaign colleagues.

Hon. Mr. Brodeur, the "bad man" of the Cabinet, was returned by acclamation, not a mud-slinger daring to face him.

Mr. Borden's manifesto is platitude hammered thin.

In London and Montreal Liberal candidates withdrew in favour of labour candidates. In practice Liberalism and care for labour interests are convertible terms.

Tanner will turn the trick in the East.

It is contrary to law to wear or display on the person party buttons or badges within eight days before polling day.

The Liberals don't believe in standing still; they are a party of progress, and the country has made more progress in all respects, except going into debt, in twelve years under Liberal rule, than it did under eighteen years of the rule of the party that now stands where it stood thirty years ago.

VOTE FOR STRATTON.

DON'T LET UP.

The supreme test is at hand—the test which will demonstrate beyond peradventure the value of the work which has been done in the weeks which have passed. Don't let all that solid labour go for naught for lack of staying power. Keep it up too at top pressure till the poll closes. Never mind how big the majority on the canvass promises to be; make assurance doubly sure; you owe it to your candidate who has placed his fortunes in your keeping, to secure him every available vote—and if every available vote is secured, it will turn assured victory into triumph as it often has done in the past. Never mind how big the majority is in your favour on the canvass, you owe it to the Government which has done so well for you in the past twelve years, to roll up the grand aggregate to the highest limit. Work to not only help in assuring good government for another five years, but what is more important from a local point of view, to insure five years more effective representation by rolling up a big majority for a candidate who has served Peterborough well, but is able and willing to repeat the splendid service he has given.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Mail and Empire classified Mr. Maclean, of South York, elected yesterday by acclamation as a Borden supporter. He may be but he hasn't shown much supporting inclination for Mr. Borden so far. In the World, Mr. Maclean's paper, the only reference to politics that has appeared for days is a brief article referring to the editor's election by acclamation and a knock for the Attorney-General's Department of Ontario for interfering unwisely in New Ontario elections.

IMPROVEMENT IS COMING.

Two officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway were in the city this morning. Speaking as business men they stated that railway business was improving, especially in the freight department, the demand for cars being difficult to supply. This shows that the flurry of hard times we have had is passing away, and things are resuming their normal swing. This is in striking contrast with the United States, where an authority states that there are half a million idle cars stalled and dead on railway sidings. Our good Conservative friends, some of them at least, holds up protection as a cure-all for all business ills, yet the recent dullness in business has struck the United States with ten-fold the force with which it has affected Canada, which has a tariff intelligently administered so as to deal fairly with all interests, and what is much to the point, produces an abounding revenue. Mr. Borden says the Conservative party stands on the tariff where it stood in 1878—that is sky high protection, which not only failed to produce a revenue, but under which every industry and interest languished progress ceased and general national debility prevailed. Under a rationally re-adjusted Liberal tariff an instant change came and twelve years of the most remarkable prosperity and progress in any national history. Now Mr. Borden wants to re-apply the exploded nostrum of the N. P. The N. P., judged by results, hunted the country to the dogs. The Liberal tariff restored prosperity. The proof of the pudding is in the eating. Judge the two policies by their results. Incidental protection under a sanely arranged Liberal tariff has brought good results. It brought prosperity and carried the country with few scars through a financial crisis that flayed the highly protected United States to the bone and is still wielding the scourge.

Let well enough alone.

BEWARE OF ROORACKS!

Beware of roorbacks. No more insidious electioneering trick has been devised by Yankee ingenuity than the roorback—the campaign lie held back until too late to investigate, and then sprung upon the electors upon the eve of polling day. Beware of roorbacks. Whatever the facts may be, and however plausible the story may appear, it is safe betting, ninety-nine times out of every hundred, that it is a lie—or that half truth which is worse than a lie, or it would not have stayed untold until the last moment. The honest fighter seeks no mean advantage, the square hitter does not strike below the belt. Refuse to be weakly influenced by insinuations and unproved charges, recklessly bandied from mouth to mouth, by irresponsible slanderers, such as have operated so busily, so darkly and so mischievously in the present campaign. Beware of roorbacks.

A RAILWAY ROORBACK.

The Conservative candidate has been using the Review to reprint slanders against the Liberal Government and slanders against Canada from Yankee newspapers of a yellow cast of countenance. The party he belongs to is circulating, as eleventh-hour campaign literature, a tissue of lies from a subsidized Boston journal, which says the contest in Canada is between two parties, and "the Grand Trunk Pacific plays an important part." This is misleading to begin with. There is no contention as to this railway between the parties. Mr. Borden, speaking in Peterborough, was forced to declare the G. T. P. was needed, and his stump colleague from the West, Mr. Roblin, said the same thing, and elsewhere Mr. Borden said he would finish the G. T. P. if he was given the opportunity.

The roorback article shows that the journal is subsidized. It is a glorification of the C. P. R and the Canadian Northern, which are called nation-building enterprises, but it is stated that the G. T. P. is "no good," that it will cost the country $30 millions of dollars, and in the end be a failure. This kind of talk, that fills a column and a half of the Boston-bought organ of opinion, is just what would be expected under the inspiration of rival railway interests.

It is a base slander of Canada and a truthless travesty of railway conditions. Yet the patriotic Conservative managers are seeking to influence honest Canadian voters by broadcast circulation of Yankee newspaper lies and slanders.

Beware of the roorback; beware of last-minute lies.

AS TO LABOUR UNIONS.

In considering the record of the two parties as regards organized labour, it may not be untimely to recall the circumstance that in the House of Commons last session, Hon. John Haggart, who was Minister of Railways under the late Conservative regime, and who expects to fill the same position in the improbable event of Mr. Borden securing a majority in the new Parliament, placed himself clearly on record as opposed to allowing the employees of the Intercolonial Railway to belong to the Railway Brotherhoods, declaring:

> "A Government railway, under the control of the people of this country, should not have a union on it at all."

Compare this hostile attitude of Mr. Haggart with that of Hon. G. P. Graham, the present Minister of Railways, who, on the same occasion, stood up manfully for the rights of the Intercolonial employees to combine, and said:

> "The presence of labour organizations is a benefit to the management of the road, rather than a detriment."

These two respective attitudes of Mr. Haggart and Mr. Graham are representative of the parties to which they belong. Mr. Haggart represents the Conservative party, which, during its eighteen-year term of office, did not put one act—Labour Day excepted—upon the statute book in Labour's interest, and Mr. Graham represents the Liberal party, which has, on principle, always stood up for the masses against the classes. Mr. Graham represents the Liberal Government, which, in twelve years, has enacted laws, made regulations, and created conditions which, in the matter of protection to the rights of the workingman, are unsurpassed anywhere; which have effectually secured him a fair day's wage for a fair day's work; which have killed the sweating system on contracts where the Government has the say; which have provided for the protection of the persons, the health and the lives of workingmen; which have practically prevented strikes with their attendant ruinous effect upon labour and capital and the community of consumers, and which have placed Labour and its interests in a condition of protection and assurance of rights, which has no superior in any country.

LIBRARY COMMITTEE MEETING AT THE Y.M.C.A.

On Friday evening, Oct. 16th, at 7.30 the Library and Reading Room Committee of the Boys' Department met for the first time. A good meeting was held and the members look forward to a successful winter's work. The library at present is equipped with as many books as ever before, and it is the committee's aim to greatly increase the number. The schedule and time table are already fixed and the library is open to all boy members of the Y. M. C. A.

Those present at the meeting were Mr. Evans, boys' secretary, W. Brownett, G. Mowatt, B. Lees, D. Johnston, W. Thornton, R. Kirn and H. Johnston, chairman.

STRATTON RE-CAPTURES CAVENDISH;
ELECTORS STILL UNITED IN HIS SUPPORT

Enthusiastic Meeting Held Yesterday---Testimony to Mr. Stratton's Past Services From Local Men---Mr. W. H. Meldrum and Hon. J. R. Stratton Address the Electors of the District And Are Warmly Greeted.

A large gathering of the voters assembled at Cavendish on Tuesday afternoon, upon the announcement that their future member was to address them on the issues of the day.

Mr. Austin J. Ford.

The meeting appointed Mr. Austin J. Ford as its chairman, and in opening the proceedings he remarked that that had been in their recollection a wild and lonely locality, but now through the attention of the Government to their wants they had good roads and the means of communication with all their neighbours. The special needs of their locality had been looked after in a manner as never before when Mr. Stratton had taken hold of their affairs. He, himself, had never been an extreme partisan. He was willing to let a representative have his own will in purely political matters, if only the local interests of that part of the county could be promoted. It made no difference to him by whose agency their interest were promoted. But they knew from the experience they had had of Mr Stratton that he was the man to promote their welfare. He had as their representative done more for the good of their community than all the men who had preceded him. He had taken a practical interest in their affairs and had secured by his efforts a liberal expenditure of the public money for dams, and slides, bridges and roads, and the other public improvements that had been the means of helping them forward. Though they had not a community, a great vote, he hoped that every vote in the township would be given in favour of the Hon J. R. Stratton, their future member (Cheers).

Mr. W. H. Meldrum.

Mr. Meldrum congratulated the meeting upon the evident favour with which it regarded Hon. Mr. Stratton's claims upon their support. That was not a sentimental support, but was based upon the solid and substantial evidences that Mr. Stratton had given them in the past of his capacity to promote their interests. He dwelt at length upon the great benefits that had accrued to them through the methods that Sir Wilfrid Laurier had applied to the Government of the country. By his enterprise and his liberal dealing with great public works, magnificent results had been achieved for the progress of the whole country, and the city of Peterborough had in an especial manner been benefitted. They had seen industries built up in the city that in their turn had created markets for the products of the farmer, so that to-day there was no place in Ontario where the farmer could dispose of the fruits of his industry to greater advantage than right in their home town of Peterborough. These benefits that the farmer felt and realized were due directly to the influence of a wise policy by the Government that had built up local industries that in their operation had created a near market for the farming community of the district. He (Mr. Meldrum) was a Conservative, but he had always taken the ground that the immediate concerns of the people were of more importance than politics, and that what promised best to promote their interests and welfare was that which should command their influence and support. He was supporting Mr. Stratton because he felt that his and their welfare could best be promoted by having at Ottawa a representative who had the experience and the ability to successfully urge upon the Government the claims which the county had for a liberal expenditure in public works. They had proved Mr. Stratton in the past and they knew that when he was sent to Ottawa, as he would be on Monday next (cheers), he would in a wider field give them the advantage that he possessed of "doing things" of which they had had in the past so profitable an experience. He would ask them to join with their neighbours in giving Hon. Mr. Stratton such a majority as would be in years to come a landmark in the political history of Peterborough. (Cheers).

Hon. Mr. Stratton, who closed the meeting was received with an applause of whose sincerity there could be no doubt. In fact the manifest feeling of the audience was rather that of personal affection, than of political support. Mr. Stratton prefaced his speech by making acknowledgment to the ladies, who at no little personal inconvenience, had honoured him by their presence. He felt that when his cause so called forth the sympathy and support of the homes of the county he had little to fear in the result. He had done his best in every position in which he had been placed, to do good to the citizens who had honoured him with their confidence. His efforts in their behalf had been earnest and persistent, and sincere, and they had not been without result. (Cheers). And it was a matter of pride to him that those who sat at their hearthstones and who were the custodians of their happiness, felt at liberty, as they did by their presence there, to give him a tribute of acknowledgment for what he had been enabled to do for that district. (Applause). He realised that while there were great public affairs that concerned the Government, in its work of guiding the destinies of the nation, there were smaller matters that more nearly effected their interests and that ought to occupy the care and attention of the man whom they chose for their representative. He had never thought it beneath him, as a member of the Legislature, or as a minister in the Governmnt of the Province, to consider the needs of the settlers in this or any other part of the county. He had even been blamed by political friends, because he had insisted upon a road here or a bridge there, that was going to be of advantage to people struggling with the difficulties which the pioneers of a new country had to overcome, but he had always maintained that these were not small matters, but of really great concern to the people at large. (Applause). And it was a great pleasure to him, indeed, to feel that what had been accomplished in the local works throughout the county was appreciated. (Cheers). The progressive policy of the Government that had brought them in such near sight of the completion of that great enterprise, the Trent Valley Canal, was something that they were called upon to approve, and that he felt they did approve. (Applause). As that great work developed, they would each and all reap a share of benefit, that would follow in the building up of the manufacturing industry of Peterborough. These industries, that they had seen so largely developed during the past twelve years were a matter of no small concern to them, because in the labour that they had to utilize they created that immediate and profitable market for all the products of the soil of which they had received the benefit. (Cheers). There were many things that might yet be done to advance the interest and promote the welfare of the people of the northern portion of our county; there were local improvements that devolved upon the Government, and it would be his care, when he went to Ottawa, that these matters would be zealously attended to. He felt that he could point to his past record to prove that there was no matter too small to occupy his attention if it promised to be of advantage or benefit to a single settler who was taking his share in the upbuilding of our county. (Applause). He asked their support in the election to be decided on Monday, not from any feeling of personal ambition, but because he felt that he might be the instrument to promote their welfare. And it was his pride to believe that the electors of Cavendish, as of the other portions of the county, had full confidence that the great trust that would be placed in his hands by their vote on Monday next, would be faithfully dealt with and honestly administered. (Great Applause).

The meeting closed with great cheering for the candidate, and with the usual loyal remembrance of King Edward VII.

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN.

(From the Free Press.)

Downie's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was presented at the Walker theatre last Saturday afternoon and evening, and if the slightest doubt as to popularity of this sterling old production lingered in the minds of the theatregoers it would have been completely dispelled had they peeped in at either the matinee or evening performance and seen the big theatre packed from pit to dome with happy, interested men, women and children. Many of those present were not regular play goers, but they would not have missed "Uncle Tom's Cabin" for anything, and the children simply had to see it. As far the performance, well, it was very much better than the usual interpretation of this piece. There was only one "Marks" and only one "Topsy," but the interpreters of these characters were equal to two people. Dot. Williams was particularly clever as "Topsy," and kept the audience roaring with laughter. Baby Hasel is a pretty child, and pleased as "Little Eva." Another bright youngster is Baby Edna, who played little Harry Harris, and later, as her own self, did a catchy specialty. Vernon Skinner, in the title role, was impressive and effective, and all the other roles were nicely played. During the action of the play, and between the acts, numerous clever specialties were introduced which elicited hearty encores. The hoop rolling and singing of the colored people were particularly good. It delighted the children present to see "Little Eva" make her first entrance, in a dear little carriage drawn by two tiny ponies. Also, to see Marks come on later, riding a donkey. The stage settings were pretty, especially the transformation scene showing "Little Eva" in heaven. Taken altogether the performance was most satisfactory.

WHAT THE LIBERAL GOVERNMENT HAS DONE FOR THE DOMINION

The claim which the Liberal Government has to a renewal of office consists in what it has done for Canada in the twelve years of its responsibility, and what it proposes and is equipped to do in the future.

Generally speaking, its past record is reflected in national advance and general betterment, There is not a resident of the city or county, not a labourer, artizan or mechanic, nor anybody in any walk of life that has not enjoyed greater prosperity, had his business benefitted and his welfare improved during the twelve years rule of the Liberal Government.

There is not a farmer in the county of Peterborough who does not know that every farm, properly managed, has increased in value, that all farm produce has brought better prices and is given better access to our best market through the agency of the work done by the Liberal Government.

The condition of Canada in all its interests under Liberal rule can be best appreciated by comparing it with the general condition of stagnation, trade dullness, work scarcity and lowness of wages that prevailed in the years before the Liberal Government came into power; how the country's citizenship was distracted by bitter questions of race and creed.

The first act of the Government was to restore peace and harmony.

Then the tarriff was readjusted with due regard to the interests of both producer and consumer --- farmers were helped by reduction or removal of duties upon articles of necessity in their calling; manufacturers and, through them wage earners, were helped by removal or reduction of duties upon raw materials.

The result was an outbreak of prosperity and increased energy in every department of national activity; employment became plentiful, wages increased and a growth, without example in our history, resulted.

With a tariff lessened by about $3.00 per $100.00, the revenue increased ---annual surpluses took place of annual deficits---from 36 millions a year in 1896 to 96 millions in 1908.

The capital invested in manufacturing increased at the rate of 75 millions a year from 1901 to 1906 and in the same time the wages paid to workmen increased at rate of ten millions a year.

The value of manufactured products increased from 481 millions in 1900 to 706 millions in 1908.

The total of Canada's trade in the twelve years of fruitful Liberal rule, has reached the tremendous figures of 5,152 million dollars.

The total trade of Canada has increased at the rate of 35 million dollars per year or 411 millions in twelve years.

In twelve years the farmers have sold farm stuff abroad to the value of 100 million dollars a year and an addition of nearly 100 millions a year to the wealth of the country and the stimulation of its commerce.

In every department of national life there has been abounding growth and expansion.

In the past twelve years the Government has spent 121 millions on improving the transportation facilities, water ways and railways and at the same time has added only five million dollars to the public debt.

By this means trade has flourished and the great West has been built up. In the past twelve years one million people have been settled, principally in the West, equal to an economic increase in the country's wealth of a thousand million dollars.

In the past twelve years the settlers in the Canadian West from the United States brought in, in cash and settlers' effects, 50 million dollars and their investments in lands, clothing, etc., totalled 350 millions or an average increase of wealth of 33 million dollars a year.

Last year alone there was sent to Western Canada 60 million dollars worth of manufactured goods.

This shows that the building up of the West built up the East, and widened its home market till the West itself took in one year manufactured products to twice the value of our total exports of these goods in 1908 and more than six times their value in 1896---or sixty million dollars.

With such results in evidence and with faith in Canada the Liberal Government conceived and are building the Transcontinental Railway which will duplicate ten times the results already achieved and make a new Canada of the East.

The Liberal Government gave Britain the preferential tariff, which not only put us high in favour with the Mother Land, but has doubled Canada's exports to Great Britain and increased British trade threefold.

The Liberal Government has tremendously improved transportation facilities---the king pin of Canadian progress and development. As a result the bulk of the grain trade of the Canadian and American West is passing through Canada and the port of Montreal handles more grain than three of the largest American ports.

Looking to the future of Canada, no arithmetic can calculate the tremendous benefits that are accruing or will accrue to Canada through the Government's masterly dealing with the transportation question, in which it has spent for Canada's good 25 millions of Canada's money on canals, 5 millions on ocean and river service and 12 1-2 millions on lighthouse and coast service.

The Liberal Government by establishing the Railway Commission has given the people all the benefits of railway telephone and telegraph ownership in the matter of rates, without the cost of purchase or maintenance.

The Liberal Government has done much for Agriculture---placed our greatest industry on a sound and prosperous basis.

The Liberal Government has legislated for Labour, in both general and specific ways and to an extent unsurpassed by any other country.

The Government's adoption of a tariff that created revenue provided means for spending millions to equip the country for prosperity and growth and without materially adding to the public debt.

The expenditure has been largely increased bnt it has borne good fruit. It has helped to raise Canada to the standing of a nation, and make her ten times greater in every way than she was ten years ago.

With all these great expenditures Canada's financial condition is sound. The gold of the world gravitates Canada-ward to help in her development. In the first half of this year 143 millions of British capital have been sent to Canada for investment.

In all these respects Canada has grown greater under Liberal rule. We make our own treaties. We are the star of the first magnitude in the Imperial firmament.

All these things and others that space forbids telling, stand to the credit of the Liberal Government and combine to make a powerful appeal to an intelligent and enterprising electoral for a renewal of confidence on Oct. 26th.

And don't forget that as well qualified to represent Canada, is J. R. Stratton to represent West Peterborough and give it the service its important place in the national life demands.

LEFT ON HER DOORSTEP FOR THIS MOTHER

Mrs. A. G. Tuson of Livermore, Cal., writes: "I picked up from my doorstep one day a little book in which I soon became very much interested. My little girl of five years of age had been troubled for a long time with loss of appetite, extreme nervousness and undue fatigue. She was all run-down and in a very delicate condition.

"This little book was very comprehensively written and told of the new method of extracting the medicinal elements of the cod's liver from the oil, eliminating the obnoxious oil which is so hard for children to take.

"'Just the thing,' said I, 'for my little daughter,' and I immediately went for a bottle of Vinol. It helped her wonderfully. She has gained rapidly in flesh and strength, and she does not take cold half so easily.

"I am extremely grateful for the good it has done her, and I hope other mothers who have weak, delicate or ailing children will be benefitted by my experience and just give Vinol a trial."

VINOL is sold in Peterborough by McDermid & Jury, druggists.

SPLENDID TO USE FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

Nothing Like Diapepsin to Overcome Indigestion and Fermentation of Food.

Take your sour stomach—or maybe you call it Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Gastritis or Catarrh of Stomach: it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your Pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain Triangule and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is Food Fermentation—food souring, the Digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested, and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure, and fulness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of the stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness and many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas, or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself, after your next meal, that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take some Diapepsin.

Many Cheese Left Unsold At Meeting This Morning

Best Price Was 12 1-2 Cents—Other Factories Refused Second Highest Bid—Autumn Factory Meetings.

SHOULD NOT FEED TURNIPS

The last but one sale of the Peterborough Cheese Board was held this morning, but so far as the disposing of the cheese was concerned, it was not entirely satisfactory. The first cheese were bought by Messrs Fitzgerald & Weir at 12½c and the salesmen of most of the other factories refused to accept 12 3-16—the second highest bid of the morning. The total number of boxes boarded was 2,674, but about 1,000 were left unsold. At the corresponding sale last year 2,860 cheese were boarded, the prevailing price being 12 13-16 cents per pound.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie stated that he had received a communication from Mr. J. A. Ruddick, chief dairy commissioner for Canada, requesting that the autumn meetings be held at central points in each community instead of at the annual meetings of the various factories. This was agreed upon by the salesmen.

Mr. Whitton, salesman, referred to the necessity of not feeding turnips or turnip tops to the dairy cows at the present time lest the milk from one or two farms should deteriorate the quality of the rest and spoil the cheese.

The buyers present were Messrs. Fitzgerald, Gillespie, Whitton, Cook, Weir, Morton, Watkin, Riddell, and Grant.

The following cheese were boarded:

Keene,	85
Warminster,	95
Shearer,	130
Central Smith,	130
Selwyn,	103
Villiers,	65
Warsaw,	80
Westwood,	140

Norwood,	115
Fleetwood,	120
Oak Leaf,
South Burleigh,
Brickley,	60
Shamrock,	95
Killarney,	90
Total,	2674

The Bidding.

Mr. Whitton began the bidding at 11½c. This was raised by Mr. Cook to 11 9-16c, and by eighths until Mr. Fitzgerald secured first bid at 12¼c. He secured Warminster, Central Smith, Bensfort, Shearer, and Warsaw.

Mr. Weir at 12¼c secured Keene, Selwyn, Lakefield, Pin Grove, Lang, Cedardale. At 12 3-16c Mr. Weir bought Ormonde, Brickley, Shamrock, North Dummer, Cavanville, Fleetwood, and Daisy D.

Those refusing were: Maple Leaf, Myrtle, King Edward, East Emily, Oakdale, Otonabee Union, Young's Point, Fraserville, Trewern, Norwood, Villiers, Killarney, and Westwood.

Mr. Whitton bid 12c for the balance of the board but secured no cheese. Mr. Watkins next bid 12 1-16c, and called several factories, but none accepted.

About 1,000 cheese were left unsold when it was decided to adjourn for two weeks. November 4th will be the date of the last sale of the season.

ANNUAL MEETING OF TURF CLUB

Will be Held Next Tuesday Evening for Usual Business—Bright Prospects.

PREPARE FOR WINTER MEET

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Turf Club will be held next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Snowden House. The usual business will be transacted including the election of officers. Every horseman interested in light harness horses is invited to be present as it is the intention to make the club stronger than ever. There is every prospect of a large membership and the number is already estimated at thirty-five. The intention is to prepare for a big winter meet here this winter and another next summer. The turf men are anxious to give the club a new impetus and by all working in its best interests this may be accomplished.

A TAIL OBSERVED ON MOOREHOUSE'S COMET

Bulletin Received From Harvard College University Observatory.

Dr. Marsh, president of the Royal Astronomical Society, Peterborough centre, has received the following communication regarding Moorehouse's comet:

Harvard College, Cambridge University, Mass.

Bulletin 340—Rev. J D Metcalfe announces a remarkable change in the tail of Moorehouse's comet on Oct. 15, 1908; confirmed by photographs here later. Moorehouse telegraphs, Oct. 15: "Wonderful change in Moorehouse's comet; great condensation in tail, photographically."

Moorehouse also writes that the comet on Oct. 1, 1908, was faint and without the tail, which was well seen on Sept. 30 and Oct. 2. On this latter date it was broad, fan-shaped on one side, with three shorter tails below it. Photographs showing the tail were taken here and at Pasuntore on Sept. 30 and Oct. 2, but none were obtained on Oct 1, owing to clouds. Many rapid and marked changes have taken place in the tail of this comet, and good photographs in various longitudes, as long as it remains visible, are to be desired.

TEMPERANCE WORKERS DECIDE ON A LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN

There was a large attendance at the public temperance meeting held in the George Street Methodist church last night, when inspiring addresses were given by Mr. Spence and Mrs. Owen Hitchcock of Toronto.

At the close the following resolution was unanimously adopted by a standing vote—Resolved that this meeting of citizens convened this evening of October 20th, hereby gives its heartfelt approval to the proposed plan of the City Temperance League to inaugurate a local option campaign here to vote on a by-law on the 1st day of January, 1910, and we hereby pledge our sympathy and support to the city league in carrying on the said campaign.

After the meeting a large number remained on invitation to perfect plans for the work.

PRESENTED WITH A GOLD THIMBLE AND BOUQUET OF FLOWERS

On Monday night at the regular meeting of the Kings' Daughters, after the business part of the meeting was finished, Miss English read an appropriate address to the retiring leader Miss Halliday, and Mrs. Poole presented her, on behalf of the members, with a gold thimble and a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The Rector then spoke of the valuable and untiring work done by Miss Halliday as leader, and congratulated the circle on still having her valued assistance in all its undertakings. Miss Halliday then thanked the Circle for their kind thought and said she hoped the work would be even better done than it had been in the past.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITIONS

—All cities over the Province are preparing for their exhibition, and Peterborough is no exception to the rule. It is the time we meet our old and new friends, and those who are not our friends. Music and Drama

A prominent American author writes as follows regarding music composers in his own country:

"In no civilized country in the world is a musician held in such dishonour as in America. A genius like MacDowell, after a few months of illness and incapacity, becomes an object of charity, although a million pianolas play forty of his compositions, for which the manufacturers pay not one cent. As one of Augier's characters says in "Le Gendre de Monsieur Poirier," "We may encourage art, but not artists."

Of course he only refers to those who try to elevate American music, and not to Harris, Helf and the large number of others who write popular stuff.

A CANADIAN PLAY

Sir Gilbert Parker's "Pierre of the Plains," which had its first night recently at the Princess Theatre, Toronto, has made its debut with the same company in New York, and proved an instantaneous success. A long run is promised.

A NEW LIGHT OPERA

"The Golden Butterfly," a new light opera, to which the names of Reginaldd de Koven and Harry B. Smith are affixed, is now in its second week at the Broadway Theatre, New York, and from press reports they have scored a greater success than in any of their previous productions, not excepting "Robin Hood." It may be well said that these writers are among the few who are preserving a place for legitimate comic opera, as none of their compositions can be fairly classed among the extravaganzas and melanges which abuse that term. The fact that their former productions were above the ordinary hodge-podge musical show is a reason for their lengthy careers before the public. Some of them are still running practically identically the same as when first published. Harry B. Smith, who writes the libretto and lyrics for de Koven's music has again shown himself capable of providing something above the ordinary. As for the music itself, local theatre-goers remember "Red Feather," which has appeared at the Grand. It and "Robin Hood," "Rob Roy" and "Happyland," have won Mr. de Koven fame as a musician, fertile in melodic invention and possessing a fine mastery of his art. His "Garden of Dreams," in "Red Feathers," and "Give Me Thy Love," in "Happyland," are considered standard numbers. In the "Golden Butterfly" there are several songs which are receiving special mention. One is a waltz romanza "Don't Forget Me."

THE ROD AND GUN FOR NOVEMBER

Fine diversified reading is the leading feature of the November number of "Rod and Gun and Motor Sports in Canada," published by W. J. Taylor, at Woodstock, Ont. The delights of camping, canoeing, fishing, hunting and mountaineering are dwelt upon in stories which give the added touches of personal experiences to the pleasant pictures of enjoyment each one presents. Particularly notable are papers on "The Deer of New Brunswick," by that veteran guide, Adam Moore; "Deer Farming for Profit," a summary of inquiries on this subject made by the United States Government; and "Wild Rice Growing in Nova Scotia." Everyone will enjoy reading the stories, "Running the Rapids with an Amateur," by L. W. Bingay; "My Experiences as a Bear Hunter," by Dr. Henzel; "How I missed a Moose and Deer and shot a Wolf," by Jack Miner; and the friendly challenge by Mr. J. A. Shade, who believes, when all points are taken into consideration, that he has the finest moose head yet taken out of New Brunswick. This summary by no means includes the whole of the wide field covered. Diversions being made into many paths, each one of which must appeal to many readers. With the various departments, the wealth of material included in this number of the magazine is surprising and includes contributions that must appeal to all lovers of out door life.

REV. A. C. REEVES' CALL SANCTIONED

Leaving Campbellford for Moose Jaw Alberta.

A special meeting of the Presbytery of Peterborough was held at Campbellford yesterday afternoon for the purpose of considering the call to the Rev. A C Reeves, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Campbellford, to St. Paul's Church, Moosejaw.

Revs. H J Keith, J G Potter, Peterborough; Dr. Marsh, Springville; J A G Stirling, Havelock; E Curry, Warsaw; S S Burns, Lakefield, J A McFarlane, Warkworth, and P. Thornton, Colborne, were in attendance.

Rev. Mr. Keith presented the call and stated that a young congregation like St. Paul's and which was rapidly growing, appealed to a stirring preacher like Rev. Mr. Reeves. Representatives of St. Andrew's Church expressed their sincere regret, but as Mr. Reeves was anxious to go they acquiesced in his desire.

The call was placed in Rev. Mr. Reeves' hands and he accepted it, and it was sanctioned by the Presbytery. To take effect Nov. 10.

A committee of Revs. Keith, Potter and Thompson was appointed to draft resolution expressing the Presbytery's views.

My wife is having the best of health. Miller's Compound Iron Pills did it. Sold by J. D. Tully, druggist, Peterborough.

LINDSAY O. R. F. U. TEAM WON FROM THE T. A. S. JUNIORS BY 27-0 IN LINDSAY YESTERDAY

The unexpected happened in Lindsay yesterday when the T.A.S. Athletic Club junior Rugby team were defeated by the Lindsay junior O.R.F.U. team by the score of 27-0. The Peterborough team underestimated the strength of the Scugog fourteen and the team that was sent to Lindsay was not as strong as it might have been had it not been felt that Lindsay would prove a pretty easy proposition. This prophecy was found to be bad dope, as it was soon seen that Lindsay had a big fast team with a very clever back division, and they had not much difficulty in running up a score on the T.A.S. juniors, although the latter played a hard game and the play was closer than the score might indicate. The T.A.S. were handicapped as were their seniors by lack of practice, and their consequent inability to develop team play, and when is added to this the fact that there was no one on the back division who could punt with the Lindsay centre half, it is not remarkable that they were defeated. The team was ineffective because of having no practice together, and although they did their best it was not good enough to hold Lindsay.

The Scugog bunch were much stronger than expected, and those who saw the game state that it would keep the T.A.S. seniors on the jump to beat them. Cotton who played centre half is an old St. Andrew's College player and put up a fine game, his punting being a feature. Byron Greene, formerly of Peterborough, also played a nice game on the half line, and Killen, who learned the game with St. Michael's College, was always in the limelight. The wing line was heavy and fast.

Individually the T.A.S. juniors did good work but team play was lacking and the backs fumbled badly at critical moments. Fitzpatrick and Seymour worked in several fine runs and Lundy put up a splendid game at quarter.

The T.A.S. lined up as follows:

Back—Fitzgerald.

Halves—Larkin, H. Quinlan, Fitzpatrick.

Quarter—Lundy.

Scrimmage — Giroux, Deannard, Hickey.

Wings—Henry, Hayes, Seymour, McGill, Davdson, Cranfield.

Referee—Rev. Fr. Collins of Lindsay.

Umpire—Frank O'Connor of Peterborough.

The Lindsay team lined up as follows:

Full back—Watson.

Half backs — Sylvester, Cotton and Greene.

Quarter—Killen.

Scrimmage — Murta, Douzan and McHugh.

Wings — Conway, Nesbitt, Koyle, Coulter, Newton, McHugh.

HACKENSCHMIDT'S LIST OF VICTORIES SHOWS ROGERS WILL LIKELY HAVE A HARD MATCH

Young Hackenschmidt writes from New York to Chris. Graham, who has matched him to wrestle Yankee Roger, "that he is not afraid of the big Yank or any other white man." From the last remark, the younger Hack must draw the colour line, and who ever heard of a nigger wrestler? Yankee Rogers is the hardest proposition in the wrestling game ever seen around these diggings and what he says that he will do to the cousin of the great Hack when they meet is certainly rich.

The Younger Hack has a reputation that does not have to depend upon his noted cousin for engagements, for when he landed in New York he was taken to Doc. Brown's gymnasium by Leo. Pardello and asked to strip and take a crack at the Flower of the Bowery. Leo. was the Candy Kid up to that little evening, but when the bout was over, and it was only a friendly affair, Pardello had been thrown more times in thirty minutes, than the habitues of the well-known wrestlers resort, could ever remember to have seen don to the Dago before. Young Hack just waded in and that was all there was to it. He met Jim Parr, the clever English wrestler, and Parr was beaten in short time at Elmira, N. Y. Then Olsen was matched with Hack and he won from him in a hard match, for big money. He has wins over Walter White in Kansas, Lundin, the famous Swede in Washington, D. C., and Turner at Worcester, Mass. Hack has had a life-long training at the wrestling game and the big Yank will get a little of his own medicine when they meet here on the 30th of this month.

HAMILTON'S OPINION OF HURTUBISE'S DEFEAT BY CONKLE'S "UNKNOWN"

The Hamilton Herald says:

Charlie Conkle turned a clever trick on Eugene Hurtubise on Saturday night when he brought Charlie Kaiser here from Auburn, N.Y., and had him pose as an unknown. Hurtubise got a little of Conkle's money when the local grappler failed to throw him three times in an hour a few weeks ago, and Conkle has been looking for a chance to get it back ever since. At the time he told Gene that he had a man who could defeat him in a straight match, but he refused to tell his name. Hurtubise guaranteed to take him on providing that it was not Frank Gotch or any of the famous heavyweights.

When Hurtubise arrived in the city on Saturday and found out that Conkle's man was Kaiser, a smile of satisfaction came over his face, as he thought that he was going to have a comparatively easy match. But Kaiser has taken on weight and become a great deal more scientific since Hurtubise saw him a few years ago, and he had a little up his sleeve for the Peterboro man.

The match drew a large crowd of people to the Armory rink on Saturday night, and when things began to get lively it was easily seen that the crowd was with Conkle's man. Hurtubise got the better of the first clinch for holds and was soon on top of the Yankee. He was a great deal taller than the Auburn man, and weighed about twenty pounds more. In many ways this was an advantage to him, but the stubby Yankee proved to be too strong for him, and on several occasions broke away from what appeared to be sure falls.

Half-Nelsons were easy for Kaiser, and two or three times he broke away from a full Nelson. After some nice head spinning he broke away from the ex-Rugby man and assumed the aggressive. It did not take him long to get Gene in a dangerous position with a scissors hold. Being unable to down the Peterboro grappler with that hold Kaiser tried an arm hold, only to have Hurtubise squirm out and get on top.

Both worked hard for the first twenty minutes, although neither seemed to care to take any chances. Several times Hurtubise tried to down the German with leg and arm holds, but was unsuccessful, although Referee Billy Carroll had to get on his knees on more than one occasion. After twenty-eight minutes of wrestling, Kaiser broke away from a half-Nelson and leg hold and got a scissors hold, which he supplemented with a face hold and gained the first fall.

The first fall appeared to take a great deal of the energy out of Hurtubise, for although he gained the coveted top position soon after the men returned to the mat, Kaiser got the second fall by about the same hold as he gained the first with.

After the match Hurtubise made a speech in which he admitted that he had no excuses to offer, as he had been beaten fairly, but he said that he would like to meet Kaiser again. Kaiser agreed, and the pair will likely meet in Peterboro.

In his little after talk Kaiser said that he was willing to meet any man in the world at 158 pounds, Fred Beel included.

BIG WALKING MATCH LIKELY TO BE POLLED OFF THANKSGIVING DAY

Hoagland has written to say that he will meet Harrison here on the 9th of November, if the local man will post a forfeit that he will walk for $250 a side. Harrison says he is ready and feels confident that the champion cannot beat him a mile in nine hours. Harrison has made rapid improvement in his walking and he thinks he has the Hoagland shuffle down as fine as the originator himself.

It is expected that the match will be pulled off at the Brock Street rink on the holiday, and is sure to be a great drawing card, for the writer cannot remember an athlete who made more friends by his good clean work than Hoagland did at the big meet last spring.

THE ONTARIO TANKARD'S GROUPS

Peterborough in No. 5—Will Play Crack Teams in Preliminaries.

The grouping of the curling clubs for the Ontario Tankard has been drawn up for next winter and Peterborough finds itself in number 5. The local curlers will play for the preliminaries with the following teams: Cobourg, Scarboro, Maple Leafs, Oshawa, Colborne, Bobcaygeon, East Toronto Aberdeens, Toronto Caledonians, Toronto Parkdale, Toronto Queen City, Port Hope. The games will be played at Toronto. Umpire, Mr. H. T. Wilson.

PRACTICE OF THE T.A.S. TO-NIGHT

A full practise of the T. A. S. Athletic Club's Rugby team will be held to-night, when it is expected that every member of the team will be on hand in uniform, as it is highly important that the team should get as much practise as possible before the return game with the T. A. A. C., which will be played here a week from Saturday. Last Saturday's game showed that a team cannot expect to do much without practise. To-night the team is expected to be at the Brock Street Rink at seven o'clock. Light will be installed at Riverside Park, and after to-day the squad will be able to get out there. Dr. A. W. MacPherson, will be on hand to coach the boys and should be able to achieve a great improvement before they have to clash with the T. A. A. C. again.

Sporting Comment

In the St. Andrew's-Trinity College game played on the Port Hope school grounds on Saturday last, Gordon Campbell, a Peterborough boy, and son of Mr. Peter Campbell, played a fine game for his team, which won out by 29 points to 5.

* * * *

Fred Waghorne of Toronto was the referee in the deciding lacrosse game in Chicago on Saturday when Shamrocks defeated the Illinois A. C. by 6 goals to 4. Percy Rubidge played with the latter team, and Pat McDonough, who is known in local lacrosse circles, was on the line-up of the winners.

CONSULT OUR OPTICIAN

The Eye is such a delicate organ that it should never be trifled with. This is why our optician has followed the teachings of only recognized authorities on the eye.

Many opticians take half a dozen or more correspondent courses costing from $7.50 to $25. With this limited knowledge it is little wonder that many are wearing glasses that do not suit them—others that do not require them.

If you have eye-trouble you should consult an optician who has a thorough knowledge of every branch of the optical business. Such a man is our Mr. Taylor.

FINDING FRASER RIVER

ITS DISCOVERER IS ONE OF CANADA'S HEROES.

Simon Fraser of North-West Co. In Face of Hardship and Danger Pushed Through Mountains Along Canyon of Great River at a Time When Indians Had Never Seen a Paleface.

Now that a considerable portion of our great Northwest is under the influence of cultivation and the magnitude of its future destinies is apparent, attention is being drawn towards the names of those who were the pioneers of that vast territory. The names of Gauthier de la Verenderie and Le Gardeur de St. Pierre head the list of those hardy pioneers. As early as 1740 or 1750, La Verenderie had forced his way to the foot of the Rockies in his searches for the far-off Western Sea. And when he was checked in his career Le Gardeur St. Pierre undertook the accomplishment of the perilous enterprise.

It was, however, principally in the latter part of the last century that the Northwest became known.

During the war of 1812 another of the Northwesters took possession of Astoria and led John Jacob Astor and party as prisoners over the Rockies to Fort William; but unquestionably one of the most valuable services rendered to Canada by the Nor'-Wester, was the exploring, a few years previous, by Mr. Simon Fraser, of the territory watered by the Fraser river, and now forming the Province of British Columbia.

Mr. Fraser was born in 1776, and descended in a direct line from Fraser of Culbokie, second son of Simon, first Lord Lovat, by his marriage with the daughter of Lord John Bizzell.

He came to Canada with his widowed mother and in 1792, he became an articled clerk to the North-West Fur Trading Co.—McTavish, Frobisher & Co. He appears to have spent his first year at the headquarters at Montreal, and the next year began his adventurous career, being despatched to Fort Arthabaska, then the principal trading post of the company west of Grand Portage. In 1802 he became a partner, and three years later came down to Fort William, when he was nominated to cross the Rocky Mountains for the purpose of extending the outposts and forming new trading connections with the Indians.

It was in the month of August, 1805, that he left Fort William on his voyage of discovery. According to notes left by him, his route lay through the Lake of the Woods, Lake Nepigon, up the Saskatchewan, then up the Peace river as far as Isle-a-la-Croise, then up Buffalo Lake to Fort Arthabaska, which was the rendezvous of this department. From this post he proceeded up the Fraser river to the foot of the mountains to a place which he named Rocky Mountain Portage.

After a trip of exploration he came back to Rocky Mountain Portage to spend the winter and in the spring of 1806 he started out westward again. It took him another year to make his observations of the mountain passes. Under orders to make all speed to locate on the river before the Americans he explored the river to its mouth and in 1807 reached the ocean.

He remained but a short time there on account of the hostility of the Indians. From the time he left Ferres until he arrived at the sea he met several large bodies of Indians, speaking different languages. They assembled to see the wonderful palefaces that had come amongst them. An idea may be formed of how they regarded white men from the fact that when hundreds of them were congregated together, at a discharge of a single gun they would all fall upon their faces on the ground, so great was their astonishment and terror.

After severing his connection with the North-West Co., on his return to the east, Mr. Fraser retired to St. Andrews, Glengarry, where he died in 1862, at the age of 86. The Cornwall "Freeholder" of that date says: "By the death of Mr. Fraser the country loses not only one of its most respectable and honorable residents, but one of the most illustrious men who ever settled within its borders. One of the few survivors of the five old 'Nor'-Westers,' Mr. Fraser's name, as a discoverer, and the first explorer of the golden stream which bears his name, will be remembered with honor long after most of his provincial contemporaries have been forgotten."

A Prairie Wife.

A dainty little Scottish gentlewoman, with her husband, an Oxford graduate, and four children, came to Winnipeg, says The Edmonton Westland in an article on Prairie Heroines, and went out as char-woman, washed and scrubbed, and did it well, too, in order to make a little money after having been burnt out by prairie fires three successive years on the farm. "I put all our clothing into sacks, my wedding dress, too, and we beat at the flames until we had to run for our lives. But I learned to work on the farm, and ten hours' charing seems nothing now in comparison to the anxiety and drudgery of the work there."

And an Irish lady, a bright, sympathetic, whole-souled woman, with a sense of humor that carried her through the harvest work as nothing else could have done, used to laugh over her bitter experiences; a large farm near Souris, four tiny children, three farm pupils, and as many hired men as her husband could get; every cent invested in the farm, and every copper lost when a loan company gained possession of it. "The dear men, and they worked so hard!" she said, "but sometimes I entirely forgot their meals until they came in for them."

Daily Mishaps

MAKE ZAM-BUK A DAILY NEED.

Scarcely a day passes without some member of the family getting hurt. Maybe the breadwinner's work makes him peculiarly liable to cuts or lacerations; the boisterous youngsters are always running in to mother with bumps and bruises; and housework abounds with painful knocks, burns, scalds, and sprains for the fair sex.

Promptly dressing an injury with Zam-Buk means speedy relief from smarting pain. That's why the children like it. But it means much more—that your hurt will heal up quickly and perfectly, without festering, without gathering, and without harbouring disease germs. That's why the "grown ups" like it.

Mrs. Beers, of L'Original (Ont.) says:—"Five doctors and treatment in three hospitals failed to cure me of chronic ulcers and sores. They were so bad I could only walk by aid of a crutch and a stick. Zam-Buk has cured me! and I have put my crutch away. I am 75 years old and in all my life never met with anything to equal Zam-Buk." All druggists and stores sell at 50c. a box or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 boxes for $1.25. Cures cuts, burns, bruises, piles, eczema all skin injuries and diseases.

THE SMALLEST KING.

Ruler of Chen-tung Is Only About Four Feet Nine Inches In Height.

"When traveling through the Shan States," says a correspondent of The Standard of Empire, "I had the honor of being presented to the smallest king in the world—the Sawbwa, or Myo'sa, of Chen-tung. He stood, as nearly as I could judge, about 4 feet 9 inches, in the curly Burmese slippers, and was the quintessence of regal courtesy. His 'palace' was a thatched hut on stilts, close to the Salween river; he had several wives, who manifested great curiosity when they saw their lord in conversation with a white man; and his retinue consisted of some four-and-twenty men armed with the quaintest collection of old guns that ever came out of a curiosity shop. The little brown king held out a small, plump hand for me to shake. It was as soft as a woman's. He bade me welcome with a smile the most genial I ever saw, and begged me to accept a cocoanut. I knew that it was court etiquette to offer a gift in return, and was embarassed to think that, traveling 'light' as I was, I had nothing worthy of his acceptance. I suddenly bethought me of a cockscrew knife, bearing the name of a well-known brand of bottle beer, which had been given to me as an advertisement in Calcutta a few months earlier. This I presented to him with due ceremony, and he accepted it with unfeigned delight. All his army pressed round as I opened the blades, the corkscrew, and the hoof-pick, and the headman beat a gong vigorously at a signal from the king, apparently in token of the royal approval. I parted from his majesty with great regret, and promised to convey his respectful duty to the King of England and Emperor of India—a promise which I fear I have never kept."

A "WAKE" IN BORNEO.

Missionary Describes Ceremony Before Burial of a Malay.

"I was for some time a missionary in Borneo," writes a correspondent to an English paper, "and while there was witness of a death ceremony curiously like an Irish wake. The subject was a Buginese, a Malay from Boni, in the island of Celebes. He was a merchant, with a fine type of face, much fairer than the majority of Malays, indeed quite approaching in features and complexion a sun-tanned European. Being a medical missionary, I had been called to him, but having a long journey to make arrived too late. His friends and relatives had dressed him in rich silks and lain him on a low table or settee. Lights—a bit of cotton wick in cocoanut oil—were placed all round him, and eight or nine people marched slowly, with bare feet, round the bier, chanting in low, not unmusical voices a funeral ode:

Parana, m'a kui pa,
M'a kui pa, puta puta;
Parana, m'a kui pa,
Wa Kata, Kata.

Kata, it appeared, was the merchant's personal name (in distinction to his trading or family name), and the mournful cadence of "Wa Kata, Kata" followed each chanting of these lines of the funeral song. At the final obsequies I was not allowed to be present."

Mr. Plowden's Rival.

The recent death of Mr. W. J. Stewart, the Liverpool (Eng.) stipendiary, has removed from the magisterial bench a humorist as witty and amusing as the famous Mr. Plowden. A man was recently before Mr. Stewart in a case of alleged shooting. He discharged the prisoner, and when the clerk asked what was to be done with the revolver he remarked hastily, "Oh, you can discharge that also." In another case a man was accused of stealing some green peas. Mr. Stewart discharged the prisoner. "You are bound over," he said, "but, of course, you are not to keep the peas." A solicitor who on another occasion was wasting time, in the stipendiary's opinion, was corrected. "I am not a faddy assize court judge," said Mr. Stewart. "You needn't bother with that point." He was a man with a marvellous memory, which he employed often on unsuspecting prisoners who thought that past offences had been forgotten. Mr. Stewart looked well after children brought before him. He has probably done more for juvenile offenders than any other magistrate.

System Can't Win.

A unique gambling contest between Sir Hiram Maxim and Lord Rosslyn has come to an end, and shows defeat for the system advanced by the latter. Lord Rosslyn claimed that by his system of play it was possible to win at roulette against the Monte Carlo bank. Sir Hiram said this was impossible, and in order to settle the controversy the two men began playing roulette in a Picadilly Club recently, Sir Hiram conducting the game in the same way it is played at Monte Carlo. Lord Rosslyn started to play with $50,000 in dummy money, and the bank had an equal amount.

Lord Rosslyn's system has been proved to be utterly fallacious. At one period of the contest he was about $16,000 to the good, but for the last three days of play the bank has been a steady winner, and his lordship's capital in "dummy" money became exhausted at the end of ten days.

Boycotting a Vicar.

The vicar of Staplefield, Sussex, Eng., is experiencing the truth of the saying: "Sussex people won't be driven." Disliking his actions, the parishioners refuse to attend church on Sundays, and the sacred edifice, once filled to the doors, musters on Sunday evenings a congregation which can be numbered on the fingers of one hand. The church finances are suffering in consequence. The vicar has for his warden a lady, and the result of her calling a meeting to decide how to remedy the state of affairs was met with a resolution calling upon the vicar to resign. The vicar attended the meeting and opened the proceedings with prayer, leaving shortly afterwards.

ST. LAWRENCE.

Dearest to me of rivers! Prince of streams,
Magnificent, upon whose breast there gleams
A vesture rich past speaking, dazzling beams
Of molten gold and silver, and a blaze
Of mingled diamond and sapphire rays,—
Hark why I love thee! Thy most noble name
Unto my thought long years ago became
The sweetest utterance that lips could frame;
And, ever since, I find the type in thee
Of all I'd have thy human namesake be.
Oh, may the future grant this precious life
Like thine may rise above ignoble strife,—
May it beneficently, calmly flow,
Majestic, ample,—may its borders grow
In gracious green,—and may good actions sow
Its course as thick, St. Lawrence strong and free,
As are the topaz dimples strewn o'er thee!

THE word "OXOL" does not mean one food or one preparation. No! "OXOL" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. and T. C. Windsor, of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and caring all animals, which to them means money.

Scientific Meetings will be organised by Messrs. Windsor and held through out the Dominion of Canada, when farmers desirous of improving their knowledge of stock will have an opportunity of doing so and to be instructed on the life of stock from birth to death, free of any charge.

JESTERS ON 'CHANGE

LONDON BROKERS ARE FAMOUS FOR JOKING.

Tedious Standing About Makes Dealers In Stocks Keen For Any Form of Sport—Freak Dress Is Swiftly Punished by Outrageous Practical Jokes—New Members Are Legitimate Victims.

The lighthearted manner in which the recent shooting outrage on the British Stock Exchange was received by the members brings forcibly to mind the fact that stockbrokers have always been famous for their love of sport, practical joking, witty "chaff" and mordant sarcasm. In times of activity they are strenuous workers; but to relieve the intolerable strain of standing about doing nothing they indulge in many forms of boisterous fun, and "waiters" often witness some extraordinary scenes.

The "House" boasts some clever caricaturists, poets, and humorists, who are constantly inventing some new wheeze to amuse their colleagues.

A good deal of the amusement is in connection with the queer unwritten laws about dress, deportment, and conduct. The "masher" is mercilessly chaffed. Without knowing it he may swagger about the "House" with a ticket danging at his back: "Please do not touch the model!" The hat furnishes perhaps the maximum of fun, especially if it be new and expensive. The man who resents his "topper" being used as a football, or as fuel for a bonfire, is considered lacking in humor.

Sometimes, however, the biter gets bitten. A story is told of a popular, happy-go-lucky member who, after lunching with two or three friends, had his hat blown off in Throgmorten street. It was chased and overtaken by one of his zealous friends, who "accidentally" dropped it and stumbled over it several times ere he returned it to its owner with a bow and an obsequious:

"Your hat, sir.."

"My hat, be blowed!" drawled the careless one. "It's yours! I took it by mistake!"

The champion joke is a delirious gamble in some bogus security at the expense of a new member. A swagger youth, fresh from the 'Varsity, who had foolishly expressed his surprise that anybdy could be caught by such silly tricks, once furnished rare sport. Of course, he was keen on business, so when an insinuating broker asked him a price for 1,000 "Johnnies' Board of Works," he was delighted. Turning to a friend, who was in the plot, he asked what price to make. "Make him 1—1 1-8 (£1 2s. 6d.), was the prompt reply. This he did, whereupon the broker sold him the shares.

Soon there was a surging, yelling crowd bidding for "Johnnies' Boards," big lines of which changed hands; the price shot up from £1 to £6. The new man did a roaring business. Furtively retiring to calculate his profits he found he had made about £1,000. His colleagues effusively congratulated him; gazed at him with envy; marvelled that a new man should start so brilliantly. So flattering were they, that he became suspicious. Great was his mortification on discovering he had been "spoofed." Of course there was no such stock as "Johnnies' Board of Works."

Brown boots constitute the abomination of most members. Those who have braved the "House" in such footwear have often had occasion to hobble out in search of their bootmaker. Woe to the member who wears an extra smart pair of patent boots. His friends will follow him with awe-inspired countenances, whisper soft words of admiration, spread their handkerchiefs or newspapers in order that he may lightly tread. Cummerbunds, gaudy ties, "two-in-one the field" waistcoats, brilliant trousers, or exaggerated collars, rarely escape the chaffing attentions of the critical members.

A favorite exploit is the filling of a big paper-bag with water and dropping it on the heads of the crowd in the street. On one occasion a bag of water was dropped on the head of a partner of a big firm having an office in the same building from which it was dropped. The culprit escaped prompt punishment by locking himself up until the furious wrath of the victim had subsided.

PRIDE AS A VIRTUE.

Whether In Business or Social Life, It Is Necessary to Success.

A certain amount of pride is one thing in this world absolutely essential to every one. Whether it be in social life or business, it is necessary to success.

Haughtiness and snobbishness are not what is meant; far from it. It means the ability to hold your own with others in a way that commands respect.

Nor does it mean a rehearsal of who your grandfather was and how much money you would have if an ancestor had not been extravagant. It means personal dignity.

When a girl goes into a business office to apply for her first position the employer does not want her if she is compelled to use the chairs and desks for support and if she is continually rearranging her attire. A certain amount of nervousness is to be expected, but uncontrolled self consciousness and visible silly fear are evidences of the lack of the right kind of pride.

Nor does the employer want her who tries to tell him how much she knows. Boldness is even worse than being too timid. The girl who wins is straightforward, is not afraid to answer questions quickly and honestly, knows that she is willing to try, even though she may make mistakes, and so shows that she can maintain the dignity necessary in a well regulated office.

The appearance often spells fortune or failure, for it points to pride or lack of it.

Extravagance is not necessary for the girl who wants to look well. She who spends the least amount of money on her attire is the girl who often makes the best appearance.

She studies what is becoming to her. She buys what she needs and no more. No one could make her buy an unbecoming necktie or belt because it was reasonable. Then she looks well as to how her clothes are put on. It may take her a few minutes longer in the morning to dress, but the result pays amply for the extra trouble she takes. Reasonably done, this isn't vanity; it is pride.

THE ART OF COMPLIMENT.

Worth the Study of Those Who Value Life's Pleasantness.

There is still an art of compliment, and it is still practiced worthily and unworthily. The flatterer of today deals little in words. He acts and, above all, he imitates. We all imitate each other with a pitiful diligence. All classes try to dress alike, talk alike and even think alike. With a sad want of dignity men and women fear to take their own line to show the kind of hospitality which best befits their incomes, to wear the clothes most convenient for their work, to talk upon the subjects which interest them, to express the disapproval which the class above them ridicule and the admiration which offends the fashion leaders of literature and art.

The art of compliment may, however, be well worth the study of all those who value the pleasantness of life above its pleasures. Graciousness is never out of fashion. We must tell our friends from time to time what we think of them. There are reserves which blight the whole beauty of life. But we must be at the pains to tell them in the right way, for friendship in some of its aspects is an art. Again, if we hope to get much enjoyment out of social life we must take the trouble to show ourselves well disposed and must know how to turn indifferent and insignificant occasions to account.

This cannot be done without consideration. A "pretty speech" is a form of present, one of those little gifts which, according to the French saying, cement great friendships, and when one desires to make a present it is worth while to try to find out what will best please. They are happiest who know by instinctive sympathy, but surely those who take pains to find out have nothing to be ashamed of. Setting aside the great essentials of happiness, health, family affection and the love of work, it is probable that nothing, no amusement and no hobby and no "pursuit," contributes so much to the pleasantness of life as the traffic in kind speeches.

HOUSEWIFE SUGGESTIONS.

To clean a copper kettle rub the kettle with powdered bath brick and paraffin and then polish it with dry brick dust or whiting.

The green tips of celery or minced leaves of brussels sprouts may be substituted for parsley when that is not obtainable for garnishing.

When pouring out tea one sometimes is annoyed to find the tea will run down the spout. To prevent this rub a little butter around the outside of the spout.

When thin tumblers stick together and there is danger of breaking them do not try to pull them apart, but put them into a pan of warm suds. In a short time they can be easily separated.

If housewives who dislike to find worms when cutting apples would first put the fruit in cold water they would find that the worms would leave the apples and come to the surface of the water.

When cleaning house look well to the picture wires, for they rust and often break apart near the screw eye. It is best to put in new wire or cords on very heavy pictures. Do not place a mirror where it will be in the sunlight or near any intense heat, for both ruin the mercury, and it is impossible to have the glass replaced without considerable expense.

The statement that Semi-ready Clothes are "not better than custom tailoring" is difficult to meet in words and type.

You can judge only by careful and critical comparison. Look at the style of cut and design. Look critically at the fit. Noticd the artistic fit effect matching trimmings with fabrics.

You can see for yourself by a side-by-side comparison.

Cressman's PETERBOROUGH

DOMINION ELECTIONS

TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST PETERBOROUGH:

FELLOW ELECTORS:

The time is near for the election of a representative at this Riding to the Dominion Parliament.

Much as I would like to see you all personally, it may not be possible for me to do so before election day, so I adopt this method of presenting my appeal, especially to as many as possible of those I cannot see, for your support.

In convention assembled, my friends, unsolicited, conferred on me the honour of selecting me as a candidate, therefore, I am now before you in that character, soliciting your votes and influence for me at the coming election. Having had the honour of being before you previously in the same character, I flatter myself that I do not need any personal introduction to you. Although I was then defeated, I was not discredited. I conducted clean election campaigns and did nothing to be ashamed of. I have been with and among you all my life, have taken an active part in your public and local affairs, and, being a farmer myself, I have given much attention to such matters and questions as are of special interest to farmers. I have had the honour of representing the municipality in which I live as Reeve and Councillor for a number of years, and at all times I have endeavoured to perform my duties efficiently, fairly and honourably, and in such manner as to shew myself worthy of your good will and support. Therefore, I trust you have reason to judge favourably of my ability to perform the important duties of your representative advantageously to this Riding and creditably to myself. While in politics I am a Liberal-Conservative, I have never been a blind partizan. I shall never consider myself bound to support my party, except when I believe them to be right and acting in the best interests of our country, and can give you a reason for, and justify in my own conscience, at least, the course I shall think it my duty to take as your honoured representative.

In matters pertaining to our County, should you honour me with your confidence and elect me as your representative, I shall always consider my services at your command, and it will be my pleasure to consistently and properly render a good service to a political opponent as cheerfully as to a party associate. I have carefully studied the requirements of this Riding and district and am already familiar with the same, and you will ever find me ready and willing to do my utmost to advance the best interests of our own district, and especially those of East Peterborough, irrespective of local, personal or political considerations.

I trust my position, thus stated, which I consider is the proper one for a representative of the people to take, will have your approval and merit your most generous support irrespective of party.

I hope to have an opportunity during the campaign of addressing you at public meetings on some of the many political questions which are at present interesting and agitating the people. Meantime I appeal to all my friends, and those who desire honest and economical administration of public affairs and are in sympathy with the Liberal-Conservative party, to rally to my support and give me an active and enthusiastic campaign in my behalf, and vote for better government, and to aid the cause of better Government. I trust those whom I will not be able to see personally will be no less active in my behalf on that account. It is time for a change at Ottawa.

I will never forget to be deeply grateful to all those who have so generously and kindly supported me in the past. I shall always be sincerely thankful for, and now again respectfully solicit your votes, influence and active support until the close of the elections on the 30th day of October. Promising you my very best efforts in your behalf, and in the cause of good government, if elected. I am,

Your obedient servant,
JOHN A. ALEXANDER.

Juvenile Delinquents.

An order-in-council has been passed defining requirements which must be complied with before the Juvenile Delinquents' Act, passed at the last session of Parliament can be brought into force in any city, town or municipality. They are as follows:

1. That a proper detention home has been established and will be maintained for temporary confinement of juvenile delinquents, or of children charged with delinquency. The institution should be conducted more like a family home than like a penal institution, and must not be under the same roof as, or in immediate vicinity of, any police station, jail, lock-up or other place in which adults are or may be imprisoned.

2. That an industrial school, as defined by clause (h) of section 2 of the act, exist, to which juvenile delinquents may be committed.

3. That there is a superior court, or county court judge or justice, having jurisdiction in city, town or other portion of a province in which it is sought to have the act put in force willing to act as juvenile court judge, and that the remuneration of such juvenile court judge (if any) has been provided for without recourse to federal authorities.

4. That remuneration for an additional [illegible] been provided by municipal grant, public subscription or otherwise.

5. That some society or committee is ready and willing to act as juvenile court committee.

"Fancy Meeting You!"

Many amusing stories are recorded of Mr. Edward Terry, the eminent comedian. Mr. Terry, who has travelled widely, is a keen Alpine enthusiast. Once when climbing Mont Blanc he met trouble at a dangerous point, and, turning to another climber to whom he was roped, said, "Well, the only thing that troubles me is whether the insurance company will pay up if I get killed!" "What company are you in?" asked the other climber. Mr. Terry mentioned the name of a well-known insurance office. "I know the company will pay," said the other climber; "I'm the company's London agent, and your policy is in my safe." "Well, well," said Mr. Terry, "isn't the world small, after all? Fancy meeting you here!"

Hunting Women Ride Astride.

That a much broader view is being taken of deeply-rooted conventions is proved by the fact that many of the women followers of the Devon and Somerset staghounds are riding astride.

THE LATE HENRI JULIEN.

In Montreal Man Canada Loses Foremost Newspaper Artist.

Mr. Henri Julien, the newspaper artist, who died suddenly in Montreal a few days ago, was in many respects a remarkable man. Nature endowed him with talent of a high order, and had not his whole life been practically devoted to the necessarily hurried and transient work of daily journalism, he would undoubtedly have left behind him many works of art that would have lived. As it was, he found time to do a number of pictures, both in oil and water-colors, illustrating the life of the French-Canadian habitant, whom he understood so thoroughly, and the picturesque side of whose life he was so competent to depict. In these pictures, unfortunately so few, with pencil and brush, he did for the habitant what the late Dr. Drummond did with his verses.

Perhaps it is not saying too much to claim for the late Mr. Julien the first place among the illustrators of daily newspapers on this continent. His work was true and correct, and he produced more than mere pictures with correct technique. His pictures illustrated the subject at hand, and made the pages they adorned glow with life and reality. The speed with which he did his work was the wonder of those who watched him, and the despair of those who attempted to be his imitators. The speaker in Parliament or at a banquet had not concluded his remarks before Mr. Julien had him sketched in all his characteristic attitudes, and the sketches were ready for the etcher. He was the first in North America to do this class of work for a daily newspaper, and to the day of his death, he remained the first, as regards the quality of his work.

He was born in Beauharnois County, Quebec, but his boyhood was spent in Ottawa. When but a youth he accompanied the expedition of the Northwest Mounted Police, which in 1870, proceeded from old Fort Garry to the foothills of the Rookies for the purpose of taking formal possession of the Great West for the Dominion of Canada. That was the event of his life, to which he seemed to look back with the greatest pleasure—to meeting the Indians who were then wild and picturesque, to hunting the buffalo that then roamed the prairies in vast herds, and to living that free, out-door life of which he was so fond, and which he followed to the last, as far as his work would permit.

A more modest, retiring man than Mr. Julien never lived, but his genial manner and kindness of heart made him friends wherever he went. He was claimed as a confrere, both by the newspaper men and the artists, and it is many a year since the followers of the two crafts, but especially those of Montreal and Ottawa, have lost a fellow-worker, who left behind him so many mourning friends.

It is fortunate that one specimen of Julien's more deliberate work is the property of the nation. It is his painting, "Chasse Galerie," which won high praise at a recent exhibition of the Royal Canadian Art Association, and was subsequently purchased for the National Gallery at Ottawa.

'Twixt East and West.

Alberni, the Vancouver Island port which may one day prove an important link in the round-the-world traffic of the Canadian Pacific, is already historically connected with the Suez route. This is through its association with Messrs. Anderson & Anderson, of the Orient line, who besides their business of shipowners and shipbrokers, had an interest in a shipbuilding and ship-repairing dock and yard at Rotherhithe, on the Surrey side of the Thames. About the year 1855 it was brought to the notice of this firm that there were in Vancouver Island large tracts of forest land containing Douglas pine and other valuable timber suitable for masts and spars, and for general ship-building purposes. In 1860 they sent out their agent, Capt. Stamp, to Vancouver Island, and he selected Alberni as the most suitable site on which to erect a sawmill, not only on account of the great wealth of timber, but in view of the ease with which that timber could be shipped to foreign markets. The business became large and important, until the mill was burned down. It was never rebuilt, as the fire coincided with a depression in the shipbuilding industry. In 1886 the Andersons surveyed a portion of their land into a town site, which was called Alberni, and in 1906 incorporated their interest into the Alberni Land Co. The Canadian Pacific Railway acquired a substantial interest in this company, thus giving the railroad access to the deep-water harbor.

Shriners Rest.

Very great interest is taken by Canadians in the completion of the sale of the Perry Castle at Whitby to Wm. L. Cheeseworth of Rowell & Co., Toronto.

The intention is to utilize it in establishing an international Shriners' rest. Prominent members of that Masonic order are behind the purchasers in their purchase to accomplish that object.

Constructed more than fifty years ago, this splendid home, built by the late registrar, John Ham Perry, at a cost of $60,000, has been unoccupied for a long period, and is in sad condition of ruin, except for a perfectly splendid grove of trees with which it is surrounded.

Of especial interest to Masons will be the Balm of Gilead and tall cedars of Biblical repute.

New Zealand's Trade With Canada.

J. S. Larke, the Canadian commercial commissioner at Sydney, reports that last year Canada sold to New Zealand goods to a value of 205,536, as against only £52,374 in 1902. In the same time we bought from New Zealand £78,015 worth as against £7,366 worth in 1902. New Zealand has prohibited the importation of prison-made goods, and as the United States has been sending there a quantity of harvesting tools made by the convicts there is a good chance of Canadian manufacturers to increase their trade with the southern colony.

Fortune and A Castaway.

By Marshall Cromwell.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Most of the passengers were at luncheon, for the steamer was still in the channel, and the choppy waves had small effect on the huge bulk of the liner.

Even when the channel should be passed and the heavy swell of the Atlantic should be encountered there would be little motion and few ill, but today every seat was taken. Mason Hawley, coming late purposely, scanned the crowd eagerly, then sank into his seat, his face clouded by disappointment.

Hawley, despite a fund of commercial common sense that had enabled him to score a business success, was superstitious in many ways. He had been a guest on a houseboat just before sailing, and a wet day had been beguiled with fortune telling and similar devices of the rain imprisoned.

The seer had been a young woman whose brunette beauty seemed to sustain her statement that the blood of the Zingari flowed in her veins.

Adroit guessing, supplemented by positive knowledge in the form of hints from the host, had enabled her to read accurately Hawley's past, so when she had reached the future he had listened open eared and believing while she predicted that on the homeward voyage he would meet his fate.

"She will be on the steamer," the girl had predicted. "You will become engaged before the steamer reaches port, and you will live happy ever after."

His reason for taking a vacation had been Betty Lippincott's treatment. After a lively pursuit all season Miss Lippincott had withdrawn the favor she had shown Hawley and had become engaged to Dudley Hodge, who had come upon the scene only a few weeks before.

Hawley had taken his rejection very much to heart and had come abroad to seek forgetfulness, with such small success that he welcomed the time of his return. At home he could at least see Betty, and he derived a mournful pleasure from that anticipation.

Now the words of the seeress brought him new hope. She had predicted that he would meet his fate on the steamer and "live happy ever after." He knew that he could not be happy except with Betty, and of course that meant that Betty would be on the homeward bound ship.

But Betty's name was not to be found on the passenger lists, nor was Betty's pretty self to be found in the dining saloon, and Hawley regarded discontentedly the usual crowd of homegoing schoolteachers and tourists who at that season were in the majority.

There were half a dozen pretty girls, girls above the average in good looks, but Hawley told himself miserably that no one who had loved Betty could ever love one of these commonplace persons.

That they were far from commonplace he could not appreciate, and he regarded with dull wonder the numerous steamer flirtations that sprang up overnight.

After that one quick scrutiny at the luncheon table he had not looked at a single woman with interest, though many of them were well worth looking at, and he asked himself with dull insistence which of these tiresome persons was written on the cards as his fate.

As the days passed and the steamer neared the home port this wonder increased to anxiety. It never occurred to Hawley to ascribe the "fortune" to the joking propensities of the black eyed girl. She was of the Zingari, and the blood of prophecy flowed in her veins.

When they had spoken the lightship and there were signs of home Hawley grew worried. He did not question the workings of fate, but he knew that only an accident would precipitate an engagement now. By the following day they should be in port, and there was no time for a conventional wooing.

He stayed on deck long after the lights were extinguished. He had made friends with the officers, and now he climbed to the bridge to share the watch.

For more than an hour he followed the faint sheen of the stars on the black green sea as the vessel plowed its way through the heavy swell.

"It must have been a heavy storm hereabout lately," commented the officer. "This ground swell argues a big blow. It must have passed to the southward, as we got none of it."

"Looks like"— began Hawley. Then he paused and gripped the officer's arm.

"There's a small boat out there," he cried, "and they are waving a signal of distress."

"Two women in a sailboat with the sail torn to rags," commented the sailor, who was more used to looking into the night. "I'm sorry we saw them, because now we'll have to stop. It will cut an hour from our record."

Hawley gasped at the frank admission and wondered if the officer would have seen the boat had there been no passengers on deck.

As it was the bridge telegraph sent its signal to the engine room, and presently the thud that for six days had sounded with steady monotony was stilled, and the huge bulk slid through the water.

Then the engines turned again as a signal was sent and the slight headway was checked as the ship came even with the catboat, which seemed tinier than ever in comparison with the racing liner.

A sailor slipped down a rope and made it fast to the small craft. Then a second rope was lowered with a noose in the end, and presently the castaways were hoisted to the deck.

The first was an elderly woman who sank into a faint as soon as she reached the solid deck. Her younger companion showed more courage, for she did not faint—only breathed a little sigh of relief.

Then she looked about her, and as the light from one of the deck lanterns fell upon her face Hawley sprang forward to gather Miss Lippincott in his arms.

For an instant she lay passive, then she gently disengaged herself, and two red spots burned in her cheeks as she turned to thank the rescuers.

"We went for a sail and a storm caught us and blew us out to sea," she explained. "The squall took our sail, and I think this prevented our being capsized, but we had only one bottle of water and a few sandwiches. We drank the last of the water hours ago."

One of the quartermasters hurried off for water, and presently it was arranged that Hawley should surrender his room to the two women since all of the staterooms were occupied. He spent the night in a deck chair.

As Betty had given her right hand in good night greeting he had noticed that the left lacked the diamond which she had worn when he went away, and on that slight foundation he built wondrous air castles through the long, sweet summer night.

Betty did not appear until nearly noon, but when she came she verified his hope. She had become engaged to Hodge because she had been told that Hawley was to announce his engagement to a girl not of their set and she had not wished to seem deserted for another. She had later found that the story had been a ruse of Hodge's and had broken the engagement.

When they made their landing and Hawley had seen Betty to a hotel he hurried to a cable office and sent a message.

"Your skill is wonderful. Just landed and am engaged as you prophesied," read Lady Muriel d'Arcy, knitting the heavy brows that shaded flashing black eyes. "I wonder who this Hawley is!"

"He is the chap who was with the Goodingtons," reminded her companion. "Don't you remember? You told his fortune and said that he would be engaged before he left the boat. He was going back to the States."

Lady Muriel laughed.

"That rich American," she said lightly. "I remember now. Clara Vassilington was to have gone over on the same boat, and I thought it might be a good chance for her to make the rich marriage the poor child has been seeking ever since she was presented."

"And some one else captured the prize," laughed the man. "I hope that they will be happy."

"They will be," affirmed Lady Muriel positively.

And this also came true.

A Horse Trade.

A prominent English landlord was one day riding across a common adjacent to his preserves when he overtook one of his tenants, who was also mounted. After the usual salutations they rode on in silence for some minutes, when the tenant slightly spurred his horse, a balky animal, whereupon it dropped to its knees.

"What's the matter with your horse?" asked his lordship. The embarrassed tenant remarked by way of explanation that his steed always acted that way when there was game to be found.

A moment later, to the tenant's satisfaction and surprise, a frightened hare jumped out of some bushes near by.

This so impressed the landlord that he at once drove a bargain by which he secured the tenant's barebacked beast in exchange for his own fine mount, perfectly saddled. With much agility the tenant leaped to his new horse, and all went well until they came to a small stream, wherent the landlord's new nag immediately balked. A drive home with the spurs brought it again to its knees.

"Hello! What's up now? There's no game here," said his lordship.

"True, my lord," was the ready reply, "but I forgot to tell yon 'ee's as good for fish as 'ee is for game."

Pastures Affect Milk.

A prominent Ontario farmer said recently that the failure of the turnip crop, the withering up of the corn fields and the scarcity of late pasture is seriously curtailing the outlook for a big milk supply this winter.

It is felt by the milk producers in some counties that the old prices of $1.56 for the winter and $1.35 for the summer months must be maintained, and they are earnest in their demands for such a new contract.

JAMAICANS GET TREASURE.

Americas Students Find Britons Already Hard at Work.

The expedition composed of Harvard students, which started recently on the schooner Mayflower from New York in search of sunken treasure in these waters, will likely have to modify the original plans.

The treasure seekers intend to search for a Spanish galleon, which sunk many years ago, but the American expedition has been anticipated by a Jamaican syndicate, which chartered a schooner, and, after an ineffectual search, returned to Monteo Bay.

The Jamaicans occupied several weeks in their gold hunting trip and had exciting experiences with hurricanes. The galleon was not found, but her position on the ocean bed was located, the wreck having broken to pieces years ago. Divers were sent down and a number of Spanish coins were recovered, but nothing of any great value. The leader of the expedition was the son of Sir Henry Arthur Blake, who was governor of Jamaica 1889-97.

The location of the wreck which is believed to be near Silver Bay, between Puerto Plata and Turk's Island, has been visited frequently during the course of the last few centuries, first by an expedition fitted out by the Duke of Albemarle, who was governor of Jamaica in 1687. Even as late as 1902, 10,000 "pieces of eight" were brought into Kingston harbor by a party of divers.

In the case of the latest expedition which has returned the tempestuous weather interfered greatly with diving operations. It is intended to refit and undertake a more systematic search at any early date.

MACREADY'S WIDOW.

Second Wife of Famous Actor Passes Away at Age of 81.

A link with the memorable past is snapped by the death of Mrs. Cecile Louise Frederica Macready, which occurred at Weston-super-Mare, England, recently at the age of 81. Mrs. Macready, nee Spencer, married the celebrated actor, Wm. Chas. Macready, on April 3, 1860. He was then 67, and deceased lady 33. She was Macready's second wife. Young Macready, himself the son of an actor, when only 18, essayed the character of Hamlet at Newcastle, and he records in his "Reminiscences" the reflection that "total failure in that character is a rare occurrence." There also he played in "The Gamester" with that great actress, Mrs. Siddons. This accomplished lady encouraged him, and gave him some advice. She said, "You are on the right way; but study, study, study, and do not marry until you are 30." Macready acted on this counsel; he did study, and he did not marry until 1823, when he married a Miss Catherine Frances Atkins at St. Pancras Church. This lady died in 1852, and eight years later Macready married the lady whose death is now announced. Macready himself passed away thirteen years later, in April, 1873, at Cheltenham, leaving a son and a daughter by his first wife and a son by his second wife.

Paid In Full.

During a visit to Winchester, some time ago, Lord Alverstone presided at a public dinner given by the mayor. He told many amusing stories, amongst them one of a friend of his, who had asked for a small loan. Lord Alverstone, having nothing upon him at that moment but a sovereign, gave it. A third acquaintance, who had witnessed the transaction, remarked to Lord Alverstone later that he would never see his money again. "Nonsense!" said Lord Alverstone; but, as the friend was very positive on the subject, they had a small bet upon it.

Some months later, meeting Lord Alverstone by accident, the betting friend asked if his lordship had ever received the money from their mutual acquaintance.

"No," replied Lord Alverstone, "but only this morning I received a note from him, which will more than repay me for my loss. Knowing that the time is past at which he was to repay the loan, I wrote to him, and this morning received the following answer:

"'Dear Lord Alverstone,—Enclosed please find a postal order for £1, for I'm hanged if I can!—Yours, etc.'"

Eating Dog Meat.

Prospectors returned from the new Ingenika gold fields in British Columbia report having met with the greatest hardships for lack of food. After nine months in the wilds one party returned and said that it was found impossible to get food of any description at Fort Grahame, although a stay of 17 days was made there, during which time the men hunted moose; in fact, they lived on game all the time they were out. After exploring the country at the head of the Stikine and Laird rivers they struck for McConnell creek, where they found 25 men in the camp who were getting out about $10 a day.

It is deep digging here and bedrock has not yet been reached. Food was scarce and the men on the creek killed the dogs, over 100 dogs being sacrificed for food. Watson and party getting rid of two of their own.

"Black Rod's" Unique Experience.

Admiral Sir Henry Stephenson, Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, once had the novel experience of being on board his ship during a mutiny and knowing nothing whatever about it until it was all over. He has been unwell for some time, and one day he was surprised to learn that there had been a mild mutiny on board. He immediately sent for his flag-captain, Prince Louis of Battenberg, from whom he learnt that there had been dissatisfaction among some of the men, but of a trivial nature. It appeared that there were certain drastic orders to which the tars objected, but Prince Louis got wind of the small insurrection and nipped it in the bud by his firmness and tact. Thoughtful of the admiral's ill-health, he had kept the little disturbance to himself in order to spare him annoyance.

Mayoress Wins a Swimming Race.

Miss R. Markville, Mayoress of Camberwell, Eng., beat thirty other lady competitors recently in the open swimming handicap promoted by the Zephyr Swimming Club at the Stadium Bath, Shepherd's Bush.

AN IRISH RIOT.

Southwest Limerick Countrymen and Town Residents Settle Dispute.

They had a fine time in Newcastle West, in the County of Limerick, Ireland, the other day. It was like one of those old-fashioned fine times that gave Ireland a world-wide reputation half a century ago. After a long delay the Earl of Devon concluded to sell his vast estate in Southwest Limerick to his tenants. The tenants in the town of Newcastle West obtained splendid terms, at the expense of country tenants—a mighty good many by the way—feel that his generosity was appreciated they called a public meeting on the town square, where they had erected a spacious platform from which eulogistic speeches were to be made. The country tenantry heard of this and went down from the hills of Tournafulla, Temple Glenlin and other places, well armed with blackthorn sticks, which grow there in abundance. They waited until the meeting began and then the "Faugaballa" was sounded by the hillsmen. The finest fight seen in Newcastle since the Synan and Dixon election of forty years ago occurred, and when the hillsmen got through with the work of the day some of the wisest heads in Newcastle were out of business. Sunday's cablegrams from Dublin tell the story in detail, and it is mighty interesting.

For thirty years or so "faction fighting" in old Ireland has been only a memory. It was thought that it had passed away forever, but the story from Newcastle proves that the men of West Limerick still have faith in the blackthorn as a weapon capable of solving the knottiest problems arising from the land question. And their faith has been rewarded by the calling of a general meeting of the tenantry, without regard to class, for the consideration of the whole question of values with view to readjusting the basis of purchasing. The hillsmen of West Limerick are a sturdy tribe of agitators and fighters. They belong to the old Irish pure-bloods, out of whose minds the potency of the national weapon could not be rooted in a generation.

"Ranji," Poacher.

No more popular reappearance in first-class cricket this season could have taken place than that of his Highness the Jam Sahib of Nawanagar — more familiarly known as "Ranji."

Keenly interested in sport of every description, he is a particularly good shot, and the opening of the shooting season will doubtless remind him of the time when he involuntarily assisted in a little poaching.

It seems, from his own account of the incident, that he was driving an elderly gentleman from a railway station to a "shoot" to which they had both been invited, when the latter said:

"Do you mind stopping a bit?"

Naturally, the Prince, as he was then styled, reined up, and, to his astonishment, the old gentleman snatched a gun from the bottom of the trap, and let fly at a covey of partridges in an adjacent field. Not content with this, the shooter jumped out, climbed into the field, and presently returned with seven birds, which were flung into the trap, with the remark:

"Aren't they beauties?"

"Ranji" whipped up the horse, and didn't stop again for the remaining four miles of the journey. What he thought during that time, he alone can tell.

A Countess Bountiful.

One of the most attractive women in Ireland is the Countess of Aberdeen, who is just now devoting her attention to tuberculosis exhibitions, which are being held week by week in the different cities and towns of the country under her direction. She is, perhaps, engaged in more charitable movements than any other lady in her country, and her philanthropy takes always a most practical turn.

As president of all descriptions of societies, she is continually delivering addresses, opening bazaars inspecting hospitals, assisting in organizing Young Women's Christian Associations, or promoting the work of the Irish Women's Health Association, or the Christian Women's Temperance Union. Indeed, she is an indefatigable temperance reformer, and has for several years been working to establish attractive tea-houses for workmen, in order to draw them away from the temptations of publichouses.

20,000 Years' Imprisonment.

Probably no reader has the least idea what is the total amount of imprisonment to which offenders in England are sentenced every year. The figures are remarkable.

In round numbers, 950 people receive sentences of 4,200 years' penal servitude, and 195,000 people receive sentences of 16,800 years' imprisonment. That is a total of 20,800 years.

What a dreadful loss this is to the country! Not only have all these people to be fed, clothed, housed, guarded, but they are practically idle—or, at least, their work is of little value. The great majority of them are in the prime of working life, aged from 20 to 60.

Novelist Wells' Socialism.

Herbert G. Wells, the Socialistic writer, announces his withdrawal from the Fabian Society, the famous Socialistic organization.

He says he thinks its usefulness for propagandist purposes is at an end and he no longer sympathizes with its professions. He is still a Socialist, however, and says:

"The [illegible] which proposes to leave a [illegible] and child economically dependent upon a father is to me not Socialism at all but a miserable perversion of Socialism."

Mrs. Hoyle—I am just twenty-three. Mrs. Doyle—I don't see how you figure it. You were twenty-two when you had your black silk, and you haven't had a new dress for ten years.—New York Press.

He Crowed Too Soon.

She—You'll be glad to learn, dear, that I've got out of visiting our relatives. He—Grand! Splendid! It hung over me like a cloud. How did you manage it? She—Oh, I asked them here!

LIBERAL LABOUR LEGISLATION RECEIVES ATTENTION IN MR. STRATTON'S THIRD ADDRESS TO PETERBOROUGH ELECTORS

To the Electors of West Peterborough,—

In my addresses previously issued, I aimed to specify what had been accomplished by the Liberal Governments of Ontario and the Dominion in promoting the local interests of this riding, and what had been done to promote the progress and prosperity of Canada as a whole.

The records of the Liberal Goverments in these two respects are closely connected with, and have a large bearing upon what the Government has done for the promotion of an interest which lies at the foundation of national development and progress—an interest which cannot be helped or injured, as a whole, without benefitting or impairing the general national condition—I refer to the interests of Labour.

The Liberal Government of the Dominion has, ever since it assumed the responsibility of administration, showed an earnest and practical interest in the cause of Labour.

This interest has been exhibited in both specific acts of legislation and administration, and by its general policy; the two combined having the effect of creating conditions eminently favourable to the welfare of the working man.

The Liberal Government has, while recognizing the rights of all classes of the community, done much in a direct way to benefit Labour without undue assumption of protection or patronage, feeling that the working classes as a body asked no favours above any other section of the community—that all they sought was fair play, and concession of their rights as citizens, and a due share of consideration in the legislative and administrative functions which Parliament and the Government are empowered to exercise.

Before referring to the direct acts and provisions in the interests of Labour, I might point out that the general administrative policy of the Liberal Government, while promoting the general welfare, has incidentally benefitted the wage earner.

The tariff adjustment made by the Liberal Government, by cheapening the raw material used in industrial operations, by removal or reduction of duties, directly benefitted the manufacturing industries of the country, and, through them, the working population. The interests of Capital and Labour, rightly adjusted, are so bound up together that what helps or hurts one helps or hurts the other.

When manufacturing industries are prosperous and busy, Labour is well employed at good wages; and under the Liberal policy of improving the condition of industry, the growth has, as everybody knows, been astonishing.

In 1896, the exports of Canadian manufactures amounted to only nine millions of dollars; the first full year of Liberal Government they increased a million and a half, and every year since there has been an increase of from two to three millions, till last year, when there was a sharp advance of five and a half millions to a grand total of exported manufactures of $28,507,124, three times the figures of twelve years previous.

The capital invested in Canadian manufacturing establishments increased from 446 millions in 1900 to 833 millions in 1905—the latest census figures.

In the same period the wages paid to labour in manufacturing establishments, increased from 113 millions in 1900 to 162 millions in 1905, an increas of ten million dollars a year.

In the benefits of this great growth of manufacturing industry, Labour and its interests had its share.

In their tariff adjustment the Liberal Government, by lessening or removing tariff obstacles to the provision of supplies and machinery required by the miner and the farmer, stimulated these industries into greater activity, with the result of larger and more profitable and productive operations—an increased output swelling the traffic of shipping and railways; and in every step of these advances Labour had its share of activity and reward.

So the vigorous immigration policy of the Liberal Government, which has increased the population of the West to over a million, has increased our home market, and created new and enlarged demands upon the eastern manufacturer, with, of course, increased demands for the assistance of labour.

Every man who toils knows that in the past twelve years, the conditions of the labouring man and artizan has been splendid—employment plentiful and wages high.

Not only has the prosperity that has attended the application of the general policy of the Liberal Government conduced to the bettering of the condition of the wage-earner in pocket and property, but the specific Labour legislation of the Liberal Government has safeguarded his rights, protected his person, and promoted his health.

A brief reference to the specific provisions made in the interests of our working people, will show that the Liberal Government's policy in this regard has been of the most energetic, progressive and liberal character; and will also sustain the claim that practically all the legislation enacted—with the single exception of "Labour Day"—has been passed and applied by a Liberal Government of the Dominion within the past twelve years.

Prior to the elections of 1896, the Conservative Government appointed a commissioner to investigate the existence of an alleged sweating system. He reported that there was no such system.

When the Liberal Government came into power it looked into the matter and found that an odious sweating system, ten years old, existed in connection with government contracts for Mounted Police clothing, etc.—men, women and children forced to work long hours in foul, stuffy rooms, at starvation wages. Regulations to put a stop to this white slavery were adopted by the Liberal Government, and have since been carried out with successful results.

This condition of things led to the Liberal Government's fair wage policy, applied to all Government works. It required that every Government contractor must give a fair day's wage for a fair day's work—he must pay the "going" wages in the district where the work is being done.

In contracts for uniforms of soldiers, mounted police, and letter carriers and other uniformed officials, it is provided that work must be done under sanitary conditions, that current wages shall be paid for work done, in proper hours of labour, and a fair wage officer was appointed to see that these conditions are complied with.

In scores of cases where contractors have defaulted in payment, the Government has paid the workmen, thus saving them from loss, and deducted the amount from what was due the contractor.

In 1900 the Liberal Government did what the Conservatives had merely talked about for years—especially before the elections of 1889, 1891 and 1896—established the Department of Labour, directly identified with the interests of working men and working women, the greatest single factor in the building up of the Dominion of Canada.

In addition to all the benefits accruing to Labour through the working of this department, the greatest compliment ever paid to Labour consisted in erecting this Department into an independent Department under an independent Minister of Labour, as we have Ministers of Finance, of Railways, Trade and Commerce, the Premier Minister of Canada declaring that the Department has enough work, and is important enough to require, and have, the whole time, energy and attention of a Minister of the Crown.

The splendid record of the Department of Labour for the past eight years, is a foretaste of what will be accomplished under the added dignity and efficiency represented by a responsible Minister, and under a continuance of Liberal administration.

Under the Conciliation Act of 1900, for the settlement of Labour and Capital disputes, within only four or five years many threatened strikes, some of them of ominous character—like that of the Valleyfield cotton mills—were settled through the Act, and disastrous idleness prevented in the case of 15,000 or 20,000 employees. The saving in capital and wages amounted to thousands of dollars.

An expansion of this legislation was the Act known as the Lemieux Act, to aid in the prevention of strikes and lock-outs in all industries connected with public utilities, which makes compulsory an investigation before a strike or lock-out can be legally declared.

This extremely beneficial act together with the Conciliation Act of 1900, has been instrumental in saving, to both employers and employees, hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of dollars, in lost business and wages, and in saving immense sums of money, and great inconvenience to the public dependent upon the regular operation of public utilities.

Up till August of this year, the Lemieux Act has been invoked in over forty cases affecting 40,000 employees, and millions of capital, and in only two cases have strikes followed investigations. The Dominion Trades and Labour Congress held in Winnipeg in September last year, voted 59 to 22 in favour of bringing all trades under the Act.

The Railway Labour Disputes Act of 1903, provides for an inquiry under oath into the causes of disputes between railway companies and employees. The result is that railway strikes and the public inconvenience attendant upon tie-ups of large systems are rare, though conciliatory legislation to prevent all strikes, seems to be hardly possible.

The Liberal Government was the first in Canada to pass—in 1897—a law prohibiting the importation of Alien Labour under contract. By appeal to the Privy Council, the Department has proved the Act constitutional; and it has been the means of protecting Canadian Labour from alien competition. In the recent strike of the C. P. R. employees, but for this Act the strike-breakers would have had easy work—the railway shops would have been flooded with idle mechanics from the United States.

In 1905, the Liberal Government procured the passing of an Act making it a criminal offence for any one to induce workingmen to come to Canada on false pretences, and create formidable competition to home labour.

The danger of the invasion of Canada, by the cheap labour of the hordes of Oriental countries, to the detriment of white labour enlisted the interest and intervention of the Liberal Government. The head tax of $100 to exclude Chinese imposed in 1900, was advanced to the prohibitive figure of $500 per head, and additional measures of exclusion were adopted.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux, Minister of Labour, was sent to Japan, and made arrangements for a limitation of Japanese labour satisfactory to Canada, and Mr. Mackenzie King arranged with the British Government for practical cessation of immigration from India of cheap labour.

Acting on the report of a commission which investigated the terrible condition of workmen in railway construction camps on the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, the Liberal Government in 1898, procured legislation permitting the Government to make regulations, providing for the proper housing of workmen in railway construction camps, sanitary conditions, proper medical attendance, and hospitals for contagious diseases, and anything necessary for the comfort and well-being of the men.

Among the legislation enacted by the Liberal Government for the protection of the life and limb of workingmen, in response to the wishes of labour organizations, is an amendment to the Railway Act, requiring all trains to be equipped with appliances, such as automatic car couplers, outside car ladders, hand-grips, etc., so as to minimize the danger of accident, which according to statistics gathered by the Labour Department, amounts to 1000 deaths a year, and three times that number affected with disabling injuries.

A special officer was also appointed in connection with the Railway Commission to inquire into and report the causes of accidents on railways, and the best means for their prevention.

Further evidence of the solicitude of the Liberal Goverament for the interests of railway employees, is found in the fact that last session the Minister of Railways and Canals had rescinded the clause of the Railway Act, making railway men liable for prosecution for any accident that might be laid at their door, when under nervous strain of such a responsibility and fatigue from long hours without sleep.

The abolition of the sweating system by the Liberal Government, protected women and children, and the investigation made into the excessive hours of telephone girls in Toronto in 1907, brought shorter hours; and inquiry last summer into conditions in regard to the employment of children in cotton factories, will lead to legislation in keeping with the unremitting efforts of the Liberal Government, to protect the wage earner.

Such are the salient points of the record of the Liberal Government in the matter of Labour Legislation and Administration, and no elector, who has at heart the interests of this city and this country, bound up, as they are inseparably, with the interests of Labour in all its departments, can hesitate as to a choice between the government he should support upon this, as upon general questions.

There is no opportunity for comparison of records, for as far as I can recall, there was not a single act of legislation, passed by the Conservative Government in 18 years, in the interests of the Labour element of our population, except the Act setting apart Labour Day as a statutory holiday.

Contrast that with the splendid record of achievement of twelve years I have the honour of outlining above, and no one will doubt the far-reaching and effective nature of the Liberal policy of practical dealing with the interests of Canadian Labour.

I need only add that I am in hearty sympathy with that policy, and if you honour me with election, I shall use my best efforts to assist in promoting the work in this regard of a Government which has done as much in the way of effective legislation and administration in the cause of Labour as in the progressive and prosperity-producing administration of the general interests of all classes of the people of this great Dominion.

Personally, I may claim that I have not been wanting in interest in the welfare of Labour in Peterborough, and elsewhere. As a supporter and member of the Liberal Government of Ontario, which has placed so splendid a mass of legislation in the interests of Labour, on the statute books of the province, I have had my share in doing what has been done; and I have, to the best of my ability, endeavoured, on the more practical and material side, to bring both Labour and Capital into mutually profitable relations, and to contribute, in an humble way, to the material upbuilding of all the substantial interests of Peterborough.

If the electors think that I will be able, as their representative, to give them effective and energetic service, with, as I have striven to do in the past, no discrimination as to class, creed, or political persuasion, I invite, and expect, their support to secure my election as representative of West Peterborough in the Dominion Parliament.

I have the honour to be, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

J. R. Stratton

Beer Money and Churches.

In the eighteenth century there were no temperance societies or bands of hope, nor Rechabites and blue ribbon army. To be as "drunk as a lord" was the height of human felicity. It was the age of "three bottle men," of convivial toasts, of drinking songs. Even the church indirectly encouraged intemperance. There were certain districts where at Whitsuntide the churchwardens were accustomed to levy contributions of malt from the parishioners. This was brewed into strong ale and sold in the church. The Whitsuntide topers had, however, a pious method in their madness.

The money spent on the beer was expended by the churchwardens in church maintenance, and the muddled roisterers no doubt believed themselves to be pillars of the church even when, under the influence of the alehol, they rolled upon its pavement. They thought themselves supporters of the church when they wanted "supporting" themselves and deemed themselves most saintly when they were most soddened. Until as recently as 1827 (when the license was withdrawn) a church and public house were covered by one roof at Deepdale, midway between Derby and Nottingham. A door that could be opened at will served to separate the consecrated interior of the church from the common taproom of the tavern!—Chambers' Journal.

Good Salt.

"I got Cleveland's autograph," said the friend, "by addressing to him a little ode on his splendid work in the White House anent the Russo-Japanese war—or was it something else? At any rate, I shall never forget my delight when, by return mail, Mr. Cleveland wrote:

"'Dear Sir—I have read your verses with interest. They appear to me very deficient in sense and substance.'

"I sent a sonnet of sympathy to Bernard Shaw on the failure of his play, 'His House In Order,' or some such title. Mr. Shaw replied on a post card as follows:

"I once ventured to address a rondeau to Ellen Terry. In it I praised her beauty passionately. Miss Terry sent me a long and interesting note of acknowledgment, in the course of which she said:

"'I noticed many faults and weaknesses in your rondeau, which, however, made me laugh heartily.'"—Exchange.

At Last.

Mrs. Silas Bennett was a philosopher. On a certain dismal occasion some of the neighboring women were condoling with her. With commendable cheerfulness she replied:

"I've raised four girls an' three boys, expectin' every time they'd be twins and red headed like their Grandpa Bennett, an' yet they ain't.

"An' I've worried consid'rable over smallpox breakin' out in my big family. So far 'tain't.

"Last summer durin' July an' August an' mebbe part of September I was real melancholic, fearin' I'd got an appendix, but I guess I ain't.

"An' through it all it never once occurred to me that I'd be the one to fall through them rotten old meetin' house steps an' break my leg in two pieces, but I be."

In Extremis.

Late one night a clergyman was called out to minister to an old man—a worker upon the adjacent railway—who was supposed to be dying. The summons was brought by another old man, the elder brother of the stricken one. While he was bustling about, making preparations for departure, the clergyman forgot momentarily the social status of his visitor and asked, "Is he in extremis?"

The old man was not going to be beaten. "Aye, he's right in, poor mysrence." After a pause he added as a clincher: "Clean in, poor chap. Right up to the neck, sir."—Cornhill Magazine.

Do you mean to say you have never been on a camping trip? Van Albert—No. I mean to say that I never enjoyed one.—Chicago News.

Hospitality.

Mamma—Tommy, I see you took two pieces of cake instead of one, as I told you. Why did you do that? Tommy—Well, mamma, I was playing that another little boy was visiting me, and I knew you wouldn't mind me giving him a piece.—Chicago News.

Learning Early.

A Sunday school teacher had been telling her class the story of the good Samaritan. When she asked them what the story meant a little boy said, "It means that when I am in trouble my neighbors must help me."—Universalist Leader.

WILL PLAY FOR EDMONTON IN STANLEY CUP GAMES

Tom Phillips told Fred Taylor in Vancouver that he would probably hob up on the Edmonton team when the Stanley Cup question was being argued in Montreal this winter. Lester and Frank Patrick are also said to be billed for that Edmonton outfit, so one more reason why the E. C. H. L. should not turn amateur again is liable to be removed. But you know no western team was ever able to win in Montreal with eastern men on its line-up, and Edmonton is trying to lift the Stanley ware in the same old way that made Brantford almost bankrupt. —Toronto Telegram.

"Squire Eve."

Mr. Justice Eve, who recently paid twopence to see a mermaid at a fair, and was so angry because the whole thing was such an obvious "fake" that he felt like smashing the show, is known in Devonshire as "Squire Eve." He is a farmer in what spare time the law allows him, and cultivates some 3,000 acres of land. His pet pastime is caravanning, and for the past twenty years he has spent part of the Long Vacation "on the road" in a plain, homely, gipsy caravan, doing his own cooking, cleaning, and driving. In the House of Commons they tell rather a good story about Mr. Eve. During an all-night sitting in the Commons, he and Mr. Duke, K.C., were eating breakfast at 6 a.m. from the same dish of bacon and eggs. The division bell suddenly rang, and Mr. Eve said, "Duke, I'm hanged if I go to that division." "I'll pair with you," replied Mr. Duke. But Mr. Eve did not seem satisfied. "I suppose I must agree," he said, "but I thought you would go, and I should have had the bacon and eggs."

LONDON UNEMPLOYED TO BE AIDED

Asquith Announces Program For Industrial Crisis.

TO INCREASE RELIEF FUND

Sum of $1,500,000 Will Be Provided and Work Will Be Supplied by Rushing Additions to Navy—War Office Ready to Take 25,000 Men For Winter Training—Remedy Inadequate, Says Laborites.

London, Oct. 22.—The very serious matter of the unemployed in England came up for discussion in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, but a larger dole of money than last year and the expediting of the naval shipbuilding program were the only expedients proposed by Premier Asquith in his unfolding of the Government's plan to meet the situation.

The gravity of the case arising from the fact that hundreds of thousands are on the verge of starvation through lack of work, was fully recognized by the Premier, but he said he could not undertake, in the legislative field, to grapple with the permanent causes thereof until the next session.

The Government, he said, was prepared to provide a fund of $1,500,000 to help the unemployed and the admiralty was giving out orders for the construction of nine torpedo boat destroyers and five unarmored cruisers, to cost a total of $12,500,000, two months earlier than originally had been intended.

The Premier made also a bid for recruits, saying that the War Office was ready to take on 24,000 men for winter training in the special reserves.

These proposals quite fail to meet the demands of the Labor members of the House.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Three earthquake shocks were felt at Manila.

The Hungarian Mills elevator at Denver was burned. Loss $450,000.

Five men were killed by an explosion of dynamite on the Panama Canal.

Hon. James Duff addressed a meeting for Haughton Lennox at Barrie last night.

The explosion of bombs to produce rain in the Adirondacks has been suggested to the first fire-fighter.

Roosevelt his written a letter to U. S. Senator Knox, endorsing the latter's strictures on Samuel Gompers.

Chairman Hitchcock of the Republican national committee declares New York State absolutely safe on the state and national tickets.

English Girl Deported.

New York, Oct. 22.—Abundantly supplied with money and jewelry, Miss Ray Bucey, an attractive English girl who said she was presented to the court of King Edward last season, was sent back to England yesterday on the Mauretania. Miss Bucey arrived here last Friday on the same steamer and among her fellow passengers was J. H. Alport. Upon receipt of a cablegram from Alport's father, the immigration authorities detained the young man to await the Government's decision in the case and sent the young woman back home. Miss Bucey was indignant at her treatment, which she characterized as outrageous.

Captain Crazed, Calls For Sailor.

Huntington, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Wandering about the shore shouting the name of John Murphy, a missing sailor, Capt. John Darm, of the steamer Eclipse of Bridgeport, Conn., was found yesterday apparently half crazed with excitement. His little vessel was found high on the beach three miles away. Whether the crew drowned or landed from the schooner Capt. Darm seemed not to know. Capt. Darm was taken into custody and examined by a physician, who said the officer was suffering from some mental trouble brought on by excitement.

Degree In Absentia Is Given to Field Marshal Who Failed to Reach Toronto During Visit to Canada—Viscount Milner Speaks of University's Place in Development of the Canadian Nation.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—The University of Toronto yesterday conferred the degree of LL.D. upon Viscount Milner.

The usual brilliant procession entered the Convocation Hall, headed by the bedel with the mace, the chancellor in his robes and Lord Milner in scarlet gown and hood following. President Falconer, Sir Mortimer Clark, Dr. John Hoskin, Sir Charles Moss, Sir William Mulock, His Grace the Primate, the Hon. Dr. Pyne, ex-principal McLaren, Justice Maclaren, Chancellor Burwash, Provost Street Macklem, Principal Hutton, Byron E. Walker, Canon Cody, Dean Reeve, Prof. Ramsay Wright, A. B. Macallum, J. A. McLennan, and other members of the board of governors, the senate and faculty trooped upon the platform and there was a large attendance of students.

Lord Milner was presented by President Falconer and the degree conferred by Chancellor Sir William Mereditth.

VISCOUNT MILNER.

Sir Charles Moss next arose and presented the name of Right Honorable Earl Roberts of Kandahar, whose great public service and private worth made his name a household word throughout the length and breadth of the Empire, of which Canada formed a part.

The degree was conferred in absentia on Lord Roberts.

Lord Milner was called upon to address the students which he did at some length, first expressing very sincere and heartfelt thanks for the honor the great university had been pleased to bestow upon him.

"A great future is assured to Canada," he said, "but the next fifty years will be the most decisive in its history. They are likely to be formative years and determine your developments for centuries. The stream will flow in the direction and in the channel you give it.

"This is a thing to be proud of and to rejoice at, but it is a growing responsibility for all Canadian men and women who are young to-day. The heaviest burden rests on them who have ten talents. Members of this and other universities who are brought in closest contact and have the opportunity to profit by the best learning of the age and country must be leaders of its intellectual and material development. They must be careful to lay deep and strong foundations of genuine learning and civic virtue on which the vast superstructure of the national prosperity could safely rest."

A banner presented by the Princess of Wales was then brought forward, veiled by the red ensign, and unveiled during the reading of Earl Grey's letter by Sir Mortimer Clark.

Was He a Toronto Man?

Toronto, Oct. 22.—"A body, probably that of Albert Martin of your city, was found drowned here. Notify relatives."

The foregoing telegram was received by Chief of Police Grasett yesterday from Coroner L. R. Robbins of St. Clair, Mich. The police made a number of inquiries last night, but did not succeed in finding any relatives of the man mentioned in the telegram.

PARTICULARS OF DEATH OF CREIGHTON

Owen Sound Murderer Comes to Mysterious End.

TOOK POISON SAYS DOCTOR

Man Condemned to Hang For Killing Wife and Step-Daughters Dies After Violent Illness and Any of Several Poisons May Have Produced Result—Inquest Is Adjourned Till Saturday Morning.

Owen Sound, Oct. 22.—A few minutes before 5 o'clock yesterday morning James Farish Creighton, who was condemned to death for the murder of his wife and two step-daughters in May last, died in his cell. The news created a sensation in the town. The inquest was opened yesterday afternoon, the first witness being Mr. J. Miller, the jailer. He stated that since his conviction Creighton had never been left alone for a single moment. His meals were prepared by himself or the turnkey and the cell searched in order to ascertain that it contained nothing with which he could injure himself. The only outsiders who had seen the prisoner were his spiritual and legal advisers.

Dr. Middlebro, the jail physician, declared that when he saw the prisoner last Saturday all that seemed to be the matter with him was a plain attack of indigestion. He had given him powders, but these had done no good and on Tuesday morning his condition was so serious that he thought it advisable to consult with Dr. Lang. That same night the prisoner was in a serious condition and in great agony. He complained of severe pains in his stomach and vomited a great deal of brownish matter. He could not tell what was the cause of death until he had examined the body. It might be due to some inflammation of the stomach and the symptoms before his death were such as might have been produced by a number of different poisons.

Dr. Lang also declared that he could not tell the cause of death, although it might be due to gastritis. It was then decided to hold a post-mortem examination and the inquest was adjourned till Friday afternoon.

The jurymen viewed the body, which was laid out in the condemned man's cell. It was swollen and discolored. Creighton's unexpected death is the sole subject of conversation here.

Gales Worse; Fire Spread.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 22.—There is no let up to the gale from the southeast, which was stronger than ever at day-break yesterday, rousing forest fires to renewed fury. Detour reports 12 vessels in the harbor there unable to leave on account of the winds. No boats have come down the river since Tuesday to bring reports from White Fish Point, which was surrounded when last heard from. Fires have broken out on Drummond Island.

Raber, Gatesville and Cedarville are reported filled with refugees from the woods. There is no sign of relief, the promised rain not having come.

Roosevelt to Be Editor.

New York, Oct. 22.—President Roosevelt has made a contract with The Outlook Co. by which he will become associate editor with Dr. Lyman Abbot of The Outlook after his retirement from the Presidency.

The Outlook has taken a deep interest in the Congo Free State and the many and well-substantiated stories from there of extraordinary cruelties practiced upon natives engaged in the rubber trade. It was suggested last night that Mr. Roosevelt might be intending to make a personal investigation of Congo conditions and report the results for The Outlook.

To Prison for Three Years.

Brockville, Oct. 23.—Ambrose Godkin, a young man with a police record, was sent to spend three years in the Kingston Penitentiary yesterday by Judge McDonald, after being found guilty of stealing $10 from a farmer by whom he was employed. He has served three terms in the Central Prison and time in the county jail for petty thefts.

Chief Is Thrown Down.

Edmonton, Oct. 22.—The City Council having investigated the charge of Chief of Police Major Beale against Detective Griffiths, declares them not proved and Griffiths will be retained. The resignation of the chief and four sergeants is expected. The charge was warning inmates of a house of ill-fame of an intended raid.

Thomas Greenway Ill.

Ottawa, Oct. 22.—Thomas Greenway, ex-Premier of Manitoba, and recently appointed to the Railway Commission, is lying seriously ill at the Windsor Hotel, Ottawa, and may not recover. His condition alarms his friends, and word has been sent to his family in Crystal City to come east as soon as possible.

Blizzard In the West.

Maple Creek, Alba., Oct. 22.—The derailing of an eastbound freight 14 miles east held up the main line all day yesterday. A heavy snowfall commenced Tuesday night and continued all day, more than a foot falling. A furious blizzard is raging.

Cloud Burst, 100 Indians Missing.

Muskogee, Okla., Oct. 23.—About 100 Shawnee and Pottawatomie Indians are missing and may be the victims of a cloudburst which occurred yesterday between McLoud and Bacon Park, Okla.

Making a New City.

Victoria, B.C., Oct. 22.—The Government yesterday announced the arrangement with the Grand Trunk Pacific for the improvement in Prince Rupert. The Government will spend $200,000 on sidewalks, roads and sewers, three-fourths of which will be refunded by the railroad.

The engineers will get out plans forthwith, when tenders will be called for. As soon as the surveys are completed the Government will select the holdings, after which another conference will fix prices of lots. No definite arrangement as to sale of lots has been arranged, but will probably be by auction, and after May 1.

Colts Caused Death.

St. Catharines, Oct. 22.—A young man named Wentworth, a resident of Grimsby, was engaged Tuesday on a 55-foot ladder painting the gable end of a large bank barn owned by Mr. William Honsberger, a mile south of Jordan. The ladder was fastened to the fence with ropes. Some colts playing around the barn got tangled in the rope and pulled the ladder over. Wentworth was thrown from the latter to the ground and killed instantly.

Follow the Old Lang.

London, Oct. 22.—(C. A. P.)—The Standard, in an editorial article on political ideal for Canada, says that while there may be things in the United States worthy of imitation, the ideals in public life and the code of administrative honor the people of the Dominion cannot do better than follow the old country.

THE FIREFLY'S LIGHT.

Scientific Analysis Shows It to Be Free From Heat Rays.

If light could be produced alone without heat, says a scientist in the service of the U. S. Government, the real expenditure would be comparatively insignificant and abundance of light could be generated at very small cost. Nature has solved the problem of "cold light" in the evolution of the firefly and similar organisms. Man must unveil the mystery of their being.

In arc lamps at the best barely 10 per cent. of the power used appears in the form of luminous rays. Less than 1 per cent. of the energy value of oil or gas goes to light production in flame lights. In both cases light is only an incident of burning fuel for heat.

The problem of cold light has engaged the attention of some of the brightest minds of the present day. Some have tried to use the light of vacuum tubes excited by electric discharges, some have endeavored to obtain strong fluorescence or phosphorescence in certain substances by electricity, and others have sought to discover how the light is generated in the firefly and if possible to imitate the process, but success is yet unattained. We cannot strike the higher keys and leave the bass untouched.

The scientist referred to has shown by an analysis of firefly light that it is remarkably cold or free from heat rays. It is produced, therefore, with the highest economy and represents little energy. To accomplish that result by the same or other means is the problem.

Perhaps the solution will come through chemistry. It is believed that the firefly secretes a peculiar substance which, when oxidized by the air, is consumed, giving out only luminous rays. The time may come when this substance can be made artificially.

VESSELS OF CONCRETE.

Boats Made of This Material Are Cheap and Fireproof.

It is possible to build vessels of reenforced concrete of any desired form and dimensions, says The Chicago News. The frames and longitudinal beams are made of concrete reenforced with round bars of iron, and the skin consists of a single or double layer of concrete stiffened with wire netting and made perfectly smooth and water tight by an external coat of pure cement. The boats cost almost nothing for maintenance, are fireproof and can be constructed almost anywhere. They cost about half as much as iron vessels of the same capacity. Their independence of regular shipyards make them especially suitable for colonies and isolated inland waters.

Re-enforced concrete armor on warships has recently been suggested. An Italian engineer has been led by the success of concrete land fortification, as revealed in the Russian-Japanese war, to construct armor plates of re-enforced concrete covered with thin plates of steel as a protection against the immediate effects of the impact of shells. The substitution of re-enforced concrete for steel armor on a first-class battleship would effect a considerable saving. The practicability of the substitution will be decided by the result of experiments soon to be made on the effect of shots on the re-enforced concrete plate.

Shields For Modern Warriors.

Recent experiments at Sheffield, England, suggest the possibility that in this century shields may once more form an important part of the equipment of an army, says Harper's Weekly. Steel shields three millimeters in thickness and about 150 square inches in area have been devised which afford complete protection against bullets fired from the service rifle at a range of 400 yards. The small size of the shield, which weighs only seven pounds, requires that the soldier shall lie prone on the ground in order to be sheltered. Each shield has a loophole for the rifle and studs at the sides, so that a series of them can be linked into a continuous screen. The idea is that by the use of such shields the necessity of digging trenches may be avoided.

THE KING AT MARIENBAD.

His Majesty Suffers from Sightseers Who Follow Him About.

One of the chief nuisances from which royalties suffer when they are trying to take a holiday free from the trammels of state is that of being mobbed by the curious. King Edward has suffered so much from this in certain places that they have lost his patronage, which means the loss of a good revenue to them, for where the King goes the fashion follows.

At Marienbad they try to protect him as much as possible. This year the authorities posted notices praying the people not to molest him and threatening offenders with condign punishment. In consequence, it is reported, the King has suffered less annoyance from public curiosity than in any former year. But one night, as he sat at a table beneath the trees among the general public, listening to the band, an amusing incident happened. It is told as follows by the London correspondent of The New York Sun:

Seven persons sat at the King's table, and there was two vacant places, when suddenly a woman of somewhat shabby appearance, searching for a seat, tried to appropriate one of them, not recognizing the King. A flurried waiter instantly rushed forward to dislodge the intruder, but the King said:

"Let her remain; don't incommode her on my account."

The waiter thereupon placed another table close to the King for her. The woman, however, stared at the King so rudely and persistently that the waiter reappeared, and, seizing her small table, carried it twenty paces.

The woman, who was left sitting without a table before her, was greeted with a roar of laughter as she rose, and, following the table, sat down again, not in the least disconcerted, and levelled her lorgnette at the King with the utmost composure.

TROUBLE IN INDIA.

Death of Native Causes Serious Trouble In Cavalry Regiment.

Private despatches from India indicate that a very serious state of affairs prevails in one of the crack cavalry regiments there. A native was found dying outside the quarters of this regiment the other day under circumstances indicating that he had been violently assaulted by some of the soldiers. The civilian authorities took the matter up with the result that strong suspicion fell upon two troopers in the regiment. When, however, an attempt was made to arrest them and identify them with the crime they were stoutly defended by their comrades, who threatened open violence to anyone who attempted to make the arrest. They refused to parade when formally commanded to do so by their commanding officer, and the usual business of saddle cutting and harness destruction followed. In the end the men had to be overawed by threats of summoning the native infantry from the neighboring barracks to disarm them unless they behaved themselves. Strangely enough, however, the authorities have now withdrawn the demand for the arrest of the two troopers, and are seeking another theory in connection with the crime.

London Ghost Club.

London has a ghost club—a cheerful fellowship of Mystics who meet to discuss the Mysterious. It is a private organization consisting of about a score of well-known men representative of science, literature, art, the drama, medicine, and other professions, who have a common bond of interest in things supernatural. The club was founded by two or three enthusiastic ghost-seekers, such as the late Mr. Aleric Watts, the late Prof. Churton Collins, and a well-known playwright, who at the present moment is writing a play for production by one of our best-known comedy actors. The Ghost Club has no mysterious seances in darkened rooms, no weird incantations to rouse departed spirits. The members meet, a score strong, at different West-End restaurants about once a month. The ghosts are discussed and admitted only with the walnuts.

Britain's Boer General.

Sir John French, hero of the Boer war, celebrated his birthday recently. An Irishman by birth, he is wonderfully kind-hearted, and on one occasion, at Strydfontein, gave up his own bed to a weary junior officer, and genially remarking, "I don't care where I sleep," rolled himself up in his cloak and lay down on the floor. Another time, making his rounds at midnight, he went out of his way to guide two belated guardsmen to their own camp.

It is by little acts of this description that "Silent John" has endeared himself so personally to his men. Perhaps the greatest compliment of his career, however, was paid him by an enemy—the ubiquitous De Wet—who thought highly of the British soldiers, but scorned our officers. But when Gen. French's name was mentioned to the great Boer leader, he immediately changed his tone, declaring enthusiastically: "Ah, he is the one Boer general in the British army!"

POOR OLD HAMLET.

How the Natives Produce Shakespeare's Masterpiece In Malaysia.

An interesting performance of "Hamlet" has been given in the Malay tongue at Wayang Kassim. In reporting this production the Singapore Free Press says: In this instance, as in the case of Malay translations of other plays with which Europeans are familiar, the Wayang Kassim people somewhat embellished and added to the well-known Shakespearean story. The results are somewhat astonishing, but none the less interesting. The play is made to begin at a period before the good old King of Denmark is murdered by his brother, and both plot and murder are carried out with careful detail. The wicked brother's sobs on discovering that the king was dead—from the effects of the poison he himself had administered—were delightfully realistic. Then the love affairs of Hamlet and "his intended"—as the program gracefully expressed it—came under notice.

Ophelia, in what seemed like a bridal costume, sang and wailed and bemoaned her fate in a way that suggested intentions of suing the faithless prince for breach of promise. He on his part preserved a sad and solemn face as if resigned to his fate, and quite prepared to accept the jury's verdict. In the meantime the queen and her new husband were chuckling over the success of their monarch-removing scheme. Several scenes of this sort of thing occurred before the real Shakespearean beginning of the play was reached. This was where the ghost had his innings. In this Malay version of "Hamlet" the ghost scene is worked chiefly on comedy lines. The ghost himself has clearly a keen sense of humor. He makes a great sport with the watchman on night duty. The latter evokes roars of laughter by his comic fright on beholding the apparition. The first thing he does, when he has recovered his wits, is to run to the telephone!

He succeeds in getting his call through, and as a result of his agitated communication his superior officer appears. After telling all about the ghost, the watchman throws down his gun and cap and says, figuratively, "I'm chucking this job. I didn't contract to interview ghosts." The sergeant, noting this, says, "How dare you throw down your gun? I shall fine you 60 cents for that!" As the jaga continues to protest he adds fine on fine. But he takes it all back when the ghost gives him a turn. Later he reports the matter to Hamlet in the good old-fashioned police-constable style: "I was on duty at so and so, and at three minutes past one I . . ." etc. Hamlet next has an affecting interview with the ghost, and after learning all about his father's murder, sings something to the tune of "O Maritana!" After this, it does not much matter about the rest of the play. It is all equally good. The more one sees of the Indra-Zanzibar people the more one likes them.

Prima Donna's Joke.

Mme. Fanny Moody, who is appearing with her husband at the Lyric Theatre in London, confesses to a fondness for practical joking. Even her husband has suffered at her hands. One day, disguised in a wig and a pair of spectacles, she applied to have her voice tried by the manager of the Moody-Manners Opera Co.—her own husband. "I took the conductor's hand," says the prima donna, "and, imprinting upon it a devout kiss, called him my 'dead master.' He did try my voice, and as I indulged in the excruciating shrieks ever heard in 'music,' he told me, gently but firmly, to go back to any other occupation in my limited capacity. My husband confirmed this comment, and then I threw off my disguise and revealed my useless self. I draw the veil over what followed." But Mme. Moody is not quite so useless as she would have us believe; for, in addition to her operatic abilities, she knows not a little about the culinary art, and her husband has been heard to confess that when she has time to cook a dinner he does not want to go to the Carlton or the Savoy.

Suffragist and Authoress.

This month is a busy one in the program of the "Women's Votes" campaigners, and in addition to numerous meetings, at-homes, demonstrations, and so forth, a new book "for the cause" is appearing. This is entitled "Outlawer," and Mrs. Despard, the Woman's Suffrage sister of Gen. French, is named part authoress. Mrs. Despard like most of her colleagues, has had a turn of sampling H. M.'s prisons, but did not find the officials very sympathetic. She declares that when she said "How do you do?" to a fellow-sufferer she was told to "stand back, and don't gossip." On another occasion, when she went to chapel, she found a woman looking very pale, and said, "Cheer up!" A female official nearby rushed up and told her to "keep quiet." On receiving an answer, the woman asked Mrs. Despard whether she wanted to reform prisons, and Mrs. Despard replied, "Perhaps I do." And if ever opportunity arises, doubtless Mrs. Despard will.

An Eye to Business.

Looking at the pigeons in a dealer's window in Dunedin, a boy saw amongst a miscellaneous lot set apart for gun practice a bird that took his fancy, whereupon he ran home, picked out one of his own undesirables, took it to the shop, traded off his reject for the new pigeon for the consideration of three pence, and promptly entered the purchased bird at the show. It gained first and special prizes as a working homer and was awarded another prize as the best of the boys' pigeons.—Auckland, N.Z., Weekly News.

An Interrupted Wedding Feast.

While a wedding breakfast was in progress in the village of Novery, in Savoy, the floor gave way, and the guests fell through into a cow house below. The bride dropped on the neck of a cow, which took fright and dashed out into the field with the bride clinging to its horns. The bridegroom went off in pursuit and found the bride hanging by her hair from a branch beneath which the cow had passed. She was rescued in a badly bruised condition.

HOW CHILDREN DRAW.

Lack Knowledge of Perspective and Shadow.

When a small boy plays at robbers in a cave or when a smaller boy still shows prehensile power in his toes it is usual to say that he is passing through a stage of development which is the equivalent of some passage in the life of his forbears—the cave man or the arboreal ancestor. Dr. Paul Morhardt has recently been trying to apply this hypothesis to certain phases of a child's intellectual development with special application to its powers of graphology and drawing.

Contrary to a popular impression, says The Boston Transcript, it is not in profile, but with a full face, that the child at first draws a man. In the drawings of children at the age of four the feet, the eyes, the face and the arms appear as seen frontward in four-fifths of the specimens examined. But in the drawings of children who have reached the age of nine the profile view of a man appears in two-thirds of the specimens. There is a transition period during which the front view appears blended. Children at about the age of seven are particularly prone to this artistic anomaly.

Perspective is the greatest difficulty of the child's mind. The similarity of children's drawing to that of primitive savages is astounding, but the adult savage never seems to have outgrown the primitive type of child art. He makes his man frontward. He inserts the full eye in the profile. He has his man larger than any hut in the landscape. But there are similar examples from antique art. Egyptian art of the Hyksos period shows the profile constantly with the frontal eye, and there are other blunders exactly similar to those which childhood, whether it is the child of Paris or the child of Tibet (whose drawings are indistinguishable), is prone.

Similarly there is little difference between modern child art, Etrurian art and modern Maori art. The mysterious cities in Yucatan had artists on a level with our nine year old children, and the ancient Greeks seem to have advanced to a ten-year-old child's knowledge of perspective. A stumbling block from China to Peru in ancient art, as with children, has been the putting in of a shadow.

The Riviera of Portugal.

"A picturesque village of hotels and villas grouped upon the slope of a hill descending in a semicircle to the sea, with pines and eucalyptus woods above and palms everywhere below . . . and with a climate noticeably warmer than that of Lisbon." This surely might be a description of one's ideal winter resort. If so, it is an ideal easily realized. The name Riviera is now so generally applied to certain portions of the French and Italian littoral that the possibility of the existence of other Rivieras is apt to be overlooked; but, in the opinion of many travelers, the Riviera of France and Italy is outclassed by the Riviera of Portugal, which is briefly described in the above quotation. This Portuguese Riviera is situated at the mouth of the river Tagus and is known as Mont' Estoril. Its position, completely protected on the north and east from cold winds by a high range of hills and open to the sea on the west and south, makes it just the place to spend a winter, and it is easily accessible from England. The thermometer through the winter months shows, it is claimed, a mean standard of eight or ten degrees higher at Nice.

The Sausage.

The sausage dates back to the year 397. It has been asserted that the Greeks in the days of Homer manufactured sausage, but this prehistoric mixture had nothing in common with our modern product. The ancient so-called sausage was composed of the same materials which enter in the makeup of the boudin of the French market and the blood pudding of the French-Canadian. The ancient sausage was enveloped in the stomachs of goats. It was not until the tenth century that sausage made of hashed pork became known. It was in or near the year 1500 that, thanks to the introduction into Germany of cinnamon and saffron, the sausages of Frankfort and Strassburg acquired a universal reputation.

Cargo of Stowaways.

The West African mail steamer Falaba, which arrived at Plymouth recently from Forcados and intermediate ports, brought no fewer than 12 Krooboy stowaways, who had been found in various parts of the ship after the Falaba left Sierre Leone.

SOME CANINE HEROES

DOGS NOW GET MEDALS FOR LIFE SAVING.

Englishwoman Has Founded Brotherhood of Hero Dogs For Those Who Have Shown Devotion and Fidelity—How "Scot" Lost His Life—A Panic Stricken Nurse—A Tragedy of Drink.

It will be news to many to learn that there is a properly-established canine Order of Merit in existence. "The Brotherhood of Hero Dogs," as it is called, was founded about a year ago by Mrs. de Courcy Laffan, the well-known authoress, to support the contention that dogs could exhibit as high a degree of noble self-sacrifice as men. Each of the members of the Brotherhood is entitled to a silver collar which bears the inscription, "Member of the Brotherhood of Dogs." As a result of her novel "order" Mrs. Laffan has collected quite a number of stories of devotion and fidelity, from which she intends making a selection and publishing in book form shortly. Here are some authentic stories of a few members of the exclusive Brotherhood, which prove beyond doubt that there are heroes to be found amongst dogs as well as among men.

Scot, for instance, was a Silsden dog. A fire happened to break out one night when the inmates were asleep, and reached alarming proportions before it was discovered. Scot was the first to notice it, and rushing upstairs aroused the inmates by tearing away the bedclothes. The husband and wife, and a boy who was sleeping in a room overhead, made their escape from the burning building, but when they looked for the dog he was nowhere to be found. When the fire was extinguished, however, his charred body was found beside the boy's bed, and it was realized that the faithful dog had missed his little master and made his way up to his bedroom, and there had been overcome by the smoke.

Here is another case of a dog who saved the life of his master at Ilfracombe. His master had been caught by the tide under the Tors, and had managed to find a very perilous ledge upon the cliff. No one, however, knew what had become of him, and search parties wandered over the downs for hours. The search had been given up as hopeless when the dog came in barking and very excited, and led them to a place on the cliffs from which they could reach his master. The dog had set out alone, and by some incomprehensible instinct had found him.

The story of an Irish terrier called Terence, belonging to a family at Dover, is even more heroic. Terence became very much attached to two little girls. The younger, about eighteen months old, slept by herself, while the elder slept with the nurse. On the same landing was a sort of lumber-room containing a cistern. It was Terence's custom to sleep outside in the passage. About three o'clock one November morning a fire broke out in the chamber immediately beneath that occupied by the younger of the little girls. Soon there was a cracking and roaring, which not only attracted Terence's attention and set him barking, but very quickly aroused the other inmates of the house. The nurse was seized with panic. She grabbed up the elder girl from her bed and, evidently forgetting all about her other charge, escaped to safety. The mother, an invalid, was told that the nurse had both children safe.

In the meantime the flames had actually burnt through the floor, and had seized on the drapery of the bed where the apparently doomed child lay sleeping. Terence barked constantly, but to no purpose, and attempted to seize the child and drag her from the bed. He could not lift the weight. Thereupon he rushed to the cistern, jumped in, and then hurried back to the child's room. Springing on the bed, he shook over the child the water which had soaked into his coat during his immersion in the cistern. This he repeated several times, and at length succeeded in putting out the flames. When the firemen forced their way into the room they found the child practically uninjured, with the dog mounting guard with his wet body over her.

Hard as the last instance is to beat, here is another case in which the dog concerned is quite as much a hero. A man living in the neighborhood of Hounslow, rather too fond of a glass, had a dog named Wallack. When his master was under the influence of drink Wallack never left his side. One day, as Wallack's master was returning from a debauch, he fell, by some accident or another, into a pool by the roadside, which, shallow as it was, was yet sufficient to submerge the recumbent figure. The drunken man's flounderings only made matters worse. In vain Wallack tugged at his master's collar in an attempt to lift his face above the water. Seeing that this was futile, he thrust his own head under that of his master, with the object of making a pillow of his body.

Failing in this he withdrew his head, only to see his master again perilously submerged. Again he thrust his nose under the water and remained for several minutes. At the end of that time help arrived, and Wallack's owner, who was still in a state of unconsciousness from the effects of drink, was pulled out of the pond, and after him Wallack himself. All attempts at resuscitation of the dog failed, and he thus died a victim to his faithfulness. This incident was witnessed by a paralytic from an adjacent window, who was powerless to help.

Carl's Aspirations.

Little Carl, six years old, had been teased a great deal by his uncle about the vocation he would choose when he became a man. One day he overheard his mother and a caller talking about a certain gentleman being a bachelor.

When the caller left, his mother noticed that he was unusually quiet and seemed to be in a deep study. Finally he said to her. "Mamma, is a bachelor a good trade?"

TIPS ON CARE OF FLOWERS.

How to Keep Them Fresh, as Told by a Florist.

"Very few persons understand the art of keeping flowers," said a St. Louis florist, "and yet by a little attention flowers may be kept fresh for three or four times as long as people expect them to stay in good condition.

"The matter is simple enough. It is merely a question of temperature and moisture. Roses, for example, are grown at a high temperature in the greenhouses and are then generally spoiled by ill-treatment after they have been cut. Grown in a temperature of 65 to 75 degrees, they are placed in an icebox, where the temperature stands at about 40. Then when sold they are taken into a dining or ball room, where the temperature is 75 or 80. Of course they wilt in a few hours, sometimes in a few minutes. Nothing else could be expected.

"They could, however, be kept in proper condition for a week by placing them in water and standing the vase in the coolest part of the living room. Every day half an inch of stems should be cut off in order to present a fresh suction surface to the water. If this precaution is neglected the stem becomes clogged with a glutinous matter something like the gum that exudes from peach and cherry trees, the water in the vase, however pure, cannot be drawn up, and the leaves and flowers wither for lack of moisture.

"In cutting off the stems a knife should always be used, never a pair of scissors. The reason is plain enough. The knife makes a smooth cut, leaving the cells of the wood open and unobstructed. The scissor blades, no matter how sharp they are, always compress the woody fibers at the end of the stem and leave them so tightly pressed together that it is almost impossible for sufficient moisture to find its way through to support the leaves and blossoms."

Birds With Lamps.

"As we rowed softly in the still, cold night," said a nature student, "we saw a number of faint blurs of light along the shore. They were like fairy lamps that had been swathed in some pale sort of gauze.

"'What on earth can they be?' I asked.

"'Them's kingfishers,' said my guide. 'Them's kingfishers a-fishin'.'

"'But the lights?'

"'The lights is the phosphorescence on the birds' breasts,' said the old hunter. 'In the soft down on a kingfisher's breast there is a phosphorescence that glows in the dark. The bird is aware of this here natural light o' hisn, and he uses it. He stands on the edge o' the stream, the same as them fellers there, puttin' his breast to the water, an' the faint light draws the fish to him, consumed with curiosity, an' he has no difficulty in pickin' up a square meal for himself an' family.'"

How to Eat Pineapples.

Pineapples should never be sliced. That treatment releases the juice from the pulp and leaves the meat dry and woody and tasteless. Down in Cuba and in the lower part of Florida, where they know how to eat the fruit, they never peal a pineapple. They take a ripe fruit—for pineapples should never be eaten unless they are ripe—and cut off the top and bottom; then tey split the fruit lengthwise, then quarter it and split the quarters. This gives eight slices, which are then eaten from the hand as one would eat a piece of watermelon. By following this method you get all the juice and can make a tidy job of it. You eat it right down to the skin, and after trying it that way I do not think you would voluntarily go back to the old way of chopping the fruit into chunks and eating the juiceless pieces.

The Spider's Elastic Appetite.

The spider has a tremendous appetite, and his gormandizing defies all human competition. A scientist who carefully noted a spider's consumption of food in twenty-four hours concluded that if the spider were built proportionately to the human scales he would eat at daybreak, approximately, a small alligator, by 7 a.m. a lamb, by 9 a.m. a young camelopard, by 1 o'clock a sheep and would finish up with a lark pie in which there were 120 birds. Yet, in spite of his enormous appetite, a spider has wonderful power of refraining from food, and one has been known to live for ten months when absolutely deprived of food. A beetle lived in a similar state of unrefreshment for three years.

Obeying Orders.

Doctor (upon finding his patient weaker than before)—What does this mean? Haven't you been following my instructions?

Patient (feebly)—Yes, doctor.

Doctor—Been eating animal food right along, have you?

Patient (grimly trying to smile)—Well, doctor, I tried to, but somehow it did not seem to agree with me very well. I managed to worry down the hay and the clover tops all right, but the thistles kind of stuck in my throat, and I had to give it up.

Widows Are Cheap In India.

In India a man often remains unmarried longer than he would desire simply because he cannot afford to pay the sum the father of a desirable daughter demands of his would-be son-in-law. Widows, however, are cheap, and a wily father who finds his daughter is getting on in years while suitors tarry takes advantage of this fact. He marries his girl to a bunch of flowers, which he then throws into a well. Thus the lady becomes technically a widow, and as such she is a bargain in the marriage market. Thus the flower widow is secured as a wife by a suitor who would not have dared offer a small sum for her before her so-called marriage.

Two Kinds of Dusters.

The automobile halted before the general store of the village. The owner-chauffeur alighted and accosted a drowsy clerk. "I want a linen duster," he said.

"I am very sorry," said the clerk, "but we are just out of linen dusters. I can let you have a nice feather duster.

BLACK HAND RITES.

Round-Up at Fernie Reveals Strange Ceremonies of Italians.

The conviction of nine "Black Hand" prisoners, who came to Fernie from Spokane shortly before the great fire, were arrested and tried, being sentenced to various terms ranging from six months to seven years, has rid the west country of a bad gang.

W. A. MacDonald, K.C., crown prosecutor, had a hard time securing evidence from fourteen witnesses called, but sufficient was solicited to convict. The ceremony connected with the first degree, it was learned, was called "Picciotto," and was comparatively simple. All present divested themselves of any weapons which they might have concealed on their persons, a guard being left over these. A circle was then formed by joining arms.

It was then pointed out to the new member that the space in the centre of the circle represented an abyss, in which everything spoken was understood to be forever buried. An incantation in an unknown tongue by the leader of the society followed, and the new-comer had it carefully pointed out to him that the consequence of betraying his comrades would be very disagreeable to him. A fraternal kiss all round wound up the ceremony.

The conferring of the final degree or "Carmeristo" degree, admitting a man to full membership in the society was gruesome indeed. A circle was formed as in the previous case, but on the floor in the space five knives were placed on the ground with the points radiating to the outside of the circle. Upon these a handkerchief was placed, leaving the points exposed, and on the top of that a stiletto was placed. Lots were then drawn and the man upon whom the choice fell had to bare his arm whilst his neighbor seized the stiletto and stabbed him in the wrist until the blood flowed freely.

Again the cabalistic incantations were brought into play, and while these were being recited the candidate for initiation had to suck the blood that was spurting from the wrist of the man who had been stabbed.

The Mosquito-Ridden Moose.

It is not often that the harmful and apparently unnecessary mosquito lends any assistance to man; but there are times in Canada when the little stinging torment does help the hunter. Mr. Roderick Macfarlane, retired chief factor of the Hudson Bay Co., declares that during summer, when the weather is warm and mosquitoes very troublesome, moose resort for protection to the shores of lakes and streams, and while standing in the water they sometimes seem quite indifferent to the near presence of man, and will then retire only after being repeatedly fired at.

"I myself," he says, "had proof of this on one occasion when ascending the Anderson river in the end of June, 1866. There were five or six in the party when we observed three full-grown moose in the water. As they were not in good condition, we did not care to kill them, but, in order to test the truth of this peculiarity, I made the Indians fire a number of shots very close to them, but to no purpose. In fact, we had to scream and yell at them before they got out and stalked away at a very leisurely pace."

The American Invasion.

A great rush of landseekers from the United States has been invading Winnipeg immigration office enquiring as to the best places to locate. These men are of an unusually good class, and are capitalists in a small $5,000 to put into a farm.

Marconi's Story of the Admiral.

A glutton for work, Marconi was recently warned that he was working far too hard, and gaining fame at the expense of flesh. Apparently, however, the wireless telegraphy wizard has no fears for his health, for he treated the warning in a jocular manner. "I am not like the Italian admiral, Libertini, then," he said, laughing. "Libertini," he went on, "had won many battles and great renown, and at a ball given in his honor one lady said to another, 'But how frightfully fat our dear admiral is getting!' 'Yes,' said the second lady. 'Isn't it fortunate? Otherwise he wouldn't be able to wear all his medals.'"

Real Bottomless Pits.

Bottomless pits are facts, not fancies, according to Professor E. A. Martel, the French geologist. He declares that this term may be applied to cliff caves whose lower part has been cut off by the erosion of the valley below, thus turning them into tunnels, through which the valley may be seen. The most remarkable abyss of this kind which the savant has seen is the so called hole of Piatary, on the summit of the eastern ridge of Vercors, above Clelles. At about 5,100 feet a horizontal orifice opens suddenly like the mouth of an ordinary cave, which it probably once was. The bottom has been cut off, demolished by the immense erosion of the vast basin of treves to the east, 2,300 to 3,300 feet deep, on which the present lower orifice of the present cave opens out in a superb arch, twenty-six feet high. From the railway between the stations of Clelles and Percy, on the line from Grenole to Veynes, it is seen 2,300 feet in the air like a pinhole near the summit of a limestone cliff. It was from the car window that the extraordinary aperture was discovered. In Belgium the Grand Duke's hole one may descend and contemplate the windings of the Lesse, holding to the shrubbery to avoid being precipitated into the river 250 feet below. In the chalk cliffs of Etretat there is another evidence of an incompletely destroyed cave whose remaining upper entrance doubtless soon will disappear.

Strange Capture of a Salmon.

Fishing a well known river in Norway one June, one of the tenants of the fishing lodge opposite ours caught a fish of twenty-nine pounds in the morning and lost another, his spinning line being broken by the rush of a heavy fish. Fishing with prawn the afternoon of the same day, the same angler in the same pool got into a good fish at his first cast. After a long fight the fish was gaffed and landed. Then was revealed a strange state of things. The prawn tackle had never touched the fish; in fact, the hooks were a foot or more from it. They had caught in the cast which had been lost that morning and was now twisted into knots and tangles no doubt by the salmon endeavoring to get rid of the treble Norak cast and hooks. The line had been got rid of. As the prawn swung down the pool it had grappled the lost cast still attached to the salmon, and fish (thirty-three pounds), cast and tackle were recovered. We watched the incident from the road and crossing the river, handled the recovered cast. Many maintain that salmon once hooked and played for any length of time leave the pool.—W. H. in London Field.

Mail Increases.

In the annual report of the Postmaster-General, the estimate weight of letters and postcards sent to Canada and Newfoundland was 387,000 pounds; circulars, book packets, patterns, newspapers, 358,000. From Canada and Newfoundland the letters were 304,000 pounds; books, papers, etc., 261,593, and received 119,484. The reduction of postage on newspapers, magazines, etc., to Canada continued to result in a substantial increase the estimated increase for the year being five or six millions.

Hon. Mr. Buxton says he is glad to learn that periodicals forwarded by the new post are publications of high class.

Tar and Feathers.

So far as is known, the first record of punishment by tar and feathers is in the year 1189, the first of Richard I. At that time a law was passed that "any robber voyaging with the crusaders shall be first shaved, then hot pitch shall be poured upon him and a cushion of feathers shook over it." After this the criminal was to be put ashore at the first place the ship came to.

The Advantages of Discipline.

There is a world of difference, as everyone knows, between the boy who has undergone the discipline of school life and the one who has never come under the sway and influence of any such system. The former has learned, alike in his lessons and games, to subordinate self, while the other has missed immeasurably from his seeming greater freedom.

Who Gets the Most Out of Life?

Not the wealthiest, not the most learned, nor the wisest—but the man who has good health and works for his living. This truth is trite, but not trivial.

Every man should guard his health as his most valuable possession. The more so because health is easier to retain than regain.

Keep your grip on health by regular exercise, reasonable care in eating and requisite sleep. Take Beecham's Pills occasionally, to tone the stomach and keep the liver and bowels in good working order. And don't worry.

THE SECOND ADDRESS OF HON. J. R. STRATTON TO THE ELECTORS OF THE ELECTORAL DIVISION OF WEST PETERBRORUGH

To the Electors of West Peterborough:

Gentlemen,—In my first address to you, I aimed to point out what had been accomplished by the Liberal Governments of Ontario and of the Dominion in promoting what may be described as the local interests of West Peterborough, in the provision of local advantages to meet local needs, and serve public interests.

I now wish to suggest some of the many reasons why the present Government should be sustained, and given an opportunity of continuing the great work it has accomplished for Canada as a whole. There is not a city resident, nor dweller in the suburbs, not a labourer, nor an artizan, not a mechanic, nor a manufacturer, nor anybody in any walk of life, that has not enjoyed more prosperity, had his welfare improved, his business benefitted, during the twelve years of rule of the present Liberal Government, which is now appealing for a renewal of its stewardship.

There is not a farmer in Peterborough county, who does not know that every farm, properly managed, has increased in value, and every farmer in prosperity, in the twelve years of Liberal rule. There is not a farmer who does not know that general conditions have been vastly improved; who does not know to what a general extent the clear deed for the farm has replaced the farm mortgage; new buildings replaced dilapidated structures; home comforts increased, and general conditions of well-being improved.

It is therefore incumbent upon me to present as concise a view as possible of the record of the Liberal Government, whose supporter I am, to set forth what it has done in the twelve years of its trusteeship to promote the general welfare of Canada.

To emphasize this record, the condition of the country previous to the Liberal Government assuming power, may be recalled. It is no exaggeration to say that at that time the country was practically at a standstill; that business was dormant; our industries languishing; manufacturers dissatisfied; the Conservative Government was fighting amongst themselves, and had ceased to effectively govern. Our finances were at low-water mark; expenditure was running ahead of receipts, deficits were almost annual, the national debt advancing, the country torn by dissensions and the outlook gloomy.

The first notable action of the Liberal Government, as a necessary preliminary to national progress, was to restore peace and harmony among the people—by the satisfactory and lasting settlement of a burning question. Peace having thus been restored, the Liberal Government was free to enter upon the work of nation-building.

The tariff, which, under previous administrations, was not giving satisfactory results, either to the people affected, or in the way of revenue, was readjusted with careful consideration of all interests, the consumer as well as the producer. The farmer was helped by having binder twine, barbed wire, Indian corn, cream separators, and articles of staple necessity, placed on the untaxed list of imports. Manufacturers, and through them the wage-earners, were helped by removal, or reduction, of duties on raw material used in manufacturing.

The result was an immediate improvement in the condition of all national interests; prosperity resumed its reign, trade became active, employment plentiful, wages increased, and a rate of good growth taken on which can only be understood by recalling some of the records.

Under the revised tariff, our revenue, even under a tariff lowered on an average of $18.28 per $100, at the close of Conservative rule to an average of $15.66 per $100, under Liberal rule, increased from thirty-six millions a year, in 1896, to ninety-six millions in 1908.

The capital invested in manufacturing establishments increased from $446,916,487 in 1900, to $833,916,155 in 1905, or over seventy million dollars per year.

The wages paid to labour in factories, increased from $113,249,350 in 1900, to $162,155,578 in 1905, or nearly ten million dollars per year.

The value of products of manufacturing establishments grew from $481,053,375, in 1900, to $706,446,578 in 1905, the increase in the manufactured output of the city of Peterborough in that period amounting to eleven millions odd, being far the greatest proportion of increase of any one place in the Dominion.

The total foreign trade—imports and exports—has in the past twelve years of Liberal administration amounted to the tremendous total of 5,152, millions of dollars.

The yearly growth of the total foreign trade of Canada is shown by the fact that it grew from $239,025,360 in 1896, to $650,738,200 in 1908.

In twelve years the farmers of Canada have received for the products of their farms sent abroad more than a thousand million dollars, and the exports of farm products have increased from $50,592,525 in 1896, to $121,171,199 in 1908.

The value of the exported products of our mines has increased from $8,059,650 in 1896, to$39,117,133 in 1908.

Forest products have increased in value of exports from $27,175,686, in 1906, to $44,170,470 in 1908.

In 1896, Canadian bank discounts the index of commercial and industrial activity, amounted to $224,507,.301; they had grown to $584,732,914 in 1908—more than doubled.

The people's deposits in chartered banks and savings banks, have grown from $245,029,143 in 1896, to $650,126,232 in 1908.

The increase in tonnage carried in 1908 by Canadian railways (another index of commercial and industrial activity) was more than fifteen millions greater than the total tonnage carried in 1896, which was 24,266,825 tons as against 68,866,183 tons in 1908.

There was an increase in the export value of bacon and hams from $18,827,928 in twelve Conservative years, to $135,156,511 in the twelve Liberal years; the increase for the same period in butter export values was from $10,513,348, to more than five times—$51,680,095; in cheese, from $127,611,428, to $247,790,332; in wheat, from $45,338,791 to $121,677,659, or nearly five-fold.

In the five years of Liberal rule—from 1901 to 1905—the population of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, increased from 419,512 to 808,863. In the last two years immigration and settlement have so rapidly advanced that the population of these provinces must be well beyond the million mark, for since January 1, 1907, immigrants to the number of 1,219,943 have come into Canada.

Not only have these immigrants the very great value of a million increase of population, but the effects they brought into Canada, exclusive of personal baggage and cash, amounted to $64,442,532, which is fourteen millions more than the total exports of farm products under Conservative rule in 1896.

In 1900 the number of farms worked in these provinces was 54,625; these had increased to 120,439 four years later—1906.

In eighteen years the Conservative Government voted 56 million acres of land to railway companies, or enough to supply 411,000 homesteads of 160 acres each, whereas, in contrast, in twelve years since coming into power the Liberal Government has not given away one acre of land to a railway. The land has been reserved for the settlers, who got 35 million acres in homesteads.

This work of western development, and the increase of population, have benefitted the east; every new household creates fresh demands upon the manufactured and commercial products of eastern Canada, giving increased work to factories and increased employment to working men.

The prosperity, the all-round quickened activity of national life in Canada attendant upon Liberal rule, has given employment to Canadians at home or found homes for them in the west. This is in strong contrast to the do-nothing immigration policy of the previous Government which could not retain the immigrants brought in nor present conditions attractive enough to keep native-born population at home, nor stop the exodus of the flower of Canadian youth to the United States by the million.

The British preference, or preferential tariff, extended to Great Britain, showed the Liberal Government to represent the party of real loyalty—practical loyalty—to the empire. The result of this gift was a splendid advertisement of Canada, and secured British good-will, with the direct results that it substantially favoured the Canadian consumer, increased imports from Great Britain—three-fold—from $32,894,505 in 1896, to $94,362,383, in 1908— and doubled Canadian exports to Great Britain—from $62,717,941 in 1896, to $126,194,124, in 1908.

This preference was extended to most of the British colonies and, in return, Canada secured a preference in New Zealand, South Africa and Barbadoes, with the result that British Columbia canneries captured nearly the whole trade of New Zealand, and shut out the canneries of the United States; and Canada's example has been followed by nearly all the British colonies.

The Liberal Government passed anti-combine legislation, to prevent trade combines from raising prices contrary to the public interests.

Such a record of achievement on the more material side, on the part of the Liberal Government, amply justifies my appeal for your spport to aid in retaining it in a position to continue the splendid service that has been given.

It is not, however, only in material matters, but in matters redounding to the credit of Canada, both at home and abroad, and in providing conditions for the general advantage of the people, that the Liberal Government has done work worthy of the practical recognition involved in its being given another lease of power.

Under the Liberal Government, the French treaty was negotiated by Canadian statesmen, without the help of British statesmen, subject, however, to the approval of the Home Government—a long step forward in Canadian nation-building.

The reign of the Liberal Government has been marked by unprecedented development of transportation facilities—the keynote of Canadian development, progress and prosperity. As a general result, the great bulk of the grain trade of the interior west of the continent is passing through Canadian channels, and New York and other American ports are alarmed at the formidable competition of the Canadian St. Lawrence route.

This condition was brought about by the completion of the enlargement of the St. Lawrence and Welland canal systems to a depth of 14 feet, the equipment of grain shipping harbours on Lake Superior and Georgian Bay, Lake Huron and Lake Erie; the improvement of Montreal, St. John and Halifax harbours, the deepening of the ship channel from Montreal to the Gulf, the extension of telegraph systems down the coast, the abolition of canal tolls, and the making of the St. Lawrence a safe route for ocean ships by day or night.

These great works have not only made the St. Lawrence the grain route of the continent, but directly benefitted shippers and producers—general merchandise and farm products. Last year the saving on reduced insurance rates, caused by the improvements made in the St. Lawrence by the Government, amounted to nearly a million dollars—$922,000.

In the last twelve years, the Liberal Government has expended on transportation; in improving the facilities for marketing the products of factories and farms, the large sum of $121,215,115—on canals, twenty-six millions; on Government railways thirty-one millions; on Montreal harbour and St. Lawrence ship channel, seven millions; on the chief lake harbours, two millions; in aid of the construction and extension of railways, twenty-one millions; and, so far, twenty-seven millions on Transcontinental Railway construction, have been advanced for construction, and upon which, after seven years, the Grand Trnuk Pacific will pay the Dominion interest at the rate of three per cent.

In aiding railways to open up the country to development, the Liberal Government have simply invested money. The Conservative way was to give bonuses outright. The Liberal way is to make no gift, a condition of the Liberal grants being that the railways must regard them as a loan and pay in return, by the carrying of mails, an equivalent to a fair rate of interest.

The necessity of the Grand Trunk Pacific is emphasized by reasons of the conditions existing to-day. The movement of western wheat to the market is at this moment impeded by lack of cars, showing the need of more railway service. To meet conditions which will become more pressing as settlement and crop production will increase, through the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, the Government has decided upon building the Hudson Bay Railway, as another wheat outlet that in the open season will shorten the distance to Liverpool by thousands of miles. And the Government shows its wisdom by making the railway build itself—by providing for the cost by the sale of lands, now valueless, but made valuable by the building of the line itself.

Having regard to the future of this country, no calculation can estimate the tremendous benefits that are accruing, and will accrue to Canada, through the bold and business-like development of our transportation facilities, by the Liberal Government.

The Liberal Government conceived, and is constructing, the Grand Trunk Pacific, which will practically double the settled and cropped area of Canada, from the Pacific to the Atlantic, over a belt 200 miles wide through the heart of New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, and western Canada. It will open up millions upon millions of new territory for settlement and development; it will give development and competition in transportation to 1200 miles of grain-growing country in the west. The Transcontinental Railway, which will be completed in three or four years, will, at least, duplicate the tremendous development work accomplished by the Canadian Pacific in building up the resources and widening the sweep of Canada's commerce.

The Liberal Government's subsidy of $3,630,000 to the Crow's Nest Pass Railway, secured the speedy construction of a line that opened up the rich mineral Kootenay district, of British Columbia, covered it with thriving towns, villages and mining camps, diverted trade from the United States, and opened up a market for western farm produce. It did more. A condition of the subsidy was a reduction of freight rates by the Canadian Pacific, which built the Crow's Nest line; and this reduction, on wheat alone, saved the farmers in five years, $3,750.000, or $20,0000 more than the amount of the suusidy, not to speak of the vast indirect benefit, a saving and benefit that are to continue for all time.

The Liberal Government established the Railway Commission, whose work is to continually arbitrate between railways and customers, and to deal with and settle freight and other rates. Last session telegraph and telephone lines were brought under the Commission, and now there is assured to the public in respect of these public utilities, all the rights, privileges and advantages that could come from public ownership, and that, too, without incurring a tremendous financial liability for purchase and operation.

The Liberal Government, in its work for Agriculture, has given farming a vital organization, and made the farming interests of Canada one vast co-operative industry. Cold storage for transportation of perishable products and efficient supervision in transit, have resulted in placing Canadian farm, garden, dairy and orchard products upon the British markets in their prime original quality, with a splendid reputation and greatly increased prices.

An example of advanced legislation is the Liberal Government's old age pension act, which brings within the reach of every man and woman in Canada a means for making provision for old age.

The Liberal Government's interest in Labour is shown, not only in the broad conditions provided for creating prosperity and industrial activity, and opportunities for employment, but in providing more specific benefits. This is shown in the abolition of the sweating system, so far as concerns Government contracts; the adoption of a fair wage scale for Government contracts; the establishment of a Department of Labour to be placed in charge of a Minister of its own; the publication of the Labour Gazette; the passing of the Lemieux Act, which though only operative since March of last year, has up to August last, been instrumental in amicable settlement of nearly forty strikes, involving over 40,000 employees, and millions of capital, and satisfactory arrangements were made for the limitation and practical cessation of Oriental immigration.

The Liberal Government's adoption of a revenue tariff that produced revenue, made it financially possible to meet the pressing demands of the provinces for increased subsidies, amounting to nearly five million dollars a year of the people's money returned directly to the people for provincial purposes.

The Liberal Government's management of the Post Office is a triumph of business administration. With a reduction in postage rate of over one-third, and with a vastly increased and improved service, a deficit of $750,000 in 1896 was converted into a surplus which steadily increased year by year till this year it reached the large amount of $1,101,827. Such a fruit of good management permitted the Government to initiate another great postal reform—rural mail delivery—that is free mail delivery to farmers, and before the year is out it will be in operation.

The splendid financial administration of the Liberal Government may be summarized in a few words—we have paid our way, and spent large sums in great public works for the development of the country, without appreciably adding to the public debt, and wihout increasing—but actually reducing—the taxation of the people. Customs taxation was reduced from $18.28 per $100, in 1896, to $15.66 per $100 in 1907, not to mention over one-third reduction in postage rates. If the Conservative average of taxation had been in force since 1896, fifty millions more customs duties would have been paid. The Liberal period of rule has been a reign of surpluses—totalling over one hundred and thirteen millions, or about nine and a half million dollars per year. Conservative revenue averaged thirty six million dollars per year for twelve years ending with 1896. Liberal revenue showed an increase every year till the last fiscal year, when it reached $96,054,905. In the twelve years the expenditure had only grown from $36,049,142, in 1896, to $76,061,451, in 1908.

The expenditure has only kept pace with the progress of Canada, and the Liberal Government has made generous expenditure on public works, which will return to the people a thousand fold.

The financial condition of Canada is sound. Her securities list on a par with securities guaranteed by the British Government, and the confidence of British capitalists is shown by the fact that in the first seven months of this year, British money to aid Canadian development was sent in from England to the amount of 143 millions of dollars.

Among the acts of the Government to advance Canada, the Liberal Government has established an assay office in British Columbia, and the establishment of a Canadian mint, in which our gold and silver coins are produced, adds to our dignity as a nation, and is also a source of profit.

The Liberal Government has enacted legislation concerning the observance of the Lord's Day.

The Liberal Government has appointed civil service commissioners to provide for eliminating political influence in appointments to the civil service.

The Government, acting on the principle that if Canada maintains a Militia, it must be the best, has instituted a great many reforms. New branches of service have been established; the pay of the militia has been increased from 50 cents per day to a possible $1.00; a permanent training camp has been established at Petawawa rifle ranges, and armouries—including one in Peterborough—have been established and built, and the defence of the country amply provided for. The Government has established a rifle factory in Canada, and the "Ross Rifle," to arm the Canadian militia, and pronounced by British experts as the best arm of precision now made, is a "made in Canada" article.

In presenting the foregoing truly remarkable record of achievements, only the salient points of merit have been indicated. A book would be required to unfold it in detail. But enough is shown to amply justify an appeal to the people for a renewal of confidence in a Government which in the short space of twelve years, has brought Canada into a position of prominence in the eyes of the world, has conquered the favour of the Mother Land; has brought Canada from being a timorous dependency, over-awed by hostile tariff-makers in the United States, to the rank of a nation, making her own treaties, coining her own money, a nation full of self reliance and confidence in a future of magnificent realization, for which the foundations have been laid strong and deep by the Liberal Government of the Dominion, whose stewardship is now under review, with confidence that it will meet popular approval.

Such a Government, I have the honour of supporting, and soliciting you to support, in the person of the Liberal candidate. If I am honoured by your confidence, I can only promise that I will endeavour, to the best of my ability, to repeat the efforts to serve West Peterborough and the country, which I have exerted in the course of my past representative relations, with a single eye to serving and promoting the best interests of Peterborough—city and county.

I have the honour to remain, gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,

J. R. Stratton

GODOWNS OF JAPAN.

Safety Warehouses Made Necessary by the Frequency of Fires.

Fire is one of the terrors that lodge at the elbow of the Japanese householder all the time, and because he lives in a matchwood dwelling, the lure-er has to take a curious precaution against the sudden loss of all his household goods. This precaution is the godown.

The stranger in Tokio or Yokohama who sees from his rickshaw a strange iron-plated building with deep like barred shutters and pointed roof heavily incrusted with tiles is led to believe that here perhaps is some feudal fort of the old time, ready to house fighting men against the attacks of a street mob. But when the trourist finds one of these black sheeted buildings on every other block he learns from the country dweller that these things are godowns, or storehouses for household goods.

When a fire gets well started in the crowded blocks of dolls' houses in a Japanese city, it is rarely stopped until from ten to fifty houses have been consumed and a black scar has been drawn across the whole face of the district. Because the houses are so flimsy and crowded so closely together that the Japanese firemen even at their best can do little with a well developed blaze certain astute citizens erect these iron sheathed and shuttered two-storied storehouses, wherein the householders of the neighborhood and the shopkeepers of the district can store away their valuables.

The godowns are so heavily sheathed with iron plate and so weighted with mud tiles that they rarely burn. All day long their windows are kept almost hermetically sealed by heavy swinging shutters that look like the doors of a safe. When a fire comes to a certain district the first thing is to close the first godown and put it in shape to weather the flames.

To these public fireproof safes the householders take their best furniture, their porcelain and their delicate prints. The wives keep locked up there their best kimonos and their odds and ends of jewelry. Merchants have their excess stock stowed away within them.

Whenever there is a fete in any Japanese home or preparations are being made for the entertainment of some special guests the servants are sent to the nearby godown to bring home all the valuables. Pictures are again hung on the wall, the heavy bronze vase is restored for the day to its special taboret, and the wardrobe of madame is replenished.

Then with the passing of the special occasion passes also the household grandeur. All the fleeting prettiness of print and flowered kimono is swallowed up in the black maw of the godown.

How to Wash Woollens.

The very best way to wash sweaters, babies' sacks, leggings and afghans—in fact, all garments knitted or crocheted—of wool is to sew the article in a bag of cheesecloth or mosquito netting. Then wash the bag, with its contents, in soft water with a good white soap. The water must not be cold; neither must it be very hot, and of course the soap must never be rubbed into the bag, the water being soaped beforehand. After rinsing in several waters, which must be of the same temperature as the soapy water, rip the garment from the bag, but do not hang it on a line to dry. Lay it flat on a table without stretching and place in the air to dry. If colored, avoid the sunlight, as it will fade it. Some ammonia in the water helps to keep wool garments soft. The disastrous experience that many people have had in washing sweaters is due to the fact that they wring and stretch them, which should never be done. Simply crush the bag to squeeze out the water, but do not wring.

Holding an Empty Bag.

Two concerns consolidate under a holding company, the third comes in, and another company is formed to hold the original holding company and the newcomer, making three operating concerns and two holders. Thus things go on until the operating companies equal X and the holding companies equal X—1. When this brood of corporate children gets into financial trouble the reversal of the process begins. There is appointed a receiver or two for each operating company and each holding company, whose administration finally leaves the holders of the securities holding an empty bag.

Nature Study.

In the village of H—— there was much interest in nature study, and through the efforts of the local secretary of the Audubon society the teacher of the primary school took her pupils out for a bird walk.

Little Edward, aged three and a half, returned from the walk much excited.

"What birds did you see?" asked his mother.

He thought deeply for a moment and then answered proudly, "I saw a robin—and a bluebird—and a horse chestnut!"

Preserved Currants.

I asked the waiter at a hotel in Paris to find out how the currants which were served with soft cream cheese and bread for dessert were cooked. To my surprise he informed me that they were not cooked at all. The large red and white currants were simply covered generously with sugar and let stand three days, the result being delicious. They should be served very cold.

A peculiarity of the Tory politician is that he affects the "on the quiet now, I'll tell you" attitude. They don't seem to care to speak openly upon political subjects.

"The machinery of the Union Trust Co. needs oil," said Geo. E. Foster, otherwise its light will go out, and then woe to the widows and orphans of the Foresters.

If the Tories would tell the facts about their alleged scandals, and allow the people to judge, there would be no anxiety as to the verdict.

WITCHES RULE TRIBE

COMMISSIONERS DISCOVER A STRANGE AFRICAN RACE.

Party of Explorers In the Dark Continent Come Upon Community Where Each Family Has a Separate Village and a Tribe of Witches Dominates All — Another Whole Race Lives In Floating Houses.

Lieut.-Col. R. G. T. Bright, C.M.G., who left England at the end of 1906 as British commissioner in connection with the disputed frontier between Great Britain and the Congo Free State, has returned to England on the conclusion of twenty months travel in some of the wildest parts of East Africa.

The joint commission lost five of its members, who were killed at various times in the more unsettled regions, and several were wounded while working in small parties escorting stores or mails.

During one of the journeys of Capt. E. Jack, R.E., one of the British commissioners, along the western shore of Lake Albert, one of his canoes was upset by a hippopotamus, an animal which abounds in this lake and in the River Semliki, two privates of the King's African Rifles being drowned.

There were several small encounters with the more savage tribes through whose country the commissioners passed. At the south portion of the boundary a party of soldiers, while escorting some friendlies who had brought in food, were set on by hostile natives who dispersed the British party, who had to take refuge in a friendly camp. When the news reached the main camp a rescuing force was sent out in relief, this itself being attacked on the return journey, several of the members being killed before the assailants were eventually driven off.

Great difficulty was experienced owing to the proximity of dense grass, in which the natives remained hidden, and, while some of the natives were extremely friendly, it was impossible to know how many natives might be hidden in the jungle. On another occasion one of the escort was attacked just outside the camp and severely wounded. Toward the north-east end of Lake Albert Edward, a porter, who had become detached from the caravan, was attacked and cut to pieces.

The commission had some interesting experiences in the dense forest along the banks of the Semliki, where weeks were spent by the officers in examining the country. The conditions were most depressing, the sun was seldom seen and the forest growth was so thick that camp could only be pitched in the native villages.

The continual rain and semi-darkness, with the presence of myriads of stinging ants, made life very uncomfortable. In this forest a pigmy elephant was shot by a German party. The forest was densely inhabited by people who live in the thick undergrowth. All the paths to the forest villages are strongly stockaded, and, in addition, the jungle itself was thickly studded with wooded spikes to prevent surprise.

The inhabitants in this forest differ entirely from the pigmies of the Ituri. They are cannibals, and when pressed for food exchange their children for those of other families. They refuse to eat members of their own family. They displayed great nervousness at the first appearance of the white man, but were quite friendly.

At the southern end of the boundary the commissioners met some interesting people, who are singular in the fact that they owe allegiance to no chiefs. Each family owns its own village, and recognizes no head. The whole community, however, is dominated by a clan of witch women, who are very hostile to Europeans, and claim occult powers.

These people were largely responsible for much of the trouble with the natives. The chief witch woman visited the British camp and proved herself to be not only a very attractive but a very clever person. It transpired that on the night previous to her visit to the British camp she had summoned a meeting of the people and told them that she had arranged to clear the Europeans out of the country.

Fortunately for her it happened that the day on which she promised to get rid of the strangers was the date on which the commission had struck camp.

While on Lake Albert Edward the commissioners visited a native tribe who lived in floating villages erected on separate islands or rafts of papyrus. It was said that these people, who live entirely on fish, had originally taken to the water from fear of lions.

All the commissioners suffered at various times from fever owing to the hardships endured, but the malaria did not prove to be of a malignant type. The Congo commissioners had to be invalided home after a severe operation, while another member of the Congo commission died on the way home.

Reproving Lord Wolseley.

During the recent manoeuvres in Sussex, England, an elderly gentleman, observing a young officer placing his men in an extremely disadvantageous position, ventured to approach him. "Excuse me," he began, "but may I draw your attention to the fact that the enemy would be able to observe your directions from a great distance?" Whereas were you to post your men behind this hedge—" "And may I," said the lieutenant stiffly, "draw your attention to the fact that I am in command here!" "I beg your pardon. I should have remembered that," said the older man, hurrying away. When he was gone, the lieutenant learned, to his discomfiture, that the interfering stranger was Lord Wolseley.

Absurd Beliefs About Hedgehogs.

In olden days the hedgehog was accredited with the possession of many wonderful powers. Pliny and after him Aelian and others have related how it would climb apple and fig trees, shake down the fruit and afterward fall upon and impale the fruit on its spines. The belief that it was in the habit of milking cows during the night is likewise a very old [illegible]

The Little Tin Cottages.

By Virginia Blair.

Copyrighted, 1903, by Associated Literary Press.

The sky was blue, and the lake was blue, and there were four blue birds against the silver gray of the birches.

"It's like a chain of sapphires," Peggy said as she and her mother followed the narrow path among the trees.

"Yes," murmured her mother faintly.

Peggy looked back at her.

"Mother," she protested, "you are tired out," and she took the heavy bag that her mother had carried, and, thus weighted with two, she plodded on until she came to an intersection of the path.

"I'm not sure which way to turn to go to our cottage," she said. "Doesn't

"THIS IS THE WAY WATER OUGHT TO BE HANDLED."

it sound too good to be true to say 'our cottage,' mother?"

"Yes, it does, and the rent is so cheap," Mrs. Linton said.

"We couldn't have come if it hadn't been cheap," Peggy remarked philosophically.

"No, we couldn't," her mother agreed, and again they plodded on.

Presently a man appeared among the trees. He wore blue overalls, and he was wheeling a barrow.

"Oh, can you tell us where Miss Brownlee's cottages are?" Peggy called eagerly.

"The tin cottages?" the man inquired.

"The what?" Peggy gasped.

The man grinned. "The tin cottages. Those are the ones Miss Brownlee rents. You go on till you come to a path toward the lake, and you'll find them."

"Mother," Peggy demanded when he had gone on, "what do you suppose he meant?"

"I'm sure I don't know, and I don't care," said Mrs. Linton pensively.

"Poor little mother," Peggy worried. "you're tired out."

Again they went on, and at last they saw before them a row of diminutive houses like inverted bathtubs. They were painted gray, and they were very compact and neat, but to Peggy, who had dreamed of a picturesque rustic bungalow, they were nightmares.

"Oh," she said in dismay, "they are hideous, mother!"

And after one glance Mrs. Linton sat down on the moss and laid her umbrella beside her. "It's the last straw," she said dejectedly.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Peggy. And her mother echoed the plaint.

But presently they saw a woman beckoning to them from the porch of a large rustic cottage at the end of a row of tin caricatures.

"That must be Miss Brownlee," Peggy said. "I am going to tell her that I think she should have told us that the cottages were made of tin."

But as they came up to the porch the beaming face of the rather massive lady disarmed criticism.

"I thought you would be here about this time," she said. "I want you to have lunch with me."

"Oh," Peggy demurred, "we don't like to trouble you."

"I'm dead lonesome," Miss Brownlee hastened to explain, "and I like company. That's why I built the cottages."

"Aren't they a little odd?" Peggy asked.

"I think they are beautiful," Miss Brownlee declared radiantly. "After the big fair they were for sale—they had been models, you know—and I bought them cheap, and they are nice and comfortable inside. I have rented the one next to you to a young man, an artist. He comes tomorrow."

"Has he seen them?" Peggy quavered, not daring to look at her mother.

"No, but I told him how nice they were."

"Oh," Peggy murmured, and went on eating hot biscuits.

A half hour later she said to Miss Brownlee, "I have never tasted such a perfectly delicious lunch."

Miss Brownlee laughed. "Well, I am a right good cook," she said. "I always wanted to have an opportunity to learn things, but after mother died I was too old to take up painting or music, so I just went on cooking. After all, I don't know but it's just as worth while to be a good cook as a bad artist."

"Indeed it is!" said Peggy heartily. "I paint some myself. But I wish I could make cake like this."

"Oh, do you paint?" cried Miss Brownlee. "some time I am going to get you to make a picture of the cottages."

In the morning Peggy set her easel up on the bluff, but the magic of the lake eluded her, and when she came in she had nothing to show but a sketch of Sally.

She gave it to Miss Brownlee.

"Well, well," said that delighted lady, "it's just like Sally. I'm going to have it framed. By the way," she added, "it's time for that young man to come. And there he is now." And she hurried to the door.

He was a handsome young fellow, with a gray cap on the back of his head.

"I wanted to ask about my cottage. Where is it?"

"There," said Miss Brownlee, pointing to the one next to Peggy's.

"That? Oh, by George!" the young man ejaculated, and Peggy laughed to herself.

"It's the one I told you about in my letter," Miss Brownlee went on.

"Yes," he murmured feebly, "you told me."

"This young lady and her mother have the one next to it." And Miss Brownlee stepped back and showed Peggy behind her—Peggy, whose blue eyes danced wickedly.

The young man looked at her, taking in with appreciation the grace of the slender girlish figure.

"I think I shall like—the cottage," he said slowly, and when they had talked for a few minutes Peggy went back to her mother.

"He is very nice," she remarked, "and his name is Meredith." And with that she took her portfolio and started for the bluff.

"Look here," said some one over her shoulder two hours later, "you ought not to try that sort of thing."

It was Mr. Meredith. "Why not?" asked Peggy.

"I saw your sketch of Sally," he told her. "You do it better than water things. Your lake and sky aren't right."

Peggy flushed. "Oh," she said, "I don't want to paint pussy cats! I want to paint the silver water and the silver trees and a silver spirit of the woods."

"Silver tommyrot!" said the young man. "You ought to do things like the studies your mother showed me just now."

"Pot boilers!" Peggy murmured.

"This is the way water ought to be handled," and he opened his portfolio and handed her a sketch.

"Oh!" Peggy said as she looked at it, and when she had handed it back to him there was real humility in her tone.

"I have never seen anything so wonderful."

"It is no more wonderful than yours," he told her, "but I have studied longer—abroad and all that."

"Oh, have you?" said the eager Peggy, and they sat there and talked until the shadows fell.

That night Meredith said to Miss Brownlee, "I think it is beautiful here," and Peggy, watching the moonlight through the small square window of her room, smiled in the darkness as she thought how deliciously Mr. Meredith said "By George!" when he looked at her best work.

The next morning she took his advice and sketched the six curly tailed pigs, Sally over a saucer of milk and Miss Brownlee among her pots and pans.

"That's the best thing you have done yet," Meredith told her as he examined the sketch of Miss Brownlee. "The light of the fire and the sunlight through the window give a chance for values."

"I wish I knew as much as you do about such things," Peggy sighed.

"We will work together for awhile," he said, "and I will teach you all I know."

But he taught her other things than art as their easels stood side by side on the bluff, and the white gulls dipped to the sapphire lake, and the wind ruffled the curls on Peggy's forehead. And one morning as Peggy finished a sketch of silver birches with a bit of lake beyond he looked over her shoulder.

"You are getting on wonderfully," he said, "but you ought to have a year abroad."

"But I can't," Peggy told him.

"You can if you will marry me," was his unexpected proposition.

And "Oh!" said rosy Peggy.

"And to think," said the radiant Miss Brownlee when they told her, "that I should have a romance right here in my tin cottages."

"Dear cottages!" murmured Peggy.

And as the lovers went down the path the moonlight touched the little gray houses with magic light and made of each of them a castle of dreams.

Pneumonia Serum.

The new serum with which Dr. Bertrand of Antwerp claims to cure pneumonia is applied in four or five injections, aggregating not more than half a cubic inch, no other curative serum taking effect in such small doses. Serious symptoms disappear in less than thirty-six hours even in advanced stages where danger was increased by habits of habitual drunkenness.

THE word "OXOL" does not mean one food or one preparation. No! "OXOL" is a name given to all goods for horses, cattle, swine and sheep, prepared by Messrs. S. K. and T. C. Windsor, of Australia, New Zealand, England and Canada.

The veterinary preparations as well as the compressed bales of fodder placed on the market of the world under the name of

are all of the greatest possible order of merit and may be used by farmers, graziers, dairymen and all owners of stock with the full assurance that these goods have the power in a very short time to double their incomes by feeding, fattening and curing all animals, which to them means money.

Scientific Meetings will be organized by Messrs. Windsor and held through out the Dominion of Canada, when farmers desirous of improving their knowledge of stock will have an opportunity of doing so and to be instructed on the life of stock from birth to death, free of any charge.

DOMINION ELECTIONS

TO THE ELECTORS OF EAST PETERBOROUGH:

FELLOW ELECTORS:

The time is near for the election of a representative of this Riding to the Dominion Parliament.

Much as I would like to see you all personally, it may not be possible for me to do so before election day, so I adopt this method of presenting my appeal, especially to as many as possible of those I cannot see, for your support.

In convention assembled, my friends, unsolicited, conferred on me the honour of selecting me as a candidate, therefore, I am now before you in that character, soliciting your votes and influence for me at the coming election. Having had the honour of being before you previously in the same character, I flatter myself that I do not need any personal introduction to you. Although I was then defeated, I was not discredited. I conducted clean election campaigns and did nothing to be ashamed of. I have been with and among you all my life, have taken an active part in your public and local affairs, and, being a farmer myself, I have given much attention to such matters and questions as are of special interest to farmers. I have had the honour of representing the municipality in which I live as Reeve and Councillor for a number of years, and at all times I have endeavoured to perform my duties efficiently, tairly and honourably, and in such manner as to shew myself worthy of your good will and support. Therefore, I trust you have reason to judge favourably of my ability to perform the important duties of your representative advantageously to this Riding and creditably to myself. While in politics I am a Liberal-Conservative, I have never been a blind partisan. I shall never consider myself bound to support my party, except when I believe them to be right and acting in the best interests of our country, and can give you a reason for, and justify in my own conscience, at least, the course I shall think it my duty to take as your honoured representative.

In matters pertaining to our County, should you honour me with your confidence and elect me as your representative, I shall always consider my services at your command, and it will be my pleasure to consistently and properly render a good service to a political opponent as cheerfully as to a party associate. I have carefully studied the requirements of this Riding and district and am already familiar with the same, and you will ever find me ready and willing to do my utmost to advance the best interests of our own district, and especially those of East Peterborough, irrespective of local, personal or political considerations.

I trust my position, thus stated, which I consider is the proper one for a representative of the people to take, will have your approval and merit your most generous support irrespective of party.

I hope to have an opportunity during the campaign of addressing you at public meetings on some of the many political questions which are at present interesting and agitating the people. Meantime I appeal to all my friends, and those who desire honest and economical administration of public affairs and are in sympathy with the Liberal-Conservative platform, to rally to my support and promote an active and enthusiastic campaign in my behalf, and thus for better government, and to see the careless ones and invite them to the polls to cast their ballots for me and the cause of better Government. I trust those whom I will not be able to see personally will be no less active in my behalf on that account. It is time for a change at Ottawa.

I will never forget to be deeply grateful to all those who have so generously and kindly supported me in the past. I shall always be sincerely thankful for, and now again respectfully solicit your votes, influence and active support until the close of the elections on the 26th day of October. Promising you my very best efforts in your behalf, and in the cause of good government, if elected. I am,

Your obedient servant,

JOHN A. SMYTH.

MINISTERS ON STAND.

Suffragettes Call Members of Cabinet as Witnesses In Defence.

London, Oct. 22.—The suffragettes succeeded in bringing two members of the British Cabinet, David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Herbert John Gladstone, Secretary of State for Home Affairs, as witnesses to the Bow street Police Court yesterday.

The occasion was the hearing of the cases against Mrs. and Miss Pankhurst and Mrs. Drummond, who were tried for inciting to disorder, when they appealed early in the month to the public to help them "rush the House of Commons," and 17 other women who were arrested Oct. 13, charged with disorderly conduct.

A large crowd, including many suffragettes, had gathered. Miss Pankhurst examined the two Cabinet Ministers. The purpose of her questions, many of which were disallowed by the judge, was to show that if the Government gave women "their rights" the disorders would come to an end.

After an examination of the two Ministers that lasted all day long, Miss Pankhurst announced that she still had 50 other witnesses to call. Mrs. and Miss Pankhurst and Mrs. Drummond were remanded until Saturday and the other prisoners until to-day.

Vernon Inquest Opens.

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 22.—Before Coroner Ashton last night an inquest was opened into the death of three Grand Trunk employes, Conductor Fralick and Engineer Barchell of London, and Yardsman Ribble of Brantford, all of whom met death in the recent collision between a Brantford yard engine and a special Hamilton freight near Mount Vernon.

Superintendent Gillen of the G.T.R., read a declaration from Yardman McGuire, stating that he was partially responsible for the wreck in that he failed, as required by the rules, to prevent a freight leaving the yards while a yard engine was returning. In the fog he did not notice the freight, which was a special going out.

McGuire, for whom a warrant is out, has left the city and cannot be located. The hearing was adjourned until Tuesday.

Three Hundred Filipinos Dead.

Manila, Oct. 22.—Belated reports indicate that the storm of Oct. 19 in the Cayagian Valley was the worst and most destructive within the memory of living inhabitants of the valley. The official figures are not yet available, as many places have not been heard from, but it seems certain that the number of dead will reach 300.

There was a heavy typhoon and torrential rains throughout the valley and in the mountains.

The rivers were flooded and in many places rose to a height of 20 feet, sweeping everything before them in their path to the sea. Hundreds of animals and houses were swept away by the waters.

Shot in Street.

Dadeville, Ala., Oct. 22.—Jack Henderson, a farmer of Tallapoosa County, was shot and killed on the public square here Tuesday night by J. Fletcher Turner, representative in the lower house of the Legislature from this county. The shooting is believed to have been the result of an old feud between the two men.

Alderman Departs, Writs Issued.

Vancouver, B.C., Oct. 22.—Business circles are agog over the issuance against Alderman W. J. Cavanagh of several writs in civil actions in the Supreme Court. He left on Friday last for the United States. Other writs are said to be pending.

Three Thousand Hear Sifton.

Winnipeg, Oct. 22.—The Walker Theatre was crowded by 3,000 people last night, the principal speakers being Hon. Clifford Sifton and D. C. Cameron. There were many interruptions and a strong police force ejected scores of the more noisy.

Three Lives Lost.

New York, Oct. 22.—Three persons were killed, four others badly injured and the lives of a hundred more were imperilled by fire in the six-storey tenement house at 93 East Third street early yesterday.

FIRES GROW SERIOUS.

Rain Badly Needed in East to Prevent Terrible Devastation.

Brockville, Oct. 22.—Brockville is still surrounded on three sides by bush fires, which have sent dense clouds of smoke into the town and navigation is at a standstill. The latest broke out Tuesday in what was formerly known as the "back pond" district, two miles north of the town.

Montreal, Oct. 22.—Fire has ravaged Belceil Mountain and caused several thousands of dollars damage. Mt Belceil is about 30 miles south of here.

Montreal, Oct. 22.—Forest fires are again raging in the vicinity of Sherbrooke, and timber limits of the Canada Paper Co. and Bissell are threatened. The fire is spreading with great rapidity owing to the lack of rain and the dry condition of the herbage. Unless the fires are checked shortly indications are that the losses will be exceedingly heavy.

CHARGES FLYING.

Both Parties Charges Padding Lists In the North.

New Liskeard, Oct. 22.—Political lightning commenced to flash here yesterday when the charge was made by the local Conservatives that the Liberal enumerators have padded the voters' lists for the unorganized districts in the neighborhood of the Transcontinental Railway. The accusation was replied to with the counter-charge that the Conservative enumerators have falsified the lists in the neighborhood of the T. & N. O. Railway.

The stories have caused quite an excitement in both political camps. Yesterday morning Provincial Detective Calbeck of the License Department, stationed in Cobalt, went north with several policemen to man the Transcontinental polling booth, and it is the intention of the organization to assist the policemen with two scrutineers each.

Made Dash For Life.

Union City, Tenn., Oct. 22.—Col. R. Z. Taylor, the aged Trenton lawyer, who was taken from a hotel at Walnut Log at the same time Capt. Quinten Rankin was lynched, Monday night, has turned up near Tipton, Tenn., having escaped from the night riders an hour after Capt. Rankin was hanged. The masked men got into a dispute among themselves as to what to do with Taylor, some favoring killing him, while others wanted to hold him so as to force a confession to the demands for free fishing on Reel Foot Lake and while the riders disputed, Taylor jumped between his guards and despite his years, dashed to the edge of a bayou leading from the lake and plunged in, swimming across. He was fired upon many times by the night riders, but escaped in the darkness. He was lost in the woods, and when daylight came was afraid to go back to Walnut Log, but was found near Tiptonville yesterday morning.

Work on G.T.P.

Calgary, Alta., Oct. 22.—Senator Melvin Jones, Toronto, has arrived here.

"How did you find conditions along the line of the new G.T.P.?" he was asked.

"Grain is being shipped out of the country all along the line. About every six miles or so there is a railway siding, where farmers are loading cars with grain. This has been the most interesting spectacle, and one wonders where all the grain comes from. I made a memorandum of the elevators that have been built, and I find that there are already forty-four elevators between Hart and Wainwright and one between Hart and Winnipeg, a distance of 106 miles. This makes a total of forty-five elevators, and many others are in course of construction. Towns are springing up with wonderful rapidity all along the G.T.P. line."

Togo's Garden Party.

Tokio, Oct. 22.—Two official luncheons, Admiral Togo's magnificent garden party, a dinner given by Premier Katsura, and a ball at his residence were the principal features among the innumerable lavish entertainments offered the officers and men of the U.S. battleship fleet yesterday.

The garden fete at which Admiral Togo was host was one of the most elaborate functions of its kind ever seen in Tokio. It was held in the grounds of the Shinjuki Imperial gardens, which are the property of the Empress. The invitations numbered 1,500, and the guests included all the American officers of higher rank and Japanese from every walk of life.

Swindled the Boys.

Montreal, Oct. 22.—A swindler by the name of H. Melbourne has operated here and departed after fleecing about 35 boys out of $5 each.

Melbourne said that he was manager of a new Canadian Messenger Co. His plan was to advertise for messenger boys, and after engaging them to take them to a clothing house and have them measured for a suit, costing $15. In order to show their good faith the boys, or their parents, had to deposit $5. With this money he left the city.

To Talk All-Red Route.

Montreal, Oct. 22.—Mr. G. S. Hunter, a member of a big Newcastle shipbuilding firm, who was here interviewing the Government some time ago in connection with the all-red route scheme, arrived in Montreal from England yesterday. It is understood that Mr. Hunter is here to further promote the interests of the all-red project, and that he will discuss the matter with the Canadian authorities. It is said that an important announcement is probable after the elections.

Two Drop Out.

Montreal, Oct. 22.—Two candidates who were nominated on Monday have already retired. Lachapelle, Independent in L'Assomption, is out, and in the County of Richelieu, H. Beauchemin, nominated as an Independent Liberal, has retired. In L'Assomption Dr. E. Laurier, ex-M.P., is still in the field, making the result doubtful.

The Shadow of the East.

London, Oct. 22.—(C.A.P.)—A Wellington New Zealand, cable says Premier Ward, addressing a meeting, condemned the attempts to create a spirit of militarism in New Zealand. It was necessary that the volunteer system should be able to do what the Imperial authorities suggested—repel a raid if one should occur.

"The shadow of the east is over Australia," said Ward, "and we are not far away from her. Australians are preaching the doctrine that Australia has no need to do this. In New Zealand we are determined it shall be so."

'Varsity's Share.

Toronto, Oct. 22.—A sum of $389,-889.15 is the university's share of the provincial funds for 1908. Hon. A. J. Matheson, Provincial Treasurer, sent a check for $211,116.23 yesterday to the board of governors, which, with $178,721.93 sent for the first half of the year, makes a total of $87,871.05 in excess of last year's contribution. Another $211,116 will be sent for the first half of 1909.

Quarrelled; Both Dead.

Cranesville, W.Va., Oct. 22.—Two brothers who engaged in a dispute over the distribution of the large estate left by their father, are dead, each having inflicted a fatal wound on the other. The brothers were Joseph and Thomas Mattingly, aged 38 and 35 years respectively, and among the most prosperous farmers of Prescott County.

Joseph stabbed Thomas. The latter staggered to the house, where he secured a shotgun and returned to the scene and fired a shot at Joseph.

Dangers of Campaigning.

Nelson, B.C., Oct. 22.—J. A. MacDonald, K.C., had a narrow escape from death at Trail. He went to address a political meeting there and got off the train in the dark at the wrong crossing. He was thrown back almost under the wheels, but was saved by falling against the lower step of the car.

A party of Rosslanders were driving to Trail to attend the same political meeting and their carriage went over a 30-foot embankment.

Pipes Start a Disastrous Fire.

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 22.—Frank Finnigan's fine house, just west of the town, was burned to the ground on Tuesday. The contents were destroyed, also 50 bushels of potatoes. Hot pipes are said to have caused the fire. There was very little insurance.

Harvesters Attack Conductor.

Winnipeg, Oct. 22.—A number of eastern harvesters boarded a C.P.R. branch train for Winnipeg Tuesday, and, refusing to give fares, knocked the conductor down and kicked him. On arrival here two of the ringleaders, Samuel Knox and Herbert Henderson, were arrested, and later remanded until the conductor had recovered sufficiently to testify against them.

Scattered Over a Mile.

St. John, N.B., Oct. 22.—An unknown tramp was crushed to death under the Boston express at Grand Bay Tuesday night by falling from the blind baggage on which he and a companion had been stealing a ride. Portions of the man's body were scattered for a mile along the track.

GREAT PROGRESS OF THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC; BRANCH LINES TO SERVE WESTERN CANADA'S TRAFFIC ARE TO BE RUSHED TO COMPLETION

Route West of Branden—Party of Officials, Including Hays and Morse, Complete Inspection Trip

PRINCE RUPERT HARBOUR

Examiner Special

Winnipeg, Oct. 22.—Strenuous, bustling activity and splendid progress and development all along every portion of the line visited was the trend of opinion expressed by the Grand Trunk Pacific official party on its return late last night from a trip along the 700 miles of completed line westward, and a journey to the magnificent land-locked harbour and terminals at Prince Rupert on the Pacific Coast. It is just three weeks since the party set out from Winnipeg on its extensive itinerary and included in the officials who took in the trip of inspection were President Chas. M. Hayes, Vice-President and General Manager Frank W. Morse, Assistant General Counsel D'Arcy Tait, Chief Engineer B. B. Kelliher, Passenger Traffic Manager W. E. Davis, and Freight Traffic Manager J. W. Loud. At the Royal Alexandra last night every member of the party expressed himself as enthused and delighted with what he had seen and the evidences of rapidly organizing forces along the completed line, the manner in which contracts were being rushed at all points, and the active development of communities every few miles between Winnipeg and Wainwright, 666 miles west, were causes for gratification and very great satisfaction.

Branch Line Planks

Mr. Morse spoke in general terms of the satisfaction of the party with their visit of inspection to Prince Rupert. Great interest is being taken all along the coast in the new port, which, everyone recognizes, is to become one of the great cities of the Pacific Coast. A good start has been made in building the road from the Pacific Coast terminus eastward.

As for the prairie section, Mr. Morse said he expected the road would be in Edmonton within the next three months, and the road beyond that point is being rushed to the mountains. With the main line thus well on towards completion, the company will be enabled to give early consideration to branch lines. The company already has authority from Parliament to build nine of these branch lines in Western Canada, which, when completed, will give the system access to all parts of the Canadian West.

Branch Line to Brandon

One of the earliest branches to be dealt with will be that linking up Brandon with the G. T. P. system. Replying to a question on this point, Mr. Morse said that Brandon is too important a point to be overlooked, and that they had already made surveys into that city and had made arrangements for joint terminals. The route west of Brandon, he said, was being considered, and they expect to begin operations early next year.

Other Branches

Other branches, which are chartered, include lines to southern Manitoba, from Winnipeg to Yorkton and thence to Hudson Bay, to Neepawa, to Prince Albert, to Battleford, to Calgary.

The through trip to the end of the line was made over a roadbed perfectly ballasted, and the officials were given an excellent opportunity to observe the movement of wheat, which was being shipped with admirable despatch from the new stations. Long freight trains were passing at frequent intervals, and the process of loading from newly constructed elevators and from platforms where these were in course of erection was witnessed all along the way. Members of the party who had not been over the line before were agreeably surprised at what was termed "the established appearance of the road."

Towns Spring up Rapidly

Towns of but a few months' growth showed by their size what might be expected in the future, and the music of the builders' hammer was a welcome sound all along the route. From Wainwright the party returned to Saskatoon and proceeded directly to Vancouver; from this latter point the officials went by water to Prince Rupert, where they were accommodated in two capacious hotels lately completed by the company. The wonders of the harbour at the end of the line, which have been extolled again and again since Prince Rupert was made the terminal point, were a source of surprise and admiration to officials who viewed it for the first time. One of these, W. E. Davis, the passenger traffic manager, stated that the harbour would easily accommodate all the vessels daily seen in New York harbour and then leave ample room for a flotilla of battleships.

Rushing Contract Work

From Prince Albert a journey was made by steamer for one hundred miles along the first section under contract for that distance and Chief Engineer Kelliher expressed himself as satisfied with the manner in which the work was being rushed along the entire contract. The country is almost level for the entire distance, and the

SPENT NIGHT ALONE IN HOTEL AT McCRACKEN'S LANDING WHERE IN SUMMER THERE ARE CROWDS

It is funny what a difference just a few months make. Mr. Nathan Stabler spent Monday night alone in the hotel at McCracken's Landing, the same building in which, only a short time ago, accommodation for visitors was at a premium. Mr. Stabler desired to drive from the Landing to Lakefield, but he was forced to give up the project on Monday night owing to the dense smoke that overhung the road, completely shutting out the vision, and making breathing impossible. Mr. Stabler turned back to the Landing, where he procured the key of the hotel from one of the neighbours and spent the night there.

OLDEST SHOWMAN OF AMERICA DIES AT AGE OF NINETY-NINE YEARS

After years of travelling through the country under canvas, journeying by waggon long before the railroads had reached the towns in which they exhibited, P. A Older, nearly 99 years old, the oldest living showman in the United States, died at his home near Anoka, Minn., Oct. 1

Mr. Older travelled with his own show through the middle West in the '40's, said to be the first circus to visit that section of the country. In 1849 he joined the old Mable aggregation and in 1857 he allied himself with the Yankee Robinson enterprises. He was also connected with P. T. Barnum in the '70's. His last venture in the show business was in 1881, but it did not prove entirely successful, and he retired to private life.—The Billboard.

Old residents of Peterborough will remember the Yankee Robinson show which visited here during the seventy's. It located on the present market square.

CATTLE IN DANGER OF BEING BURNED IN THE FOREST FIRES

Fires are raging in the vicinity of Deer Bay in Smith Township, where there is an immense amount of pasture lands and where the cattle are in danger of having their feet burned. Word has been received from Otonabee farmers that fences surrounding their properties are on fire and that the forests are being threatened. To-day Mr. David Spears, of Otonabee, left for the north to investigate, accompanied by others, the seriousness of the fires.

HEIDELBERG TUNNEL FAILS TO MEET IN CENTRE BY 26 FEET

There is a report from Reide'berg to the effect that the bore of the tunnel being put through the Black Forest mountain by the Government of Baden has failed to meet at the centre by 26 feet, and a discharged labourer is blamed for having purposely moved a surveyor's peg. Engineers, however, do not use pegs or pins for important work of this kind, but use substantial monuments, and the custom is to keep checking these over continually, and the labourer must have been pretty clever to have changed anything without it being detected. Another explanation would be that the calculations were wrong, or iron in the mountain affected the needle of the compass.

THANK-OFFERING IN HONOUR OF GOLDEN JUBILEE OF POPE PIUS X.

The usual offering at St. Peter's Cathedral next Sunday will be of a special nature, in accordance with the announcement that was made by Rev. Father McColl last Sunday. The amount received at the three masses will be sent to Rome to the Pope in honour of the golden jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood. His Holiness is in his fiftieth year as a priest of the Catholic Church. It is understood that the special offering will be universal. It is learned that it is thirteen years since the Catholic people of this city have made an offering to the Holy Father.

BEEF TAKES A DROP IN PRICE

Explanation of the Cause by Mr. H. P. Kennedy, the Well Known Cattle Dealer.

It will be seen by reference to our advertising columns that Mr. H. P. Kennedy is offering special bargains in beef. In an interview as to the cause of this reduction in prices, Mr. Kennedy states that "the live stock markets at the present time are overcrowded with cattle, as the farmers all over the country were anxious to dispose of as much of their stock as possible before winter." Mr. Kennedy is a very extensive dealer, handling each week an average of a train load of live stock, or from 25 to 30 cars. For the past three weeks Mr. Kennedy states that "SPRING LAMB could be bought at Kennedy's Meat Market at a lower price than in any other city in Ontario." Now that the cattle markets are down Mr. Kennedy is offering Beef at very low figures, and the citizens of Peterborough will no doubt take advantage of it.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH HENRY AGNEW

The death occurred this morning at 8 o'clock of Mr. Joseph Henry Agnew, at his home on Monroe avenue, East City, after an illness of a couple of months duration. His wife predeceased him several months ago, but his mother, a brother and two sisters survive.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 3.30 to the Little Lake cemetery.

BRIDEGROOM KISSED BY TWO HUNDRED GIRLS WHILE THE BLUSHING BRIDE LOOKED ON

Los Angeles, Oct. 22.—Special.—In plain view of an assembled throng W. L. Colquhoun was kissed by nearly 200 girls. He is better to-day. Colquhoun, who is a general favourite with the public, was wedded to Miss Mary Clark, of Azusa, at his home on Echo street. The ceremony was hardly over, when to the amazement of the bride, her husband was surrounded by a feminine throng eager to congratulate him. The blushing bridegroom was unable to escape, even had he wished, and the envious best man looked on while a single column of girls filed past and saluted Colquhoun on cheek or lips.

THE BUILDING TRADE

Much Progress In Evidence In Various Parts Of The City---Houses Going Up In The Western Districts.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR THE WORKING MEN

Yesterday evening an Examiner representative took a jaunt about the city to ascertain, if possible, what was being done in the building trade. His course lay principally through the western portion of the city, and on almost every street could be heard the music of the saw and hammer. On Charlotte street several houses are in course of erection. Beyond Park street on Charlotte street, and to the south of it, the city has made wonderful advances during the past couple of years. At the present time building is proceeding rapidly and in the near future the whole stretch of land out to the boundary at North Monaghan will have been built up. Lanes have been left through the centre of each block, where delivery waggons may call without injury to the boulevards at the front of the houses. Light and telephone poles are also erected in the lanes, so that none stand on the streets to mar their beauty.

In the south end, in addition to the rapid construction of three churches testifying to the wonderful increase of population there — many new dwellings are rising.

Weller street is another place where there is room for advancement, and building is progressing on that street also. In Ashburnham the same conditions exist. Three new houses are being erected on Mark street, and similar progress is being experienced in other parts.

There is, therefore, every evidence of good prospects for work, and with the recommencement of work at the Wm. Hamilton Foundry, the beginning of work in the Peterborough Lubricator Manufacturing Company, also in the new furniture factory, and the Diamond Caulk Horseshoe factory, there is every possibility of a bright future for the working men.

TO BEGIN STUDY OF SHAKESPEARE NEXT THURSDAY

Mr. A. Mowat, B.A., will not hold his Shakespere Class this evening. He will commence the study of Macbeth next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock when a large class will be formed. All young women are invited.

Dr. Elmore Harris of Toronto will give an illustrated address on Exodus this evening at 8 o'clock, to which the public are cordially invited. Dr. Harris will continue his studies in Exodus and Ephesians to-night.

DAYS WITHOUT SLEEP

Farmers in Harvey Reported To Have Had Strenuous Week Fighting Bush Fires ---Strong Wind Fanned the Flames.

FOOD BROUGHT TO THEM; WORK UNINTERRUPTED

Days without sleep, fighting the bush fires that are threatening their lands and in some cases even their houses, farmers in parts of Harvey are beginning to control the flames and are themselves worn out and fatigued from their long vigils and unceasing labour. A gentleman who was recently in the northern township on business states that he was informed of a number of farmers who had not seen bed in a week, sleeping in their clothes during short intervals. In cases they had erected small shacks in the fields to sleep and their food was brought out from the houses. Long hours of hard work trying to cut a path that would stop the progress of the flames was unavailing during the early part of the week when a strong wind was blowing. The fire would jump long stretches and fighting the wind and flames was most disheartening.

COLLECTION FOR HOSPITAL TAKEN UP AT ST. PETER'S

The recent collection in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital and the House of Providence, which was taken up recently among the congregation of St. Peter's, amounted to $1,549.85. This sum included $184 from local business and professional men who yearly show their sympathy for these institutions by donating sums towards the collection, which goes towards their maintenance.

NEW CHARLOTTE ST. CURLING RINK IS ALMOST COMPLETED; BAPTIE BROS. THROUGH TO-MORROW

Curlers Have a Commodious, Well Lighted Building For The Roaring Game---Room Enough For Seven Sheets of Ice Has Been Provided.

THE RINK HAS ORNAMENTAL FRONT; THE APPEARANCE IS VERY ATTRACTIVE

Messrs. Baptie Bros. of Lakefield who have the contract for the new curling rink on Charlotte street will finish their work to-morrow, and the members of the curling club who have inspected the building are shaking hands with themselves. The knights of the broom have certainly a magnificent building for their use this season. The new rink is commodious, well lighted, and arranged, and, besides, looks well, the front and exterior being ornamentally finished and presenting a fine appearance.

Inside there is room for seven rinks, which will give the devotees of the game every opportunity to indulge. The ice surface will be laid similarly to the old building, three sheets in the centre of the building and two on each side. At the south end of the building there are two commodious rooms fitted with glass fronts, from which an excellent view can be obtained of the curling ice, and spectators will be enabled to watch the games in comfort from the cosy club rooms. On each side of these rooms there will be plenty of locker accommodation for the storing of stones.

Messrs. Baptie Bros. have made rapid progress with the work, having commenced operations in the latter end of August. They have carried the work ahead quickly and have given the curlers a comfortable building, which is a credit alike to the curlers and the city.

The front is neatly finished, ornamental towers adding greatly to the appearance of the exterior.

Messrs. Dunean and Doupe, who have the contract for the painting, have commenced work, and the building will be finished long before Jack Frost is ready to go ahead with his ice-making contract.
